LABOR DAY EXCURSION MATTER

Credentials Received—Granite Cutters Report Removal of Headquarters—Grievance Committee Busy with Many Unfair Firms—Marine Engineer Matter—Boycott Matter Laid Over.

The Central Labor Union was called to order Monday night, in weekly session, by President Hamerstrom, at Typographical Temple.

Credentials were received from Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, certifying Messrs. J. H. Babcock, John B. Dickman, A. J. E. Hubbard, Harry F. Sauter, and Hugh Everett; from Hoisting and Portable Engineers, No. 77, I. U. S. E., certifying Messrs. Huff, Jenkins, Johnson, Foye, and Bowman; from Engineers, No. 94, certifying Messrs. John W. Stockton, William H. Thomas, C. H. McDowell, Joseph M. Beaman, and William H. Young.

The communication from Retail Clerks requesting that Eiseman Bros., 806 Seventh street northwest, and 1926 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, be placed upon the unfair list was referred to the Grievance Committee.

Grievance Committee reported inability to adjust matters between the different organizations and Emil Wagner, 210 Ninth street northwest; W. E. Carney, cigar manufacturer, 921 G street southwest; Morgan & Co., wall paper, Ninth and H streets northwest; F. M. Finley & Son, bottlers, 1206 D street northwest, and the National Engraving Company, Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, and recommended that the requests of the various unions that they be placed upon the unfair list be complied with.

The Grievance Committee further reported they had adjusted matters between the Retail Clerks and the firms of Bieber-Kaufman, Blum Bros., and David Blum, all located southeast, and recommended they be removed from unfair list. Report was received and recommendations concurred in.

Delegate Silver, of Special Committee, reported there was no foundation in the Randall (River View) charges and therefore no cause for a grievance thereat.

The Excursion Committee was instructed to proceed in matter of Labor Day excursion.

Under the call of unions the Granite Cutters announced the removal of headquarters of their organization to this city on July 1.

Plumbers and gas fitters reported the satisfactory settlement of their recent strike.

The matter of admitting marine engineers came up and after considerable discussion a motion prevailed by which the matter was tabled for thirty days, pending reaching an agreement between the marine engineers and the International Union of Steam Engineers. The secretary was instructed to correspond with central bodies of seaport cities asking if marine engineers were affiliated and under what conditions.

The special order of business relative to indorsement of boycotts was laid over until 9 o'clock next Monday night.

The committee appointed to look into the question of dues reported that while the working balance was small they would "recommend the dues remain as they now stand, but as the principal items of miscellaneous expense are chargeable to the investigation and prosecution of grievances and boycotts, and the balance of revenues not being sufficient the committee further recommend the following amendment to the Constitution:

Resolved, That after July 15, any union submitting a grievance for investigation and prosecution shall deposit with the treasurer the sum of $5, to meet the necessary expense of said investigation and prosecution.

The Executive Committee reported relative to their conferences with the Master Builders' Association and the matter was referred to the Building Trades Section.

W. E. Kennedy, Organizer.

The following about one of our Washington electricians, from Organized Labor (San Francisco, Cal.), June 7, will be of interest to his many friends and acquaintances here:

"W. E. Kennedy, Grand Organizer of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, with headquarters in Washington, D. C., has been in the city for some time, and has been valuably employed in successfully settling disputes over the jurisdiction between the two local unions in the city—No. 6, composed of inside men, and No. 15, of line men.

"Mr. Kennedy is a man of sterling worth, a successful organizer, with a large fund of good sense and considerable executive ability, backed by an extensive experience in the trades union movement. He will go to San Jose and Santa Cruz next week in the interests of his organization and it is likely that he will remain on the coast for some time.

"Organized Labor bids him welcome to stay for years. We like for a neighbor and coworker the man whose sincerity extends from his heart to the tips of his fingers, and such a man is W. E. Kennedy."

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

In the account in the papers last week of the arrest of Miss Lee for a violation of the Jim Crow car law in getting into a car reserved for colored people on the Washington and Alexandria Railroad, it is stated that Miss Lee said she did not know the law and she thought the conductor (who did) who caused her arrest ought to be discharged. I have no comments to make on Miss Lee in particular, but it is a contemptible practice of prominent people in general to recommend or suggest or ask for the discharge of any poor devil of a toiler who chances to give them offense, though he may think he is doing his duty. A man does not navigate a street car or do any other hard work because he enjoys it, but because it is necessary for his support and that of his family. To secure the discharge of such persons for a trivial offense, or for any offense, is as great a wrong as it would be to deprive the person complaining of his fortune or his high office if he should be an offender. But that seems to be the first thought of people aggrieved by a workingman—"I'll have you discharged." This world does not consist of and can not be managed in the interest of the rich and powerful alone.

My friend in the Job Room takes to heart my poor little story about old man Chapman and relates pathetically how a man couldn't spare 50 cents for a May-day hat for his little girl, how he spent the 50 cents for liquor, and how the saloonkeeper immediately gave the money to his little girl for her May-day hat. But all the inhumanity is not on one side of the question, as I think I can demonstrate:

"Maria," said Edward T. Stepton, as he handed his wife his week's wages, "I wish you would let me keep 50 cents to-night. All the fellows are going down town to have a time, and I'd like to go with them."

"No, Ezra," said Mrs. S., "I won't do it Gladys wants a new bonnet and I need gloves and stockings. Besides, I want to give the preacher 50 cents, and I guess I'll run over and hand it to him now."

"Pop," said Billy Freegrace, the minister's son, "give me 50 cents, won't you? I know you've got it, 'cos I saw Mrs. Stepton give it to you. I want to go out with my friends and I'll have to have money to do as the other boys do."

"Yes, my son, I suppose you will have to have it," said the good man. "Boys must have their pleasures the same as other people."

There is no moral, except that the Job Room man is not the only liar engaged on THE TRADES UNIONIST.

Tommy Dougherty rushed off in great haste the other morning, laden with packages.

"What is your hurry, Tommy?" asked some of the boys.

"I am going home to develop some photographs before it gets daylight," said he.

His packages contained a bottle of whisky, two bottles of beer and five cents' worth of ice. Good developer, eh?

A dispatch sent out by the Associated Press last Saturday says:

The Post Office Department has refused free transmission of second-class mail matter bearing the imprint of the Union Label of the Allied Printing Trades on the wrapper. The Department, in making a special ruling on the subject, is merely carrying out the requirements of the law forbidding the printing of labels or other printed matter on second-class envelopes or wrappers.

If this is the law and it is enforced against everybody and under all circumstances, we will not have any ground for complaint, perhaps. But if newsdealers, publishers, and others are permitted to print or stamp advertisements on wrappers or envelopes containing second-class matter, then this ruling is a gross wrong and must be righted.

Now let all hands come together and work to secure the I. T. U. convention for Washington next year, the Union having with practical unanimity voted to instruct its delegates to extend its invitation. As we come from everywhere, we have influence everywhere, and much can be done by private letters to friends in other cities.

* * * *

It would move my heart all right, all right, to "see the long procession of ragged, poverty-stricken mothers and children troop on to the poorhouse, the jail, and to the potter's field." They might be given a ride to the jail and to the potter's field at least. The more I think about it, the more I agree with the Job Room liar as the shortcomings of the late Mr. Chapman.

Sam Yost and Billy Grimes, formerly of the Record, hold down machines on the New York Tribune. Yost is a brother of ex-Congressman Yost and a member of the famous family of printers of that name in the Valley of Virginia.

* * * *

"Press" Huddleston and Dan Green are the delegates in Atlanta. Both were formerly delegates and "Press" is well known here, where he was employed for some time. In him we will undoubtedly have a friend of Washington in the contest for next year's convention.

* * * *

Sam Phillips, in a letter, tells me a story of a "bull" in the World office some years ago. At the opening of the new World building they had a great blow-out, and the account of it stated, among other things, that "Sherry furnished the wine." The compositor thought he knew better and put it, "Sherry wine was furnished." Phillips and Chase marked it right in the proof, but the comp. still thought he knew best, and his version was printed. Turner, the business manager, raised Ned and ordered the readers fired. Jackson, the foreman, found out the true state of affairs and fired the comp. instead, who had been "piped" up to the composing room by Turner himself. Sam moves to substitute this for the Mrs. Pulitzer ad. story, but I have been telling the other too long to consent to the change.

My friend J. C. Gaulden, of the "Spess," recently sent me a copy of the New Orleans Picayune of May 25, containing nearly a page devoted to the fiftieth anniversary of New Orleans Typographical Union, No. 17. There are portraits of two surviving charter members who are still actively employed in printing, Capt. James Beggs, over 80 years old, a proofreader on the Picayune, and Lewis Graham, also over 80, who is in business for himself, and of the principal officers of the union. The article contains the original roster of the union and that of the present day, with a brief history of the union's career during the half century.

* * * *

The facts that Major Roberts, of the "Spess," had his watch stolen and that his frame is next to the presses were known to me, but I should not have associated them together were it not for "Handy Andy's" suggestion. Of course the story of the pressman who found a ring and lost a job is not forgotten, but I have regarded that case as the one exception.

I hope "Handy Andy" won't take a notion to tear loose on me. His almost threat to do so reminds me of an old friend of mine upon whom a practical joke had been played.

"I don't want to know who did it," said he. "I don't know what I might do to him. I wouldn't be responsible for myself."

* * * *

Dr. H. H. Stromberger tells me that the Thomas Dowling to whom I alluded last week as the possessor of a splendid collection of archæological specimens is now a physician of this city. Here, then, is another printer who has thrown off the leaden shackles to revel in the luxuries of a professional life.

* * * *

I blushingly bow acknowledgments, in behalf of the delegates-elect, to the graceful compliment of Foreman Milo Shanks in last week's TRADES UNIONIST. I hope the allegation of the strength of the delegation is not susceptible of different constructions, as was that of the goat dragging a wagon-load of children.

"My!" said a lady looker-on, "isn't that goat strong?"

"We don't mind him," said a little girl passenger. "We're used to him.

Seven or eight years ago, Cos Rodier was making one of his vivid, attention-riveting speeches in the union, when some one who did not know him asked:

"Mr. President, how long has the gentleman been in Washington?"

"How long have I been in Washington?" repeated Cos, with fine scorn. "Why, Mr. President, I was born here."

I knew a young fellow who once had the presumption to make a motion in the St. Joe (Mo.) Union shortly after he went there, and was called down with a similar question:

"Mr. President, how long has the gentleman been a member of this Union."

"Long enough to give me the legal right to speak, make motions, and vote," he answered. "Have you been here any longer?"

The question was not answered, but the motion prevailed.

The papers contained notice last week of the death of Mrs. Flora S. Matile, wife of James H. Matile, of the Weather Bureau printing office, at Pæonian Springs, Va., on June 12, after a short, but painful illness. Mr. Matile has many friends in the G. P. O. who deeply sympathize with him in his bereavement.

* * * *

The other night there was a little comment on a typographical error by which "relict" was used instead of "relic."

"Why, a relict is a widow," said one.

"Yes," said another, "a relict is a widow of a man that's dead."

The last definition was so clear that there seemed no occasion for further discussion.

* * * *

Harry O'Donnell was in "The Swamp" the other evening announcing his candidacy for delegate next year. If he is successful in getting elected and we are successful in getting the convention, he will avoid a long, dusty railway journey. Cheer up, Harry! The last time we had the I. T. U. here one of our delegates was chosen president of it—a thing that may never happen again.

* * * *

A friend of mine has an infallible scheme for beating the horses—to play the favorite for second place. He showed me that by his system he would have won $190 last week and $300 the week before, but he was not playing them then. That seems to be the fault with most systems—they win most frequently when you don't play them.

* * * *

It seems a pity that a good-natured, easy-going chap can't get along in the world without having somebody gunning for him every little while. Johnny Ottinger says my stuff is rotten because of its boquet-throwing character and I have frequently seen him weep because there were no "knocks" in it. But along comes "Handy Andy" with dire threats as to what he will do to me, Bullion, Gould-Brown, and other authorities on grammar, all because I can't stand for pressmen pointing the finger of scorn at our "office style." Then the Petulant, Querulous Liar of the Job Room jabs one of my little stories full of holes—a sketch merely designed to show eccentricity of character—and gives a stock temperance story that would cause cold shivers in old Chapman if he were not dead. I had thought that I was safe in writing of those long passed over, but the Chapman case shows even that is not always sure.

Major John T. Herbert appeared at the Union meeting last Sunday minus the silky pink moustache that has long been his pride and thus joined me in coming down to the level of Dud Fleming and Tom Bynum. It was a good deal to ask of him, but he yielded gracefully.

* * * *

If the members of this union who held membership elsewhere before coming here will each constitute himself (and herself) a committee of one to write to members of the unions whence they came, they can be of infinite assistance to the committee having in charge the matter of securing the I. T. U. for Washington in 1903. Literature will be furnished them to forward with their communications.

* * * *

In some sections there is a fear that if the I. T. U. convention comes to Washington pressure will be brought to remove the I. T. U. headquarters here. Such fears are groundless, so far as my observation goes, many having expressed themselves as not wanting it because our union would be overslaughed by the greater organization and lost sight of. We want the 1903 convention, but not the headquarters.

An item in "an exchange" says:

Leonard Cox, publisher of the Charlotte (Va.) Gazette, is 82 years old and still continues at active work, preferring to set his editorial matter at the case rather than write it and have the composition performed by employes.

The venerable editor is a Harvard gratuate and was educated for and served many years as a minister of the Gospel. In 1868 he established the Warwick (N. Y.) Advertiser, on which paper Jack Edsall, of the Record, and Joe Babcock, of the First Division, learned the trade. A son, E. P. Cox, is employed in the Second Division, Night Force, and has worked in various departments of the G. P. O. The Warwick (N. Y.) Dispatch, from which much of the above information is gleaned, is published by George F. Ketchum, an old New York Times compositor and former chum of Jack Edsall.

A bill has passed the House pensioning "Cap." H. P. Macloon, a Missouri soldier during the dispute of 1861-65. I knew him well in St. Joe, Mo., years ago. The last I heard of him he was in Denver. No doubt many of our Westerners know him.

* * * *

Col. D. R. Anthony, postmaster at Leavenworth, Kans., editor of the Times, for many years a rat shop but now in the union, wants a reappointment as postmaster, while Fred Willard, who run the Times job room when I was in Leavenworth last, wants his job. The newspapers say that Willard has Congressman Curtis's support. Anthony has been postmaster off and on as long as I can recollect. I don't care which gets it, do you?

John Bonini is quite a joker. Some time ago, one of the boys, being a little indisposed one morning, asked John to send a note to his foreman saying he thought he would be able to come to work by 12 o'clock. The note read when delivered:

DEAR MR. ——: I think I will be able to come to by 12 o'clock. —— ——.

Fred. L. Hemmings, formerly a compositor in the G. P. O., is now practicing law at Shawnee, Okla. While working on "Spess" he completed the law course at Columbia, receiving the degree of LL. B., LL. M., and D. C. L. He was a hard student and one of the honor men of his class at graduation. His friends have great expectations for him in his new field.

A. J. Boyer, of the "Spess," in last Sunday's Post, wants all strikers punished—if natives, jailed; if foreigners, deported. There is a nice big home across the Eastern Branch for those who never had any as well as for those whose brains have become addled. Better stick to A. P. A.-ing, Ajy.

A. F. BLOOMER.

Convention Committee.

The following gentlemen, members of Columbia Union, compose the complete committee, whose aims and duties are to further the project of inviting the International Typographical Union to hold its next convention in this city in 1903:

F. N. Whitehead, chairman; E. W. Patton, H. B. Goodrell, T. M. Ring, E. E. Wear, C. C. Thompson, E. E. Calhoun, W. E. Shields, T. Frank Morgan, W. V. Smith, J. R. Berg, A. F. Bloomer, T. A. Bynum, D. W. Fleming, and J. T. Herbert.

Fourth Division.

Dearest "Duckey" you have left me;
I your loss most deeply mourn;
None to pay my board or room rent;
Since you left me all forlorn.

What a lobster you have been, love;
Gave me all my heart desired;
But, alas! another won you,
And I feel that I've been fired.

—HORTENSE MALONEY.

It is President Johnson now.

Watson received the suit which he won at the recent Masonic Fair. It cost him ten cents and seems to be worth the price.

Cummins and Yates have assumed a becoming dignity since President Johnson appointed them to places on committees.

The stork visited the homes of Messrs. Doten and Alderman last week leaving two baby boys to the care of their fond parents. Congratulations, boys, hoping they will live to be useful citizens.

Stanford tried hard to keep it from being known that he was entitled to the appellation of "grandfather," but the news leaked out despite his best efforts. He smiles, however, when so addressed showing that he is highly pleased nevertheless.

Maddox is easily the wrong man in the wrong place when detailed on the P. O. It took the combined efforts of his companions at the lower end of the room, Monday, to induce him to put a strut in his walk, roll down his sleeves, and take his apron off.

COLUMBIA UNION'S MEETING

Largely Attended and Much Important Business Transacted.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON PRESIDES

The Other Newly Elected Officers Obligated—The New Committees Named—Nomination and Business Committees Report—Cumming's Resolutions—Amendments to Newspaper Scale Considered.

President Lawson called the regular monthly meeting of Columbia Union to order Sunday, at Typographical Temple.

Minutes of preceding meeting, upon motion of Mr. Harry O'Donnell, dispensed with.

The Nominations Committee reported favorably upon the applications of Henry M. Beadle, and J. Paxton Hart, apprentice member. Union adopted the report of committee.

Communications were read from Denver, Colorado, Typographical Union; from President Lynch, giving notice of appeal from decision of this union in the Dodson matter; from Newark Union relative to next convention being held in their city; from National Association of Letter Carriers; from Golden Jubilee Committee relative to convention souvenir; from the New York Union inviting President and Secretary of this body to attend Cumming's memorial services to be held in New York, on June 22.

The union voted an appropriation of $50 or as much thereof as necessary to defray expenses of complying with invitation above noted.

Chairman Kidd, of Business Committee, made verbal report of work of his committee for the past year and presented the following which was referred to the incoming Business Committee:

Resolved, That the Business Committee is hereby instructed to compile the scale of prices, or so much thereof as apply to the down town book and job offices, and report thereon at July meeting.

The delegates to the Allied Printing Trades Council reported having placed the label in several offices not heretofore having same and asked the union to assist in procuring the labels loaned J. N. Wood who is out of business.

The Special Committee appointed at May meeting to draft suitable resolutions upon death of Hon. Amos J. Cummings, presented the following which was adopted:

WHEREAS, It has pleased the merciful Father of all to remove from the earthly scenes of a magnificent existence our brother in all things, Amos J. Cummings, to an abode on high, to enjoy the reward of a life of charity and helpfulness; and

WHEREAS, As fellow-members of a labor organization, that to us is church and State, and friend and home, we knew him but to love him for his steadfast adherence to our cause and interests after his talents had carried him to heights where such adherence could no longer benefit him, but only us: and

WHEREAS, His life-long devotion to the principles of unionism, as printer, soldier, journalist, and statesman is ample proof that his soul was grounded in those principles and that his interest in typographical matters was never dictated by selfishness, but by a firm belief in the righteousness of our cause; therefore, be it

Resolved, By Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, that we deplore the all too early death of Amos J. Cummings as a personal bereavement to each and every one of us, and an irreparable loss to the country, his State, and city, and the cause of labor everywhere; as a distinct loss to the nation because of his eminent ability, intense loyalty and his unserving integrity as soldier and statesman; to his State and city because of the faithfulness with which he guarded their interests, and the pertinacity with which he asserted their rights; to typographical unions because of his constancy in his devotion to their welfare; and to the cause of labor in general because his voice and vote were ever at its service.

Resolved, That we tender to his widow our sincere condolence, with the assurance that we are sharers in her grief; as she has lost a loving husband, we have lost a devoted friend.

Resolved, That to his associates in Congress, his brothers in newspaper work, and to New York Typographical Union, No. 6, of which for so many years he was a loyal member and a conscientious adviser, we tender our sincere sympathy in the loss of a noble colleague, friend, and brother.

Resolved, That these resolutions be suitably engrossed and presented to the widow of our departed brother, and that copies be sent by the Secretary to the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the President pro tempore of the Senate, the President of the I. T. U., and the President of New York Typographical Union, No. 6, and be published in THE TRADES UNIONIST and the Typographical Journal.

A. F. BLOOMER,
A. W. BOWEN,
W. N. BROCKWELL,
Committee.

The union went into Committee of the Whole, with Mr. Hersinger in the chair, to consider the amendments to the newspaper scale. The report of the committee was taken up by sections and finally adopted.

J. L. Rodier offered the following which was adopted:

No member working on morning newspapers shall work more than six days in any one week, nor more than 48 hours, where a substitute can be obtained. Should any member work, through inability to secure a substitute, a greater number than six days in any one week, said member shall give to the first available substitute all such extra days, and shall work a correspondingly less number of days within a maximum of six days per week. All violations or evasions of this law shall be punished by a fine of not less than one day's mimimum pay for each violation.

President Lawson reported the results of the election held on May 21.

The newly elected officers were assembled before the rostum and obligated by President Lawson, who thanked the membership, officers and committeemen for their hearty co-operation in the past and he then turned the gavel over to the newly elected president, Joe M. Johnson.

President Johnson made a few remarks and announced his committees, which list will be found in another column, for the ensuing year.

Upon motion of J. H. Babcock President Johnson was also selected to attend the Cumming's memorial services in New York.

The Union granted Mr. Everett permission to withdraw his resolution made at a previous meeting.

F. N. Whitehead offered the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, It is almost a quarter of a century since the International Typographical Union met in this, the capital city of the United States; and

WHEREAS, Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, is second in numerical strength and first in prosperity among all the sisterhood of Unions, a long era of peace with the employers, fair wages, reasonably full employment, and harmony among the membership having added to our financial strength and numbers; and

WHEREAS, The indebtedness of our Typographical Temple is now canceled, relieving us of that burden, and making ours the only Typographical Union, and probably the only labor organization in North America, which owns its meeting hall and executive offices; and

WHEREAS, It seems to us a duty that the larger and stronger unions owe to the I. T. U., the parent organization, to provide for the entertainment of that great body during their annual business sessions, and none is stronger, more willing, and better able to do its duty in that respect than Columbia Union; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, instruct its delegates to the Cincinnati session of the I. T. U., to begin August 11, 1902, to invite that body to hold its session of 1903 in this city, and to express it as the sense of this union that it will highly esteem the honor of providing for the comfort and entertainment of the officers and members of the I. T. U. at that session, in this the grandest convention city on the continent, whose attractions are known as widely as its name.

Resolved, That the President is hereby empowered and directed to appoint a committee of eleven (of which the delegates shall be members ex-officio) to make all preliminary arrangements and perform all necessary duties and labors to carry out the intent of these resolutions.

Resolved, That the committee be empowered to expend such moneys as it will need for printing, stationery, postage, and other expenses incident to the work of the aforesaid committee.

J. H. Babcock moved an appropriation of $50 be made to assist in the movement of giving the poor children of this city an outing. Carried.

Upon an amendment by J. L. Holland to Mr. Roberts' resolution to increase the number from three to five a committee was ordered appointed to draft suitable resolutions to be presented to retiring president. The committee are Messrs. Roberts, Ennis, Hersinger, Halsey, and Brockwell.

F. C. Roberts offered an amendment which was laid over and ordered printed on the call.

Mr. Butler moved a committee be appointed to endeavor to procure the next I. T. U. convention in this city; also to be empowered to entertain delegates en route to Cincinnati. Agreed to.

Lon A. Shimp offered a resolution in reference to printing offices printing, writing or posting style claimed by said institutions. Referred to Business Committee.

The officers of the union were instructed upon resolution of F. C. Roberts to wire President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers of America proffering sympathy and pledging moral and financial support in their strike. The officers were also instructed to wait upon Public Printer Palmer and ascertain the practicability of setting aside a room in the new building to be used in case of sickness or accident to employees while at work.

The following amendments to the obligation was offered by F. C. Roberts: "And I will give all articles bearing the union label the preference."

Steam Fitters' Convention.

Thos. L. Hess, President of the R. A. Lanis Association of Steam Fitters, returned to the city during the week from Philadelpeia, where he has been attending the Fifteenth Annual Convention of the National Association of Steam and Hot Water Fitters and Helpers of America. Brother Hess reports the Association as having made rapid strides in the past year. Eight charters having been issued and none revoked, and an increase in the finances of $545 over the year 1900. The question of publishing a journal was referred to the referendum, and it is to be hoped that favorable action will now be taken by the locals. Thomas McCormick, of Yonkers, N. Y., was re-elected president; A. W. Foos, of Louisville, Ky., vice-president: W. L. Onstott, of Chicago, Ill., re-elected secretary-treasurer; Charles Maloney, of Springfield, Mass., organizer for the Eastern district; Thomas L. Hess, of Washington, D. C., for the Central, and A. D. Condon, of Minneapolis, Minn., for the Western. The Executive Board consists of James Carroll, of Chicago; Geo. F. Thornton, Jr., of Newark, N. J.; Robt. Williams, of St. Louis, Mo.; P. J. Gilligan, of Albany, N. Y.; G. S. Brown, of Philadelphia, Pa., and J. H. Coglan, of Boston, Mass.

H. McConnell, of Philadelphia, Pa., was elected as a delegate to the A. F. of L. and W. L. Onstott was appointed to represent the National Association before the Master Steam Fitters' Association, which is now in convention at Philadelphia. Brother Onstott has held the office of secretary-treasurer for the past five years and it is to his untiring efforts that the Association has developed its present strength.

To the Members of the American Federation of Labor:

For some years the Union Cigarmakers of the United States have been making strenuous efforts to induce their fellow trades unionists to demand on all occasions union-made blue label cigars.

They have employed many agents and spent considerable sums of money to this end, and in some localities and in many of the smaller cities have accomplished creditable results. The larger fields, however, cities like New York, Chicago, St. Louis, San Francisco, etc., have been hard to reach and are still in a condition far from satisfactory from the standpoint of trades unionism. The large non-union manufacturers and the factories under the control of the trust, owing to the tremendous capital and influence under their control, have successfully prevented the universal introduction of blue label goods, and their agents—and nearly every retailer is to an extent their agent—have co-operated with them in discouraging in various ways the consumption of the union-made article.

The foisting of grossly inferior goods bearing the label has been as annoying and discouraging to workers in all trades who desire to be consistent trades unionists as to the union cigarmakers themselves. Fully 90 per cent of the retail cigar dealers in the large cities demonstrate prejudice in favor of the non-union product.

Confident that this condition of affairs can be remedied to mutual advantage the Doremus Automatic Vending Company has determined, wherever authority to do so can be obtained, to place good union-made cigars within the reach of all trades unionists by installing its machines in every office, shop, foundry, mill, or work room where union men are employed. Good cigars carefully made of pure selected tobacco by skilled union cigarmakers under legal and sanitary conditions will be placed in the machines.

The cut of the machine which accompanies this article shows the type designated to vend cigars. It is the only machine ever invented to sell cigars that entirely complied with the Government regulations, and sells the cigar from an ordinary cigar box, at the same time giving the purchaser an opportunity to examine the cigar before purchasing. It has been approved by the Government. The Doremus machine is the invention of Willard D. Doremus, inventor of the street letter box and the rapid stamp cancelling machine in use by the United States Government. It does not confine its operations to cigars alone, for scores of other commodities, from a lead pencil to a package of tea or coffee, are vended with equal facility and precision.

The machine is the only universal vending device ever invented.

There is no professional promoter connected with the Doremus Automatic Vending Company. All of the gentlemen connected with it have put their own money in it, and not one of them was ever before interested in the sale of any stock.

The company contends that no dealer can sell as good a cigar over the case or bar, as the Doremus Automatic Vending Company does not advertise brands of cigars, and spends nothing for rent, clerk hire, lighting or insurance, and puts into the cigar what dealers are obliged to pay out for such purposes. The result is positively the best smoke to be had for the money.

The Company will aim to satisfy the taste of the public, and will welcome suggestions or criticisms that will accomplish that end.

Did you ever stop to think of the number of people that may have handled and fingered the cigar offered to you over the case or bar? The cigars sold by the vending device will go direct from the maker to the smoker and will be clean.

Where machines are installed in departments that are under the jurisdiction of unions, the Doremus Automatic Vending Company will turn into the treasury of the local branch or union, or to such benevolent or other association as shall be mutually agreed upon, 50 per cent of all profits earned by the machines in the various departments. Vacation funds or out-of-work or sick benefit funds might thus be established.

Doremus Automatic Vending Device.

On a five-cent cigar there will be two cents profit—one cent going to the company and one cent to the treasury of the branch, or association, or union, as the case may be. On the ten-cent cigar the profit is of course much greater and is usually doubled.

The Company considers the plan in no sense benevolent, but simply mutually beneficial, the men furnishing the market and the company what are guaranteed to be the very best union-made cigars that can be bought for the money.

The gentlemen composing the Doremus Automatic Vending Company believe that by putting this plan into operation the problem of economical and profitable installation and operation will be solved, at the same time, owing to the circumstances mentioned above, offering to smokers the best cigar obtainable for the money and making it possible for trades unionists to comply with the dictates of their unions and the spirit of unionism.

The putting up of machines has already begun. A high standard of excellence will be maintained, and the quality of the cigars sold will be depended upon to establish a permanent patronage.

Should any union so decide, the 50 per cent profits turned by the company over to the union might be used to establish a building fund or for such other helpful or benevolent purpose as the union agreed upon.

Many trades unionists and letter carriers have purchased stock. Send for prospectus. Machines are on exhibition at all the offices of the Company. All inquiries regarding the security or plans of the Company will be gladly answered.

Although the Doremus Automatic Vending Company has only been organized about two months, the machines have been in practical operation for about one year, and have been an unqualified success. The fact that since its organization the Company has had all its printing done in union shops—most of it bearing the label of the allied printing trades—should be of interest to those who have at heart the welfare of that industry.

It is to be hoped that when the machines are universally installed those affiliated with the American Federation of Labor will give the blue label cigars vended by the machine a trial.

By purchasing their cigars from the little machine trades unionists will be assured of a good union smoke, and will have the additional gratification of helping to build up a fund for some special and worthy object.

Application for installation of the machines may be made direct to the Installation Department of the Company.

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL WASHINGTON. 2

THURSDAY, JUNE 19, 1902.

Vol. VII, No. 1.

With this issue THE TRADES UNIONIST adds another year to its volume number, having begun its seventh year of existence.

Since its launching upon the sea of labor journalism many vicissitudes have been safely passed through and it is with a feeling of thanks that we note we have outlived the allotted time of many papers of the labor class whose misfortune it was not to receive the hearty support of those for whose cause they battle.

While we have received goodly support from many of the labor organizations of the District, it is not what it should be and there is yet room for many unions enrolling themselves upon our subscription books.

The maintenance of a labor paper depends solely upon the support given it by members of labor organizations and their friends. If this support is unstintingly rendered the paper is placed in a position to more strongly impress upon the employer "that an injury to one is the concern of all," and also to carry out the spirit of the phrase "the greatest good to the greatest number."

The policy of THE TRADES UNIONIST will always be to take the side of organized labor in all controversies and to that end we invite the secretaries and members of different organizations to use our columns in placing matters of interest to their crafts before their fellow members and the public.

We shall always advocate the governmental ownership of railways, telegraph, and all public utilities in the locality where they exist, believing the toiler should receive a salary commensurate with the earnings of the corporation employing him; we also advocate fair play, arbitration and admonish our fellow unionists to always remember the employer as well as the employe has some right in the premises.

We practice the doctrine we preach, and THE TRADES UNIONIST is the only Eight-Hour Union-Label office in Washington.

We return thanks to our many patrons in the past and trust we will continue to serve them in the future.

Advertisers should avail themselves of the use of our columns, as there is no better medium to reach the honest toiler..

Equipped with necessary presses, up-to-date faces of type, and every article necessary to execute commercial and job work as it should be, THE TRADES UNIONIST is prepared to print anything, no matter what.

"Washington in 1903."

Columbia Union, at its meeting last Sunday, instructed its delegates to Cincinnati to invite the I. T. U. to fix upon Washington as the place to hold the convention of 2903 and empowered the President to appoint a committee to take all the steps necessary to secure that end. It is to be hoped that every member of the Union will lend all aid possible to the committee, in the way of trying to create a sentiment in favor of Washington among friends in the cities of their former residence. To hold the convention here will not involve any great expense and can probably be accomplished without increasing the dues a cent. The attractions of Washington, fortunately, are practically free. An excursion, a banquet, and a "trolley ride" or two will probably comprise the greater items of expense, and these can not make very great inroads on our finances. The business men will probably be glad to contribute toward the expense. The prestige of having the I. T. U. convention is worth a great deal to any Union and there is none better able to undertake the office of host than Washington. Let us all pull together in a whole-hearted way and the result will be the occasion of self-congratulation.

ON another page will be found a list of the newly installed officers of Columbia Union and the committees appointed by President Johnson.

THE fourteenth annual convention of the Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of America convened in Baltimore, Md., on Monday, about two hundred delegates being present. Much important legislation relative to the feeders and the allied trades label was enacted.

Fifth Division.

The following, which flavors of the comical and the pathetic, was handed me, with request the same appear in our section of THE TRADES UNIONIST:

Poor Hopp's resignation
Was handed in with care,
Since then this old division
Seems sullenly and bare;
Some mornings all the fragrance
Of wildwood blossoms fair
Would softly leave their moorings
To scent the heavy air.

The blending of "mint juleps"
With "Melrose" strong and old,
Would make the types appear
Almost like sticks of gold;
For "Bright Eyes" was a daisy,
The smartest in the dell,
But since we've miss'd the beauty
We've also miss'd the "smell."

Though Happy Hop has left us
His mem'ry we'll keep green,
Forgiving and forgetting
Some funny things we've seen;
And at a special meeting
This chapel did agree—
That "Melrose, Melrose, Melrose,
The blame is all on thee."

I wonder how does alley 2 get along without slug 13?

On account of pressure of business, the "Y" put in full eight hours last Sunday,

Applications for leaves are in order, and several "homestead claims" are already recorded.

We are sorry to learn that Mrs. Taylor, wife of Chairman Taylor, is indisposed. We wish her a speedy recovery.

Between tide tables and some other tables that are worse than a solar plexis blow, this division is continually in hot water.

F. H. Hopkins has resigned, prefering the adversity of solid long primer and small pica to the luxury and prosperity of the Fifth Division.

In the absence of Foreman Bowen, who is on fourteen days' leave, Assistant Boone is in full charge, and Maker-up Pratt presiding at the copy box.

Subscriptions toward the G. A. R. encampment to be held in this city netted about $17 in this division, Comrade Purcell heading the list with $2.50.

John C. Himmelman is spending a few days at his old home, Perryburg, Ohio. One and all we wish him the enjoyment of his hard-earned leave, hoping to see him among us once again in full possession of good health.

The ball game last Friday evening between the Fifth Division and Messengers team resulted: Messengers, 17; Fifth Division, 10. Another game between the same parties is scheduled and will be pulled off on the same grounds—Seventeenth and G streets northeast—to-day (Thursday).

"Grandfather's hat" is not, and never was, in it with the famous headgear that Adams is sporting. He said it was hard to depart with ten solid plunks; but considering that style and fashion. and especially the complexion, called for something up-to-date, he reluctantly ran the gauntlet and secured the prize. DIXIE.

Specification Notes.

Another large issue of specifications.

Miss Hawk has resigned on account of poor health, and is to return to her home in Columbus, Ohio.

About forty applications for contemplated leave at various dates were recorded by Timekeeper Beach on Tuesday.

Some were a little staggered when the notice was posted Saturday which required the "full" force to report for duty on Sunday.

Sturgis with a mustache resembles the President. Now it is up to the President to demonstrate that he is as good looking as Sturgis without a mustache.

Fred W. Henke, who has charge of the lights and all the stored-up energy of this division, received a severe sprain of the elbow by a fall from his bicycle early this week.

It has been observed that storms manage to break here about 4.30, just at the time when "all hands" are ready to go home. For this reason it would be a great convenience if the hours could be shortened to make the closing time a half hour earlier.

Marye grabbed the first wrapped package in sight and hurriedly left his home for the office. When lunch hour came he squared himself for the usual repast and to his great surprise he found it consisted of a pound or so of sweitzer, instead of the usual variety.

The symposium has reached the end of the first quarter, and the books show a good balance to the credit of the concern. Some have a pick up, some ended even, some are yet working on their run down, some have no run down, and a few are on the make up.

The invention had for its title an "Improvement in Windows." The compositor omitted the n, but the error was overtaken by the reader. It is not pleaded that an improvement in widows would be impossible, but the Patent Office is not considering that proposition just now.

AROUND THE PRINTERIES.

Down Town.

The coronation was a success.

The only thing left is the ponies and baseball.

The Washington Baseball Club, American League, meets Boston here on June 24, 25, and 26, and Philadelphia, June 27, 28, and 30.

We regret to announce the illness of Mrs. Eugene F. Smith, who is at present confined in Columbia Hospital. Her many friends wish for her speedy and permanent recovery.

If you intend to visit Cincinnati during the I. T. U. convention, commencing August 11, consult this paper. Railroad rates, hotel accommodations, attractions at Cincinnati will be published in detail.

William C. Watson, who was recently employed on the Bill Force in the G. P. O., resigned said position Saturday to accept a position in the Postoffice Department at Chicago, and left this city for said place Monday. Here's luck to you, Bill.

Through a letter received Wednesday by D. J. Roberts, foreman of the First Division, of the G. P. O., from Edwin C. Jones, at Manila, Philippine Islands, comes the news of all the Washington contingent, himself included, enjoying good health in that far away country. He states while cholera is prevalent Americans and Europeans are rarely ever stricken with it.

There is one word in the English language which can appear six times consecutively in a sentence and make correct English. To illustrate: A boy wrote on the blackboard, "The man that lies does wrong." The teacher objected to the word "that," so the word "who" was substituted. And yet it must be evident to the reader for all that, that that "that" that that teacher objected to was right, after all.—Four Track News.

EDITORS THE TRADES UNIONIST:

When I wrote those few remarks about "Agnostic Sneers," etc., I had no idea that they would create such a "tempest in a teapot," so to speak, or that I would be drawn into a controversy with my old friend Rodier. But when he takes up a column and a half to throw bouquets, as it were, at the one who did him an injustice (if any was done), and at the same time, to abuse me and cast his insulting slurs at me, and presume to tell me what I shall or shall not write about, then I think, in justice to myself, that I can no longer remain silent.

If one were to judge from the remarks of the would-be silver-tongued orator from Swampoodle, they would be led to the conclusion that all the members of our union who did not vote as he did were either fools or hypocrites. It would seem that he was very sore over the several roasts that he received at the meeting, and looking around for some one on whom to vent his spite, and, at the same time, to give wider vent to his pent-up "hot air"—of which it would seem to one who has attended the meetings of our union, mother nature has endowed him with a superfluity—he turns on one, who has always been his friend, and makes his insulting slurs and insinuations which are without the shadow of truth.

In looking over the votes cast by the members of our organization during the past three or four years I feel justified in arriving at the conclusion that he is not the "whole thing"—not so many, as it were, in the opinion of the majority.

But all who know this distinguished comma chaser and mud-slinger will tell you that he has a faculty of talking or writing more and saying less than any one they ever had the pleasure of meeting. We were of the opinion that it was Mr. Philip Steele, not the writer, who "inserted a knife into his metaphorical innards," to use his own expression. Surely, it was Mr. Steele who accused this "distinguished" orator and agitator of making "agnostic sneers," and it was Mr. Herzinger who accused Mr. Rodier of "gross inconsistency," because he refused to render assistance to people who are compelled to work six days and nights, and sometimes seven, and refused to indorse the action of the Central Labor Union.

Those who were at the meeting can testify to the truth of the assertion. I have no desire to misrepresent the facts in the case. Now, in regard to what he has to say about the resolutions, etc., offered by the writer, I desire to say that his remarks are irrelevant, immaterial, and leading, and have nothing to do with the facts in "his" case. I knew that there had been a special effort made to get the time-limit for temporary employes extended, and the effort had been successful; and, while I had not been personally benefitted by said efforts, I thought that those who had been instrumental in having it done, deserved thanks. But ingratitude seems to be the leading characteristic in some people's make-up. That is why they were offered, and when I discovered that action had already been taken in the matter I did not urge the resolutions.

He also has the audacity to quote Holy Writ about "casting stones," etc., while at the same time he was willing that some people should violate—in fact, openly advocated the violating God's command, "Remember the Sabbath day and keep it holy; six (not seven) days shalt thou labor and do all thy work; but the seventh is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God; in it thou shalt not do any work," etc. I might add that he will not find the above quotation in Tom Paine's "Age of Reason," or in Ingersoll's "Mistakes of Moses."

I did not say anything about "our noble foreman" or "worthy foreman," but in chronicling the happenings of this division I remarked that "our genial foreman" attended the exercises at Arlington, and I think that any one who knows Mr. Hickman will say that he is a "genial" gentleman, and if the writer did not think so, he would not say it, as he has always been in the habit of calling "a spade a spade," and he has no apology to make in that direction.

Does he think it is good unionism to pitch in and abuse members of our organization just because they happen to be in authority? Is it a crime, in his estimation, to speak well of people who treat their employes kindly?

I am of the opinion, however, that the following lines from a well-known writer are adapted to this case:

Say, if you have an idea that
You of us all know where you're at,
And while mankind remains in doubt
You know just where you're coming out;
Collect your wits, if you have any,
And count yourself—you're not so many.

Say, brother, if you have the gall
To think you really know it all,
To feel that you are better than
The ordinary, average man,
And that hereafter you will rise
To higher glory in the skies
Than those who do not have a penny,
Go count yourself—you're not so many.

S. M. SIMPSON.

Third Division.

Jas. H. Heslet signed for the remainder of his annual leave last Tuesday.

N. G. Watts left last Tuesday for St. Louis, where he expects to spend the two weeks leave due him.

We were credibly informed a day or so ago that our foreman, Mr. Shanks, purchased a fine ping pong set. Well, notwithstanding, the many jokes and puns made at the expense of the game, we do not know of any game that is more amusing or will more quickly while away the hours of an evening.

We have quite a famous character among printorial circles working in this division, whose notoriety has spread sufficiently as to warrant a half-column write-up in one of the morning papers of this city. We recognize him as "Little Willie" Thornton, others as "Blood" Thornton, and the reporter mentioned him as W. D. Thornton—they are all one and the same man. Hereafter we must all bow the knee and doff the hat to him in our midst who has achieved such a high and enviable pinacle of fame.

A special chapel meeting was held on last Saturday for the purpose of repealing paragraph 12 of our chapel rules. This rule compels the compositor to finish his distribution that he has taken on his frame while on the slate waiting for copy after he has responded to his number and finished his "take" before taking out copy a second time. The rule was not repealed, but was again endorsed by quite a majority. The rule is a good one and if it could be properly enforced, would materially benefit the work of the division.

It is not often that any member of this division becomes sufficiently aggravated as to resort to the quoting of Shakespere to appease his wrath or as a weapon to vanish his enemy, but the following bit of Shakesperean philosophy was thrown by one of our most scholarly members point blank at the head of one of our superiors in a most vehement and striking way:

But man, proud man,
Dressed in a little brief authority,
Most ignorant of what he's most assured,
His glassy essence, like an angry ape,
Plays such fantastic tricks before high Heaven,
As makes the angels weep.

If that wouldn't knock out a pugilist of the first class, we would like to know how much more it would take?

We are always of the opinion that the lot of the night compositor in the G. P. O. was a happy one. Judging from the ruthless and heartless manner in which he always filches our most valuable sorts and thoughtlessly sets our cases down to the very boards, we have long since decided that he rolls up an average as easy as the average printer can empty a schooner of beer. But the following tale of woe, written by some disconsolate night-hawk and left upon slug 40's frame in alley 8, forces us to the conclusion that he, too, has troubles of his own, and that the care of the proverbial night-hawk is not one of the rosiest hue:

TO DAY HANDS IN ALLEY 8.

Innumerable multitudes of flies, bugs, and beetles have swarmed in this alley all night, and if you find your cases in disorder, pied or otherwise objectionable, please place the blame on these insects. We were compelled to fight them continually, and we ask your sympathy in the many hours of affliction which we were compelled to endure.

Poor fellow! he has our deepest sympathy, and not another complaint will we utter, even though he sets all our type and hangs the cases on the wall.

D. J. KAUFMAN, 1005-7 Pa. Ave.

Bookbinders' Convention.

The Eighth Annual Convention of the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders was the most successful ever held. President Kissell, of Local No. 53, of Indianapolis, in behalf of his union, extended a hearty welcome to the delegates, and it was a royal welcome and nothing but praise can be given our brothers in Indianapolis. A banquet, two vaudeville shows, a smoker, and a trolley ride made the week a very pleasant one. Mayor Bookwalter attended the social events and opened the convention in the State capitol building. The mayor is a printer by trade, a jolly good fellow, and put the delegates in a happy frame of mind by his witty sayings, and retired amid great applause. He is the proud possessor of a card from the Fort Wayne Typographical Union.

The delegates from Local No. 4 served on the following committees: W. C. Connor on Credentials; Wm. H. Kelly on Local Unions; J. L. Feeney on Unfinished Business.

The condition of the organization, financially, is excellent and an increase in attendance of eighty votes over the last convention. The next meeting will be held in St. Paul, Minn. The proxy vote is a thing of the past. A resolution supporting the four-year clause in Local No. 4's constitution was carried. The old board of officers were re-elected and Wm. H. Kelly to the Executive Council. Many funny incidents happened to the delegates which we will report later.

In vicinity of Government Printing Office.
Competent Instructors Attend.
Private Reading Rooms—Day and Evenings. Letters prepared in plain penmanship or typewriting by a stenographic clerk. Large, cool rooms, ground floor.
This Philosophical Library School is directly and solely established for reasoners. The literature embraces the lessons and demonstrations of the philosophical world now. The library will be progressive and up-to-date. Classical, Rational Philosophy is the sine qua non.
NOTICE.—Philosophy, as now taught, elevates and liberates the minds of the people from the degradation and slavish faith consequent to the belief in the reason-murdering phantom, namely, the Ghost-Soul of the Theologs. The swarm of evils that flow from this myth alone is enough to envolve and swamp thousands of worlds of people in trepidation and misery: Gods to make, bless or damn it; devils and demons to ensnare it; ghosts and fairies to affright and terrorize it. All these myths, and there are myriads of them, with their innumerable doings, etc., occupy the minds of the ignorant and superstitious their whole life long. Beware, Americans! Life is short.
The conscious universe, as explained by rational philosophy, is unity, is uniformity, is all reason, and is all law, in all things, in all times, and everywhere; understand it and you will be free; stop reasoning and you are a slave at once.
Americans who desire the preservation of their Government and civilization are invited to the Reading Rooms of the Philosophical Library and School, No. 912 First street northwest. JAMES CORRIDON, member of the National Educational Association, U. S. A., Proprietor. *1

Handy Andy's Aphorisms.

Frank Willis seems to have the lead in the race for Capt. Brian's $25 check offered as a prize in Pressmen's Council, National Union. Morsell is running him a close second.

Since my narrow escape from the meshes of the dog catchers net I am in almost daily receipt of letters and circulars dedicated to the subject of rearing and diet for dogs.

Maloney—he who lost his grey rags by his overconfidence in a hobo typo—received his appointment during the past week, and is forsooth made merry in celebration of the event.

Charlie Schulte was sandbagged the other night and had his coat, cuffs, and panama lid stolen. Charlie won't tell when it happened but we can all guess. His explanation is not plausible.

The boys who went out to Baltimore last Wednesday to frolic with the delegates report a most enjoyable time and plenty of every thing to eat and drink—for gratis, of course, or they would have remained at home.

Callahan has returned to work after an absence of a week or so—the finale of his leave. John claims to have been hunting and fishing, but Kelly insists that he spent his time studying German in a sauerkraut emporium on North Capitol street.

Speaking of patronizing union firms, did it ever occur to you that not a single straw hat made to-day bears a union label? Fact, and the most expensive luxury in lids—the Panama—is the product of the poorest paid set of working people in the world.

Joseph Dierken, of Capt. Brian's staff has rented a cottage at Colonal Beach for the summer. Joe has done enough excursion work for Randall to earn a season pass that will enable him to visit his family every Saturday. How about this, Capt. Randall? You might make it two. I've got a shack down there myself.

And now some one who thinks Pat O'Brien is making too much of a good thing with his apron laundry, proposes to run opposition and split up a business that is a good living for one and not enough for two. Remember all you good union men who shout at conventions and puff hot air between times that you can uphold the principles of unionism in various ways.

Speaking of Panama hats, here's one on Foreman Roberts, of the First Division, that is vouched for by several truthful typos. One day during the week just ending, a stranger with a Panama hat, decorated with a good-sized mouthful of tobacco juice, complained to Mr. Roberts that his helmet had thus been greatly disfigured by some one on his floor expectorating from the window. Roberts had been reading, "The Hound of the Baskervilles" and at once set forth to emulate the example of Sherlock Holmes. He asked the stranger to locate the window from which the juice had been propelled and studied the winds for a distance of deflection then he plunged into one of the alleys and found a helper at work near the window.

Oh ho! a scent.

"Tom," said he, calling him aside, "do you chew tobacco?"

"No, indeed," said Tom, "but I kin git you a chew, Mr. Roberts," and the helper started off.

Roberts called him back and gave up sleuthing.

Day Record.

How do? How do?

Banker was on the bunk one night last week.

The Record symposium is now a thing of the past. The boys will draw something over $9 as a dividend.

Now, that Congress will soon adjourn, the work is getting harder and harder each night until the final climax will take place.

C. H. Sengstack is laid up from catching a ball on his thumb. He was practicing for the Record team.

The last baseball team that ever "came down the pike"—that is, the Record team—went up against the Bill Force team last Sunday afternoon at Ruppert's Park. A large crowd was present to witness the knockout of the Bill Force by our team, the score standing 8 to 9 in favor of our boys. Eddie Nevils and Charlie Gardner officiated as umpires and both came out of the game unscratched. The position of the players of the Record were as follows: Carey, 1 b.; Cotter, s. s.; Easterbrook, 3 b. and l. f.; Lehman, p. and 2 b.; Graf, c. f.; King, l. f.; Skelly, c.; Williams, 2 b. and p.; Outcalt, r. f.; Smith, 3 b.; total hits, 13; runs 9.

The Bill Force team were composed of the following members: Cadet, 1 b., p., and s. s.; Wisener, 2 b.; Atkinson, 3 b.; Bennett, r. f.; Sheehan, l. f.; Horen, p. and 1 b.; Gambrill, c.; O'Connell, s. s. and p.; McKean, c. f.; total hits, 10; runs, 8.

The Bill Force being defeated they challenged the Record to play them a game in the near future for $50 to the side.

SIDE NOTES.

Lehman got sick with drinking water.

'Gene Smith covered himself with glory at third.

Carey, who played first, put up a very snappy game.

Cotter, short stop for the Record, caught everything that came his way.

Four of the Record boys struck out, while nine of the Bill Force "fanned."

Easterbrook caught a "hot one" on the arm, but stuck manfully to the game.

Charlie Durno, manager of the Bill Force team, worked hard for the success of his club.

"Midget" Skelly, catcher for the Record, rendered indispensable service in that capacity.

Gardner says its tough to be beat playing ball and then sent over on the Record to "pull out."

Lehman's pitching was the decided feature of the game, having the heavy-hitting Bill Force at his mercy at all times.

Williams, the genial chairman of the Record, played an exceptionally fine game, pitching during the wind-up of same.

Horen pitched the first part of the game for the Bill Force. He was relieved by O'Connell, who was a "puddin" for the Record team.

Too much credit can not be given Charlie Graff for his able and successful management of the game in behalf of the Record during the whole of its procedure.

THE CENTRAL LABOR UNION

An Important Amendment Relative to the Unfair List Becomes Law.

LOEB & COMPANY AGAIN FAIR

Many Communications Disposed of—Credentials Received—Congressman Loudenslacker's Services Noted—The Cleveland Base Ball Team Matter—Master House Painters Request Meeting—The Glass Blowers and Second Hand Bottle Matter.

Monday night at Typographical Temple, President Hamerstrom called the regular weekly session of the Central Labor Union to order.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Secretary Winslow and adopted by the body.

Credentials were received from the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, Local No. 190, certifying Messrs. J. M. Heisley, Ed. McClelland, F. J. Neidamanski, A. Dagenhart, and J. D. O'Donnell; from the Carriage and Wagon Workers' International Union, Local No. 72, certifying Messrs. John H. Brinkman, James L. Stevens, John W. Baker, Robert F. Jonscher, and George H. Graves; from the Brotherhood of Painters and Decorators, Local No. 368, certifying Messrs. William Chism, Zack Sanders, George Murray, William McGinnis, and Benjamin F. De Atley.

A lengthy communication from the Metal Polishers, Buffers, Platers, Brass Moulders and Brass Workers' International Union of North America, of Cleveland, Ohio, signed by International President Lynch setting forth the famous Roach's Scab Detectives Agencies' Letter was read and ordered placed on file.

A communication from Inside Structural and Iron Workers International Union, No. 39, of Elmira, N. Y., setting forth their troubles with the Empire Bridge Company, of that city, whom they claim are trying to break up their union was read. This communication was referred to the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' Union.

A communication from the office of General Committee of T. & P. Railway machinists at Dallas, Texas, setting forth that having asked for increase of wages "from the fact that the commodities of life have advanced 33⅓ per cent from March 1901 to March 1902, and our wages have not advanced one penny" they have determined to fight it out and requested financial and moral support of this body. This communication was referred to the Machinists' Union.

A communication from the Dayton Central Trades Council stated they had placed the Cleveland Base Ball team, American League, upon the unfair list because said corporation had played upon grounds, after warning not to do so, belonging to street car company of that city against whom they have been conducting a strike. They requested this body to treat them accordingly. The matter was referred to the Grievance Committee.

The Master House Painters and Decorators' Association communicated that a committee of their association would be pleased to meet the committee of the Central Labor Union, Tuesday, July 1, at 4:30 p. m., at the Corcoran Building. The Contract Committee was directed to comply with the above invitation.

A communication was received from "The News," a bulletin of limited circulation, issued here and controlled by one J. F. McCormick, of the Government Printing Office, and his brother, setting forth their desire to become the official organ of this body. This matter was referred to a committee composed of Messrs. Sherman, Babcock, Franklin, Brinkman, and Leane.

Secretary Winslow was directed to request the Marine Engineers to select a place to meet a committee from this body.

The Glass Blowers' Association, of Alexandria, Va., requested a special committee be appointed to call upon the health officer here relative to legislation against use of second hand bottles. This request was granted and Messrs. McCarthy, Pletcher, Schwartzman, Rom, and Lear were named as such committee.

The Bartenders called attention to certain houses using the union sign of their league, and the bartenders not displaying the blue button.

The following resolutions were offered by a delegate from Columbia Union, and adopted:

WHEREAS, The Hon. H. C. Loudenslager, Representative in Congress from the First New Jersey District, has upon every occasion proven his friendship for organized labor; and

WHEREAS, His efforts in favor of the passage of the Eight-Hour and the Chinese Exclusion bills especially entitle him to the support of organized labor; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Central Labor Union of the District of Columbia indorse his position in Congress upon all labor measures.

The Retail Clerks requested that the firm of Loeb & Company, who had made satisfactory settlement with them and signed their contract, be taken from the unfair list. Request granted.

The following amendment to the Constitution carried and is now law:

Resolved, That after July 15, any union submitting a grievance for investigation and prosecution shall deposit with the treasurer the sum of $5, to meet the necessary expense of said investigation and prosecution.

Off for San Francisco.

President Gompers, President of American Federation of Labor, left Wednesday, for San Francisco, to attend the meeting of the Executive Council of that body to be held in the above city, June 21.

The Washington American ball team have some very staunch supporters in this room, considerable sums of money being put up on the result of the various games.

Once more we are delving into the mysteries of the stars and constellations. When we will come back to earth is hard to foretell, as we are soaring pretty high at present.

I work'd all the winter from morning 'till late
And spent all my shekels while winking at fate;
So now I have nothing to sport with but dream
Of beating some Dago in selling ice cream.

W. H. Wright was called to his home, Newport, N. H., last Friday on account of the sudden death of his father, who expired at the ripe age of 73 years. The cause was heart trouble. The blow is more severe as Mr. Wright was enjoying splendid health and the end came so unexpectedly. Our sympathies are extended to Brother Wright in hi sad bereavement.

This story is told on Senator Pocher, he of chocolate color. The other day Ed Heidingsfeld felt in one of his jocular moods, and accosting the Senator said: "Say, Pocher, the best looking and best dressed foreigners in that vast crowd attending the coronation festivities of King Edward were the soldiers of Menelik from Abysinia; they were fine." Pocher listened attentively; bracing up and throwing out his chest, his shiny face outshining a bootblack shine, he exclaimed: "Yes, sah, there are mighty smart coons in Virginia!" Poor Pocher never caught on.

The glorious Fourth once more. Take off your hats:

I see that banner proudly wave,
Yes, proudly waving yet,
Not a stripe is torn from the broad array,
Not a single star is set;
And the eagle with unruffled plume
Is soaring aloft in the welkin dome.
Not a leaf is pluck'd from the branch he bears,
From his grasp not an arrow has flown;
The mist that obstructed his vision is past
And the murmur of discord is gone;
For he sees with a glance from mountain and plain
The Union unbroken from Georgia to Maine.
The links are all united still
That form the golden chain,
And peace and plenty smile around
Throughout the vast domain;
How feeble the language—how cold is the lay
Compar'd with the joy of this festival day—
To see that banner waving yet,
Aye, waving proud and high;
No rent in all its ample folds,
No stain of crimson dye;
And the eagle spreads his pinions fair
And mounts aloft in the fields of air.

J. T. White, grocer, of 1540 North Capitol street N. W., is a friend of organized labor to the extent that the label appears on all paper sacks used in his business.

Dave Pollock has a steel fishing rod and reel which he secured by garnering tobacco tags. It is worth five dollars, but he will sell it for $4.98, spot cash, because he needs the money.

Mr. Howard Young, employed in the office of the Superintendent of Documents, is back at work after an absence of three weeks spent at Providence Hospital, where he underwent an operation.

The new man was introduced to his first proof, which called for a seeingly large number of hyphens, whereupon he remarked that it must have been a charge of bird shot, and suggested it would be better to change the hypens to the 3-m space box.

The following named came from the main office last week to take the initiatory degree on this work: L. L. McWhorter, Robt. F. Simms, Harry G. Pride, Henry T. McConvey, William Busey, George B. Wood, Thomas C. Boyd, F. E. Klopfer, Otto William Harke, and James J. Cooney.

For the next three months, at least, all matter in dispute which concerns this chapel must be arbitrated before "Doc" Hauer, as chairman. Mr. Gutelius refused to stand as a candidate, a position he had so ably and acceptably filled for a longer period than any of his predecessors. The announcement of his intention to retire brought out a bunch of aspirants for the position. Four well-groomed favorites were entered with apparently even chances at the starting, but nearing the home stretch "Doc" made one of his famous spurts and came under the wire a full neck ahead amid the plaudits of the populace.

DESPISED LABOR "SCAB"

The "New York Journal" Correctly Takes His Measure Editorially.

HYENA, HOG, AND SHARK IN ONE

The Following Strong Comparisons of the Honest Organized Toiler and the One Whom Goes from Place to Place to Succeed Strikers Is Taken from "Evening Journal," of Saturday, June 28.

Any worker who sides against his fellows and helps break up a strike, is indeed a "scab" on humanity. His nature is a combination of hyena, hog, and shark.

The fat man, with full stomach, hard heart and selfish blood, has a haughty way of settling questions that he does not understand.

Most sickening of platitudes, most nonsensical of nonsense concerning man's relations to man is the customary talk about the "scab" workman.

A number of men combine to better their condition. The law will not help them—it considers only supply and demand and the rights of property. Public opinion helps them a little, but not much.

They must strike, and their only hope is in their own courage and the loyalty and decency of other workingmen.

They are making a sacrifice for their wives and children. They are fighting one of the fights that gradually bring up the scale of living to a grade of decency.

And each time their enemy appears in the form of other workers. Every time that men, hard pressed, strive to better themselves, there are found vile, and selfish, and heartless creatures to take the places of the men on strike.

And what does smug prosperity say to this? What is the attitude toward the "scab" of those who should be at least sympathetic?

They talk balderdash about the "right of the laborer to work where he will."

They shriek and howl this tune:

"The sacred right to earn a living must not be interfered with. Whatever else happens, remember that any man may sell his labor to whom, and where he pleases, to do what work he pleases."

Sickening hypocrisy, heartless hypocrisy!

When this nation is fighting another nation do we allow any of our men to sell "his work" to that other nation?

Suppose an American in the Philippines was starving, and sold his muscles and fighting ability to our enemy. What would happen? Would the prosperous say that he must be permitted to sell his labor, and do as he chooses with himself?

Not at all. He would be despised by every human being even by those who hired him. And if caught, he would be hanged, as he deserved to be hanged, with the shortest of trials and all possible disgrace.

The "scab" workman is simply a traitor in the army of human labor. He is a miserable, cowardly renegade. He is despised by all honest workers, he is despised equally by those who hire him. Unless utterly depraved, he despises himself.

Some strikes are based on righteousness and need—most of them are. Some strikes are based on hasty decision, on a misguided sense of power, or on other evils.

There are good strikes and bad strikes, good workmen and bad workmen, good employers and bad employers.

But of "scabs" there is only one kind. They are all cowards, all traitors at heart, and all deserters for profit.

Of course, the "scab," like the hyena, the vulture, and the shark, must exist and play in the world's economy. He exists as one of the necessary adjustments in social disputes. Without him the power of the union would be supreme, and no union or union man, no man on earth is fit for supreme power. The "scab" is a check upon the avarice of labor—which is often as avaricious and as obstinate as capital. He could not be dispensed with in our selfish civilization, where every man, laborer or employer, tries to get all he can.

But if we must endure the "scab" let us at least not try to excuse him. Let us not shed sorrowful tears over the plight of a hyena eating a corpse.

No man has a right to take the law in his own hand. The right to vote gives, to the majority, power to make laws. If workers lack brains to use that power, it is their own fault, and they have no right to make themselves the law.

Therefore it is wrong, criminal, unworthy, to visit physical punishment upon even the meanest "scab." But contempt he should have, and he has it.

The men who plead for the "scab," always hypocritically and always despising him in their hearts, are those who use him, the employers fighting their men.

These employers are not to be blamed. Fight is fight, and every army takes advantage of deserters from the other side.

But the employers should cease to defend the "scab." They do not tolerate "scabs" among themselves

Let some capitalist try to make profit out of the present dilemma of the coal mine owners, and see what will happen to him. He will be boycotted by banks and railroads, shut out of clubs, snubbed in public, jeered at in private—his life will be made a burden.

If the prosperous man with everything that he needs—even in strike times—hates the "scab" in his class, let him not wonder that the laboring "scab" is despised.

He seeks to make profit of his brother's suffering. He works knowing he is keeping women and children hungry. For immediate gain he opposes the permanent welfare of the whole class, to which he belongs.

He is unspeakably vile and repulsive, and his well chosen name of "scab" describes him.

George A. Stevens and Thomas Hammill, statisticians from the Bureau of Labor of New York, called last week on L. W. Clickner.

Among those who graduated from the Central High School recently, I noticed the names of Miss Minnie Farr, niece of Mrs. Susie C. Carlisle, and Kenneth Mills, son of John S. Mills.

E. E. Coates received a telegram last week from Oneonta, N. Y., informing him that he was the father of a daughter. Elmer was so delighted over the news that he took the first train for his native home.

The following postal, received from Allison and Ferl recently, dated May 9, may interest their friends: "We have arrived at Manila at last after a pleasant voyage. We hit the cholera, smallpox, and plague square in the center. We are settled now and have a nice home. We are not afraid of the cholera and will manage to get through in some manner. Give every one our very best regards."

Alfred E. DeGroot and Miss Bertha E. Knabe, both of Brookland, D. C., were married Wednesday evening, June 25, at the Brookland M. E. Church by the Rev. Z. H. Hyatt. Mr. DeGroot is the fifth and youngest son of W. A. DeGroot, of this division. The sons are all married and live in this city. Miss Mary E. DeGroot, the only daughter, was bridesmaid and Norman E. Norman, best man.

Death of Mrs. Rachel Halsey.

Word was received here Monday of the death of Mrs. Rachel Halsey, at Watseka, Ill.

Her son, George F. Halsey, who is employed in the Government Printing Office, left Tuesday for the above city, his old home, to attend the sad occasion of his mother's funeral.

His many friends here in the city deeply sympathize with him in his affliction.

Frank Bates was on the sick list a few days last week.

Messrs. Watkins and Jackson have been absent from the proof room for a few days.

During a brief absence of Mr. Somers Chas. Trogner has occupied his desk and "O.K'd" press proofs.

Tom Tuohy, looking as dapper as a War Department Clerk, is back from a month's vacation at his old home in Pennsylvania.

There being no opposition to Mr. Davison for chairman, the chapel conferred the honor of making his election by acclamation.

Nine of the down stairs contingent, who were brought up to assist us in a rush, were sent back to their respective divisions Tuesday.

An old-time Job Room man was returned to us last week—O. N. Lanning returning from the Library Branch. He is looking well, despite his many years at the case.

Assistant Foreman Michael came back the latter part of last week from a ten days' vacation, his genial smile being a little broader and his always fair dealings with the men made more so for the rest and recreation he enjoyed.

L. W. Koon, of the proof room, who sprained his ankle several weeks ago in a ball game, and was laid up for a while, is again confined to his room, this time from a more serious trouble. It seems that his injured ankle was bound in lead and his blood became impregnated with it, producing lead poison. He is having a bad time of it, but we hope for his early recovery.

Ballard and Fitzwilliam, that immortal duo from the Lone Star State, were in travail a few minutes Monday and brought forth a "college yell" for the use of Washington delegates and their friends at the Cincinnati convention. It is like this:

Rah! Rah! Rah!
Who are we?
Washington! Washington!
Nineteen three!

The yell is all right and the idea a good one. With some lusty-lunged rooter to lead it Pike's Opera House should ring with it. Get together, you who are going, and get it down fine, giving it with all the vim and vigor of your old college days.

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL WASHINGTON 2

THURSDAY, JULY 3, 1902.

The Glorious Fourth.

To-morrow is the one hundredth and twenty-sixth anniversary of the occasion when the Continental Congress assembled in Philadelphia and issued that famous document declaring "that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these rights are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." This same Congress declared that "those United Colonies were, and of right ought to be free and independent States."

How different the conditions to-day compared with those days when patriotism caused the populace in New York to destroy the statue of GEORGE III and throughout this broad land show their approval of the Declaration of Independence and their disproval of all things that savored of Kings and tyranny and oppression that is carried with it.

To-day, the one that fills the heart of every patriotic citizen and school boy, we celebrate in honor of the deeds of the fathers of 1776 and the tearing away the shackles of despotism, and yet on this very occasion we are cognizant of this country tolerating the flunkeyism of sending to the coronation, ridiculously dressed in knickerbockers, representatives who vie with one another who shall receive the greatest number of opportunities to pay homage to a descendant of the very samecrueltyrant GEORGE III. And all these representatives are fondled and their toadyism made easy at the expense of the taxpayer. Why would it not be a good move to devote these large sums to charity at home rather than being hypocritical and inconsistent in honoring the sacred document of July 4, 1776, and turning right around and throwing a fit to be with, sneeze with, and cater to a King.

Let us Americanize, or let us persuade these King worshippers to hie themselves "across the pond" for good and be one of the subjects of those they crave to idolize.

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

My friend, "P. Q. Liar," of the Job Division, is, I have no doubt, a thorough going temperance man, but, like most temperance men, he is impractical. Usually, temperance people are quite intemperate in their language, but "P. Q. L." is unusually tolerant in speech, though evidently imbued with all the impractibility that affects his class. No great reform was ever accomplished at one fell swoop. No great sin was ever stamped out immediately. It is only by gradual, short steps that a deep-rooted evil can be eliminated.

Our prohibition friends have always failed because they would have all or nothing. Man is a stubborn and combative creature. The moment you tell him he shall not do a thing, that moment he is possessed of a desire to do that very thing, though he never wanted to before. He takes a peculiar pleasure in doing forbidden things. Put a pail of whiskey on every corner, with a tin dipper in it, and men would hunt for a pump, even though they had to put a nickel in a slot to make it work. The same characteristic exists in animals. I have seen a farmer undertake to feed straw to his cattle, and they would not eat it. Then I have seen him throw a light fence around the straw-stack and those same bovines would break in and "wolf up" the last straw. Prohibition has been a rank failure in every State where it has been attempted. It only "endamages the revenue" and deteriorates the quality of the whiskey.

Would you know how to accomplish something of practical value in the interest of temperance? Why didn't you say so long ago? At any time for years I have been prepared to furnish the solution and only refrained because of my belief in the right of my fellow-man to go to the devil by whatever road he might select.

Begin gradually. Reduce the number of saloons by a high license, to be finally confined to hotels which serve the traveling public, which is at all times protected by law in its right to "liquid damnation" whenever it wants it. Make the sale of liquor in quantity, to be consumed at the home, free and untrammeled; but punish drinking in streets, alleys, and public places heavily as the commission of a nuisance. By the abolition of the privilege of standing up at the bar and "settin' 'em up," while "chawin' the rag" with a lot of cronies, you will abolish the incentive to drink in all but those who have a natural love for it for itself and not for the "sociability" that attends bibulation. Nine men out of ten who drink around barrooms do so because they do not know how else to enjoy themselves. If the barroom, and not the liquor, were forbidden, they would not be deprived of their right to alcoholic stimulation, but only circumscribed in the enjoyment of it, No evil can be abolished; mitigation is the most that can be hoped for. And as long as our prohibition friends remain on their present platform of "all or nothing," our liquor buying and selling friends can feel safe; for "nothing" it will be.

But let us not try to reform the world. Let us rather enjoy its idiosyncrasies, knowing that about all we can ever hope to do is to be good ourselves, sorry for those who are not as good as we are, and ready to smile at the puny efforts of those who think that the salvation of man has only been awaiting their coming.

Now will you be good?

The delegates to Cincinnati have received a circular from a committee of Newark Typographical Union, No. 103, stating the candidacy of Newark for selection as the convention city of the I. T. U. for 1903 and setting forth her claims and attractions. The I. T. U. has never met in New Jersey, a misfortune that has attended all the New England States except Massachusetts. As the I. T. U. has met in but 17 States and 1 District (twice in Canada), there seem to be about 28 States that have suffered the same neglect that New Jersey has. Newark is within 9 miles of New York and but a few miles from all the Atlantic coast summer resorts. But if they are the attractions, why not hold the convention at one of them, or all of them, adjourning from one to another? Newark is a nice town for New Yorkers to sleep in, but Washington is the city for the 1903 convention.

A petition drawn by C. W. Pafflow, of the Day Proof Room, and largely signed by ex-members of St. Louis Union, was addressed to the St. Louis delegates to Cincinnati, requesting their support of our proposition that the I. T. U. shall meet in Washington in 1903. While it is not anticipated that we will have any very great fight to get the convention, it is well to go at the thing just as though all sorts of trouble were expected, in order to be prepared for whatever emergency may arise. Mr. Pafflow's move was a good one and should be imitated by former members of other unions.

Make your arrangements to spend a portion of your leave at Cincinnati during the convention, beginning August 11, and having decided to do so, give your name to E. W. Patton, chairman of the Sub-committee on Transportation. There will be a couple of carloads of us, from the present outlook.

We have only opportunity this week for the simple announcement of the sad death of John R. Winders He died by his own act at Chicago on Tuesday morning. Some two months ago his mother died. He had been devotedly attached to her since the death of his father 25 years ago, and her death was an affliction he was unable to bear.—San Francisco Clarion.

Mr. Winders was for many years a prominent and influential member of San Francisco Union and had been a delegate at least twice. No doubt our Pacific Coasters knew him and it is for their information that this item is copied.

"Cos" Rodier wants it understood that he has not indulged in a controversy with Colonel Simpson, of the Second Division, and the rest of us are glad twice—that there wasn't any and that it is over with.

The bookbinders distribute literature calling attention to the fact that certain publications may be secured gratis, in an endeavor to increase their output. Every trade uses legitimate means to extend its operations, and Columbia Union can profit by their example. "Our Maud" grinds a grist acceptable to the metropolitan publisher, and by so doing is not only a maker of books but a maker of printing. With a few hundred (a small percentage of the membership) pushing the button the publishing house does the rest, and work is given the printer, pressman, binder, and stereotyper.

Moral: Secure a copy of "Rhoda Roland."

Thomas F. Lyons, a compositor in the First Division about 1888 92, paid a visit to the office on Tuesday evening. For a number of years he was located at Joplin, Mo., but he now lives at Marshfield, Wis., where he conducts a newspaper and a brick yard. His experience in setting bills comes in handy in the latter business—it is very much like setting a brick-kiln. He looks well and has every appearance of being prosperous. He and Mike Sullivan, the singer, were inseparables during their time here.

A letter from T. B. Brown, foreman of the State Printing Office, Topeka, Kans., says:

I will cheerfully do what I can toward influencing No. 121's [Topeka's] delegate to vote for "Washington in 1903." Most of the printers throughout the U. S., who have been printing for, say, 20, 25, or 30 years, have a friendly feeling for Columbia Union, because some of our friends have at some time during that period been connected with it, and I have yet to find the first one who could not say a good word for No. 101. If you want the I. T. U. next year, you ought to have it. I know the delegates will enjoy a session at Washington.

Mr. Brown was a delegate to the I. T. U. convention that founded the Union Printers' Home and he feels a deep interest in that institution and in Mr. Deacon, the Superintendent, who has proved a most acceptable and capable official. The position of Superintendent is a very trying one, but if there has ever been anything but praise for Mr. Deacon's management it has never come to my ears.

The Convention Committee, after its meeting last Sunday, arranged itself on the steps of Typographical Temple, and H. C. Yetter pulled the trigger of his camera at it three or four times. The proofs I saw indicate a very good picture of the creme de la creme of Columbia Union and there will probably be a large demand for the pictures. In fact, it has been suggested that the profits from their sale would probably pay all expenses incident to the work of the committee. Mr. Yetter made a dozen of a sitting I gave him a couple of weeks ago, but the demand for them has been so great that I have permitted but few to see them. He is very successful in his work and contemplates devoting his entire time to photography.

Ed Thomas, son of John W., is employed in Albuquerque, N. Mex., where he arrived after some rather painful experiences following his telegraph construction job. He is getting some well-defined ideas of the way they do things in the w. and w. W. He has many musical engagements now and has found his voice a valuable factor in the chase for a livelihood.

A. F. BLOOMER.

Bindery Notes.

George Leomin is seen every Sunday at the beach diving for shark teeth.

Harry Ashron is now telling a joke on his friend, Hyde. Do not fail to hear it.

Mike Dunn visited a physician last week and the howls of Mike were heard a mile away. Mike claims the doctor tried to murder him.

Charlie Weston of the Bindery has been dubbed "Findley Hayes." We know not why as Charlie has an abundant crop of hair while poor Findley is bald.

Bill Reese is now looking for engagements to recite at the G. A. R. encampment. If Bill does not learn something new the boys intend to present him with some food plant.

A member of the rubber neck association observed Bob Stack chopping wood in a back yard and they gave him the merry ha, ha. Bob was simply getting his hand in; he is old enough to marry and something may be doing when the leaves begin to turn.

There was an error in last week's issue in regard to the base ball game. The correct score was Union Building, 18; Cow Boys, 16. The Union Building team imagine themselves to be invincible while the Cow Boys feel they did not do themselves justice in this last game, so it has been decided to play again at Four Mile Run, Sunday, July 6, when the Cow Boys hope to take some of the conceit out of their opponents.

Regal Blue Serge

Is a closely woven, staunch, reliable fabric, guaranteed all wool to the selvage, guaranteed never to spring, guaranteed never to fade.

It's a tightly knit textile, the same shade of navy blue that the government requires in all its cloth. The sun isn't strong enough to alter it an iota. All the wear you can give will not show on the fabric. The seams are guaranteed never to weaken or pull out. The face of the cloth can not lose its sprightly luster.

Regal Blue Serge Suits

Are made up the very best way we "know how." The goods are intelligently lined, the vests are cut high and close to the collars. The coats hang with a swaggerness that bespeaks custom tailoring, and cling to the neck with a closeness that shows what brains can accomplish when backed by skilled tailors.

We surpass our own surpassing past in offering you Regal Blue Serge Suits in all sizes that men wear, in all styles that fashion decrees and all varieties that are possible at $9.90.

AROUND THE PRINTERIES.

Down Town.

Cheer up!

To-morrow is the Fourth.

Every one is entitled to "thirty" but us down towners.

Billy Harrison arrived in Saturday last from Pennsylvania.

The new scale between the newspaper publishers and Columbia Union No. 101, has been accepted and is now in force.

John M. Winchester, of the Fourth Division, G. P. O., left this week for a sixty days stay about his old home grounds in Detroit, Michigan.

The Eola weighs anchor Friday at 5 a. m., bound for Indian Head proving grounds. While down at Green River she will try her new 5½-inch O. C. gun.

The gentleman who thoughtlessly left his watch at R. A. Driscoll's place of business, North Capitol and G streets northwest, may procure the same by calling and proving property.

William C. Watson, late of N. B. F., G. P. O., who left recently for Chicago, left the latter town, Saturday, June 28, for the "land of the setting sun." William will pitch is tepee at Seattle, Wash.

We are in receipt of a copy of "Some of the Homes of General Washington," a booklet of sixteen pages devoted to the subject which the title states. It is copyrighted and compiled by Joseph I. Keefer, late of the Night Bill Force, G. P. O.; and retails for 10 cents per copy. The booklet is very interesting, the only objection being that it bears neither the Allied Printing nor Typographical labels.

The Cleveland World gives quite a little space with sketch illustrations to Harry R. Penrod relative to his wonderfulfeat as a one-armed linotype operator. It states it an easy matter for him to average 5,000 ems, brevier, an hour. He is employed in that city being a native of New York. Harry is well known here on newspaper row he having worked here a number of years ago and he was always looked upon as a wonder as a one-armed compositor.

John A. Onyun, who is employed in the Government Printing Office, returned Tuesday from his home, Peoria, and Aurora, Ill., where he was in attendance at the convention of the Illinois Allied Printing Crafts' Union, which was held June 24, 25, and 26. At this convention he was elected for the eleventh time as secretary-treasurer of the above organization, notwithstanding he was not a candidate. His son Archie, who graduated at his home school at Peoria, accompanied him back to this city, and will this fall take a course here in the Manual Training School.

I will open my Cafe and Saloon on Tuesday morning at 4 a. m., December 3, 1901, and continue same during the session of Congress. Everything first class. Pan Roast, 10 cents. Heurich's Beer on draught. Nice hot lunch free.

Hot lunch served at 11 p. m. Cooking to order. Your patronage solicited.

JOHN E. BONINI,
727-729 N. Capitol street.

First Division.

Edwin Collar has been transferred to the Treasury Branch.

J. C. Shinnen contemplates a trip to Paris, while on his vacation.

Big bills are in order this pay day, some of the boys drawing as high as $85.

Commodore Leeds now wears a yachting cap, which is a thing of beauty.

M. J. Lillard defeated W. W. Ingram for secretary of the chapel by a vote of 77 to 26.

W. H. Murphy was transferred this week from the Library Branch to this division.

W. McFarlane, George Ellis, W. M. Nelson, and W. W. Ingram are on leave this week.

Nelson Moyer sang a solo at the laying of the corner stone of the President's church, Tuesday.

W. M. Nelson was married last week to Miss Agnes Landrigan. His many friends wish them much happiness.

Tim Ring, C, W. Radley, and Johnny Butler were, as usual, on the wrong side of the wire at the finish of the chairman's race.

During the late campaign, when Lillard was a candidate for secretary, he contracted the habit of bringing a nice lot of freshly-baked home-made cakes every day, with which to catch voters. The result shows great success. In the meantime Bankman Harry Gunn and "Trusty" Bodenhamer had located the cake depository and were daily swiping them. The day following election Lillard brought the usual number of pretty cakes, but had them richly loaded with red pepper, salt, and various other unpleasant things. There was a great spluttering that day soon after the cake box was opened and ice water was in great demand for some time. They got partially even by giving Jack Garrett, an innocent bystander, one of the stolen cakes.

The First Division Handicap (chairman's race) took place last Monday, with the following entries: J. H. Babcock, Judge Mabrey, Charles Sizer, Murray Hackett, and William Love. Bab. was considered a "bartering" factor until he, in a moment of thoughtlessness, wrote several reasons in doggeral verse why he should be elected chairman. "It was the blow that killed father." Monday morning Babcock "scratched" himself. Murray Hackett had a bundle of hope stowed away in his little breast up until the time Billy Love invaded his stronghold and announced that he had money to lend, when a decided weakening of the Hackett "stays" was noticed. The question of his making the race was settled, however, when Judge Mabrey announced that his coat was hanging on the outside of his frame and that he had seven kinds of tobacco in it for Murray's voters. Sizer didn't care anything about a re-election other than to "demonstrate" to those who had the temerity to dispute his sway that he was still "hypnotist" enough to secure the sometimes elusive plurality vote. Sizer thus became a fixture in the race. Love was a very considerate candidate and offered the Judge several opportunities to withdraw and thus evade ignominous defeat. The Judge was shown how no man on the Catalogue had a right to be elected chairman, but he figured that Billy was suffering from promissory disease—the same that nearly killed Si Daugherty once—and concluded not to take anybody's advice but "Little Phil's." And thus did Hope lock horns with Confidence. All this to start with. Then came the nominations, tellers, ballots, counting, and shouting. The backers of Mabrey cashed in and were happy. The vote stood: Mabrey, 60; Love, 52; Sizer, 32. The Judge is a citizen of Missouri, president of the Missouri Society, dean of the S. G.-Cat., a graduate of Georgetown Law School, and a good judge of various things.

Second Division.

Something's going to drop soon.

Hurrah for July 4th, a day of wonderous joy for the boys.

Well, Congress having taking all things else, itself it now takes off.

Ed. Hall has been sick for sometime. We hope that he will be well soon.

Several members of our force have been off on their leave during the last week or so.

Did you attend the memorial exercises Sunday in memory of Amos J. Cummings?

Sherman, our assistant foreman, spent a few days leave with his family up in the mountains.

Julian returned from his leave Monday. They say he has been looking after his potato crop in Kansas.

Max Noble returned from a few days leave. Max looks as brown as a berry. He says he has been on a fishing trip.

Annual leaves are now in order, and we are glad as most of us have that "tired feeling." We have been on the run for the past six months.

The Census came out on time, notwithstanding the many drawbacks encountered. Thanks to the excellent system now in vogue in this office. Everything goes on with clock-like regularity.

It seems rather singular. It may just be a coincidence that there was only one man appointed from this division on any committee of the union, and he voted for the "other fellow." How about that, Mr. Johnson?

Theodore Geiber, who was called to St. Louis on account of the serious illness of his mother, has returned, and is "sawing wood" at the old stand. He reports that his mother is still critically ill. We hope she will soon recover.

If you want Crabs go to Driscoll's, N. Cap. and G. Overholt whisky, 10c.

Third Division.

Joseph B. Swinburne completed his probationary appointment, Friday.

A. Z. Hunt has been transferred to the Agricultural Branch.

E. E. Richards moved on slug 36 last week, thereby getting a window frame.

H. T. McConvey, T. C. Boyd, R. F. Simms, G. B. Wood, and H. G. Pride were transferred from this division to the "Spess," last Friday.

Joseph A. Dreis is building a residence in Sherwood's Addition to Brookland. This is a commendable thing to do and we congratulate Joe on his ambition to own a home. That is the best way to beat the landlord and get one's rent reduced.

Work of this division has increased so rapidly recently that it was necessary to install another proof press. If McLaughlin has to run both of them, it is impossible to see how he will find time to do anything else. It will be "work through" all the time for Mac.

It was pleasing to read "Pard" Bloomer's confession that the liar of the Job Room was not the only liar writing for THE TRADES UNIONIST. "An honest confession is good for the soul." A confession, however, availeth nothing unless it is coupled with a determination to reform.

In the departure of Mr. McConvey from this division, we lose one of our most liberal and conscientious members. No subscription list ever passed Mac without his signature attached for a generous sum, and the liberality with which he purchased tickets of the various organizations for excursions, outings, etc., was certainly a noble example for all of us to follow.

You'll have to get along this week without a verse of poetry in this column. Since several verses of our poetical members were published they have become frightened and are more careful about leaving their effusions around in a careless manner. However, as a word of encouragement for the gentle reader, we desire to state that we are pretty sure of discovering a verse or so within a week or two, and we promise that you shall then have it fresh from the mill.

W. F. Mutchler, of this division, resigned last Monday in order to accept an appointment in the rural free delivery under the Post Office Department. We are sorry to have Mr. Mutchler leave this division as he is an excellent printer and good all-around fellow, but we wish him success in his new field of laber. The Third Division is getting to be well represented in the other departments, no less than five having been transferred during the past year.

William H. Bailey, an old-time member of this division, celebrated his sixty-second birthday last week. Mr. Bailey is a hale and hearty man for one of his age, and we congratulate him and wish him many more years of life. His alley-mates celebrated the event in conjunction with him, all wishing him many happy years of additional life, and in order that they may be certain of realizing their wish, they gave him an excellent medicine as an elixir of life and health restorative in the shape of a bottle of "Old Bourbon" rye.

Handy Andy's Aphorisms.

Whittaker is enjoying a period of grass-widowerdom—the good Mrs. W. having gone to Lowell for a brief spell.

Joe Williams is back in harness again. This descendant of the illustrious Roger spent the last thirty days at the Library Branch with Fisher and Putnam.

Ed Shine has wagered $10 on the Elks-Fat Men's base ball game to be played July 4, at American League Park. It is useless to specify which end of the bet he took.

The latest "chance act" in the office is a corker: Fifty-five men buy tickets at $1 each; the holder of the lucky number takes $50, and the man who invented the scheme rakes in $5. And yet the wise guys bite.

The night owls will soon be back on day work and everything will run smoothly. How we managed to get through this winter without them is difficult to understand. Ahem!

McKinnon met one of the Kilties band while at the convention in Baltimore—a bare kneed plaidie with all the highland trappings, and when the genial James invited him to imbibe he was surprised when the Scot called for kimmel and not Scotch whiskey. "Why is this thusly?" inquired McKinnon. Then the plaidie confessed that he was a Hungarian as were most of the Kilties band. Great Scot!

"Beans" Maloney, of Boston, rooms at a house on I street where all the cooking is done on a gas range during the summer months. On Saturday morning last, he informed his landlady that the date was at hand for his annual bath and requested her to have some water heated to about 137½ Fahrenheit, a currycomb, and a quart of soft soap ready for him at 6:35. The good landlady did as requested and "Mul" was so delighted at the prospect of an ablution that he offered to tote the basin of hot water to the bath room. In high glee he emptied the boiling liquid into the bath tub, turned on the cold water to temper it a trifle, and proceeded to disrobe. It was not until he was reduced to the proportions of a living picture that he discovered the absence of the plug in the bung-hole and all the water gone. The disappointment was such a shock to his nervous system that he donned his gay rags and went out into the night air.

Vol. VII. No. 4. WASHINGTON, D. C., THURSDAY, JULY 10, 1902. Price, 3 Cents.

THE CENTRAL LABOR UNION

Election of Officers Result in Old Officers Being Returned.

BENJ. SCHWARTZ AGAIN FAIR

The Saturday Half Holiday Resolutions—Grievance Committee Reports Settlement of Two Cases—Communications Received—Credentials Received—Minor Matters Transacted.

The Central Labor Union met at Typographical Temple, Monday night, in weekly session, President Hamerstrom presiding.

Minutes of previous meeting were read, corrected, and approved.

Credentials were received from the Ceramic, Mosaic, and Encaustic Tile Layers and Helpers' International Union, Local No. 2, certifying William Miller, Ed Stevens, and Thomas McNealy; from United Brotherhood of Leather Workers on Horse goods, certifying F. W. Kneessi, H. J. Laubach, Forrester Record, and A. Scheid; from Cigarmakers' Union, Local No. 110, certifying Peter Hahn, C. A. Cook, John Brahler, Charles Heuter, and Frederick Dahler; from International Union of Steam Engineers, Local No. 99, certifying S. S. Teague, F. G. Ricks, James Nessmith, J. C. Wheeler, and J. H. Lorch; from Beer Drivers and Stablemen's Union, No. 234, certifying John E. Bardraff, George Schnehel, F. N. Staples, V. P. Sheehan, and James Brown; from Bartenders' League, No. 75, certifying Jere F. McCarthy, B. V. Walz, Harry Hepburn, Theo. Sproesser, and Herman Berger; from International Association of Machinists, Columbia Lodge, No. 174, certifying A. Whitacre, Daniel Freeland, G. W. Price, F. H. Litchfield, and R. H. Cowen; from Retail Clerks' International Protective Association, certifying E. A. Bachrach, C. A. Pfau, H. Saenger, J. A. Mims, and N. Jobes.

A communication from United Association of Journeymen Plumbers and Gas Fitters, No. 110, of Norfolk, Va., requesting moral and financial aid in their trouble with the Master Plumbers' Association and Builders' Exchange, of that city, was referred to the Building Trades Section.

The communication from United Brotherhood of Leather Workers on Horse Goods, requesting that Samuel D. Houck, 301 Tenth street northwest, be declared unfair, was referred to the Grievance Committee.

The secretary was instructed to furnish information to National Secretary Mickol, of United Cloth Hat and Cap Makers, relative to secretaries, names, and addresses of the different organizations affiliated with this body.

President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, communicated inclosing a copy of letter transmitted by him to the National Engraving Company relative to their employing seceders from Photo-Engravers' No. 17. Matter was referred to Photo-Engravers Union, No. 17.

Bartenders' League, No. 75, communicated requesting that Frank Mann, 483 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, be placed upon the unfair list, as all honorable means had been exhausted in trying to unionize said place. Referred to Grievance Committee.

Iron Moulders' Union of N. A., No. 190, of Omaha, Neb., communicated calling attention to the antagonistic position of Kimball Bros., makers of Columbia scales, passenger and freight elevators, etc., at Council Bluffs, Iowa. Referred to Label Committee and Machinists.

Carpet Upholsters' Union, No. 7597, communicated inclosing a copy of circular letter and contract adopted by their body and sent to all carpet firms in the city. They also inclosed a copy of contract presented by W. B. Moses & Sons, which they refused to sign and in consequence report their places in said establishment filled by non-union employes. The Moses contract calls for employe to "furnish himself with bicycle and not to absent himself from his occupation, keeping strictly temperate, carefully and honestly performing his duties, working early and late, Sundays and holidays, if required, without extra compensation." To equalize this injustice, the firm magnanimously agree to give one week's vacation with pay. This matter was referred to Grievance Committee.

The report of the auditors was received and accepted and placed on file.

The Grievance Committee reported the grievance of Milk Wagon Drivers against Corbin Thompson, dairyman, and recommended their request that he be placed upon the unfair list be granted; that the Retail Clerks had adjusted matter with Benj. Schwartz, he having signed their contract, and committee recommend their request to remove him from unfair list be granted. These recommendations were concurred in.

In order to overcome conflicting portions of contracts, Delegate Babcock requested that a conference of Beer Drivers, Soda and Mineral Water Drivers and the Executive Committee of the Central Labor Union be held. Request granted.

The following resolutions introduced by Delegate Feeney were indorsed:

WHEREAS, President Roosevelt has issued an order granting to the employes of the Government Printing Office and Navy Yard the shorter workday for Saturday during the summer months, and as it is the first time any such concession has been granted to the organized toilers and mechanics in said departments; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Central Labor Union in regular meeting assembled indorse the action of the President and tender him our thanks and appreciation for the kindness rendered to the union men and women employed in said departments; be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to President Roosevelt and given to the press for publication.

WHEREAS, Legislatures in several of the prominent States of the Union have enacted a law declaring the afternoon of Saturday a legal half holiday, and in a large number of cities where the law is not in force it is an established custom to grant to the toilers in factories, mills and business houses, the afternoon of Saturday a day of rest and recreation; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Central Labor Union of the District of Columbia indorse the Saturday half holiday, and that a special committee of three be appointed to collect data and prepare a bill to present to the next session of the 57th Congress and to act in conjunction with the Legislative Committee of the Central Labor Union and the American Federation of Labor, in securing its passage by both houses of Congress; be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the Chairman of District of Columbia Committee of the House and Senate, and also a copy to the District Commissioners.

Then under the head of election of officers the body proceeded to name and elect officers for the ensuing six months. Messrs. Lear, McCarthy, and Sproesser were appointed tellers.

The body approving the able administration of the efficient officers in charge of the body's affairs renominated and re-elected by acclamation President Hamerstrom, Vice-President Silver, Secretary Winslow, and Treasurer Heisley.

For financial secretary J. A. Daly, W. S. Crown, and Miss Costigan, who declined, were nominated. Ballot resulted Daly, 44; Crown, 30, and Miss Costigan, 3. Mr. Daly, who succeeds Mr. Morrison, was declared elected.

Joseph Hough, of Hoisting Engineers', No. 77, was unanimously elected sergeant-at-arms, and succeeds Mr. Deane.

Messrs. J. H. Babcock, B. V. Walz, and Moses Peyton were elected auditos.

Delegate Brinkman stated inability to act upon Excursion Committee and Delegate McClelland was named for the vacancy.

Chesapeake Beach.

This popular seaside resort is growing every year in public favor. Last Sunday nine well filled excursion trains left Chesapeake Junction with people seeking relief at the seashore from the excessive heat of the city. They were not disappointed, as the bay provided an agreeable salt-water breeze until late in the afternoon. Haley's band provided varied and excellent selections of music. There were many amusements and the bathing was fine. The crabbing and fishing were only fair. Refreshments of all kinds were had at reasonable prices.

IS THIS DEATH TO UNIONISM?

We Need No Money. Read.

Under the above caption the following warning is set forth to trades unionists of all callings throughout the country. Its perusal should interest all and each unionist should put forth their efforts to cut off this supply of deceived people in search of work. The newspaper referred to is run and controlled by one Harrison Gray Otis, who is well known here by printers as a man who has ever been opposed to unions and union people, and will not be surprised to see him lined up in the above deceptive scheme:

LOS ANGELES, CAL.,
July 1, 1902.

To Workmen:

Advertisements are being run in hundreds of Eastern newspapers for the purpose of inducing carpenters, bench hands, millmen, machinemen, lathers, plasterers, hodcarriers, and, in fact, mechanics of all kinds, to come to Los Angeles, where they are promised steady work at big pay.

WARNING.

In conjunction with these advertisements, circular letters are being sent broadcast, in the hopes of getting men to come here in order to disrupt the unions of this city and to break a strike which is being waged against several plaining mills.

Many of the merchants and manufacturers of this city have organized themselves into an Employers' Association, for the purpose of destroying organized labor. This Employers' Association hopes to so flood Los Angeles with workingmen that the struggle for jobs will be so keen it will result in the disruption of the unions and consequently reduce the wage scale now being paid.

The mouth-piece of this secret organization is the notorious scab Los Angeles Times. This infamous newspaper is engaged in a bitter fight with the Los Angeles County Council of Labor and the International Typographical Union and hopes, by aiding the Employers' Association, to break up the unions of this city, and thereby save itself from destruction.

The advertisements and circulars being sent out by the Employers' Association are full of lies and misrepresentations. Do not be deceived by them.

Help us circulate this warning.

By order of the Los Angeles County Council of Labor.

J. A. GRAY, President.
LEMUEL BIDDLE, Secretary.

MRS. M. T. WORK.

Fifth Division.

George Boone spent the Fourth at his home, Berkley Springs, W. Va.

Leo Rullmann was transferred to this division from the First Division Night Bill Force.

After a severe attack of indisposition, Ed. Stough has once again resumed duties at the old stand.

Clement Allen, from the Record, has been assigned as laborer on the proof press in this division.

The following went on leave Wednesday: J. Sherman, C. B. Huse, William M. Hamilton, W. H. Davis.

L. R. Taylor, our former chairman, has been transferred to the Navy Branch. We miss you, Lou.

L. P. Kenny, from Day Record, is to be found in the "Y;" also J. W. Mathers, maker-up on bound edition.

The following are on leave: H. H. Brayton, George E. Clark, L. Petrie, B. H. Pratt, and George L. Schoeneman.

W. J. Dow, foreman of the Day Record, has been installed as assistant to Foreman Bowen, and George R. Boone goes back on the maker-up bank.

A small cyclone struck this room Wednesday, and when the sky cleared Saunders, Chase, Brister, and Sloane were found wanting.

Ed. Heidingsfeld is not a gastromic epicure, but nevertheless and notwithstanding, he is a full-fledged connoisseur of "tripe." Everyone according to his taste, eh?

W. Hanson Green, a theological student, has been dropped from the roll as laborer in the "Y." He was succeeded by G. T. Creech, formerly of the Day Record, who also has his eye on the ministry.

Heidingsfeld spent the Fourth in New York, inspecting a stock of second-hand jewelry, which he and Goldman, of the Second Division, intended to buy. Ed. would be an ideal figure under the sign of three balls. Aha, Isaac.

We were all pleased to extend the glad hand to William A. Uber upon his return to work after his narrow escape from death in a recent street car accident. Although suffering more or less from the shock and the spraining of his hands, he reports improvement. Not too soon, Bill.

The fight for chairman, though it did not last long, was a lively one, as two good horses were entered. Although both were pretty well backed, the Western colt was the favorite in the betting and romped home a winner. The vote stood: T. J. Rowe, 43; L. D. Weeks, 30.

One of our men visited Wildwood the other night, and on his return was asked by a stranger to direct him to a certain locality, in the meantime brushing against the Fifth Division man. Suddenly the stranger disappeared, and when our guy searched his pockets for the price of a drink he realized for the first time that he had been robbed while both his eyes were wide open.

Carl Tegethoff was showing around a very ingenious device the other day. It is an invention for the development of domestic animals, and would be very valuable to beginners interested in raising stock. Of course, the inventor claims infallibility for his device and promises great results. When I become a farmer I guess I'll give it a trial. Carl does not claim to understand the mechanical part of it but he says that some of his friends have tried it with success.

Specification Notes.

Harry Colestock dodged up in the mountains of West Virginia for a few days of rest and fresh air last week.

The President's order, extending to the Government Printing Office and its branches the privilege of early closing on Saturdays, during July and August, is a favor much appreciated, and is another evidence that things are coming our way.

Misses Sarah Cromelien and Jessie Dumble took passage this week from Baltimore on the German line for a tour of Germany, France, and England, and will be absent until the middle of September. They will visit Berlin, where a brother of Miss Cromelien is located as general agent of the Columbia Telephone Company.

We are now at the beginning of the one hundredth volume of the Patent Office Gazette, which has a circulation of seven thousand copies at a subscription price of $5 per year. Mr. John W. Babson, a practical printer and formerly employed on Specifications, has had charge of the Gazette since 1878. The annual sale of the publication is $147,000.

The following named, a majority of whom are well-seasoned specification hands, were transferred to this room with the adjournment of Congress: Overman, Harstin, Kautenberg, Edsall, Pool, Brown, Easterbrook, Everett, Naylor, Burgess, Armstrong, Billings, Whittaker, Battles, Calkins, Jaques, McGarraghy, Sheridan, Weaber, Stidham, Carpenter, Nash, Jameson, Brodnax, Densmore, Farwell, Norris, and Hoagland.

Favors Convention Here.

EDITORS OF THE TRADES UNIONIST:

I understood that some of the members of Columbia Union are not in sympathy with the effort to induce the next Convention to select this city as its meeting place in 1903, and inquire "what good will it do us to have the Convention here?" It has been a number of years since I have had occasion to write on matters pertaining to the typographical organization, though my interest has never become dim in its affairs, and certainly not in its prosperity, but I feel like dropping you a line in reply to the individuals who question the wisdom of expending time and effort and some money in the accomplishment of the aim set out. It will not benefit the individuals who are members of the local union for the reason that such membership is a prerequisite to holding positions in the Government Printing Office, except that through the good effects of the national gathering the union becomes yet stronger, and their chance of holding to a good job are thereby improved. From any other standpoint the benefit to the union is of no interest, hence of no benefit to them. Personally they would prefer not to be members, not to be compelled to pay dues, if thereby they could save the money they consider wasted and yet retain the places that are so much better than anything they have ever been able to secure before they were enabled to enjoy the benefits that were fought for and won by men who are members of Typographical Union because of the principles that underlie such organizations.

The meeting here of the International body, in my judgment, will be a most signal aid to the cause of organized labor generally. While the meeting will be at a time of the year when Washington is not filled with the representative men of the nation, enough of them are likely to be here to insure an impression on the minds of men whose good will is of consequence to do the cause good service. The gathering of the chosen of the craft that leads in the organized labor movement is always most liberally noted in the local press, and there is not much danger that the Convention here will be treated as a happening of minor interest. It will stimulate the local labor movement. It will make the union printer proud and happy to show the highest in the land the sort of men who stand in the front rank of his profession. It will show them, clearly as only an object lesson can show, what it means to be a member of the Internationol Typographical Union. By all means have the Convention meet here. In every way let us, active members and those who like myself are on the retired list, do what is possible to show the members of the next Convention that more good can be accomplished by meeting here than by going anywhere else. I for one, though I have not attended a Convention for many years, feel very much in the humor of devoting a week's time and the necessary dollars to a trip to Cincinnati, aiding in the efforts of Bloomer and other live members of the local union.

Death of Edgar W. Hopkins.

Tuesday night, July 8, 1902, at Hyattsville, Md., Edgar W. Hopkins passed to the Great Unknown, resultant to the bursting of an abscess of the lung, bringing on blood poisoning.

Mr. Hopkins, who was an employe of the Government Printing Office, came to this city some five years ago from Duluth, Minn. He was ill about a fortnight.

He was a member of Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, Potomac Council, Royal Arcanum, and Oriole Lodge, No. 47, I. O. D. F., of Hyattsville, Md., and possessed a large circle of friends and acquaintances. An aged father and mother, a wife and daughter, all of whom reside in this city, and a sister living in California survive him. To each of them go the sympathy of his many friends and acquaintances. His age was forty-five years.

Funeral was held Thursday from his late home and interment was made in Glenwood cemetery, this city.

The following resolution was drafted by the committee appointed by Chairman Smith, of the Night Bill Force, on the death of their craftsman, Edgar W. Hopkins:

WHEREAS, It is with a feeling of profound sorrow that the members of the Night Bill Force chapel learn of the death of their friend and shopmate, Edgar W. Hopkins; and

WHEREAS, We know of no words that can adequately console the family of our deceased associate in their hour of tribulation, we humbly bow our heads to the all-wise way of a Merciful Father who is calling us slowly but surely to a home eternal; therefore, be it

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the family of our departed brother, and that they be published in THE TRADES UNIONIST.

Death of Joseph Patten.

An inquest was held by Coroner Nevitt, Saturday morning, upon the remains of Joseph Patten, who died at Emergency Hospital, Thursday last, under circumstances which appeared that he was the victim of improper practitioners.

Mr. Patten was a native of Pennsylvania, having come here from Pittsburg to accept a position in the Government Printing Office, and while in this city resided at 807 North Capitol street.

The circumstances above refered to led to the arrest of one John A. Taff, a laborer working in the Government Printing Office, and known as "doctor" who it was stated had presscribed for and also had the unfortunate man placed in Emergency Hospital. Taff was released on $300 bond. He claims he never prescribed for the above named person. The charge against him is practicing without a licence.

Mr. Patten was a member of Columbia Union, No. 101, and his remains were sent to Pittsburg where interment was made. A mother and sister survive him.

Labor Notes.

Decatur (Ill.) leather workers have organized.

Montreal is the best organized city in Canada.

Roanoke (Va.) printers have secured a nine-hour day.

Sioux City, Iowa, has elected a union printer for mayor.

There is a lull in reports as to the labor troubles in Spain.

Kansas has passed a State law for the enforcement of an eight-hour workday.

A feature of the new scale signed by the Republic Iron and Steel Company of Pittsburg, which has not yet gained prominence, is that the company agreed to establish an eight-hour day in its mills wherever practicable. Officials of the Amalgamated Association recognize this as a victory.

The recent convention of the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders decided to submit to a referendum vote of the members a proposition for the payment of a death benefit. It also appointed a committee on a bookbinders' "home," patterned after the printers' home at Colorado Springs. Already $30,000 has been subscribed for the project. It is likely the institution will be situated at Colorado Springs.

THURSDAY, JULY 10, 1902.

"A ONE cent letter rate, three cent telephones and ten cent telegrams are all near possibilities under an enlightened and compact postal system."—John Wanamaker, ex-Postmaster General of the United States.

DID you ever hear of laws being declared unconstitutional becaus workingmen objected to their provisions? You have heard of them being kicked out of court because the rich did not like them, have you not? Funny isn't it.

THE Rhode Island street car employes struck to force the companies to obey the State laws for ten hours' work. The city and State officials used all the police, militia and every other weapon to support the street car company to break the law and defeat the employes. Who are the anarchists? Who defy the law?

THE most undesirable place of employment—from a laborious, unclean, and uncomfortable standpoint—is the foundry, electrotyping, and stereotyping department of the Government Printing Office. The men employed therein are compelled—from the excessive temperature necessary to carry on the work—to don as little clothing as possible, it often being 120 degrees Farenheit in said place. The handling of black lead, molten metal, dirty wax, and perspiration necessarily besmirches their person, and requires the changing of their clothing and a daily bath. Now the point we wish to reach is this: The press room, job room, proof room, and other parts of the building have private lockers wherein the employe may place his clothes, hat, and valuables. The Bureau of Engraving and Printing has provided a place for employes to properly bath in order to rid themselves of the different inks they are compelled to come in contact with. The employes of the Government Printing Office founday have no private lockers for clothing or valuables nor have they a place to properly bathe after their day's work is completed.

We sincerely trust the Public Printer when he moves into his new quarters in the new building, will have provided these necessary comforts for these hard-working, experienced, and faithful employes.

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

A little friend of mine jumped all over me last week because my plan of reforming the world doesn't agree with his. He thinks prohibition is the clear thing for abolishing the drink evil, asserting that prohibition States and communities are much better to live in than those which license the sale of liquor, and he instanced the towns adjoining Boston, in which liquor is prohibited. He lost sight of the fact that these towns are merely the residential portions of Boston, within easy reach by street car, and that the inhabitants go into the city proper to tank up and return to the suburbs to sleep it off.

By high license Boston greatly restricts the number of saloons and greatly fosters the speak-easy industry. But the saloons scarcely have capacity to supply the demand, and, especially on Saturday night, I have seen them in rows three deep, waiting to get to the bar, on attaining which they stand there and guzzle till they fall dead, when others take their places, each man knowing that, having got up to the bar, if he yields his place before he gets his load he will get sober and lose all his time before regaining his place. This may be a slight exaggeration, but it is as near the truth as arguments generally are on either side of the temperance question.

Prohibition is a rank failure in every State in which it has been attempted, and the sale of liquor is less restricted in prohibition Iowa and Kansas than it was in the days of license. I remember a story I once read as to the latter State. A traveler alighted from a train in one of the interior towns and, approaching a native, asked him, merely out of curiosty:

"I suppose there is no place in this town where a man can get a drink?"

"Come here," said the native, leading the way to the end of the station, which commanded a view down the principal street. "Do you see that two-story building on the right-hand side, about three blocks down, with an awning in front?"

"Yes," said the traveler.

"Well," said the native, "that's a millinery shop; you can't get a drink there, but you can get all you want in any other building in town."

This may not have been true; but there must have been something in the condition of affairs to suggest such a story.

Brethren, you can't make people be good by act of Congress. You must change circumstances, conditions, and human nature itself before you can do that. There is much more to be accomplished by precept and example than by prohibitory statutes, and I am willing to furnish the precept if some one else will volunteer to be the example. There wouldn't be as much drunkenness as there is now if there were no repression whatever.

Now, all hands take a throw at me.

A letter from John R. Foster, corresponding secretary of Charleston (W. Va.) Union, No. 146, to T. A. Bynum, secretary of the Convention Committee, indicates a degree of interest in Cincinnati's Golden Jubilee and "Washington in 1903" that is truly encouraging, as follows:

Yours of June 29 received and contents noted. Was glad to hear from you and to know that your hopes were so high on the convention question for 1903. Every influence at the command of No. 146 will be placed at your disposal, and we will probably have fifteen or twenty strong at the Cincinnati convention, and every one of them will be for Washington for the 1903 convention. Among the people who will attend from here will be: A. B. White, Governor of West Virginia; W. M. O. Dawson, Secretary of State; Romeo H. Freer, Attorney-General of West Virginia; L. A. Fraser, printing clerk in the office of the Secretary of State and an ex-delegate; John R. Foster, Assistant Commissioner of Labor of West Virginia and an ex-delegate (the last two will be accompanied by their wives); Lew F. Chapman and wife; Okey Chapman and wife; Joe J. Emerick; M. W. Donnally, of the Donnally Publishing Company; Elmer E. Hood, editor of the Charleston Daily Mail; R. E. Hardwick and wife, and others whose names I have failed to get. We will do our best to help you get the convention in 1903, and don't you forget it.

With such distinguished and wholehearted supporters, with the numerous others from whom we are hearing daily, there can be no room for doubt that we will capture the convention and win "hands down."

Johnny Ottinger who studies to please and devotes most of his time to encouraging the efforts of others, makes a few suggestions as to how items might be made more enjoyable. Here are his ideas, copying paragraphs which appeared last week, his additions being in parentheses:

Grocer White is a friend of labor. (A white grocer.)

Menard attended a banquet. (Men 'ard at work, etc.)

"Doc" Hauer was elected chairman. (Hauer you, "Doc?")

Max Noble returned from leave. (He Max Noble efforts to please.)

Nelson Moyer sang a song, etc. (He is becoming moyer of a singer every day.)

Ed. Shine lost $10 on the baseball game. (He doesn't shine as a baseball sharp.)

Commodore Leeds now wears a yachting cap. (He always leads the fashion.)

E. E. Coates is father of a daughter. (He never puts coats of red paint on the town.)

Edwin Collar has been transferred to the Treasury Branch. (He has collared a new job.)

J. C. Shinnen contemplates a trip to Paris. (He will be shinnin' around the Karteeay Latang.)

Tim Ring was on the wrong side of the wire at the finish of the chairman's race. (Couldn't ring in.)

Mike Dunn visited a physician last week. (Hope the doctor won't have to dun Dunn for his fee for what was done.

Johnny is very bright and would undoubtedly make a good chapel correspondent with a little training.

On the 4th of July, I met Foreman David J. Roberts, of the First Division, returning from a gathering of Welsh people that had taken place at Ruthven Lodge, an old Colonial manor out Tennallytown way. Ruthven Lodge was the place to which Dolly Madison retired with important state papers when the British captured Washington and burned the Capitol in 1814. It is built in the old, solid, compact fashion of that day, with heavy wood carvings through the rooms, and is yet in good preservation. The guests were shown all over the old lodge and had an enjoyable time. A great deal of Welsh was spoken, but no other excesses indulged in.

Mr. Roberts was born in Wales, but came to America when young. He was quite a "tourist" for a number of years and visited most parts of the United States, rubbing up against all the "old rounders" in the days when touring was enjoyable. (He's not my foreman, so I guess I can say that much about him, you nasty thing. So there now!)

"Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Huston request your presence at a reception given by them on the fifteenth anniversary of their marriage, Saturday evening, July 19, at 15 L street N. E, 8 to 11 o'clock," is the way my invitation reads, and I know I didn't get the only one. This will be their crystal wedding, and let us all hope that they may live to celebrate their golden wedding in 1937. Mr. Huston, who has been employed in the Proof Room for several years, as proofreader and keeping a record of proofs, was formerly from Indianapolis, and was a delegate from that city to Philadelphia in 1892. Notwithstanding his fifteen years of married life, he is still called "Kid" Huston. If the term "Kid" is ever applied to a young fellow it seems to stick to him all his days. Frank Kidd realizes that.

"Hot Scotch, jr.," was in my mind also when I said the Job Room man was not the only liar writing for THE TRADES UNIONIST, but I had not intended to particularize. In order that he may not feel hurt I state the facts.

Indianapolis Union, No. 1, through its Entertainment Committee, has honored me (and, to avoid an appearance of partiality, the other delegates) with an invitation to a local celebration of the semi-centennial of the I. T. U. in that city on August 9. They promise to show me "the beauties of the greatest inland capital city of the world, together with the varied industries, the grandest monument ever erected to commemorate the valor and heroism of the American soldier, the magnificent State capitol and other public institutions. The committee has also arranged, for your [that is, my] entertainment, a trolley ride to Broad Ripple Park, where there will be amusements galore, embracing a steamboat ride on White River, various aquatic sports, vaudeville attractions, etc. Luncheon will be served, followed by music and dancing." I'm thinking very seriously of taking it in. There will undoubtedly be many delegates there, especially from the West and Northwest, including those from Chicago, whom our Chairman Whitehead will personally conduct to Cincinnati, and he will leave here a week in advance in order to get them rounded up in time. Tim P. Harrington is chairman of the Indianapolis committee.

* * * *

Charles H. Knisely, for twenty years proofreader on the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, writes me that the three St. Louis delegates are solid for "Washington in 1903." I used to know Knisely in St. Joe away back about 1874. I believe he came originally from Council Bluffs, Iowa. He is the correspondent of a number of Western newspapers in addition to his work as a proofreader.

It is a great thing to feel that you are of some use in the world. That is the way I feel when I see my paragraphs worked over or stolen bodily and embalmed for all times in labor and other journals. Of course they might do better than to republish my stuff, but they don't know it.

* * * *

The Tom Heath who was elected a delegate from Danville, Ill., is the identical Tom Heath who used to work on Spess, I am told. It is hard to lose us.

Some weeks ago I was appointed a member of a committe to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of the late Hon. Amos J. Cummings, (peace to his ashes!) by the then president, E. A. M. Lawson, having for my colleagues W. N. Brockwell, and A. W. Bowen (where could better have been found?) There is not much glory to be gotten out of resolutions of respect, but we thought we had worked it for all it was worth by providing that the resolutions be published in THE TRADES UNIONIST (which seems to to have had a "scoop" on them) and the Typograghical Journal (in which up to date they have not appeared), and sent to sundry illustrious gentlemen. Has the President pro tempore of the U. S. Senate, Mr. Frye, ever gazed on our work and read the classic names "A. F. Bloomer, A. W. Bowen, W. N. Brockwell," appended thereto? Has Speaker Henderson ever wondered, as he read our production, that such talent could exist in men in private life? Has the president of "Big 6" been given a copy over which to ponder and weep? Who knows? And if not, why not?

* * * *

On the 4th of July some particularly and essentially contemptible thief stole two pairs of gold-framed spectacles, belonging to H. B. Goodrell and H. H. Humble out of their drawer in the Night Proof Room. It is a pity the thief can not be located and his opportunity to steal limited by iron bars.

A report is being circulated that the water at Cincinnati is very bad.

A. F. BLOOMER.

Anent That 30-Day Leave of Absence.

Wednesday a committee from Bookbinders' Union, Local No. 4, consisting of Messrs. J. L. Feeney, R. D. Barrett, W. H. Kelly, and W. W. Taylor, called upon Comptroller Tracewell regarding that much mooted thirty-day leave question and requested his decision and ruling upon the same. The comptroller informed the committee that he would render a decision if requested to do so, or if some member of the union would bring a test case before the Auditor of the Treasury, and the auditor would refer the case to him. The committee are of the opinion that the comptroller will render a decision in favor of paying leave on thirty working days instead of twenty-six as now in vogue, the law relative to leaves being very clear on said matter.

The Public Printer will be requested to ask for a decision and a test case may also be made.

Kindly Remembered.

The Sixth Division, Day Record, presented Miss Kate V. Smoot, president of Ladies' Bindery Union, with a handsome bouquet of flowers, Tuesday, as a mark of appreciation of her services in conjunction with the president of Bookbinders' Union, Mr. J. L. Feeney, in bringing about the three o'clock closing on Saturdays in the Government Printing Office.

A strike has occurred in the government arsenal at Taranto, Italy.

Regal Blue Serge

Is a closely woven, staunch, reliable fabric, guaranteed all wool to the selvage, guaranteed never to spring, guaranteed never to fade.

It's a tightly knit textile, the same shade of navy blue that the government requires in all its cloth. The sun isn't strong enough to alter it an iota. All the wear you can give will not show on the fabric. The seams are guaranteed never to weaken or pull out. The face of the cloth can not lose its sprightly luster.

Regal Blue Serge Suits

Are made up the very best way we "know how." The goods are intelligently lined, the vests are cut high and close to the collars. The coats hang with a swaggerness that bespeaks custom tailoring, and cling to the neck with a closeness that shows what brains can accomplish when backed by skilled tailors.

We surpass our own surpassing past in offering you Regal Blue Serge Suits in all sizes that men wear, in all styles that fashion decrees and all varieties that are possible at $9.90.

AROUND THE PRINTERIES.

Down Town.

Eddie Charles has returned from New York and is working on the Times.

"'Round the World" Ferguson is in Seattle, Wash. How about the Dome, Fergy?

Charles Smith, well known amongst down-town printers and of the G. P. O. of late, left Saturday for Richmond, where he expects to recuperate for three months.

The adjournment of Congress necessarily brought about the dropping of a great many temporary and emergency compositors, and changes and transfers in the Government Printing Office.

William F. Long president of the New York Lithographers Association, spent several days during the past week with his old friend, Col. Robert H. Payne, of the Geological Survey.

W. R. Bromley, who was foreman of the Globe Printing Company's composing room for some time past, resigned and left Saturday for Chicago, where he has accepted a position on the Tribune in that city.

The Washington Baseball Club having returned from their trip aboad play their first of three games with Baltimore, and then Detroit follows, beginning to-day. The club owing to legal complications was somewhat weakened on its tour but by the addition of Doyle and their being on home grounds the public may look for a good brand of baseball.

If you want Crabs go to Driscoll's, N. Cap. and G. Overholt whisky, 10c.

Second Division.

C. C. Hipkins, late of the Night Force, has been assigned to slug 20 in this division.

The sum of sixteen dollars was contributed in this room for the G. A. R. encampment fund.

Next to the home organ of his craft every printer ought to take the Typographical Journal. See slug 38, who will gladly forward your subscription.

The night force of this room tried their hand upon "catalogue" copy Saturday night. They did well, but the copper-spaced lines were a puzzle to them.

Since it became known that Brother Branham is the father of a bouncing baby, born July 4, that modest gentleman has been the recipient of numerous congratulations.

Several of the boys enjoyed the breezes of Chesapeake Beach on the Fourth. Messrs. Fulenwider, Goldstein, Razey, Hopkins, and Johnson were among the number.

The employes of this office are under obligation to Mr. Feeney, president of the Bookbinders' Union, for his efforts to have the office closed at 3 30, as same as the other departments.

Comrades J. S. Johnson, Harry Bradley, W. J. Phillips, and W. L. Wilmeth, are among those who expect to go into camp with the rest of the National Guard at Camp Ordway, Leesburg, Va., next week.

In the mad rush from copy-box to case, let us pause to recall our departed brothers, Jerry Bennett, Bill Norton, Frank Campbell, Sam Presley, and Tom Greenfield. As we loved them in life, let us not forget them in death.

Brothers Harry Bradley, E. J. Hall, M. A. Malony, S. M. Simpson, and O. C. Terry are enjoying their annual leave, beginning with this week. Four others, viz.: Brown, Holton, Soult, and Wolfe are slated to do likewise next week.

One of the compositors in this division, F, we will call him, for convenience, is in the testimonial market, not for a patent medicine—but we are ahead of the story. Cycling homeward at 4.45 on the evening of the first instant he was unceremoniously run into by a two horse vehicle driven at a pace characteristic of carriages returning from a funeral. The bike became a mangled wreck. The horses' hoofs made kindling wood of the rear rim, and reduced the spokes thereof to a mass of tangled wire with the hub for its nucleus. Although F fortunately escaped with only a few bruises and abuses, spectators concurred in the declaration that he had a narrow escape with his life. Through it all, strange to say, the tire of that wheel remained its pneumatic charge unpunctured. Without apology to Mrs. Hernans or anybody else—

Yet beautiful and tight it stood,
As born to rule the storm—
A creature of aerial blood,
In proud pneumatic form.

F believes that a testimonial relating that tire's achievement would be worth as much to the manufacturers as his entire bill of repairs, if he only knew whose make it is. Incidently, he would like to know the police officer who reprimanded the driver for his recklessness, but who failed to make an arrest. All this happened at the intersection of Tenth and G streets northwest.

In view of the heated term beginning in earnest, the Executive action allowing cessation of work after three o'clock on Saturday afternoons could not have come at a more opportune time. The posting of the notice of this order was greeted by numerous expressions of approval. A meeting of the compositors of the Second Division was immediately called and the following preamble and resolutions, offered by Joseph E. Goodkey, were unanimously passed:

WHEREAS, Through the kindly efforts of Mr. James L. Feeney, president of the Bookbinders' Union, and Miss Kate Smoot, president of the Lady Bindery Workers' Union, and the generous act of the President of the United States, the Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, and the good offices of the Public Printer, Hon. Frank W. Palmer, we have been granted 1½ hours reduction in labor on Saturdays during the hot months of July and August; be it

Resolved, That we the members of the Second Division Chapel, Government Printing Office, in special meeting assembled this 5th day of July, 1902, do hereby extend our sincere thanks to the President and the Public Printer for their generosity and to Mr. Feeney and Miss Smoot for their untiring aid in the accomplishment of this benefit to us and organized labor.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be suitably engrossed and forwarded to the persons herein named.

Why Washington Should be Selected.

The movement to secure the choice of Washington as the meeting place for the I. T. U., in 1903, is a capital one. The inducements are so many that it would seem an easy matter to make the choice practically unanimous by asking every delegate in favor of the proposition and who is able to rise to do so. This scheme is suggested with perfect confidence that a majority would be able to both rise and stand until counted. Permit me to name a few of the many reasons why the selection of Washington would be an act of great wisdom:

It has few, if any, mosquitoes.

It has a surplus of pretty women.

It has won fame as "Convention City."

It is here that statesmen make laws and scrap.

It offers water as a choice to those who prefer water.

It is here that money is made, distributed, and redeemed.

It is an easy run to the Cabin John resort and the bridge of size.

It is the seat of Government and standing room is provided for those without seats.

It is the resting place of martyrs and heroes, and it is here that living "colonels" outnumber the privates.

It is accessible by water and railway, and the walking is good by macadamized pikes leading out in any direction.

It is the eddying point for all the races of the populated earth, together with assembled monstrosities and a zoo annex.

It has an alert police force and ample accommodations for those of sudden need and a magistrate authorized to supply work in the absence of cash.

It is here the President lives for the most part, and it goes without saying that he would give to the visiting delegates the glad hand with assurances of liberal good will, such as the craft in Uncle Sam's printery now gratefully acknowledge.

It has the largest printing office in the world, presided over by a model Public Printer, is supplied with the very latest improved machinery and material, and a skilled force which is being constantly replenished by such good men as we hope to secure as our guests in 1903.

It is here more printers reside and toil who are nearer the age of Franklin than in any other city in the country, and here in the ancient archives are stored the records of all the old patriarchs and patron saints, compiled with great care by "Pard" Bloomer, a direct lineal decendant, and the accredited author of morgue papers, which alone is worth the price of admission.

Bindery Notes.

John Knight has abandoned his negligee costume at the suggestion of the boss.

Mike Dunn uses sandpaper on the soles of his feet. He says it beats milk baths all hollow.

Jim McManus has made the acquaintance of a charming widow and will marry in the fall. Good luck Jim.

Davy Thompson has gone on leave and the ladies will now miss their daily supply of cakes, unless Davy makes arrangements to have them delivered by "Cap." White.

Meyer Cohen was greatly agitated over the death of a man name Patton. He was afraid it was one of THE TRADES UNIONIST staff. He has been assured that Patton is very much alive and will see that he gets a press notice occasionally.

Through the brains and efforts of the bookbinders, the President has given us a shorter workday on Saturday during July and August. It is now claimed that there is a law on the books giving a half holiday on Saturday and that it affects all the government employes.

The Cowboys are not very well pleased that the Union Building ball team refuses to play them a return game. The first game resulted in a victory for the Union Building team, but the Cowboys feel that a second game would have a different result in spite of the "masterly battery work" of Wakefield and Barth, which the Cowboys say was very "punky."

John Hays, of the Union Building Bindery, stopped over in Washington the other night and secured a room in a cheap hotel on the Avenue. He soon became aware of the fact that there were other occupants of the room besides himself, many of them to be strictly correct, so John gets out of bed to light the gas and found the only light obtainable was from a candle. He later learned that the room assigned him was the "Suicide Room," so he quietly walked out of the hotel and spent the night on the street.

"Doc." Hauer Entertains.

"Doc." Hauer inaugurated his election to the chairmanship of the Specification Room chapel by giving a "spread" to which a general invitation to the members of the chapel had been tendered. A goodly number responded, and the result was one of those evenings which tend to cement old friendships and create new ones. The affair came off at the hostelry of George Boegeholz, on Seventh street northwest near M, which is a well-known resort to a number of members of the art preservative.

On this occasion Mr. Boegeholz proved himself a royal host, singing a number of songs and giving selections on the guitar, on which he is an excellent performer. "Doc." acted as toastmaster. He made an address in which he expressed his appreciation of the honor of being elected chairman of the largest chapel in the country. Major Dodge spoke entertainingly of his quarter of a century's connection with the Specification chapel, and said that the cordial relations existing between himself and his co-workers and the kind treatment he had received at all times, was a source of great pleasure to him. Dan Marvin recited in a manner that called forth applause, after which M. K. Huntsberry took occasion to expatiate on the necessity for more "rings." Joe McCann sang several songs which were highly appreciated. Colonel Roberts, assisted by Jed Shaw, related many interesting stories of the civil war. Messrs. Harrison, Stough, and othe rs also contributed to the entertainment. While the above was proceeding Charley Sickels and Louie Carroll were busy serving out the lager and other good things of which there was an abundance.

It was the "wee sma' hours" when an adjournment was had, all voting the affair a success and agreeing that "Doc's" innovation was worthy of emulation by all who have similar honors to his thrust upon them.

Silence purchases peace.

Kissing never hurt any girl who didn't tell about it.

Even a man that is smart enough to make a good horse trade can lose his shoes and stockings in a wife trade.

After a man has made up his mind to have no more quarrels with his wife, no matter what happens, when he goes home he flies up into the air because she says she loves having him good-tempered the way he is to-day.

Woodworkers in Portland, Oreg., who have been on strike several weeks for a nine-hour day, have banded together and are erecting two factories which will be conducted on the co-operative plan. Manufacturers who have conceded the nine-hour day and are employing union men are encouraging the project.

THE CENTRAL LABOR UNION

The Much-Mooted Marine Engineer Delegates' Matter Again.

MANY NEW DELEGATES SEATED

Amalgamated Street Railway Employes' Appeal—Bartenders' League Wish Body to Indorse Their Unfair List—Stereotypers, of New York, Request Organized Labor to Discourage Sale of Certain Firms' Goods.

The Central Labor Union was called to order, Monday night, at Typographical Temple, by President Hamerstrom.

Minutes of previous meeting were read by Secretary Winslow, and approved by the body.

Credentials were received from Registered Drug Clerks' Association, certifying Messrs. G. D. Baily, S H. Deckman, A. J. Hussey, H. D. Konover, and F. T. Hafelfinger; from R. A. Lanis Association of Steam Fitters, No. 10, certifying Messrs. H. T. Rogers, E. J. Ratigan, John A. Brett, William Hollihan, and George Meitzler; from Steam and Hot Water Fitters and Helpers, No. 28, certifying Messrs. P. A. Gilhooley, Eugene Hancock, John Heitmiller, John Kelly, and Thomas F. Flanagan; from Electrical Workers, No. 26, certifying Messrs. H. W. Sherman, S. M, Wilder, S. L. Adams, J. J. Purcell, and F. W. Hartwell; from United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, No. 1103, certifying Messrs. J. Huggins, J. Muckenhaupt, F. Edmonston, Thomas Curtis, and John Barkley; from Steam Engineers, No. 77, certifying Richard H. Clark; from Theatrical Stage Employes, No. 22, certifying Messrs. L. Rubel, P. Lowe, J. Hurley, and J. Fenton. The above delegates were obligated and seated.

A communication was received from New York Stereotypers' Union, No. 1, requesting this body to discourage the patronage of Russia Cement Company, of Gloucester, Mass., manufacturers of glue; New Hartford Canning Company, of New Hartford, N. Y., and Catawba Canning Company, of West field, N. Y., vegetable canners, and Lewis Lye, Pennsylvania Salt Company, Philadelphia, as they have their labels printed by the United States Printing Company, of Brooklyn, whose electrotype department is unfair to organized labor. Request complied with.

Bartenders' League, No. 75, communicated to this body stating they had placed George W. Driver, 605 Pennsylvania avenue, and Charles H. Dismer, 708 K street northwest, upon their unfair list, and requested that this body indorse their action. Communication referred to Grievance Committee.

A communication from Division No. 189, Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes of America, at Oil City, Pa., appealing for moral and financial assistance to sustain those members of their organization who were discharged for joining their union. Communication filed.

Under call of Engineers, Local No. 99 called up Marine Engineer matter, and a motion that Local Union No. 99 request a conference with Marine Engineers, at an early date, relative to adjusting present differences was lost.

A resolution to the effect "that the Marine Engineers' delegates be not seated in the Central Labor Union until such time as they come to an understanding with International Union Steam Engineers' locals" prevailed.

A motion prevailed that a committee be appointed to call upon the heads of departments where per diem employes are employed and request that if the Saturday half holiday is declared a legal holiday by the Attorney-General, that those per diem employes also be granted the half holiday with pay.

The News proposition was endorsed upon favorable recommendation of two members of a committee of five.

Saturday Early Closing.

EDITORS THE TRADES UNIONIST:

The papers of this city have been loaded with interviews and laudatory articles in reference to Saturday early closing; sane men have permitted themselves to be carried off their feet, so to speak, by the false reports as to whom all the credit is due for the accomplishment of this much-desired object—that hardworking employes of the Government Printing Office and its branches, including the employes of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, also feel the effects of the hot weather after a whole week of arduous toil and are likewise entitled to the shorter workday on Saturday, the same as those employed in the clerical branches in the Departments of the Government service.

Surely, there is cause for congratulation, but when resolutions of thanks, flowers, and presents are being bestowed, why not delay until in possession of all the facts and not laud a self seeker; one who was compelled to state publicly that he had not one thing to do with bringing about the grand result! Why laud persons who are unscrupulous enough to accept all this without remonstrance that they are not the ones to be thanked?

The press agents have been worked to the limit, including the editors of THE TRADES UNIONIST, for in the last issue of your otherwise conservative journal much of that kind of rot was published. Your correspondent from the bindery, who signs himself "Cowboy," stated that "through the brains and efforts of the bookbinders the President has given us a shorter work day on Saturday during July and August." "Cowboy" is calculated to be a trifle reckless in his statements, as his cognomeu would indicate, but if he will exert one more effort on his brain box possibly he can learn the exact truth of the entire matter by reading this article.

The facts are briefly as follows: Ex-President Lawson enlisted a member of the Cabinet to take the matter up; same was presented to the President, who issued the order for the 3 o'clock closing for the Government Printing Office, etc.

Why Mr. Feeney should assail the printer delegates to the Central body is inconceivable. However, as far as I am concerned he has put in a disclaimer and, as to Mr. Babcock, he was purposely wrong or grossly mistaken.

The example set by the ex-president of the Central Labor Union in peddling the proceedings of that body about to an indiscriminate public is certainly not calculated to impress the lay delegate with a degree of much importance regarding the business of that important labor organization, and to my mind it is high time that such loose-jawed individuals should be bridled by a severe reprimand.

Some members of Columbia Union have been unsparing in their criticisms of President Johnson; charging him with neglect, etc. Mr. Johnson took the proper steps in this matter, but inasmuch as Mr. Lawson had assured him that the matter would be attended to, he felt that it was unneccessary to go further. Results have borne out that his conclusions were correct. With the hope that the foregoing will cause the thoughtless and others to stop making ridiculous exhibitions of themselves, I remain,

Fraternally yours,

JOHN B. DICKMAN.

TRADES UNIONISM FAVORED

The Filipino Destined Never to Be a Competitor—A Trade Strike On—Trade Conditions—R. A. Nelgner Added to Washington Contingent—Chinese and Japanese the Skilled Laborers of the Island.

MANILA, P. I.,
June 3, 1902.

EDITORS THE TRADES UNIONIST:

When we landed in Manila last October it was with the expectation that the actual operations at the Bureau of Public Printing would commence about the first of the year of 1902; that in the meantime our duties would only be of a supervisory nature; that an opportunity would be offered to acquaint ourselves with the city and country, and to be able to write some interesting letters to our friends and THE TRADES UNIONIST on trade topics and matters of mutual interest.

As we would say it now, "We didn't 'sabe' our job." These pleasures are still in the realm of anticipation and expectation; there yet remains considerable to be done to the building for the Bureau before it will be completed; never before was I so busily occupied as during the past eight months; our opportunities for study have been limited, and our friends are disappointed in not receiving the resultant news.

Mr. Nelgner, just arrived, informs me that this condition was a topic of discussion in Washington, and that a conclusion had been reached that the state of affairs here was unsatisfactory, and that we were in a condition of enthrallment and disgust! And here comes another "jolt" from Bloomer in THE TRADES UNIONIST to the effect that we are neglectful and indolent, censurable and ungrateful!

How can we make amends? Apologies and excuses confess a wrong and a default, while we admit neither. Yet we wish to regain your good opinions. It is for that reason that I hasten to comply with Mr. Patton's request for a general view of the situation.

Impressions of Manila depend largely on your point of view, your previous expectations, and the route you travel. To those who anticipate coming here to live, my strict advice would be, "Blessed are they who expect but little, for they will not be disappointed," and a preference of route being allowed, they should choose to come direct from San Francisco, or stop only at Guam. Honolulu is so far superior that the comparison is to our disadvantage, and disappointment results. The points of interest visited en route from New York, especially Colombo, are very apt to create expectations of a tropical city that will not be realized in Manila. On a visit to Washington if one first visits the Congressional Library, the other buildings, grand though they be, suffer in consequence. Personally, Manila exceeded my anticipations. You have already given your readers a translation of my Welsh letter bearing on this subject. Other topics may prove more interesting. A few years of American rule will do wonders for this city. When claims for the development of the resources of the island will be be granted, and building operations are commenced on an American scale, there will be a rapid change.

All we know of the Philippines geographically is very local, and you have been regaled with a surfeit of information concerning the islands during the Congressional investigation, and so much of a contradictory character, that you are no doubt at a loss which to credit. "Many men, many minds." Since now this question is being made a political one, the bias is the more pronounced, and the evidence should be weighed accordingly. It is better not to introduce it into your columns.

One question there is, however, upon which all Americans here unite, and that is, that the currency is abominable. The situation is concisely stated in the following resolutions, which were adopted by the employes of the Bureau of Printing at a recent meeting:

MANILA, P. I., May 30, 1902.

UNITED STATES PHILIPPINE COMMISSION,
Ayuntamiento building,
Manila, P. I.

GENTLEMEN: At a general meeting of the employes of the Bureau of Public Printing, held on this date, the following preambles and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, The appointments tendered each of us on behalf of the United States Philippine Commission by the War Department stipulated our salaries in United States currency, and our reappointments upon our arrival here contain the same stipulation; and

WHEREAS, The appropriation bills contain a clause that said salaries shall only be paid in local currency at a designated ratio; and

WHEREAS, Said local currency is not accepted in the marts of trade, at the banks, or at the post-office at the ratio established by law, but at a considerably higher ratio or in gold coin, which appreciably diminishes the purchasing power of our salaries: therefore

Resolved, That we respectfully petition the United States Philippine Commission for relief under one of the following provisions:

First: That salaries be paid in United States currency under the terms of our contracts; or

Second: That the salaries be paid in local currency at a ratio convertible at the banks to United States currency without a loss; or

Third: In case it is impossible to grant the full relief as requested in the foregoing propositions, that one-half of said salaries be paid in United States currency; or Fourth: That arrangements be made whereby one-half of the salaries will be accepted at the post-office at the legal ratio for money orders payable in United States currency.

This petition was referred to Commissioner Ide, who is in charge of this department of the Commission's work, who indorsed the same as follows:

The complaint within made is entirely just. A hardship is imposed upon the employes of the Bureau of Public Printing in being obliged to accept their salaries in local currency at the existing ratio. That hardship is one that the Commissioners themselves experience in their own salaries, as does every single employe of the Civil Government. It is incident to the situation. It is impracticable to readjust the matter during the pending quarter—that is, before the expiration of the month of June. Before that time Congress will have acted upon the subject of currency in relation to the Philippine Islands. It is hoped that the action of that body will provide the relief desired If not, it is probable that the action of Congress will leave it so that the Commission can furnish some relief, either in the manner suggested in the third and fourth resolutions adopted by the employes, or in some other manner at least efficacious. The employes can be assured that their difficulties are fully realized and that most strenuous efforts will be made to relieve them as soon as Congress places it in the power of the Commission to do so.

When the first employes arrived here the ratio was two dollars Mex. to one American. On January 1 the ratio was increased to 2.10 to 1, and on April 1 to 2.27 to 1. The earnings deposited in the banks previous to January 1 were thus reduced: first, 5 per cent, then 13½ per cent. The legal ratio was considerably less than the commercial ratio. During May gold was worth as much as $2 54 Mex, and those who had obligations payable in United States currency, or who desired to transmit money to the States had to stand the difference between 2.27 and the commercial price of gold. The coin has no value, bullion alone being considered. And withal there is a considerable quantity of counterfeit money in circulation, and few places discriminate in its acceptance.

Those of you who receive your clean, crisp bills on pay-day may not appreciate the convenience, but I venture to predict that should the paymaster be instructed to make monthly payments, and in silver dollars—104 cart wheels—there would be raised a howl that would make Populism envious. Multiply that by 2 27 and our grievance is that much the more acute! Even then yours would be the coin of the realm, honored and accepted at its stamped value; ours a disreputable coin which hath no redeemer. The Commission has recommended the coinage of an American peso of a known and fixed value. Will Congress be adverse to a stable currency, and propose only a bullion coin that will disgrace its mintage?

Some months ago we were told that it was the intention of some persons to bring up the question of the education of the Filipinos in the trades, especially of printing, before the next I. T. U. convention, with a view to its condemnation, lest the United States be threatened in the near future with another Chinese invasion! Of course we have no idea that such a proposition would be entertained by the convention if brought up. I only mention it so as to make some observations.

As a matter of fact—easily proven—one of the great questions agitating the merchants and employers of the Philippines is the question of labor. You can find on the files of Congress many petitions praying for relief by requesting permission to allow immigration of Chinese to the Islands, not because Chino labor is cheaper than Filipino labor, but because it is more reliable. Many of the commercial men aver that these islands can not be developed with native labor.

The skilled labor in this city—such as it is—is performed by the Chinese, as is also the menial and heavy work. The better grade of work, such as cabinet making, stair building, etc., is done by the Japanese. There are Filipinos who do acceptable work, many of whom have been taught in the Quartermasters' shops, and Governor Taft is of the opinion that he can be educated on a larger scale.

I believe the natives will be easy converts to the trades-union idea. Indeed, they have a union here now, called the Democratic Workman's Union, which embraces native printers and lithographers, lumber and saw mill men, tailors, tobacco workers, stevedores, etc. Since the advent of the American wages of native help have increased from 100 to 400 per cent. Since the formation of the union it has grown rapidly, and several of its demands have been acceded to. The greatest danger to this organization, and to the trades-union idea, is radicalism. Flushed with a few victories it has made exorbitant demands. Failure and disorganization now will be hard to counteract.

Last week merchants and publishers were notified that a uniform increase of fifty per cent would be demanded for all members, to be effective June 1. To-day many houses are closed as a result, and we have a genuine trade strike. There was no attempt to establish a scale of wages for the several trades, or to classify the branches thereof. Regardless of the equity or inequity of the present pay, the demand was for a uniform increase of 50 per cent. The compositor who received 8 pesos per week must be paid 12, and the one receiving 12 must be paid 18.

While a larger increase than was asked was offered many, it was refused because all were not included in the increase and none returned to work. You will note, therefore, that while the demahd may have been unwarranted, the principle of unity is strong. Many of the strikers are seeking work elsewhere, several having applied for work at this Bureau. Up to this time no native craftsmen have been employed at the plant, and there are but few of them on the eligible list of the Philippine Civil Service.

I do not discuss the merits of the controversy, for I am not familiar enough with the situation from the standpoint of the Filipino. We may discuss his needs and aspirations. Conditions must change rapidly to justify the demands made. It is insisted that the high rate of living has not affected the native but to a slight extent. We know, however, that the native is not slow to avail himself of the best conditions, and is not a bit diffident in his requests. He has a positive way of saying "ultimo" when he has formed his plea.

Another reason why the Filipino will never be a competitor in the labor market is that he does not want to get into the market. The ideal life of the Filipino is a week with "mucho dinero, poco trabajo, muchas fiesta,"—big money, little work, and many holidays. How many of you have the same idea? But he is chronic. He can invent more excuses for a day off than you can imagine, even to his aunt's or grandmother's headache.

But the most potent reason why he will not be a competitor is that he can not compete, in quality or quantity. In our trade, especially as compositors, it is true. Mr. McCullough, who owns the largest private printing plant in the islands, and who was the printer for the Government for years, with all his experience in the training of the native, and who employs about 150 of them, told me that one white man is worth three of them. The fact that he employs so many Americans in the composing room is proof of this. This is true to a certain eextnt as regards the press room, while not so true of the bindery. As feeders, folders, gatherers, and at the minor branches they are more apt, and the comparison is not so unequal. Of course in the composing room they are handicapped with the ignorance of the language, and this is true of Spanish as well as English. Public Printer Leech gave some applicants who claimed to be full-fledged compositors a piece of reprint to set today, with the following results: Two men, 475 ems, 45 minutes; one, 475 ems in 1 hour, 5 minutes; one, 532, and another 522 ems in one hour, uncorrected. And Gessler says that E. W. Oyster would have to invent new classes for some of their proofs!

As well might the American printer fear the invasion of the Greasers!

Specification Notes.

About thirty members of this force are absent on leave.

Miss Louise Gunton is spending her leave with friends in New York city.

Miss Kate Spencer will divide the time of her annual leave with friends in Michigan and Chicago.

The present is the largest force ever employed on Specifications. Every available space is occupied.

Only one man sees a disadvantage in the Saturday short day. It breaks into hours reserved for distribution.

W. G. Nichols, late of the Census Branch, has temporary direction of the press work here during the absence of George Ramsey, who is on the sick list.

Error was made in referring to Mr. Babson, of the Patent Office Gazette as a printer and formerly employed on this work. He does not claim that distinction, but when it comes to patent decision and any matter in dispute, he has no successful rival.

Captain Smoot has purchased a saddle and complete outfit as a digression from the buggy habit, and with true Roughrider dash he puts spurs to the "Judge," both morning and evening. O'Brien has made a snap shot, which some day may aid to bring out a real equestrian statue.

The Washington Railway Association pays a death benefit of $250. In case a member's wife dies the association pays to the surviving husband $150, or if he has no wife, in case his mother dies, the same amount is paid. Here is a suggestion for Columbia Union. There are probably many unmarried members who have invalid or dependent mothers, and to such a death benefit would insure against sudden or unexpected demands.

About the first of the present month "Georgie" Colquitt reluctantly yielded to the arguments of friends in Tennessee and bade wife and child a fond adieu for a vacation which was to extend into September. Hardly had they reached their destination before George received a letter in which Mrs. Colquitt expressed a desire to return to Washington, which was welcome news, and George immediately telegraphed forty dollars to cover expenses of return trip. Again, in anticipation, happiness reigned supreme in the Colquit apartments. A day or two later there came the information that after a little reflec- and on account of the baby they had decided to remain in Tennessee a couple of months longer. George tells this as a joke, but it is very evident that the incident has jarred him considerably.

FUDGE.

To Cincinnati and Return, $18.66.

Arrangements have been completed by the Transportation Committee with the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad, whereby delegates and their friends wishing to attend the International Typographical Convention, to be held at Cincinnati, Ohio, August 11, 1902, may leave here at 11:10 p. m., Friday, August 8, arriving in Cincinnati, Saturday evening at 5:15. The rate will be $18.66 for the round trip, which is fare and one-third. This is an opportunity which should not be allowed to pass. A special car will be provided and those wishing to join the party should notify, at their earliest convenience, the Transportation Committee.

THE Union Directory is omitted from this issue owing to the correction necessary therein.

THE Western Laborer, one of the brightest exchanges that reaches our table, published by FRANK KENNEDY (Sadie Maguire) at Omaha, Nebr., was twelve years old last Saturday. May it continue to prosper and need "never to pander to a clique or ring to acquire popularity or evade a fight," as its editorial declares.

ORGANIZED LABOR in Missouri is questioning all legislative candidates in the State as to what they, if elected, will promise to do in establishing the Referendum and the Initiative.

Organized Labor in Iowa has also provided for the questioning of all legislative candidates in the State.

This is a splendid way to bring to the front the question of majority rule. And when thus made an issue, no candidate will dare to oppose it except where the primaries have been held and the voters have signed an agreement to support the party candidate regardless of his attitude toward public questions. Even in such cases the defeat of majority rule can last only until the next primaries are held.

The general adoption of the Referendum and the Initiative have been slow in coming because the monopolists and the political machines and bosses whom they control have kept the question in the background. But they are powerless to prevent the questioning of candidates by Organized Labor, and through this system the issue can be kept at the front.

Where majority rule is instituted, there inevitably results a whole series of legislative changes in the interest of the people and against the monopolist. Private monopoly is a giant evil, but where real majority rule is instituted the change is remarkably rapid. An illustration of this is the history of Switzerland and New Zealand, and the instances in this country of where a direct ballot upon municipal monopolies have occurred. In Chicago, at last spring's election, the vote was four or five to one in favor of municipal ownership of street railways and lighting plants.

Here in the city of Washington the people have no vote, but we can see what should be done where the ballot is possessed. The Referendum and the Initiative should be added to the legislative bodies, and the way to do this in a single campaign is for Organized Labor to question the legislative candidates and then publish their replies or their refusal to reply.

This will aid the radical political parties, for after the adoption of the Referendum and the Initiative a small proportion of the voters can force to a direct vote such legislative measures as they care to propose. In Chicago, for example, the Referendum vote on municipal ownership was four or five to one in favor of the system, and in national affairs the railroads, telegraph, and telephone would quickly be socialized, then the coal mines and other monopolized sources of raw material, and afterward the steel trust and other private monopolies.

The thing which will set in motion the entire chain of causation is the systematic questioning of candidates by Organized Labor. The ease and rapidity with which the new civilization can be entered upon is astonishing.

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

Have you ever noticed the peculiarity of the "kicker," the "disturber," the "labor agitator," as these terms are usually and generally opprobriously applied, that his efforts to work reforms and right wrongs are nearly always directed to some other establishment than the one in which he is employed, particularly in the printing business. I am writing now of the working "kicker," the chap who goes right on every day earning $4 or $5 in a situation with which he has no fault to find, and not to the man whose only vocation is easing the burdens of labor. If you will notice, he sees injustice and a want of unionism in other establishments daily and fearlessly raises his voice in their denunciation, but in the mill where he is employed everything goes on as smooth as clockwork, unless some similarly disposed party from some other office makes charges, when he flies to the rescue and eloquently maintains the unionism of his workshop, from office boy to head. "We are fearfully and wonderfully made," as the jackass said while contemplating a human skeleton.

A letter from John J. Foster says that Waco (Tex.) Union instructed their delegate to vote for "Washington in 1903" provided that no Western or Southern city is a candidate—a contingency not likely to happen, as the last four conventions have gone West and South. Foster is a member of the law firm of Penry & Foster, which devotes itself principally to "commercial practice," and since going to Waco he has accumulated two sons in addition to what he took away from here with him, making five children in all. He seems to be prospering in every way.

He writes sympathetically of the death of poor Bob Simril and relates how, when he was preparing to go to Texas, Simril, who was expecting to return to Georgia, insisted that Foster should go via Newnan, promising to meet him at the train with a watermelon under one arm and a fried chicken under the other.

Captain King, of the Treasury Branch, told me a story of the late Col. Dick Smith the other day that had to do with war times. Dick had gone to Cincinnati, where King was working, and was also working there. Dick had had a row with a detective in an eating joint and had broken a few plates and pitchers on him in the melee, and the detective thought it was up to him to get even. So, learning that Dick was from the South, he arrested him one evening at a theater, while the in company of a young lady, on the charge of being a spy, and he was thrown into McLean Barracks. King got some influential friends at work to procure Smith's release, and the commanding officer promised that he would be let out as soon as word could be procured from Washington, which he thought would take about ten days. In about twelve days the order of release came, and when they went to the barracks to get him the bird had flown. Dick had waited the ten days, and had then dug a tunnel under the barrack wall, emerged in a vacant lot, and skipped. The Colonel will be remembered as an employee of the G. P. O. for several years until five or six years ago, working in the Record room. He had been married but a short time and was living over at Falls Church or Vienna, Va., when he died.

My reformatory suggestions in regard to the drink evil, while receiving some indorsement, also call forth condemnation from the "all or nothing" reformers. The fact that prohibition does not prohibit makes no difference to them. They fight for a principle and will have nothing else, notwithstanding a list of failures as long as the list of prohibition States. There is one crying objection to prohibition States—the whisky sold in them is uniformly rotten. That is a discouragement, because when a community is brought up on bad liquor and acquired a taste for it there is no way for any honest man to get a drink of good whisky there. It couldn't be sold there if it were cheaper than the bad. Let us have improvement in the grade of liquor, and then show the weak brethren how to drink it in moderation by being moderate ourselves. This is where I come in strong on precept.

You have noticed the expression frequently, "—— has accepted a situation." It don't make any difference how much wire-pulling or scullduggery —— has used to get the situation; when he finally lands it he has "accepted" it, just as though he had been chased around for weeks and coaxed into it. Well, it don't fool anybody anyhow; everybody knows —— has had his accepter open for business for some time.

There seems to be a great stir and ado about thanking somebody for securing the shorter Saturday and perhaps a disposition to go off half-cocked. When all the facts are known I hardly think we need rush around to "engrossed-resolutions" the officers of kindred trades, in the attempt to belittle our own officers, for the result came more directly from an interview between Secretary of State Hay and ex-President "Whitey" Lawson than from any other single incident, though there were a number of things leading up to it. Mr. Feeney is a very able officer and a clever gentleman, and he doesn't claim that he alone did the business. Let us try to be manly and fair in this matter, and if we want to knock the stuffing out of Joe Johnson at the election next year, and are many enough to do it, nobody can complain of our methods. "It is a dirty bird that fouls its own nest," and they show poor judgment and worse taste who seek to hamper and belittle the officers of their own organization, especially in the very beginning of an adminstration.

A Night Bill Force poet, with anticipations of the end, hands me the following, which, after amputating a foot here and trimming a corn there, I turn in. But I hope his gloomy forebodings may not be realized and that he may continue at work until it is too late to return to the farm. This is it, from head to tail:

THE PASSING OF THE N. B. F.

As green as Mary's little lamb
We played the Bennings jumpers;
And now, cast off by Uncle Sam,
We'll have to ride the bumpers.

Now, great is John Bonini's grief;
Sad is our friend O'Leary;
Nofsinger's blue beyond belief,
And Reilly looks quite weary.

For from the easy, juicy hook
No more we'll pluck the "all."
Around the shop take one more look—
The night force is off till fall.

As "Cascarets" we've served our turn,
And worked while others slept;
So now, with more or less concern,
We'll country jobs accept.

The boys all set their sixty-four
With "fair to middlin'" ease,
Nor tried to get up any more—
Since 'twas enough to please.

The Rumor Com, with mighty zest,
To fill the bill has tried;
The date of our discharge has guessed—
With them we're satisfied.

For Jimmy Ross, with grave import,
Is coming down the line;
"In Hooker's division please report
To-morrow night at nine."

And keeping us at work so long
Was kind of Mr. Palmer;
To him I sing my grateful song—
Then go to be a farmer.

To Charley Young and Jimmy Ross,
And Captain Brian, too,
And "Whitey," our immediate boss,
Our thanks are surely due.

You've helped us out in different ways
And "raked" us, now and then;
But for you all we've naught but praise
Till we come back again.

A steady job with Uncle Sam
Is what we all desired;
But now we do not give a d——n—
We've worked till we are tired.

The next long session—nineteen four—
Will find us at our cases;
For those who have been here before
Find this the best of places.

Some forms we'll never more behold—
Some hands we'll never clasp
Ere they'll be gathered to the fold
By Death's relentless grasp.

When we return to this old room
Some will have passed away.
Let us drop a tear on the silent tomb—
Requiescat in passay.

—OTHO H. BARNES, Slug 338, N. B. F.

D. J. Roberts, foreman of the First Division, has gone to his home in Kansas, a very sick man, to recuperate. He is worn out by the strain attending the long session of Congress and it may take several weeks to restore him to health.

A letter from George Nichols says Baltimore Union has instructed its delegates to co-operate with the delegates from No. 101 in their efforts to have Washington chosen as the convention city of 1903, and adds that Washington must have a very poor cause when she cannot rely on the support of Baltimore Union. Hurrah for Baltimore and George Nichols!

I have received from the Secretary of the Kansas State Historical Association, by the courtesy of Mr. T. B. Brown, foreman of the State Printing Office, at Topeka, Vol. 6, of "Kansas Historical Collections, 1901-1902," 620 pages, handsomely printed. It contains many interesting papers covering the history of Kansas in the days of the struggles between the free and slave State forces and I anticipate much pleasure from its perusal.

Some people are talking about changing our system of dues from a percentage to a flat rate. The suggestion is to make the dues 75 cents a month for everybody, the argument being that the union confers equal benefits on every one. The man who receives an advance over the scale does not owe it to the union, but to his own ability, "pull," or good luck. There is merit in this to a certain extent. It is certainly true that the union only provides wages equal to its scale, or anything in excess of that being secured by some other influence. Another argument in favor of the flat rate is the simplicity of collection. As every one pays the same, there is no occasion to examine pay rolls. If a man is out of work it is no fault of the union, which only guarantees a certain rate in case he does work. If one man receives more than another, that is his good fortune, and not the doings of the union. A man may be receiving the highest wages, and be so loaded with responsibilities that he is worse off than another who works but half time, but has no one to support but himself. As stated before, the argument relied upon mainly is that the union confers equal benefits on all members, and therefore the obligation to support the union should be equal to all members. To cover unusually unfortunate cases it is proposed to provide that any one's dues may be remitted by a majority vote of the union. What do you think of it? It has a kind o' plausible sound to me.

Labor Notes.

Chicago has the labor-temple idea.

Toledo shirtmakers are to be organized.

New York expects 50,000 men to turn out in its Labor Day demonstration.

The Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes has 40,000 members.

In Illinois, Indiana, and other States the farm hands are perfecting strong organizations.

Iowa's large building at St. Louis Exposition will probably be built entirley by union labor.

Treasury Division.

Edmund Shaw, of the proof room, is absent on accouut of sickness.

Miss Theresa McDevitt is absent on account of a death in her family.

The following are on leave this week: Dr. W. J. Manning, E. E. Coates, Wm. M. Holeman, and Wm. A. Whitney.

Mrs. Post, who has been quarantined at her home on account of scarlet fever for a month or more, returned to work Monday.

Mrs. M. G. Molan was called to Minneapolis, Minn, last week on account of the sudden death of her daughter, Mrs. James P. Garrity, in that city.

Thos. C. Boyd, L. L. McWhorter, T. C. Wade, Wm. Busey, and H. G. Pride were transferred to this division from the Specification Room several days ago.

News reached this office Friday morning that Harry Judson was the father of a ten pound son. Harry is so delighted over the affair that he is taking part of his leave to celebrate the event.

Regal Blue Serge

Is a closely woven, staunch, reliable fabric, guaranteed all wool to the selvage, guaranteed never to spring, guaranteed never to fade.

It's a tightly knit textile, the same shade of navy blue that the government requires in all its cloth. The sun isn't strong enough to alter it an iota. All the wear you can give will not show on the fabric. The seams are guaranteed never to weaken or pull out. The face of the cloth can not lose its sprightly luster.

Regal Blue Serge Suits

Are made up the very best way we "know how." The goods are intelligently lined, the vests are cut high and close to the collars. The coats hang with a swaggerness that bespeaks custom tailoring, and cling to the neck with a closeness that shows what brains can accomplish when backed by skilled tailors.

We surpass our own surpassing past in offering you Regal Blue Serge Suits in all sizes that men wear, in all styles that fashion decrees and all varieties that are possible at $9.90.

AROUND THE PRINTERIES.

Down Town.

A number of the printer-soldier boys have gone into camp at Camp Ordway, Leesburg, Va.

S. S. Culbertson, of the G. P. O. Job Room, is spending a few weeks at Steubenville, Ohio.

And now fire has wiped Jackson City off the map. How many losers wish this had occurred before?

Daniel Hegarty, of the Bill Force, of the G. P. O., is putting in a few days "Down in Maine," at his home in Lewiston.

The Registered Drug Clerks at their recent semi-annual election chose W. T. Kerfoot, jr., as president, and F. T. Hafelfinger as secretary.

Otho H. Barnes, of the Third Division, Night Bill Force, of which division he served as chairman for sometime, resigned Monday to take charge of the M. E. Times, at Buckhannon, W. Va.

J. H. Hooper, who for a number of years was employed in Baltimore, and recently of the force in the Government Printing Office in this city, has left for his old home in Charlotte, N. C.

Members of all organized crafts should "cut out" Chevy Chase Lake and circle as a place of recreation. The management did not see fit to employ American Federation of Labor musicians.

Charles T. Graff returned from New York, Wednesday night, he having got that far toward his trip of investigation into the matter of whether Mount Pelee's recent eruption had actually raised Harrisburg seven inches. Of course, Charley would have noticed the high places.

Charles E. Holmes, formerly employed in the Government Printing Office and who left this city to accept a position in the Weather Bureau, at Galveston, Texas, and who was later employed in Denver, Colo., has again been transferred to the Weather Bureau, at Galveston.

We are indebted to the kindness of Mr. R. A. Nelgner, for a long time chairman of the Fifth Division of the Government Printing Office, but now of the Government Printing Bureau at Manila, P. I., for a copy of The Manila Freedom, bearing date of Saturday, June 7, and received here July 13, containing an interesting and lengthy description of the new printing office there, which was to be ready for business July 1.

The Washington base ball team plays with Detroit to-day (Thursday) and to-morrow. St. Louis' aggregation will then take a throw for three days; after them Cleveland comes for three games, beginning Wednesday, June 23. Of course, admirers of "our own" regret the drubbing that Washington received at the hands of Detroit on Wednesday, but it must not be forgotten that they had five straight games to their credit previous to this mishap.

The Daily Picayune, New Orleans, of a recent date, contains the following relative to our own Jakey Atz, well known to many of the employes of the Government Printery and the "Swamp" in general. Speaking of Manager Armour, of the Cleveland team, it says: "He is here to select some material and sign the men, if possible, for his aggregation. New Orleans, Nashville, and Atlanta will be the losers if Armour lands the men he wants. He said to-night of the players he has seen Atz, second basemen for New Orleans, and Stouch, at similar bag for Atlanta, are men he wants."

Second Division.

The author of "Casabianca" is Mrs. Hemans, not Hernans.

Fifteen days' leave of absence has been granted to A. M. LeMerle and C. G. Hopkins.

Miss Nellie H. Shipman should have been mentioned last week as among those enjoying a short vacation.

Bert A. Wolfe started on his leave the 10th inst., and he will visit the greatest city on earth—New York. There are a few gold bricks left.

S. M. Simpson, who started on his leave the 5th inst., has been confined to his home on account of sickness. He is much better now and expects to be out in a few days.

We are promised a pen picture of "tenting on the old camp ground," by a typo at Camp Ordway, conditioned upon the promising participant finding time to execute the trust.

Foreman W. H. Hickman is taking a thirty days' leave of absence for much needed rest. While away his mantle of responsibility will fall upon the shoulders of George S. Sherman, and a more capable person could scarce be chosen.

While our efficient title artist, C. P. Brown, is away on leave, the destinies of his important post are presided over by John Delahunty, whose absence in turn from alley 1 is partially atoned for (temporarily at least) by the return of Colonel Drake from the Proof Room.

The approved method of cinching wager money (upon base ball) is to take the stake-holder right with you to the game. Do not be over-confident even then that you will not return with a long face and a short purse. The contingencies of prize winning are numerous and their fulfillment proverbially uncertain.

On Monday the sad intelligence was received by Theodore Gerber of the death of his mother in St. Louis, the 13th inst., aged 78 years. Mrs. Gerber had been in ill health for some time, and her son had returned from a visit to her bedside only three weeks since, at which time she was thought to be somewhat improved.

We think the President deserves and will receive the thanks of the entire office for granting the privilege of closing at three o'clock on Saturday. Men who use both their brain and muscle are put on the same footing as those who use their brain only. This is the first time in the history of the office that this privilege has been granted.

The solicitude of fellow workmen in each other's welfare is illustrated by the following: One of the boys recently related a tale of woe in regard to his having been persuaded to buy a certain article of wearing apparel for 59 cents which he had since concluded was not worth half the money. His distress was promptly relieved by an alley-mate who took the garment off his hands at an advance over the price paid. Could display of sympathy be more affecting?

That there are poets on the Second Division Night Force, the following lines left on the day man's frame sometime ago will testify:

DEDICATED TO DAY SLUG 30.

Lives of poor men oft remind us,
Honest toil don't stand a chance.
More we work we leave behind us,
Bigger patches on our pants.

On our pants once new and nobby,
Now are patches of different hue,
All because we have to "dis"
More than we used to do.

The day man be up and doing!
Throw in your mite, be it so small,
For when the hot nights of July come,
We shall have no job at all.

While on his way to his division for work, Captain Dunlap has at times carried through this room attractive bouquets of flowers, thereby provoking envious feelings in the breasts of members of this division. Vividly recalling the days in the early '60's, when he was commandant of the Government post at Fort Riley, Kans., and became much enamored with the flower-covered hills and valleys of that mid continental country, the Captain made his appearance at the usual hour, not long since, wearing a huge sunflower as a bouton nier and bearing in his hand a bouquet of unusual beauty, composed largely of dahlias of varied hue. These, he informed us, were of his own growing from bulbs carried through the winter by his own care, but the suspicion is rife that Mrs. Dunlap had as much to do with it as he. Be this as it may, the Captain was immediately surrounded by a crowd of compositors curious to learn the meaning of this brilliant floral display. The Captain resisted their importunities for a time, but finally capitulated and left the bouquet with us as a peace offering. The memento adorned the time-keeper's desk for the rest of the day.

Fifth Division.

Frank Kidd is "stripping" during the absence of Sherman, who is on leave.

The following were transferred to this division last week: Kidd, Ellison, Ellis, and Doty.

The cyclone did not strike us this week, still the boys are very uneasy and predicting all kinds of calamities.

Jakey is looking after the rule cases, vice Frank Lloyd, detailed to the "Y." We are glad to see Jakey improving after his severe illness. Cheer up, old boy, it might have been worse.

George Ellis is located on slug 22, and Ellingsen, the defender of everything pertaining to Chicago, is on slug 12. Both have worked here before and are well known to the old residents.

Those fellows in alley 5 ought to let down "Isi" a little easier, and stop that everlasting teasing. Any bald-headed person is annoyed enough to drive him mad with flies and mosquitoes alighting on his exposed cranium without being subjected to all kinds of fun. "Baldy" is all right, only let him alone. Ahem!

Dietrich and Doty have joined the tin soldiers at Camp Ordway. Doty might dot at some pretty landscape and appropriate the same for keeps, as his camera is very accurate. I also understand that he is preparing a new and comprehensive article on the new printing office. No doubt the same will be very instructive, especially if illustrated.

It is asserted that Slug 5 landed a fish home the other day that weighed six pounds, but who caught it is still a mystery. The question is, how could a bird of the partridge specie land a fish five and a half times heavier than itself? Of course, we have such things as fish stories, and that may account for it. I don't know myself, but Chairman Rowe is responsible for the story.

Alexandria crabs must be very hard on the stomach without something to wash them down. The other evening Slug 44 went home as usual and hied himself to the river, where he caught a half-dozen bouncing crabs, had them cooked, ate them, and then——. No one knows what the result would have been only for the timely arrival of a doctor, who pronounced him out of danger after prescribing for ten cents' worth of light beer. The victim says he will never tackle crabs again without a good supply of the remedy being at hand.

Bindery Notes.

Jack Atkins will show you the place where the largest milk shake can be obtained on Seventh street.

Jack Walsh, better known as "Chop Suey," is through with night work and will now meet all professional pool players at Riley's beech. Men with money preferred.

Fatty Maher, of the roof garden, has gone to housekeeping; all on account of ham sandwiches, which his boarding house served for breakfast, dinner, and supper. Fatty will now have his good eating—cornbread and "taters."

Frank McNally spent part of his leave at Rehobeth where he assisted in doing guard duty on the beach with the life savers. In the evening he appeared at the hops in full dress and made himself very agreeable, obtaining partners for the ladies.

Comrade Cunningham, of the Press Room, told a sad tale to one of his friends in the Bindery. It was how he had a true and trusted friend whom he placed implicit confidence in. His friend gave him a tip. Comrade lost forty plunkers and will take no leave this summer.

His excellency, Capt. White, as you all know, is a widower and has fell deeply in love with a charming widow. He buys fruit, candy, and ice cream and tells her how he loves as he never loved before. The lady does not take the Captain serious, when he is using phrases of fond affection, but gives him a genial smile. Dim lamp Bill Lang is very much interested and is looking to be the Captain's best man.

The following committee were appointed by the union to take up the thirty day leave question: Messrs. Taylor, Kelly, and Barrett. Mr. Kelly, going on his leave, Mr. Feeney was substituted. The committee visited the Public Printer and the Comptroller of the Treasury. They were received very cordially by both gentlemen. The committee held several meetings and filed a brief with the Public Printer covering every point in law favorable to our side of the case. This no doubt will be sent to the Comptroller, asking him to give a decision. We hope he will construe the law as it was originally intended to give us thirty working days with pay.

There has been a number of discussions as to how we obtained the Saturday early closing and who was instrumental in bringing it about. I will give you a correct account of how it happened after President Roosevelt issued the order for the clerical force of the departments to close at 3 p. m. on Saturdays. A member of Congres wrote an article the following week and it was published in one of the Washington papers, stating he could not see why the employes of the Government Printing Office were not entitled to the same privileges as other employes in Government service. The article was brought to the attention of the President. The idea to obtain early closing in the G. P. O. originated with the Cow Boys. Wm. Kelly member of the Arbitration Committee, started a petition and had the men in that division sign it. The matter was brought to the attention of the President of our union, who took it up with the president of the Women's Bindery Union. They called on Secretary Cortelyou and presented our claim. The matter was laid before President Roosevelt by his secretary and was acted upon at once. Secretary of the State was also visited by two members of the craft asking him to favor early closing. Let us give honor to whom honor is due and take your hats off to the Cow Boys.

The water cooler is a source of pleasure the hot days. After 4:30 some of the boys find the beer cooler.

Whitlock has parted with his mustache. He says his baby cried when she saw him. I don't wonder; so did mine.

Carney was on the sick list last week. Although he is no doctor he can tell you all about the effect of watermelon on the interior department.

The Job Room will have four excellent representatives at Cincinnati during the convention—Wilson, Butler, Calhoon, and Whitehead. They are all good rooters and will work hard to secure the convention for Washington next year.

Genial Joe Stelle, 1st lieutenant, Company B, National Guard, is at Leesburg, Va., where the "sojer" boys are holding their annual encampment. Eddie Haywood will also dazzle the eyes of the Virginia maids for the next ten days. Resplendent in blue clothes, brass buttons, and straps, Joe and Eddie will uphold the dignity of the Annex.

The breaking up of the Night Force has given us the following named swifts: Charles Wilhelm, Edwin M. King, Frank A. Schwing, Jeremiah O'Connell, Samuel W. Edmunds, E. E. Wear, Charles P. Voekler, M. C. Howe, George W. Robinson, Harvey F. Balmer, Morris J. Hess, F. W. Kern, John H. Hogan, and J. B. Gilliland; also Fred J. Hudson, laborer.

My friend Cogwell has again been called upon to stand at the edge of the Silent River while a loved one was borne to the other shore—this time the truest and best of all friends, his mother. Only a short time ago, a daughter, who had grown to womanhood, crossed that same mystic stream, and in this double loss the tenderest sympathy of all is extended to him.

Handy Andy's Aphorisms.

Guiles is having a villa erected near Papa Christy's home in the Sherwood subdivision of Brookland.

Armstrong has discovered a feeder in the main press room who fed press for him twenty-five years ago in Cincinnati. Guess who it is.

Watson is back to work on the day force. Joe had a narrow escape from a most serious illness, commonly known as kickalipsis, brought about by a loss of a gripper wrench.

Pat O'Brien, the apron man, has asked the Comptroller of the Treasury for a decision in regards to the question as to whether he can collect his apron money while a man is on leave.

Some appreciative compositors chipped in and bought a beautiful bunch of daffy-down dillies, opedildocks, and pampas grass, which was sent to Miss Kate Smoot as a token of admiration for the noble work she did in securing the Saturday early closing. As a matter of fact Miss Smoot didn't do a thing. She couldn't get an audience with the President, or didn't at any rate, but like the Spanish War Veteran who got as far as Chickamauga Park, she was willing to go to the front and for this I'm heartily glad some one remembered her, but to give the devil his dues, it was Feeney who did the work and we should not forget him for it. By the same token, I didn't hear any bouquets falling near the Cashier's door and yet he wanted to pay us off on the third of July. It was simply because he didn't have the time.

Cunningham and Dowell, with several friends, spent Independence Day at Colonial Beach, as the guests of Joe Dierken. George and "Cunny" occupied the same room, and during the night the whole household was awakened by unearthly sepulcral noises, resembling the middle register of Buckskin Bill's caliope. "Cunny" insists that the noises emanated from Dowell's throat while George proclaims "Cunny" responsible for the tumult. Later on "Cunny" refused to go into the water because—well—because the bathing suit provided for him had no union label on it. The other boys ascribe various and unkind reasons for his refusal to bathe, but John's excuse is about as good as any. At another portion of the beach Walter Whittaker and "Sojer" Maloney were induced to "wash and be clean" although Walter's proverbial dislike for water manifested itself in this instance and he positively refused to go beyond knee depth. And to make matters worse, he wore a female garb—short skirt topped off with a bathing Panama tied about his head with a blue ribbon—bare limbs and his own face, made one think of Coney Island on a Jewish holiday.

HANDY ANDY.

Look for the Drug Clerks' Card.

EDITORS THE TRADES UNIONIST:

With this week we begin to place union cards in the windows of the drug stores wherein are employed union registered drug clerks and whose employers are favorable to trades unionism. The only conditions that go with the cards are that while the cards are on exhibition, only union clerks in good standing with Local, No. 240, Registered Drug Clerks' Association, will be employed. There is no tax placed on the employers, no scale of wages, no specified hours and no penalty. So there can be no excuse for any employer not accepting the card, if he has a union man employed. From now on we must ask that every union man in the District of Columbia will take notice and insist that the card be displayed in the drug store or stores that he may have dealings with. We have the tail end of a big fight with long odds against us and it will be through thorough co-operation only, that we shall see any success. We see that several drug stores are mentioned in the columns of your paper among "Representative Business Houses." These stores must now display our card to come up to the statements at the head of the column. Kindly thanking you for all the assistance that you can give to us on these lines, we remain,

Very truly yours,
FRED. T. HAFELFINGER,
Recording Secretary Registered Drug Clerks' Association, Local No. 240.

RETAIL CLERKS' RESOLUTIONS

Vice-President Silver Presides—Secretary to Request Decision on Saturday Half Holiday from Assistant Attorney-General—S. D. Houck, M. Eisemann & Bro., and Charles Graef Unfair—Other Matters.

The Central Labor Union's regular weekly meeting, Monday night, was called to order by Vice-President Silver, in the absence of President Hamerstrom.

Credentials were received from Journeymen Horseshoers' Union, No. 17, certifying Messrs. J. C. Lynch, J. P. Martin, William Hesson, D. McKeown, and P. Curtin; from Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers, No. 102, certifying Messrs. Joseph A. Daly, W. Ryan, W. G. House, William Hunt, and William H. Whiting; from Paperhangers' Union, No. 420, certifying Messrs. E. Miller, H. J. Wells, J. A. Jones, B. Moore, and J. F. Kelly; from Stone Laborers' Union, No. 9013, certifying Messrs. Thomas J. Rose, Edward Atkins, Thomas Cooke, John Taylor, and James Tate; from United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, No. 884, certifying Messrs. Charles Cratchley, A. Green, Mr. Zirkle, and Dean Potterfield; from Theatrical Stage Employes' Union, No. 22, certifying T. J. McCullagh to fill unexpired term of F. D Sturgis.

Retail Clerks' Protective Association, No. 262, submitted the following and requested it be brought before this body:

At the last meeting of Retail Clerks' Union, No. 611, Cincinnati, O., held at Douglas Castle Hall, Thursday night, June 5, 1902, the following resolutions were adopted and ordered sent to local unions:

"WHEREAS, One George C. Kuechler, formerly a member of the Retail Clerks' International Protective Association, Local No. 180, of Cincinnati, Ohio, has been and is now publishing and circulating a monthly paper or pamphlet known as The Clerks, and has represented said paper or pamphlet to be the official publication of the Retail Clerks' Protective Association of the Ohio Valley, which was and is false, as said paper has never been indorsed by a number of locals in the Ohio Valley or the International Association; and,

"WHEREAS, All the above representations made by the said George C. Kuechler, are false and untrue, be it and it is hereby

"Resolved, That this local denounce said George C. Kuechler and his said paper or pamphlet; and be it further

"Resolved, That this Secretary report same to all labor organizations in this vicinity."

The above communication was ordered placed on file.

The request of Journeymen Barbers' Union, No. 239, that one Charles Graef, conducting a barber business at 37 C street northwest, be put upon the unfair list for non-compliance with the closing hour rules of the union, was granted.

The request of Steam Engineers, No. 99, that this body straighten out the engineer matter at the Portland Flats along with the Portner Brewery Company, was referred to the Grievance Committee.

The complaint of the Soda, Mineral Water, and Bottled Beer Drivers' Union stating their inability to secure the drivers of the Eller Bottling Works, and requesting that the said bottling works be placed upon the unfair list, was referred to Grievance Committee.

The Grievance Committee reported that they had succeeded in securing the signatures of Finley & Sons, bottlers, and that Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, requested that the National Engraving Company be taken from the unfair list, and they therefore requested the removal of above firms from the unfair list. Request granted.

Upon recommendation of Grievance Committee, M. Eisemann & Bro., dealers in dry goods at 1924-26 Pennsylvania avenue and 806 Seventh street northwest, and S. D. Houck, dealer in harness at 301 Tenth street northwest, were placed upon the unfair list.

A resolution that volunteer delegates serve on Labor Day Committee was lost, and an amendment that delegates who do not attend the next meeting of said committee be dropped and vacancies filled by the chair prevailed.

The secretary was requested to communicate with the Assistant Attorney-General and secure, if possible, a decision on the Saturday half holiday matter.

This body indorsed the wage schedule of Stage Employes' Union, No. 22, which makes the scale for master machinists $20 per week; assistant master machinists, master of properties, and electricians, $15 per week.

Saturday Early-Closing.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 21, 1902.

EDITORS THE TRADES UNIONIST:

The unjust, untruthful, and malicious statement of John B. Dickman published in last week's TRADES UNIONIST will serve no good purpose, and I believe it was undoubtedly written to create discord and ill feeling, and endeavor to sever the cordial relations now existing between the printers and bookbinders' unions.

The visit of Miss Smoot and myself to the White House, was at the request of the members of our respective unions, the petition drawn up stating the reasons why we should receive the shorter day on Saturday was signed by Miss Smoot and myself; we had a very pleasant interview with Secretary Cortelyou, and received his promise and assurance that our petition would be presented to the President; we also received a promise from a prominent and well-known newspaper man located at the White House that he would intercede in our behalf and endeavor to have the President take up the matter early for consideration. The date of our call on the President was July 1, the matter was considered by the President on July 2, the order for closing the office was issued late on July 3, and went into effect on July 5.

The members of our unions and the employees of the bindery and folding room believed that our visit to the White House accomplished the grand result. We did not seek any praise, resolutions, or donation of flowers for simply doing our duty. The flowers I received were presented by my friends in the bindery, of which I am pleased to say that I have a large number. I have not received any resolutions of thanks or donation of flowers from the Typographical Union, or from any of its chapels or members, and I do not desire any.

I am not responsible for the article written by "Cowboy" or any other correspondent of THE TRADES UNIONIST. I have not been compelled to publicly state that I have nothing to do with bringing about the grand result and I do not know from what source such compulsion would come from. I am not and never have been a self-seeker, but I do claim to be a seeker after every privilege that will benefit the members of my union and of which they are entitled to receive. I have not assailed the printer delegates to the Central Labor Union, and Mr. Dickman knew he was uttering a falsehood when he so wrote. I have never peddled the proceedings of the Central body to an indiscriminate public. My standing in the Central body is well-known to Mr. Dickman, as I have received honors from that organization; honors that he sought and failed to receive.

As to the visit of ex President Lawson to a member of the Cabinet, I know nothing about it. Miss Smoot and I called on the President of the United States, whom we knew had authority to issue such an order. I regret that the closing of the office at 3 o'clock on Saturday has caused some members of Columbia Union to criticise their President. I am not responsible for such criticism, but believe that both Mr. Johnson and Mr. Lawson gentlemen, whom I esteem very highly, are pleased with the result, and any action they may have taken towards the accomplishment of the shorter day is deserving of praise and not censure. I regret very much that the columns of THE TRADES UNIONIST have been used for the purpose of airing the personal grievance of John Dickman and stirring up a controversy that may result to the disadvantage of our respective unions. It is an old and established fact that the successful efforts of any person to accomplish some benefit for the many generally results in petty jealously, and there is always some disgruntled, envious individual ever ready to throw a stone.

The closing of the Government Printing Office at 3 o'clock on Saturday has been accomplished, and for what Miss Smoot and I did in the matter we desire no praise, if there is any glory in achieving the result it belongs to our unions, and as every person employed in the office on day work receives the benefit of the early closing, to quote the famous words of a great Naval commander, "There is glory enough for us all."

Very respectfully,
J. L. FEENEY.

MANILA, P. I.,
June 13, 1902.

EDITORS THE TRADES UNIONIST:

Much has been written on the beauty of the tropical foliage. To my mind it is not comparable to that of the temperate zone. The change is pleasing in that it is novel, but it is not abiding. The greenness is ever present and is monotonous in its sameness; no transition period, no Spring or Fall! Christmas and Fourth of July are all the same here. Where on earth a prettier picture than Washington in Spring? We can not realize that it is now June. Aside from the matter of precipitation the climate is remarkably even, especially in the middle of the day. During December and January we have cooler evenings, which are indeed delightful. This evenness is enervating, and recuperation from any sickness is slow.

In crossing the ocean one hears of nothing so frequently as the "dhobie" itch. Every new comer is threatened with its immediate visitation—none can escape. Its origin and cause are unknown, but it is a real affliction, and the remedy is as painful as the disease. The itch is overpowering, and it spreads rapidly. Salicylic acid on the raw parts is hell fuel when applied, and it takes many applications to be effective, and even then it is not a cure. Notwithstanding the direful prophesies, I only know of two of our boys being victims, only one appreciably.

The most prevalent of afflictions among our force has been the dengue fever, a malignant form of malaria. Many of the men, and their wives, have been sufferers. The Government has established a civil hospital, where prescriptions are compounded and medical attendance is given, free of charge. A charge is made for room and board, ranging from $1 to $2.50 gold a day. So far Powers, Barnes, Boothby, Hoggsette, Mitchell, Rogers, and Roberts have been compelled to pay this tribute, while but few of us have escaped the sick list for a day or two at a time. Sick leave is a necessity here. (Since the above was written Public Printer Leech has become a hospital patient, suffering with the dengue.)

Living is costly in Manila, and one can not live on the some plane as in Washington. For months we have not been permitted to buy vegetables on account of the cholera. The bulk of our eating has been canned goods. Boarding is costly and good boarding houses are scarce. Single men live more economically and better in messes. Gessler, Kendall, Hoggsette, and myself had a large room together, four beds, boarding with a North Carolina colored woman, in the Walled City, for which we paid $40 gold a month each. Then we had a muchacho (boy) who, in addition to his other duties, cared for our room and clothing, and we paid him 15 pesos a month. (Peso is a Mexican dollar, otherwise known as the "dhobie" dollar. The charge for a family of three (one child) at such a boarding house or at the ordinary hotels, is $100. Prior to the denial of the Army commissary privileges boarding was cheap, but now we are absolutely at the mercy of the local merchants, whose eternal reason is "tariff," and which we know to be a pretext.

As I know there are many in Washington who have a desire to come to Manila, the prices of a few staple articles may be interesting. These are prices actually paid by us in the retail stores. Since then we have bought canned goods in large quantities from a Chino merchant at more reasonable prices. Prices are in local currency, and for practical computation can be divided by two for reduction to American currency:

Porterhouse steak, 60-65; roast, 50-55; mutton, 45-55; ham, 60; butter, 70-$1; potatoes, 10 (now up to 20) per lb.; salt, 50 quart bottle; bread, 20 (about size of your Vienna); flour 7 per lb.; vinegar, 30 quart; pickles, 70 (your 15-cent size); olives, 65 (20-cent size); canned corn, 45; tomatoes, 45; peas, 30; pork and beans, 50; salmon, 50; Quaker oats, 50; Germea, 60; rice, 5; onions, 15 lb.; ice, 6 (civilian employes get ice for half price, 3); soft Japan coal, $18 per ton, and $4 more for delivery. Toilet articles are correspondingly high. Listerine costs $3 per pint. Proprietary medicines are 50 to 100 per cent over the labeled price.

Rents have increased at an alarming rate, and suitable houses for Americans are limited. The demand increases with the incoming of every transport. There is no apparent effort made to meet the demand—building material being very scarce and dear. Prevailing rents range from $80 to $200. Very few single families can consider taking a whole house. Our boys have made combinations, Kendall and Rogers; Powers and Rouzee; Tracy, Miller, and Allen; Gessler and myself are the partnerships so far formed. Ferl, Allison, and Brown are messing and so are Hoggsette and Boothby; Wagner took roomers; the balance are boarding. There are no prospects of any decrease in rentals, rather the reverse. The mess of which Hoggseste and Boothby are a part was notified of an increase of 60 pesos a month commencing in June!

There are a few things here which are more reasonable than in the States. Cigars and cigarettes are 100 per cent cheaper. Suitable suits of drilling, duck, linen, pique or khaki can be bought from 7 to 12 pesos. Of course one must possess six to twelve suits to be presentable—a white suit lasts only two or three days. Laundry is cheap, but considerably more is required. A single man can get his laundry done by the month for 5 or 6 pesos, or from 6 to 8 pesos per hundred pieces; family washing in a numerical ratio. This is a cheapness more apparent than real. The smoker doubles his smokes; more clothes are needed, and the laundry is certainly more destructive. A steam laundry has been instituted with prices about 30 to 50 per cent higher than Washington.

Soft drinks and beer are 20 cents; ice cream, at the American stores, 35 cents; whiskey straight, 30 cents; Scotch and soda (the favorite drink), 40 cents; candy, $2 27 a pound.

Local newspapers are 10 cents a copy; weeklies, 20; American Sunday editions, 30; the 10-cent magazines are 30 and 35 cents.

There are some good barber shops here, mostly owned by Spaniards. A hair cut costs the same as it does in the States—50 cents Mex. The price of a shave used to be 30 until the new currency ratio was fixed, when it advanced to 40 and then to 50 cents. There are also itinerant barbers who shave three times a week for 3 and 4 pesos a month.

Of amusements there are few. During the cool season we had a Russian one-ring circus exhibiting for about two months. The star features were the flying Jordans and Seabury, the high diver. Outside of them and the splendid Russian horses, it was very commonplace. We had a visit from the Cogill-Barnes vaudeville company for several weeks, and their performances were very creditable.

Among the "prints" the enjoyable features have been the house warmings. First and Powers' and Rouzee's, then at Gessler's, and the last at Allen's. They have been evenings of social conviviality and good fellowship. The next is scheduled at Kendall's, which will be in a few days, and is to properly celebrate the recent nuptials and to give the boys a chance to express their best wishes for a happy and prosperous life.

Anderson, Powers, and Roberts have established a reputation as bowlers, and a challenge issued on their behalf against any team was not accepted; Tracy acting as manager. The bowling alley is located at the Country Club, about half a mile south of Malate.

COLUMBIA UNION'S MEETING

President Johnson Makes a Lengthy and Interesting Report.

T. M. RING ON LAW COMMITTEE

President Roosevelt Thanked—Resolutions to Ex-President Lawson—Relief Committee Voted $100—To Deposit $5,000 in Bank—Several Members Obligated—Large Attendance—Other Matters.

The stated monthly meeting of Columbia Union, No. 101, was called to order at Typographical Temple, Sunday afternoon, by President Johnson.

The Nomination Committee reported favorably upon the applications of Messrs. Joseph J. Braugh, George J. Blundell, and Orlando Gibson. The application of W. S. Griffith was laid over.

The amendment by Mr. Lawson to Gutelius' motion that the name of Mr. D. W. Beach be transferred from active to passive roll was agreed to and matter referred to Nomination Committee.

A committee from Retail Clerks' Union, No. 262, were accorded the floor and presented their case against one Joseph Auerbach. This matter was later attended to by a motion being presented that any member of Columbia Union patronizing said Auerbach, while on the unfair list, be fined $5, which was amended and a committee consisting of the officers of the union were instructed to call upon said person and endeavor to adjust matters before publishing him to the membership. The amendment prevailed.

The report of the Business Committee relative to compilation of scale of prices, or so much thereof as applied to down book and job offices was adopted.

Many communications were read and disposed of.

Upon report of depleted condition of the treasury of Relief Committee an appropriation of $100 was made.

Mr. Lawson reported that the Publishers' Association had signed the newspaper machine scale and that the same had been ratified by the several newspaper chapels.

The motion of Mr. Maher that the officers be empowered to have the new scale printed was amended by Mr. Hall authorizing the laws committee to have all amendments for past year printed. Amendment agreed to.

The following resolution, offered by Mr. Rodier, was adopted:

Resolved, That the secretary of the Union be directed to notify the chairman of the various newspaper chapels that the 48-hour law has been in force since its passage, and to report to the officers of the Union any violation thereof.

The matter of securing substitutes in the Government Printing Office was reported as progressing.

Mr. Whitehead reported progress in matter of convention of the I. T. U. in this city next year.

President Johnson made the following report:

I have to report the deaths of Robert F. Simril, J. P. Patten, and E. W. Hopkins.

There are two cases of sickness and destitution that are both deserving and in need of relief, and as all the members of the Relief Committee are at present out of the city, I would recommend that the Union take action in the matter.

Pursuant to instructions, Secretary Garrett and myself called upon the Public Printer and asked if a room could be set aside in the new building to be used in emergencies for hospital purposes. He expressed himself as pleased with the idea and promised to give the matter his attention.

Pursuant to instuctions, I called upon Mr. J. W. Wood for the purpose of procuring the return of labels which were used by him while he was conducting an office. Mr. Wood informed me that the labels had been returned to the secretary of the Allied Printing Trades Council, Mr. Campbell.

Will report that on Wednesday, July 2, I called upon Secretary Garrett and suggested that we call upon President Roosevelt and endeavor to secure the Government Printing Office employes the benefit of the 3 o'clock closing order which had been extended to the other departments. It was then afternoon and we could not get an audience with him, so we agreed to endeavor to see him next morning. That same afternoon ex-President Lawson informed us that he had interviewed Secretary Hay on the same subject, who assured him that he (Secretary Hay) would bring the matter to the attention of the President and get an extension of the order. He did so and the 3 o'clock closing order was extended to the Government Printing Office employes.

Rumors have been quite freely circulated that I refused to go with Miss Smoot and Mr. Feeney to the President. Personally, I care very little for those rumors; but as it is apparent that they are circulated with a malicious intent, seemingly for the purpose of casting discredit on Columbia Union and its officers, I will therefore state that I was never spoken to on the subject by either of them.

Will state further that I called upon the Public Printer last Tuesday and asked that the employes of the Night Bill Force and its branches be given the hour and a half on Saturdays. He promised that he would give the matter consideration, and on Thursday informed me that he would grant the time asked for, and this morning the Night Bill Force had the pleasure of going home at 2 o'clock.

At the trustees' meeting, Thursday night, it was deemed advisable to raise the bond of the treasurer from $1,000 to $10,000 unless the Union should decide to set aside the sum of $5,000 for deposit to draw interest.

The resignation of W. E. Shields caused a vacancy on the Laws Committee, which was filled by the appointment of T. M. Ring.

Mr. Hall moved that the officers of the Union be empowered to deposit $5,000 in a bank at interest, which was agreed to.

Mr. Roberts, of committee to draft resolutions for ex-President Lawson, presented the following which were adopted:

WHEREAS, During the two years' incumbency of the office of President of Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, E. A. M. Lawson has, by his uniform courtesy, conservatism, and devotion to duty, won the confidence and esteem of our entire membership, and the respect of the public in general; and

WHEREAS, The presidential year just closed has witnessed the liquidation of all indebtedness on the Typographical Temple, which desirable state of affairs was attained in part by the wise and business-like methods pursued by the retiring president; and

WHEREAS, A shorter work-day and a higher wage scale has been secured, without discord or friction, to a large portion of our membership employed on our newspapers, and privileges not heretofore enjoyed by Government employes have been obtained through his efforts; therefore, be it

Resolved, By the members of Columbia Union, that recognizing his untiring efforts to advance the cause of unionism in general and the best interests of all our members in particular, extend to him their most hearty and sincere thanks, and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be inscribed upon the records of the Union, and that the same be published in our trade journals.

F. C. ROBERTS,
W. N. BROCKWELL,
C. H. ENNIS,
GEORGE F. HALSEY,
C. W. HERZINGER,
Committee.

It was agreed that Mr. Roberts be allowed to withdraw amendment to Article VIII, section 1, of the By-Laws, previously introduced by him. His amendment to obligation, "and that I will in purchasing, wherever practicable, give all articles bearing the union label the preference," was lost.

Mr. Ellis offered the following which was adopted:

WHEREAS, His Excellency, Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, has issued an executive order closing the Government Printing Office, the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and the Navy Yard at 3 o'clock on Saturdays during the heated term, thereby placing the per diem employes upon an equal footing with the clerical force of the Departments; and

WHEREAS, The Honorable John W. Hay, Secretary of State, presented the request to the President and recommended favorable action thereon; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the thanks of Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, are hereby extended to Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, and to Hon. John W. Hay, Secretary of State, for their kindly consideration of the employes of the Government Printing Office, the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and the Washington Navy Yard.

Mr. Shimp offered the following, which was amended by Mr. Lawson directing the secretary to notify the chairman of the Law Reporter Company that the scale of prices must be enforced, which was agreed to:

Resolved, That where an office claims the compositors employed can not set advertisements to the satisfaction of the foreman or employer, the office may set the advertisements upon paying a stated percentage of the gross amount of such advertisements to the chapel as a bonus; such percentage to be agreed upon by the chapel and the office. But in no case shall the office set the advertisements on time when the job in which they are to be printed is set on the piece system. In the event of no agreement between the office and the chapel as to what per cent shall be paid as a bonus, the matter shall be referred to the Business Committee whose decision shall be binding until reversed by the Union.

After some discussion relative to the Washington Base Ball Club printing not bearing the label and the fine of $5 imposed on members for purchasing tickets not bearing the label, the matter was disposed of by Mr. Ring offering a substitute for the whole, which carried, that the secretary be directed to notify the management of the Washington Base Ball Club that in view of the fact that the printing of these tickets was done before the adoption of this resolution that Columbia Typographical Union had no grievance against said management, but request that hereafter they have the union label on all their printing.

Mr. Gutelius was then obligated as trustee.

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL WASHINGTON. 2

THURSDAY, JULY 24, 1902.

Remember This.

Members of Columbia Typographical Union will do well to read the following new amendments to their Constitution and By-Laws, which are now law, and have direct bearing on "helping those who help us," and thereby avoid the discomfiture liable to arise from an enforcement of the same :

Resolved, That in order to create a demand for union cigars bearing the recognized label of the International Cigarmakers' Union there shall be levied and collected a fine of $5 from any member of Columbia Typographical Union who purchases cigars contained in boxes which do not bear the label of the International Cigarmakers' Union.—October 21, 1901.

Resolved, That a fine of not less than $1 nor more than $5 be imposed upon any member of this Union offering for sale excursion, entertainment or any kind of tickets without the Union label printed thereon.

By complying with the above you will greatly assist in creating a demand for union goods and the product of union labor. Every time you smoke a non-union cigar you are employing a scab workman and depriving a card holder the protection which our Union advocates.

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

A friend hands me the following, which will interest all Westerners :

"Some nine or ten years ago there died at Peoria, Ill., one Nicodemus Johnson, commonly called in his roaming days 'The Terror of the Lakes,' who was so well known in craft circles eighteen or twenty years ago as to demand a passing notice. I first met him in Sedalia, Mo. He came in about dusk one evening—tall, gaunt, haggard, ragged, and dirty, having a long, fierce, shaggy, unkempt beard. He panhandled a lunch, ate it voraciously, then went out and put up his card as security for a pint of whiskey, got drunk, and was run in, all in about an hour.

"About that time he struck Quincy, Ill., where Jack O'Brien, the biggest hearted man who ever came my way, was presiding genius on the Morning Herald. Now, there was a vacant room over the office (the composing room being on the ground floor), where Jack permitted new arrivals to 'carry the banner' until he could provide them with boarding houses, and Nick was assigned to this room. It happened that several window panes were broken, and the room was exposed largely to the elements. During the night it rained in and wet the floor, and then it turned bitter cold and froze the rain to ice. The other occupants awoke and went out, but Nick slept on and froze hard and fast to the floor. At daylight he awoke, and had to kick, scream, and pound for two hours to attract attention. Finally, the counting room people heard him. They had to heat water and pour around him until his clothes thawed and released him.

"One time he was in Kansas City and bought a ticket to Leavenworth, which got lost in the ragged lining of his clothes. About half way over the conductor stopped the train and put him off, as he could not find his ticket. Sleeping on a pile of ties, he found his ticket next morning and flagged a freight train. He had to run for his life to escape the irate crew, and had to walk back to Kansas City in order to use his ticket.

"One night in Omaha he was on a tear with his roommate when the latter suddenly left him, went to the room, and committed suicide. Some hours later Nick came in gloriously drunk and went to bed, and actually slept all night with a dead man. From then till his death Nick never tasted liquor. He located at Peoria and became a leader in church, temperance, and philanthropic work. His high educational attainments and great personal attractions made him a host of friends. He became president of the Y. M. C. A., was a delegate to the I. T. U. convention—at Atlanta, I think—and died one of the most honored and beloved men in the community."

A story Billy Brockwell told me illustrates how local option, the little sister of prohibition, works in one of the Southern States. Being on a visit to the locality referred to, and politely declining a drink of whisky offered him from the private bottle of a native, he remarked that he never drank anything but a little beer.

"Beer!" said the native, "well, you just go to that little house over there and you can get it."

The modus operandi was explained to him. On entering the house say :

"John Plank, I want some beer."

"Beer? I don't sell beer," says Mr. Plank, "I act as agent for the man who sells it and I can order you a case."

(This seems to be where the celebrated original package decision got in its work.)

"When do you want it?" continues Mr. Plank. "Will Thursday do?"

"No, I want it now," says the customer.

"Oh, I have got to have time to order it and get it here," says Mr. Plank. "But I can lend you a bottle if you want it. I've got a few bottles in the back room for my own use."

You walk back and see about a hundred bottle necks sticking up out of tubs of ice. He opens a bottle and you throw the beer into you, incidentally laying down a 10-cent piece by the empty bottle, which Mr. Plank doesn't see, but later benevolently assimilates. Then another customer walks in and says :

"John, I wish you'd lend me another bottle of beer till my case comes."

"All right, Jim," says Plank, and another thirst is temporarily discomfited.

"I don't sell beer," Plank volunteers. "I only act as agent in forwarding orders. But a fellow has got to be neighborly, and I don't mind lending a man a bottle till his case comes."

"How does local option work?" asked Brocky of the native who had made him wise to the play.

"Oh, it works first rate," was the reply, "only people drink a good deal more'n they used to, especially beer. Lots of people drink beer now who never drank anything before. It is so sociable-like to come in and borrow a bottle till your case comes."

After close observation, deep thought, and profound study of the subject in all its phases, bearings, and ramifications, I have come to the mature judgment that down deep in the heart of every man there is a strong, yearning desire to wear a red necktie. Many yield to it and wear them bravely—brazenly, if you will—as who should say, "Yes, I wear a red necktie ; I like it ; so do you ; you would wear one if you were not such a coward." Others wear them occasionally, but in a craven, ashamed manner—"It's awful, ain't it? My wife bought it and I must wear it once in a while to please her." Still others get as close to red as they can—splotches and dots on a base of white or some subdued color—and then pretend to be hurt or offended if reference is made to it—"No, indeed, that's not a red necktie—nowhere near it—just a bit of bright color as a relief to the eye." Then there is the class who never wear red ; too dignified and ladylike for anything of that sort ; but there is always a wistful, deprived look about them—a sort of "life don't hold no charms for me" manner ; and the only animation they ever exhibit is in railing at those who have the courage to do what they themselves would like to do. This condition of affairs is what I find after investigating the subject in a cold, practical, scientific, unprejudiced way. While there is some progress being made toward greater freedom of action, greater assertion of personal rights, more moral courage being exhibited, yet there are many to whom life is a dreary grind and this world a habitation of woe who would find all sunshine and brightness, all joy and delight, if they but dared to put about their necks the strip of scarlet silk for which their souls pine and the absence of which makes gloom of joy and doldrums of gladness.

Herbert W. Cooke, the Boston correspondent of the Typograpoical Journal, refers to me in a kindly manner, but feels impelled by "circumstances over which he has no control" to decline my invitation to go to Cincinnati via Washington and sample our city as to its eligibility for convention purposes. He says that as between Washington and Newark he favors Newark for the convention in 1903, "not only for its natural advantages, being so easy of access to so many of our large Eastern cities, but from the fact that Newark has never had the honor of entertaining the International," but admits that he could be "happy with either were t'other dear charmer away," and promises to make a big effort to attend, whichever wins. Without disparaging Newark, I can't imagine her "natural advantages" except that she is within nine miles of New York and is the headquarters of the Smith Manufacturing Company. As our last Year Book shows that we have 18 Smiths and one Smithson, it would seem that we have some "natural advantages" of our own. But we are not 9 miles from anything in particular—we are right there! And we have more facilities in the way of sight seeing to make a convention happy than all of New Jersey compressed into a township. True, Newark has never had an I. T. U. convention ; neither has Hartford, New Haven, Providence, Worcester, Springfield, Portland, nor any New England city but Boston ; nor has Hoboken, Oconomowoc, Mauch Chunk, Kankakee, Oshkosh, Squedunk, Skaneateles, Kalamazoo, or Horseheads. In fact, but about 25 cities have been so honored, though some of them have been chosen twice and Cincinnati three times. Herbert, I fully expect the pleasure of showing you the beauties of Washington in 1903, and in order to quiet any misgivings you may have as to the correctness of the I. T. U.'s choice you might stop at Newark coming or going and make comparisons.

* * * *

A letter from Hamilton Platt, foreman of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, states that while the delegate from Seattle, Mr. Fricks, is unwilling to pledge himself to "Washington in 1903" he will undoubtedly be found voting right when the time comes. Mr. Platt, who is a brother of James H. Platt, of the Job Division, delegate to Denver (1899) convention of the I. T. U., will be remembered as a compositor in the G. P. O. from about 1875 to 1882, going to the State of Washington about twenty years ago as an officer in the custom service. Returning to the printing business, after working in various Coast cities, he settled at Seattle and has been in his present position several years. It will be a great disappointment to his friends to hear that he is compelled to give up his contemplated visit to this city this year. His brother, William Platt, an old G. P. O. printer, for many years a Pension Office clerk, is living in Seattle, an invalid from valvular diseases of the heart. Mr. Platt states that Billy Watson and Ben Ferguson, who left this city a few weeks ago, had arrived there from Chicago. It is reported here that their ultimate destination is the Klondike. "Ham" thinks we will have no trouble in getting the convention, congratulates me on my election, thinks the I. T. U. is to be congratulated a good deal more (think of that, will you?), and sends regards to all his old friends, particularizing "Hick," H. V. Bisbee, and George Ramsey.

F. N. Whitehead, of the Job Division, chairman of the Convention Committee, is going to Chicago next week, to work for "Washington in 1903." After rounding up the Chicago delegates and all that arrive in that city on their way to Cincinnati he will go with the party to Indianapolis, to attend the semi-centennial festivities there on the Saturday night preceding the convention. There he will be joined by Tom Bynum and Dud Fleming, and the three will surround and capture everything stopping there to be watered and fed and drive them safely to Cincinnati. "Whitey" makes a very capable chairman, and though well-known to but a few of us when he began his duties, he has not turned out to be one of the Whitehead sepulchres—"Which indeed appear beautiful outward, but are within full of dead men's bones"—but a careful, business-like man. (This is worth about 40 cents in soft drinks to me.)

About thirty years ago, while I was in Savannah, Ga., a couple of young tourists came along—Mike Walton, of Scranton, Pa., and —— O'Connor, from somewhere up in New York State. They stayed there some weeks and in that time I found them both bright, companionable fellows. Though occasionally hearing of Walton from a traveling man, I have never seen him nor has a word passed between us in all the thirty years, and O'Connor I entirely lost sight of. I wrote to Mike about a month ago in the interest of "Washington in 1903" and a few days ago received a very cordial letter from him, promising his fullest assistance, stating that both the Scranton delegates are pledged to us, and that they would render us any aid in their power. He says that he has been in Scrantou since 1878, and I judge from his letter that he intends settling there permanently. He also states that there is a younger Mike Walton, a member of Scranton union, for whose existence I suspect my friend is responsible.

* * * *

A second letter from Charles H. Knisely, of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, gives further encouragement as to the action of the St. Louis delegates in our behalf at Cincinnati, and incloses a note he had received from President Joseph A. Jackson, as follows :

FRIEND KNISELY: You can write your friend that no doubt Washington will be the choice of the St. Louis delegation. The matter was left to the judgment of the delegates at last Sunday's meeting. The delegates are all friends of mine and I favor Washington. I have a large number of friends there and hope to renew acquaintance and make other friends there in 1903.

Both Mr. Jackson and Mr. Knisely have many "friends of other days" here who will not need to be told what potent factors they will be in our interest. Mr. Jackson will probably go to Cincinnati, and his promise to be here in 1903 will be a gratification to all. We want and are going to have the greatest convention in 1903 in the history of the I. T. U.

Last Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. John A. Huston celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of their marriage, at their residence, 15 L street northeast, a large number of friends gathering in honor of the occasion. At 11 o'clock his fellow-employes of the Night Proof Room called in a body to pay their respects. There were refreshments and music and in every way it was an enjoyable affair. Many beautiful articles of china and glass were presented to the happy couple by Mr. Huston's associates in the Job and Proof Divisions and friends of the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Huston desire me to express their thanks to their genereous friends, and a box of cigars that Johnny sent to the Night Proof Room on Monday night seemed to indicate their feelings.

Seeing the union label at the end of one of Attorneys G. A. & W. B. King's briefs suggests the idea that the union label would be a much handsomer "all mark" on Government documents than the little circlet used at present.

Eugene Andrew has been down to North Carolina, visiting relatives in the neighborhood of Greensboro and Salisbury, where he was born, but from where his family removed when he was a year and a half old. He complains that the scenes were not at all familiar to him. While there he met George P. Pell, well remembered here, who is practicing law at Jefferson, Ashe county. Judge Pell says he has all he can do, and he is looking well and prospering according to 'Gene.

I received a letter from William S. Waudby a day or two ago. He is a special agent of the Labor Bureau, stationed at Rochester, N. Y., from where the letter was written. He says he is for "Washington in 1903" and that he will be in Cincinnati during the convention. He says: "It has been a long time since Washington had the honor, and now that the I. T. U. is in the lead among the unions, both in point of number and in management, it is but proper that the capital of the Nation should see the products of this great organization, and the membership have a chance to see the greatest print shop in the world. * * * I notice in your letter in the Typographical Journal that you first became acquainted with Sam Leffingwell in Columbus, Ohio, in 1871. That was my old union (No. 5), and I first met Sam in 1873 at the same place. Rare old Sam! Well do I remember his Shakespearean recitations."

Johnny Ottinger made a flying trip to Chicago, returning yesterday, the object of his journey being to take his invalid wife to her old home there, in the hope of benefit from change of scene. Mrs. Ottinger has been very ill for many months.

Specification Notes.

The roster of this room at this date numbers 303, exclusive of foreman and assistant.

John P. Davis and C. C. Smith have received appointments as laborers to this division.

Those absent on account of sickness are George M. Ramsey, Eleanor L. Bryant, and W. R. Burgess.

Several of the lady members of this force evince interest in base ball matters and are enthusiastic spectators of the game.

Gompers is in possession of a stub-book which requires only his autograph to make the pass binding to baseball games whenever he finds himself in the mood. Blessed is the pass.

J. Walter Naylor has a communication from the Civil Service Commission recognizing his worth as a printer and an offer of a job in the Philippines, but he prefers to stay right here in Washington.

The following is the list of those who enter upon leave to-day : W. T. Menard, A. J. Arnold, Scott K. Young, Mollie E. Ragan, George Gerberich, B. W. Butler, George E. Pittman, Ivins Davis, and T. B. Hoagland.

The following named, members of the District National Guards, and members of this force, are doing initiatory duty at Leesburg : E. J. Lindberg, Bert S. Elliott, M. N. Kautenberg. E. D. Norris, and A. P. E. Doyle.

The symposium has developed some financial stars of great magnitude, and such professionals as J. Pierpont Morgan, Russell Sage, Rockefeller, et. al., of the old school, will need to look to their laurels. Wall Street is not in it.

Stop the press! What is the difference between the man who lives in Boston and the man who lives on Long Island? Most people would give the difference to be in miles, but the correct answer is that one lives on baked beans and the other lives on the sound.

The last installment from the main office came up yesterday, to close the gap occasioned by those absent and on leave : James C. McDaniel, Wm. K. Jones, L. J. Runyan, James H. Wiley, J. M. Thompson, L. J. Bennett, Harry E. Giles, W. H. Dedrick, H. B. Billings, Lewis C. Tuttle, W. H. Gardiner, and E. Burkholder.

Sam Bell is among the latest to join the smooth-faced tribe and now resembles one of the signers of the immortal Declaration. It was expected that George Colquitt would do something desperate to get even for the loss of that $40 and telegraph expenses. Naylor and Capell didn't like the disfigument and they each have started another crop.

Hayden is much envied for his happy faculty of imitation. The flute-like notes of the mocking bird and the trill of the canary are brought out with a magic and sweetness of expression which would cause the original songsters to look down from their high perch with envy. Hay and Childress and others of their class have thus far failed of recognition. The onliest is the genuine, and all others are unworthy the name.

We read with profit the letter from Mr. Jones concerning trade conditions and other matters of interest in the last issue of THE TRADES UNIONIST. So far as the Filipino is concerned it is not believed that there is cause for alarm but he may become a dangerous rival, particularly as relative to Specification work. One day here would probably cause him to regret that he ever heard of Patent Office work, and there has been no one to make a clamorous demand to exchange a situation here for one at Manila.

AROUND THE PRINTERIES.

Down Town.

The editors belonging to the Alabama Association, who have been sight-seeing in the city since last Friday, returned to Birmingham, Tuesday night, well pleased with their trip.

To the G. P. O. Chairmen.

The chairmen of the different divisions of the Government Printing Office will oblige the publishers by furnishing the list of transfers from the different divisions to their division so the subscription list may be properly arranged. Also should they receive from week to week a number of extra copies of THE TRADES UNIONIST kindly distribute the same to some non subscriber and induce him to become one of our regular readers.

Second Division.

Miss Nellie H. Shipman, of this division, has gone to Ohio on account of the death of her father at the Soldiers' Home, Dayton.

At the chapel meeting Tuesday F. T. Razey and H. F. J. Drake were re-elected to the offices of chairman and secretary, respectively—a deserved compliment to worthy workers.

Members of this divisien are absent on leave, through sickness and other causes, to the number of 23. It was found advisable, therefore, to call in compositors from other divisions to work Saturday and Monday, upon the "hurry copy" of the Copyright Catalogue, temporarily supplying the places of absentees.

Wanted—Table boarders at $3.50 per week; home cooking; no colored help. 222 G street northwest.

First Division.

BOB SIMRIL.

"I'm only a Georgia cracker,"
We often heard "Sim" say;
But we lost a first-class fellow,
When Bob died the other day.

A true and generous soul was he,
And in spite of his queer ways,
Among the boys who knew him,
None name him but to praise.

But although he had his failings,
And which of us has not:
His virtues we'll remember,
His failings be forgot.

—F. A. R.

There are 40 compositors from this room off on leave.

J. A. Onyun has been transferred to this division from the Day Record.

Oscar Nelson has been off sick for a week, suffering with an abscess in the ear.

Messrs. Thompson, Drayton, and Bradley are subbing in the correcting alley.

Charles T. Garrett, accompanied by his wife, took a trip to Norfolk last Saturday.

In a letter from Private Bodenhamer, of the District Militia, he reports all the soljier boys doing finely.

W. T. Heritage, who has been sick at Garfield Hospital for some time, left for his home, Monday. It is hoped that he will soon be with us again.

John W. Martin, of Morgantown, N. C., is a condidate for membership on the G. P. O. fire brigade. He is well fitted both physically and mentally for the duties of a fire figher.

It is well enough for the Retail Clerks' Union to ask us to boycott a certain store, and I am in hearty sympathy with them, but I think they ought to get all the clerks in the union. There are in nearly every so-called union store only about one-half of the clerks that belong to the union and pay dues, while the other one-half do not belong to the union, refuse to join, pay no dues, and enjoy all the benefits of having the store closed early. Make them all join and there will be more union stores.

Well, I attended the meeting of the Union last Sunday and enjoyed it immensely (?). There I found all the characters of the comic supplement of the New York Journal. President Johnson got the show started and soon thereafter "My dear Alphonse" (Rodier) was bowing to "My dear Gaston" (Lerch). "The Post is the best chapel, my dear Gaston," said Alphonse. "Oh no, my dear Alphonse; the Times is the best," said Gaston. So they kept bowing and passing beautiful compliments to one another throughout the evening. Then every few minutes up jumps "Gloomy Gus" (Hersinger) with a point of order or a willingness to tell President Johnson what to do. Then comes, from away back, "Happy Hooligan" (Roberts), who after introducing amendments to the constitution a month ago, withdraws them to please. Then "Mamma" Katzenjammer (Kidd) takes the floor to debate against enlarging the oath, and after a long debate, the vote was taken and counted, when up jumps "Foxy Grandpa" (Hall) raising a point of order. He is sustained, and 45 minutes of oratory could have been saved but "Foxy" was too slick. Is it not about time that some of these celebrated characters broke away and gave some one else a chance?

CLOTILDE.

Unfurnished or furnished room in private family; board if desired; reasonable. 105 G street northwest. 6

Wanted to board and room a few young men, government employes, in a well appointed private home. French cooking. French, German, or stenography taught free. French spoken at the table. 1831 Eighth Street N. W.

Third Division.

And Doxey was elected secretary.

Arthur Rossall spent last Sunday in the Blue Ridge mountains.

E. E. Richards is spending his leave in the great and glorious city of Boston.

Tommy Jones takes hold of the chair-manship helm with a firm and steady grip. One could easily conclude that he was a veteran in the business.

We are pleased to announce that Steve Smith, an old-time employe of this division, arrived safely in Port Huron, Mich., and secured employment the next day after his arrival.

Since it was deemed necessary that Bob Christian should return to the case, we are glad that he landed in this division. Bob is a model workman and one of whom any division ought to be proud.

The passing of Dennesson from this division was a loss we could ill afford. His ever pleasant and complacent smile was downright encouragement for every soul, while his brisk and nervous step quick the sluggish pulse and hastened the hour of quitting time.

It took us two weeks to recover from the body blow that "Pard" Bloomer gave us. Some were cruel enough to remark that "Pard," in his retort, had "doused our glim." Such is not the case, for our lamp is still trimmed and burning brightly.

Our esteemed "Little Willie" Thornton still sweats and diligently works away on slug 44, regardless of the skyward tendency of the mercury and the tempting allurements of the many inviting summer resorts. That "Little Willie" may ever work and sweat is our sincere wish in his behalf.

Charles A. Lucas, having completed his temporary appointment, has departed from our midst and hied himself to the breezy seashores of Norfolk, where he has accepted a position in one of the large job offices of that city. We wish Charley success and hope that in the near future he will be able to "show up" in the big printery again.

"Pard" Bloomer says that he had us in his mind when he stated that the Job Room correspondent was not the only liar writing for THE TRADES UNIONIST. We are truly glad to hear that and to learn that there was something left there for we had about come to the conclusion, judging from the voluminous and wearisome character of his weekly articles, that he had completely emptied his mind. Now, will ye be good?

Fourth Division.

H. Harrald (The Little Minister) has departed on his thirty-day leave.

Inquiries as to who struck Billy Patterson have been forgotten pending the excitement over who got an hour and a half on Saturday. The action of the President of the United States has been overlooked in the discussion.

A letter received from Winchester informs us that despite the heavy rains that have been sweeping over Michigan, on his arrival at home he found his crop of rye in first class condition. The yield promises to be a large one.

Edward Lincoln Redfield was absent on a "ham-phat" expedition last week. His new plays "The Lobster" and "Glide on Silvery Moon" were great successes. He was given a cordial welcome to Abbeville, S. C., and Alexandria, Va.

Sam Kennedy was recently asked as to the whereabouts of one of his alleymates who was absent. "Am I my brother's keeper?" was Sam's reply. "No; but you may be Dunk himself," was the ungracious remark that was hurled at him by a passerby.

If you want Crabs go to Driscoll's, N. Cap. and G. Overholt whisky 10c.

Death of James T. Harris.

James T. Harris, for a number of years employed as a reporter on the Star, died at his home, Sunday night, July 20, 1902, after a long illness.

Mr. Harris was well known and enjoyed a large circle of friends. For a number of years he had charge of the police court news, and the unfortunates there always found him every ready to assist in any way he might.

He was buried Tuesday from the chapel connected with J. William Lee's undertaking establishment, Rev. A. N. Ward officiating.

LIVING VERY HIGH IN MANILA

Manila. A broad expanse of green lawn, wide driveways, situated on the Bay, where the cool evening breezes blow, lighted by numerous arc lights, and where nightly play the military bands, here we find relaxation. From 6 to 7 in the evening it is an animated spot. All the benches are taken and hundreds line the walkways near the bandstands. The driveways are one mass of vehicles of every description. Some of the turnouts are really fine, while the most disreputable rig is not despised. Half our pleasures here are these evening drives.

Manila is lighted by electricity. Several of the streets have arc lights, but the major portion is lighted by the incandescent globe. The native section is lighted by lanterns in front of the huts. This was enforced by the military authorities after the attempt to burn the city in 1899.

The street car system reminds one of the old Washington belt line, and are patronized only under necessity by Americans. The most common method of transportation for natives is the carretela, a two-wheeled cart, seating from 4 to 8. The prevailing method for white people is the carromata, a two-wheeled stationary top rig, with driver in front, or a quilez, a two-wheeled closed vehicle for 4 persons. Then we have a calesa, which is a two-wheeled rig with collapsible buggy top, the owner doing his own driving and the cochero sitting behind. The Victoria is quite common. The native pony is considarable smaller than the American pony, and the vehicles are built to harmonize. American horses, except the blooded ones, now appear bulky and ungainly. During the past week an attempt has been made to establish the Jinrickisas—a two-wheeled light vehicle drawn by Chinese, common in India, China, and Japan—but considerable trouble is being encountered in securing the pullers. The native element is strongly against their introduction, and none of the race will so "degrade" himself as to act as the motive power. No Chinese labor can be imported, and the local market has been affected by some influences against taking the contract. An attempt is to be made to secure Japanese.

I shall write you later in regard to the Bureau of Printing in particular, ond of the personnel of the force.

EDWIN C. JONES.

Non-Union Carpenters the Cause.

Monday work on the building known as Rust Hall, North Capitol and M streets, was suspended on account of the electricians, latherers, and steamfitters, numbering fourteen, refusing to work with non-union carpenters. The contractor, A. J. Ferguson, expresses the belief that the matter will be amicably settled and that only union men will be employed,

Kind Words from J. W. Hays.

M. J. Molan, of the Treasury division, received a letter from J. W. Hays, defeated candidate for First Vice-President of the I. T. U., in which he wishes to convey to Columbia Union the following message:

"The Washington vote was very gratifying to me, and although defeated I feel as grateful to all who supported me as though I had been elected by a large majority. I am one who believes that a man who can not accept defeat gracefully should not run for office; therefore I am just as happy as though I had won, and I will still be found in the ranks of the active workers. To those who opposed me and worked for my successful opponent you can convey my regards and assure them that he will have no more faithful supporter than myself in all matters for the welfare of the I. T. U. during his term of office."

Another Claimant.

"Honor to him to whom honor is due."

The question as to who is really responsible for the hot Saturday half holiday with pay, and is entitled to the credit of securing it, is being discussed all along the line, and continues to be a mystery which justice demands that I straighten out as it will prevent a continuation of jealousy and heart burnings.

Just after the announcement that the Executive Departments were to receive this privilege I thought it would be a brilliant move for me to be the pioneer of a movement to secure the same privilege for the employes of the G. P. O. It is seldom that I have ideas, especially large ones, and I am willing to admit that I was proud of myself. So, swelled up with my own importance I started out to broach the subject to those in authority belonging to the other organizations employed in the office. I was informed that those of influence and ability sufficient to manipulate such an important matter were attending conventions, or out of town on business, but as soon as they returned I would be notified and the ways and means of bringing this subject successfully before the proper authorities would be discussed.

Now at the start I concluded that the proper thing to do (and when my conscience is in a healthy condition still think so) was to have all the organizations employed in the printing office take part in securing this privilege as all would enjoy it if granted. But being ill at the time and having one of those streaks of cussedness that all unfortunately have come to the surface at times, I concluded I would be the whole thing myself and receive all the thanks, congratulations, engrossed resolutions, and roses. So washing my face and combing my whiskers I started for the White House, and arriving there safely, I had no trouble whatever in seeing the President as he has been a warm personal friend of mine for years. Of course there were many escapades of by-gone days recalled and talked over, and during the conversation I casually mentioned the hot half holiday and incidently remarked that the G. P. O. was not in it; also, that I was employed there, and justice in my case (if in no one else's) demanded this hot privilege. He caught on, and in a manner not to be doubted, he assured me that the G. P. O. would be remembered in the future when favors were to be bestowed. And for the hot Saturday holiday it would be granted at once. This closed the interview; I had received what I went for and had no further use for the President that day.

I was so elated by my success that I forgot a very important part of my work, i. e., newspaper notices. Before I woke up I was informed that others were being crowned and receiving the honors that rightfully belonged to me.

I thought the matter over, and the mean streak having worn off, I was inclined to believe that I had a good cause to be ashamed of myself, and I decided to let my shopmates enjoy the results of my labor, and to remain unknown, unhonored, and unsung. But as time rolled on and more claimants put in an appearance, I felt it my duty to unmask myself and appear as the only original and genuine hero of the hot half holiday. I denounce all others claiming the honor imposters and counterfeits.

F. S. CLINTON, Foundry.

Just Every Day Life.

In the departure of William E. Shields for Denver, President Johnson and Columbia Union lose a hard worker. The departure of Mr. Shields was delayed for some days in order to complete the details of the newspaper scale, which resulted in a material advance.

When the I. T. U. delegate to Cincinnati gazes over at the Kentucky hills he will say, "There's a State to the front so far as women, horses, and whiskey are concerned, but is sadly deficient as to labor matters." But right there they are wrong. Among the bills framed at the last session of the Kentucky legislature was one for factory inspection, another fixing the age limit for child labor at 14 years, the legalization of Labor Day, a repeal of the turnpike law, a two-weeks pay bill for minors, and a compulsory examination law for barbers. I have serious doubts if there is another Commonwealth that can equal that record.

It is all very well to impress upon delegates elect to the I. T. U. the sentiment of the convention meeting next year in a building owned by the organization, or the further fact that Washington is the show town of the continent. I would rather the committee in charge carry to Cincinnati a statement from the National, St. James, or Metropolitan to the effect that the badge of the organization would entitle the wearer to a $1 a day rate at a hotel a few blocks from the convention hall. I call to mind that the Kimball, at Atlanta, made this rate, and one can count on the fingers of a hand the Washington hotels in the Kimball class.

Again, the railoads, or rather the traffic association thereof, give a rate for a fare and a third on the ticket being vised by the International secretary. These same roads persistently canvas the boys about leave or election time, and I see no reason why they should not reciprocate. Methinks the C. & O. officials will sign a statement that they will endeavor to secure one fare to Ohio River points; should they succeed the B. & O. will do likewise. This, I take, is tangible, practical, and appeals to the pocket of the delegate and his friends.

THE CENTRAL LABOR UNION

Resolutions Asking Removal of Judge Jackson Unanimously Indorsed.

THE POSTAGE STAMP PRINTING

Grievance Committee Report Matters Settled Between Dismer and Mann and Bartenders—Credentials Received—Milk Drivers Ask Co-operation—Other Matters

President Hamerstrom called the regular meeting of the Central Labor Union to order Monday night, at Typographical Temple.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read by Secretary Winslow and approved by the body.

Credentials were received from Washington Local Union, No. 5, of the United Association of Journeymen Plumbers, Gas Fitters, Steam Fitters, and Steam Fitters' Helpers of the United States and Canada, certifying A. E. Anderson; from United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, No. 884, certifying Messrs. W. Zirkle, C. F. Deane, E. Potterfield, A. Green, and John Y. Clift.

R. A. Lanis' Association, No. 10, communicated stating the action of this body relative to placing on and removing from the unfair firms was indorsed by this union. Communication placed on file.

The American Federation of Labor communicated relative to Carpenters' concession of jurisdiction to Amalgamated Wood Workers over cabinet workers and machine and factory workers. This communication was ordered placed on file.

The Amalgumated Wood Workers International Union of America communicated by circular setting forth the facts relative to and leading up to the above concession of jurisdiction.

Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers, No. 102, presented complaint against Saks & Co., employing non-union labor. Matter referred to the Grievance Committee.

Bottlers' Union, No. 8647, complaint against Pabst Brewing Company, 703 North Capitol street, employing non-union labor was referred to the Grievance Committee.

The Grievance Committee reported they had adjusted the difficultes existing between the firms of Charles Dismer and Frank Mann and organized labor.

Upon motion of Delegate Dickman and amendment by Delegate Szegedy a committee consisting of Delegates Dickman, Hubbard, and Winslow were appointed to act in conjunction with a like committee from Federal Labor Union, No. 8193, and call upon the Postmaster General and endeavor to persuade him to secure the printing of the United States postage stamps. This action was taken upon information that the Government was contemplating giving the contract for this work to a New York concern, thereby endangering the positions of some 400 ladies employed in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and making useless thousands of dollars worth of machinery purchased by the Government for this purpose.

Carriage and Wagon Workers requested Grievance Committee to push their case against the Yale Steam Laundry.

Delegate Trittipoe, of Milk Drivers' Union, complained of non-support of the unions of the respective delegates in demanding their milk drivers to produce his card, and made some very good suggestions.

The Painters requested the secretary to communicate with Haller & Haller regarding non-union painters in their employ.

Representatives of Baltimore Federation of Labor and in behalf of the Garment Workers' Union were premitted the privilege of the floor and requested a committee of three be appointed to act with a committee of three from the Retail Clerks' Union and themselves to endeavor to persuade Eisemann to employ union cutters in their Baltimore establishment. Messrs, Spohn, Nolen, and Anderson were named as such committee.

Special Committee having in charge the Musicians matter at Chevy Chase Lake, where Marine band artisans are employed, reported they had called upon Mr. Carl, who informed them he did not recognize unions, whereupon Secretary Winslow was directed to correspond with the different unions affiliated with this body requesting a fine of $5 be imposed upon their membership should they patronize Chevy Chase Lake and the Capital Traction Company from the circle to the lake.

Delegate Hubbard, of Columbia Typographical Union, offered the following resolutions which were indorsed:

WHEREAS, The daily press of the past week informs us that one Judge John J. Jackson, of the United States Court of West Virginia, has sentenced a number of union men to prison without trial or jury under the slimpy pretext of contempt of court; and,

WHEREAS, The only offence of these union men is that of peaceably persuading others to join the strikers in the underpaid mining regions of said State; and

WHEREAS, It is stated by the miners convention, in their bill of charges against said judge, recently held in Indianapolis, Ind., that he is interested in said mines; and

WHEREAS, By his arbitrary decision Judge Jackson has violated the Constitution of the United States, in so far as free speech is concerned, and demonstrated his entire unfitness for the exalted position he holds; and

WHEREAS, The said Judge Jackson has denounced all union men as "vampires who live and fatten on honest labor and have nothing in common with the workingmen of the mining region;" therefore, be it

Resolved, By this body, composed of the different labor organizations of the District of Columbia and representing many different States of the Union, voice the sentiments of the Miners' Convention, and the public in general, that such a person is dangerous to the welfare of the community and does more to promote anarchy than peace and contentment, and request the Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, that he remove the said Judge Jackson; and, be it further

Resolved, That the Central Labor Union use all honorable means to advance their protest and bring this matter before the proper authorities and demand the removal of this partial and obnoxious personage; and, be it further

Resolved, That these resolutions be made a part of the proceedings of this body and spread upon the minutes, a copy of the same furnished the President of the United States, the daily press, and THE TRADES UNIONIST.

EDITORS THE TRADES UNIONIST:

With no desire to continue a controversy in reference to the above, and realizing that the object which brought out my statement has been attained—at least newspaper articles making all manner of wild claims have ceased entirely. It is also my firm conviction that had the quotation "there is glory enough for us all" been remembered before rushing into print much contention would have been avoided, at least members of the different branches of the Government Printing Office would not have cause for a dispute, the blame for which lies in those "interviews."

Mr. Feeney kindly absolves himself from blame for fully one-half of the responsibility, being long on denials. Not to be considered otherwise than generous, therefore I will absolve him from the other half, and consider him not at all responsible.

Thanking you for the space accorded me in your journal, I remain,

Fraternally,

JOHN B. DICKMAN.

Stough and Metz are on the sick list.

David S. Walton, of the make-up force, will spend his leave in Nova Scotia.

Our tin soldiers, Doty and Dietrich, returned home safely but when reveille was sounded Monday morning only one of the braves reported for duty. Camp water does not agree with Dietrich.

It is now an assured fact that when "Reddy" Morrow returns from his contemplated trip to his old home in Spartansburg, S. C., he will not come back alone. Many happy days, old man.

Frank Lloyd, who is at his farmhouse retreat for a few weeks, has time to give us an occasional call. Frank reports the taters and corn in good condition but the huckleberries not so promising.

Sherman, Davis, and Petrie are among the prodigals who have returned. So did Brayton but he could not stand the smell of printers' ink after so many copious draughts of fresh air, and consequently he returned to the woods.

H. C. Uber will spend part of his period of grace at Youngstown, Ohio; H. J. Smith will show the smart set at Ocean City, N. J., how a government employe can cut capers; Balsey F. Sauter will also—well, it is hard telling what Balsey will do, so we will tell you when he returns.

C. T. Hutchinson was the lucky bird who won the $15 suit of clothes put up by Peter Russ. It is not clear why Peter was so anxious to dispose of his wearing apparel, nor why second-hand goods should fall in the possession of Hutch. The rumor of his intention to open a store on D street "after the harvest days are over" is totally unfounded and absurd.

In the near future Brother LeGrys will be riding the ocean waves on a trip "old Hengland." What he contemplates doing over there he keeps to himself, but it is asserted by the wise ones that on the white cliffs of Albion a fair damsel can nightly be heard singing, "Oh, bring back my LeGrys to me." These longings of the fair one are wafted o'er the sad sea waves on the wings of morn and the tide of the ocean hurls them up the Potomac with such force that the slumber of LeGrys has become one continuous dream of bliss, so he has decided to go and fulfill the promise of long ago.

The erstwhile tranquility of alley 6 has been disturbed during the past few days by the bright red necktie worn by "Isi." His alleymates are considering the advisibility of requesting him to leave his neckwear with the fire marshal during working hours, in order to prevent a false alarm of fire. Furthermore, have you noticed that new cap he is sporting? A poll of the room as to the meaning of him wearing a cap resulted in varied and diverse opinions. The consensus of them seems to be that when he and Simon Pocher happen to be standing side by side, Simon's senatorial shinnery throws such a reflection over "Isi's" that the latter's seat of brainery is made to resemble the glorious flashes of the aurora borealis. Hence, the necessity of wearing the cap.

AROUND THE PRINTERIES.

Down Town.

The Senators are playing good ball and are drawing large and appreciative crowds.

F. A. Roderick, of the Proof Room, is enjoying his leave in a Western trip, and we may get some interesting notes from his trip later.

F. C. Tounsley, of Washington, D.C., has joined the job force at the Commercial Printing Company.—Industrial Journal, Charlotte, N. C.

Our labor notes last week stated that there were 4,500 unionist in the city of New Orleans, La. The correct number of unionists in New Orleans is 45,000.

We regret to announce that Honest John Darlington, of the Post, is confined to his home at Hyattsville, Md., with typhoid fever. May he speedily recover.

J. H. Hooper, of Washington, D. C., brother of Ed. Hooper, of the Observer force, has accepted a position with the Observer Printing Company.—Industrial Journal, Charlotte, N. C.

The National Retail Butchers and Meat Dealers will give a barbecue and outing on Wednesday, August 6, at Bennings' Race Course. Here is an opportunity to enjoy yourself.

Local Union, No. 99, International Union of Steam Engineers, will give a family excursion to Chesapeake Beach, Wednesday, August 6. There will be amusements of many kinds to entertain participants.

Mr. F. E. Buckland, of the Specification Division, who, with his wife, has been sojourning abroad since the early part of May, has asked for and received and extension of leave and will not return to Washington until about the middle of August.

It seems to a casual observer that if the Columbia car line would look more to the comfort of their patrons on days of ball games here, and run a few extra cars, there would not be so much of real "no seat no fare" process, as everyone knows that it is an impossibility for the conductors to collect fares. The accommodation on the cars on said days is abominable.

Mr. Joseph I. Keefer who recently published the little book "Some of the Homes of General Washington," returned from his annual trip to Niagara Falls last week. Mr. Keefer several years ago advanced an idea to improve the falls and it has been received with favor. The subject was broached last session of Congress to several Members and one Senator and their aid in having Congress appropriate the necessary money were sought. The object is to repair the washout and light up the Falls with electricity. Over in the "Land of the Boers," 700 miles from Cape Town, there is a much more magnificent falls, three times as large as Niagara, which are being improved by the British Government, and Mr. Keefer's idea should be advanced so as we can keep in progress also.

If you want Crabs go to Driscoll's, N. Cap. and G. Overholt whisky 10c.

Al J. Gompers expects the quality and merit of his 10 cent El Sublima and 5 cent La Federacion cigars to sell them. The Union label is not used to palm off inferior cigars. The cleanest and neatest factory in Washington, 209 Penn. Avenue N. W.

Second Division.

The leave of E. J. Hall has been extended.

W. R. Branham and R. L. Moler have gone on leave.

Hallock, who dares a Daniel [to] B., will spend his leave among the scenes of earlier years on Long Island.

The population of Langdon, D. C., was increased by one, Sunday morning, by the arrival of a baby girl in the family of George C. Sparks.

"Pard" Bloomer, the mortuary space consumer, has shown a tendency to throw stones or hog Latin, etc., at the animals, recently. Don't do it. Stick to the dead and the absent as we are told that they have no friends.

Another good man has gone wrong, so to speak. Our esteemed chairman, Mr. Razey, after sailing smoothly over the sea of life for 46 years, has at last fallen a victim to matrimony and received a life sentence with nothing off for good behavior. He was married on July 24 to Miss Josephine Dulan, of Buffalo, N. Y. Mr. and Mrs. Razey will spend their honeymoon at Manhatton Beach, N. Y. They will reside in this city.

Evidently the correspondent of the First Division believes in the old adage that "a prophet is not without honor save in his own country and among his own kinsmen," for he proceeds to call down a member of his own chapel (Mr. Herzinger) in great shape because he tried to assist President Johnson in preserving order, which, we are told, is Heaven's first law. Then, too, he goes after Brothers Lerch and Rodier for contending about the merits of their respective chapels. Is he not acquainted with the old adage that "every crow thinks its own offspring the whitest?" Some one has to do the talking and those who are not competent should not criticise those who are. Upon what food does this, our Cæsar, feed that he has become so gay, indeed?

If you want Crabs go to Driscoll's, N. Cap. and G. Overholt whisky 10c.

Third Division.

W. H. Sweeney is enjoying his annual leave.

Gun tables are all right to set an average on.

Look out for your 8-point quads. They are worth their weight in gold.

Papa Ellis "performed" at the press last Monday, spelling McLaughlin, who took a day off.

Dave Snyder is off on his leave and A. T. Maupin is temporary italic man during his absence.

If you want any pointers on base ball ask Hank Allen, as no higher authority could possibly be consulted.

E. E. Richards returned last Friday from New York City, where he spent two weeks of his annual leave.

L. J. Runyan, W. K. Jones, and McDaniels were transfered from this Division to the Specification last week.

Ikey Rosenthal would like to know who stole his quads while he was serving time in the Second Division, Saturday.

Si Phelps is "sawing wood" at the case in the ring alley during the absence of Colonel Sweeney. How do you like it, Si?

Moses Peace, the man who spreads the ink on McLaughlin's press, won the jack pot on the Jeffries-Fitzsimmon's fight last week.

William McEnaney returned to work last Friday with a happy smile on his countenance, having had an excellent time on his vacation.

If Tom Jones can't give a ring with his pencil, and the applicant becomes too importunate, we doubt not but what he could sing him one in a voice with a proper tenor ring.

R. P. Piehoff was a soldier boy during the past two weeks with the District Guards in camp at Leesburg, Va. He returned to work Monday with his face well sun-burned and muscles stiff and sore.

Al Thomson returned from his leave last Friday and is now nicely domiciled on slug 35, which is a window frame and next to the one on which he worked for so long a time before they sent him to the Spec.

The following are recent transfers to this division: J. R. Alford, P. S. Anderson, T. H. Bradley, J. H. Clark, W. H. Cornish, H. S. Edington, William Schmidt, I. Walter Sharp, C. B. Tomlin, and A. M. Willingham.

N. G. Watts returned the other day from St. Louis, Mo., where he spent his vacation. Nat reports having had an excellent time and states that he is now willing to begin the accumulation of another annual leave in a most excellent humor.

After perusing "Pard" Bloomer's very able dissertation on a red necktic we were almost persuaded to be courageous and don one ourself. Anyhow a red necktie desquisition is more entertaining to us than an obituary notice, and the change is no doubt an improvement.

The family of W. S. Cady have gone to Frankfort, Ky., their old home, where they expect to remain during the heated term. We are not alarmed though about Cady's conduct during their absence, and we are willing to vouch for him even if he should stumble on to temptation a time or two.

We are requested to state that the name of Seattle's delegate to the I. T. U., convention is George W. Ficks, and not "Fricks," as stated in Mr. Bloomer's column last week, and that Mr. Ficks has written a letter to a member of this division in which he stated that he was for "Washington in 1903," unless some other city would show more qualifications, and he was certain that such would not be the case.

Although Saturday is an hour and a half shorter than any other work day during the week, and on that account we look forward to it with pleasure yet now-a-days the day seldom approaches without a feeling of dread lest some of us are detailed on the Copyright catalogue in the Second Division so many of the members of that division being on leave. However, so long as the boys who are off on their leaves are having a royal good time, we are perfectly willing to do their work while they are gone, but we don't want them to waste any time.

Let us hope that the half-holiday case is considered closed.

The thirty-third degree fans will have to get their base ball from the newspapers for the next two weeks.

Redfield received a telegram last Saturday announcing the serious illness of his father in New York. He left for that city on Sunday morning.

High Private Preuss has returned from his ten days' outing at Camp Ordway. His only regret was that the cartridges used at the battle of Leesburg were blanks, as he had hoped to give an exhibition of long-distance shooting as practiced in Texas.

Galvin now has a fine aggregation of game-cocks—11 in number—and he says they will all fight till they drop in the pit. Considering the fact that he was two days late in returning from his leave, and judging from the haggard look on his face, he must have got worsted in some sort of a fowl main himself.

The following item, clipped from a Lansing, Mich., paper, will be of interest to the many friends of Mr. H. L. Standley, who formerly held cases in the big printery:

Miss Maud Flansburg, of this city, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hayes, of 604 Michigan avenue west, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. L. C. Thomas, in Chicago, for the past six weeks, was married to Mr. H. L. Standley, of Chicago, Saturday, July 12, Rev. A. Lincoln Shute of the Methodist church officiating.

Bindery Notes.

Gus Wiegand, of the finishing room, recently appeared at Viginia Beach in a red and green bathing suit that was made in Germany and is very attractive. Gus amused the children on the beach by turning flip-flops in the water.

In a mud bank on the beautiful shore of Chesapeake Beach was sighted a bald head. After closely watching it for a time it was discovered that the owner was Pat Sweeney, who was on leave and taking the baths for gout.

Major Collins, of the ruling room, while enjoying his pipe and a nap on the Royal Arcanum excursion to Old Point, recently, found upon awakening that his panama had been lifted by the wind and was many miles to the leeward.

I read with much pleasure the criticism of John B. Dickman on the recklessness of my statements in a recent issue of THE TRADES UNIONIST. I will state, Brother Dickman, for your benefit, that I will always write or say something good of men in my union who interest themselves to benefit others. My motto is the Golden Rule. The G. P. O. bookbinders have on numerous occasions taken up matters of interest to those who labor at the printing business, and you are now enjoying some of the benefits brought about by their active work. I agree with you when you say our president should not assail the printers; neither should you assail the bookbinders. I agree with you that a man should be careful in making statements to newspaper reporters; modest men shrink from publicity. It is also unnecessary for resolutions, flowers, presents, etc. Yet, if your admirers start these things and you know you have not done enough to have these kindnesses showered upon you, it is still impolite to refuse them, and no doubt you would accept them as gracefully as others. While I do not coincide with our president in his manner of doing things at all times, I positively know of a great deal of hard work that he has done in the past, and I can also say the same of the lady who presides over the Women's Bindery Union. Officers of labor organizations are targets for men who do a great deal of talking and very little work, and if a number of intelligent men of the craft, who are shining lights in other organizations in the District of Columbia, would devote a little more of their time in the interest of their trades unions we would not have to depend on a few men to shoulder the work of our organizations through which we all derive so much benefit. And, Brother Dickman, I hope that in the near future I will hear of you doing something good in the interest of your fellow-men, and I will speak well of you. I hope you will pardon my mistakes as I am not a member of the press club.

Job Division.

Anent Mr. Bloomer's article on intemperance recently, I can not conceive of anything so stupid and devoid of reason as placing a saloon on every corner with a view of lessening the drink evil. Why not repeal all laws and thus rid the country of crime? Why say "thou shalt not steal," if permission to do so would make men more honest? Why place a premium on rapine, murder, and arson by enacting laws against them? Mr. Bloomer says that the intemperance curse would be lessened by removing the few restrictions that are placed upon it. He says prohibition does not prohibit. Of course it does not. Who says it does? But I do say, and I am borne out by the facts, that in proportion to the effort made to enforce the law there is none that more nearly accomplishes the purpose for which it was designed. Certain States are cited as examples of the failure of the law. Is the law any the less a good one because of its violation? It is the failure to enforce the law that brings it into disrepute. I have seen the law so thoroughly enforced in a Kentucky town that the jail, once constantly filled, was, under the new regime, empty for weeks at a time. Instead of the town being "wide open," the jail was wide open. Verily, a happy change. The whole trouble with the enforcement of prohibition laws as applied to the whisky traffic is that men are so imbued with the theory of personal rights—the right to make brutes of themselves, to destroy their manhood, to wreck their souls—all accomplished through the "unrepressed" saloon—that any effort on the part of those who have at heart the best interests of these men and the country's welfare, arouses at once their most violent opposition, and the men who dare interfere with these "inalienable rights" are denounced as cranks, fools, and mossbacks. But even with this stigma upon me, I affirm that the liquor traffic should be absolutely prohibited. From every point of view it is a curse and a blight. For every sentence written in its favor there can be piled up volumes against it so damning that it would seem that even the most hardened would see the error of his way. The motto of the W. C. T. U. is perhaps the most patriotic that any organization ever put forth: "For God, and Home, and Native Land," and the longest stride toward the accomplishment of this end is the total abolishment of the licensed saloon. "There wouldn't be as much drunkenness as there is now if the were no"—saloons.

Unfair Keystone Watch Case Co.

The attention of union men of Washington and their friends is respectfully called to the unfair methods of the Keystone Watch Case Company, manufacturers of the James Boss case.

This firm locked out their engravers January 29, 1900, for daring to attend a union meeting. No demands were made on the firm, not even for recognition of the union. The simple exercise of the right of the engravers to organize was met with a discharge.

The Keystone Company has shown complete antagonism to organized labor; have scorned an adjustment, and even refused arbitration when approached by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor. We ask the reader to discriminate against the sweatshop Boss case and make their determination known to the jewelers and buy only watches with the Engravers' Blue Label attached to the case, as to insure good work and as a safeguard against sweatshop goods.

Death of Robert Cross.

Joseph Cross, a member of Columbia Union, and well known in this city, received word Wednesday conveying the sad news of the death of his brother, Robert Cross, at Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mr. Cross was a retired contractor, and while he had been ill for a short time his death was unexpected. His age was about 55 years.

Joe has the sympathy of his many friends here in his loss.

Death of John Lacey.

John Lacey, a former member of Columbia Union, No. 101, well known in this city and at one time employed on the Post, died in New York last week. His age was about 38 years, and his parents and a brother, employed in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing in this city, survive him. His remains were brought here Sunday and interment made in the family plot.

Presentation to Colonel Robinson.

Wednesday night a number of members of the Society of Ex-Soldiers and Sailors of the War of the Rebellion, of the G. P. O., made a presentation of a handsome Grand Army badge to their popular president, Charles M. Robinson, chief of the Government Printing Office Proof Room, who sails Saturday for Europe.

The presentation was made by Past Commander McKelvey. Following the presentation was a bahquet, interspersed with speeches, toasts, and stories. Major Russell and Comrade Roderick narrated their European experiences. Those present were: Maj. John D. Russell, J. R. McKelvey, F. A. Roderick, Joseph G. Clarke, E. B. Chambers, W. H. Dexter, W. F. Dorsey, H. Thurston, H. C. Underwood, Thomas H. Persell, H. F. J. Drake, B. W. Bonney, Wallace Brewer, Briscoe Goodheart, William Lawler, David Gillen, J. H. THE TRADES UNIONIST.

OFFICIAL ORGAN CENTRAL LABOR UNION, WASHINGTON BRANCH, AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR.

Vol. VII. No. 8. WASHINGTON, D. C., THURSDAY, AUGUST 7, 1902. Price, 3 Cents.

THE CENTRAL LABOR UNION

Decline to Indorse Any Candidate for District Commissioner.

APPROPRIATION FOR MINERS

Vice-President Silver and Delegate McCarthy Presiding Officers—Credentials Received—Excursion Committee Enlarged—Only One Case Referred to Grievance Committee—Other Matters.

The Central Labor Union met in weekly session, Monday night, at Typographical Temple, with President Hamerstrom in the chair. Later, Vice-President Silver was called upon to preside, owing to business engagements of President Hamerstrom; Vice-President Silver later called upon Jere F. McCarthy, a delegate from Bartenders' League and chairman of Credential Committee, to act as chairman.

Secretary Winslow read the minutes of previous meeting and the same were approved.

Credentials were received from Local Union, No. 118, Journeymen Bakers and Confectioners, certifying Messrs. Felix Stoks, E. W. Felka, Louis Merkel, and Fred Hartwig; from Local No. 77, International Union of Steam Engineers, certifying Frank Martin; from Journeymen Stone and Marble Cutters of North America, Washington Branch, certifying George Brahler.

Upon the reading of the following communication from the United Mine Workers of America, an appropriation of $15 was made;

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., July 31, 1902.
C. W. WINSLOW, Secretary Central Labor Union.
DEAR SIR AND BRO.:

I have sent you under separate cover some circulars relative to our strike in the anthracite coal fields, and appeal for financial assistance in behalf of those now on strike. We have 181,000 men on strike in various parts of the country, 147,000 of which are anthracite coal miners. These men have all been idle ten weeks or more and are now reaching the point where they will be required to rely upon the assistance of their friends in order to carry the struggle to a successful termination. We do not expect to furnish them with any definite amount weekly; our only hope is to be able to furnish food for the most needy. If your organization can do anything for us financially, I assure you it will be much appreciated. Hoping for ultimate success, I am,

Fraternally yours,
H. B. WILSON.

A communication from Secretary Morrison, of the American Federation of Labor, relative to the Eight-hour button, was referred to the Excursion Committee.

The Central Labor Union of Pittston and vicinity communicated, narrating adverse conditions existing in that locality, and requested aid to continue the publication of The Industrial Advocate, a paper devoted to trades unionism. This communication was placed on file.

Only one case, that of James Roach, saloon keeper, 904 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, against whom the Bartenders' League made complaint, was referred to the Grievance Committee.

Delegate Dickman offered a resolution tendering the thanks of this body to President Roosevelt, Postmaster-General Payne, Third Assistant Postmaster-General Madden, Frank Morrison, secretary of American Federation of Labor, Chief Meredith, of Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and William M. Garrett, secretary of Columbia Typographical Union, for their assistance and kind offices in the matter of the retention of the government printing of postage stamps in this city. This resolution, after an unanimous amendment to strike out the name of Mr. Madden carried, was adopted.

Bartenders called attention to their excursion to River View, on August 12.

Carrlage Makers stated their agreement with the manufacturers for eight hours and $2 per diem was now going on satisfactorily.

Building Trades Section announced they had outgrown their quarters and requested permission be given them to secure larger quarters. Request was granted.

Delegate Shugrue, of the Bricklayers' Union, offered a resolution that this body name and indorse a candidate for the vacancy in the District Commissionership. Delegate Hubbard, of Columbia Typographical Union, objected upon the grounds that it was contrary to trades union ethics for this body to mix in political matters, and moved that the whole matter be tabled. The matter was tabled by a decided vote.

The secretary was directed to revise the constitution and have 1,000 copies printed.

President Hamerstrom announced the following additions to the Labor Day Excursion Committee: J. E. Toone, John Tohina, F. W. Staples, John Handlos, J. W. Baker, Thomas F. Flanagan, W. Mahony, C. A. Pfau, H. Saenger, J. A. Brett, A. W. Whitacre, Harry Conn, W. C. Bergman, John Huggins, M. Finley, S. Beckett, F. E. Deacon, J. Hurley, J. Develin, J. Fenton, J. W. Baker, F. J. Neidromanski, R. J. Jonscher, F. G. Rick, S. S. Teague, and Louis Merkle.

PRIVATE PRINTING BIDS INVALID.

Comptroller Tracewell Decides All Goverment Printing Must Be Done at the Big Printery.

Comptroller Tracewell, in answer to the following question from the Secretary of Treasury, decided all government printing must be done by the Public Printer and not by private offices:

"The department, being about to inaugurate an extensive card index system in one of the divisions of the Secretary's office, has obtained estimates for the work from the Public Printer and an outside concern. The Public Printer's estimate amounts to $1,230.08, while the other estimate amounts to $755.

"Section 3786, Revised Statutes of the United States, provides that 'all printing, binding, and blank books for the Senate or House of Representatives and the executive and judicial departments must be done at the Government Printing Office, except in cases otherwise provided by law.'

"Would the department be authorized to award the contract for the work to the low outside bidder in this case and charge the cost to an appropriation other than that provided for the public printing and binding?"

The opinion rendered by the Comptroller was as follows:

"It is understood that the cards to be used in the card index system in contemplation require printing.

"The provisions quoted by you from section 3786 of the Revised Statutes was re-enacted in the act of January 12, 1895, (28 Statute, 622). It is a positive requirement that all printing for the executive and other departments shall be done at the Government Printing Office, unless otherwise provided for by law, and impliedly prohibits these departments from procuring printing not otherwise provided for to be done elsewhere. It does not admit of any exception, upon grounds of economy or expediency, but it is comprehensive and exclusive.

"I am not aware of any provision of law authorizing printing for this department to be done elsewhere, and I have therefore, to advise you that you are not authorized to have the cards which you contemplate procuring printed by any private establishment."

If you want Crabs go to Driscoll's, N. Cap. and G. Overholt whisky 10c.

The following were transferred to the care of ex-President Lawson: Healy, Adams, and Gunn.

George Clarke looks like a new man after his leave of absence. No physician can prescribe anything that beats fresh air.

Frank Lloyd, after a dismal failure in cornering the potato crop of Maryland, has returned, doing business at the old stand.

"Reddy" Morrow emphatically denies the rumor of him going home to get married. He seems to forget what he told us some time ago about that young widow.

Ben Pratt spent the best part of his leave tracing the source or sources of Tiber Creek. That he was benefitted by this arduous labor is shown by his sunburnt complexion.

The following were transferred to this division from the Night Force: W. H. Guthridge, Bert V. Wolfe, J. H. Schaffhausen, and Daniel Prosser. Dan was with us before, so the intricacies of Ronaldson "tabs" are not new to him.

Ed. Heidingsfeld don't claim he even "broke the bank at Monte Carlo," but he is willing to wager something will be heard from before he returns from the Saratoga meet. Sure thing, Ed.; we are well aware of the two ways—win or lose.

If Doty is not a true sport, show me the way to go home. Not satisfied with his outing at Camp Ordway, he started last Saturday for a week's fishing and touring of the Province of Ontario, Canada, taking in all the glories of the picturesque Thousand Islands.

Bloomer, in the Typographical Journal, says the committee on "Washington in 1903" reports "progress." What else could they report as long as there is "nothing doing." The "new ark" boom needs a good "wash and tan" before thinking of competing with the senatorial aggregation at the next convention.

The young man who accompanied the young lady down the river last Sunday will be better off the next time if he'll make sure her big brother does not listen to his tale of affection, especially at an untimely hour of the night. Stanley in Africa is different to a Stanley in Washington. You know what the big brother said. Beware!

The ways of women are as hard to trace as a spider's hieroglyphics upon a stone wall. To cut it short, we will say that she didn't used to, but this particular morning she did, and what occurred afterwards is something to guess at. Of course he was due at the club, and returned home during the wee hours of the morning, explaining to his better half that he was delayed by a banquet. However, she took an occasion to search his pockets for a missing latch key, and lo and behold, what she came across was a pair of gloves and a veil belonging to somebody else's darling! And now the shutters are up. No wonder.

A week ago last Tuesday the wise guy from alley 7 journeyed to Chesapeake Beach in search of the cool breezes, and what he did get in the way of cold shoulders is something that will ever stick to his memory. After indulging in few of them things pronounced as "gall-givers," he sauntered around looking for a partner, which he readily found in a seemingly young lady. After formally introducing himself and being accepted, they both took a seat on the hotel veranda, indulging in a couple of blissful drinks. But alas, no sooner had the wise guy persuaded himself that he was a successful "masher," when another man appeared on the scene, demanding of him an explanation of his presence there. The wise guy's language was very incoherent, whereupon the stranger told him if he didn't want any bones broken, the best thing he could do was to "git," and mighty quick at that, and the wise guy soon disappeared around the first corner taking the first train for Washington. The stranger was the lady's husband. Probably he'll be more careful the next time, especially in making the acquaintance of married ladies.

Retail Butchers' Convention.

The ninth annual convention of the National Retail Butchers and Meat Dealers' Protective Association convened in a three day session at the Raleigh Hotel, this city, Tuesday. The different cities of the United States and Canada are represented by about one hundred and fifty delegates.

The convention recommended the removal of the tariff from meet and food products, and many state that a scheme of bounty for beef raising will be advocated, the National and State governments to pay the same. This proposition is to encourage beef cattle raising in the East.

A resolution requesting the United States government to abolish the duty on all cattle and live stock, after much discussion. was adopted.

The local association entertained about one hundred delegates and their wives Tuesday with a trip down the Potomac to Historical Mount Vernon.

Election of officers and adjournment takes place to-day.

Our "Mike."

Speaking of the large and successful excursion given by Carroll Institute, to River View, last Friday, among other things the Post says:

"Besides the regular amusements an excellent program of athletic events was provided by Prof. Maurice A. Joyce of the Institute, in which the principal feature was the wrestling bout between Mike Quantrille and James Defoe. The two had wrestled twice without securing a fall and this proved to be the deciding bout, as Quantrille threw his opponent after six minutes on the mat."

It is with pleasure we state that the above winner, Leroy Quantrille, is employed on THE TRADES UNIONIST, and our only objection to the above quotation is dubbing the young man as "Mike." However, as a little forerunner, we would advise some of our visitors who call at our office now and then a "little hot under the collar" for many and divers reasons, to tread lightly our sanctum floor as Mike is still with us.

O'Leary-O'Leary.

On Tuesday, August 5, at St. Aloysius Church, at 11 o'clock a. m. occurred the marriage of Denis J. O'Leary, foreman of the Press Room of the Government Printing Office, to Miss Mamie O'Leary, who for a number of years was employed as a pressfeeder in the same institution.

The young couple are both popular and enjoy a large circle of friends and acquaintances. They were the recipients of a chest of silver from the employes of the Press Room, and many other valuable presents.

They left after the ceremony for Atlantic City and Cape May and other points for a couple of weeks.

Here's our best wishes to both bride and groom.

DEATH OF JOHN DARLINGTON.

A Well-Known Printer Suddenly Succumbs After Brief Illness.

John Darlington, whose illness was noted in our last issue, has since passed away, the end coming suddenly at Sibley Hospital, Tuesday morning, August 5, after a very brief illness of typhoid fever followed by peritonitis. He was removed from his home at Hyattsville, Monday, to Sibley Hospital.

Mr. Darlington was a Pennsylvanian by birth having came to this city some twenty years ago from West Chester, and had since continuously held responsible positions on newspapers in this city. At one time he was foreman of the Morning Times and at the time of his demise was assistant foreman of the Post, where he put in his longest service. Being a first-class man in all branches of the trade and enjoying the confidence of his fellow employes, in the death of Honest John Darlington the craft has lost a good printer in all that the term implies and his acquaintances a steadfast friend. He was an honorable and respected member of Columbia Typographical Union.

A wife and eight children, to whom goes out the sympathy of his many friends and acquaintance, survive him. His age was forty-six years.

Brief services will be held at his late home in Hyattsville, to-day, and interment will be made in Woodlawn Cemetery in this city.

Death of John H. G. Debus.

John H. G. Debus, employed in the First Division of the Government Printing Office, died this morning, (Thursday) at Sibley Hospital, after a short illness of typhoid fever. His age was 27 years.

He leaves a wife and mother living at 27½ Bates street northwest. His remains will be sent to St. Louis, Mo., his home, Friday night, where interment will be made.

What Does He Want?

The following ad. is taken from Wednesday's Post. Upon perusal of the same our readers may be faced with the interrogatory above written:

WANTED—AN AUDIENCE WITH ANY official head of the government of the United States of America, from President to any Senator, who stands strictly on the Constitution, holds the Stars and Stripes in his right hand, and carries the Holy Bible in his heart. Very important. A. B. Crawford, 124 Four-and-a-Half street northwest, Washington, D. C.

Did you ever stop to think that the Chink laundrymen in Washington are taking employment away from several thousand American working people and are hoarding their money to send back to China? Shall yours go there or be spent among your own people? —7

Chesapeake Beach.

This favorite resort continues to grow in popularity with Washingtonians as is evidenced by the number of train loads that leave the city for said place every Sunday, to say nothing of the number of individual passengers and numerous societies' excursions during the week.

With a good salt breeze off Chesapeake Bay ever present and a first class list of attractions and good restaurants, this is a pleasant spot to spend a few hours from the city's heat and din.

British Help.

Max S. Hayes, editor of the Cleveland Citizen, has received from Ben Tillett, for the British Board of Federation of Unions, assurances that it will help the anthracite miners, not only morally but financially. This information has been conveyed to President Mitchell, and funds will follow. So, the poor 79 cent man finds he has brothers all over the world, who will not see his children starve. What a glorious lesson of brotherhood is this, pointing to a future "parliament of man and federation of the world!"—Union Banner, Fort Worth, Texas.

Samuel Gompers, in an interview in San Francisco, said: "The foundations of the American Federation of Labor were laid in 1881, at Pittsburg; and already we have more than 2,000,000 American workingmen and women on our rolls. There are 91 national and international unions affiliated with the Federation, and these have approximately 14,000 local trade unions. We have, in addition, 1,353 local unions chartered directly by the Federation, because not yet organized into national bodies. The State branches number 25, the city central branches 397, and besides the 900 local organizers, we have 80 general organizers and 30 who are regularly on salary. This shows the tremendous progress of the trade union idea. Unionism is growing in strength and dignity every day."

Is There Just Cause for Complaint?

The Baltimore Sun, while discussing the conditions leading up to the present coal strike in Pennsylvania, presents some interesting facts, which are here given for the benefit of those who contend that the miner has no just cause for complaint. The Sun says:

"It has been the policy of the coal companies in the promotion of their own ends to keep engaged about double as many miners as are required and to give them employment half the time.

"The main cause of the great unrest among the miners which resulted in the strike was the impossibility of making enough—working half time—to live on. It is very easy to say that the miners are getting good wages and should be content. They may be paid so much a ton and may be able to take out so many tons a day, and, multiplying one by the other, may make a good showing. But in fact, the miners were not allowed to mine more than half as many tons as they could mine.

"The report of the Pennsylvania Bureau of Mines and Mining for 1899 showed that the average earning of a miner for that year was $285 a year and that the laborer only made 90 cents a day for the time employed. If the average annual earning of miners is $285, it means that many of them get less than this. How is it possible for a man to pay rent and support a family out of less than $285 a year, paying exorbitant prices at the company stores? If it was possible in 1899, how is it possible now, when it takes $360 to buy as much as $285 bought three years ago?

"A recent incident tells the whole pathetic and sickening story. After the strike began, knowing that there were a great many unemployed men in the mining region, a naval officer was sent there to open a recruiting office to enlist sailors for the United States Navy. In a short time the office was discontinued. The officer reported that those applying for enlistment were physically unfit. And the cause of this unfitness was perfectly evident. The men had been put to work during the tender age of childhood and their bodies had been stunted, and then as men they had not had sufficient food to make them strong. Overwork and starvation had been their lot in life. Schools and playgrounds were unknown to them when children, and the moral and intellectual nature is probably dwarfed with the body. Is it surprising that such a population, reared and living in such conditions, are easily driven into rioting and lawlessness?

"But there is a vast amount of water in the stock of some big corporations, and upon this water dividends must be paid, even if the cradle and the grave are put under tribute and human lives and souls and bodies are wrecked to do it."

COMMISSIONER OF PENSIONS WARE has issued an edict that clerks who are intemperate or who do not pay their debts contracted for necessaries of life, or those which under ordinary circumstances can and should be paid, will not be tolerated. Verily, the reform movement is great.

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

My persistent, argumentative friend, "P. Q. Liar," comes out of a long sleep to refute statements never made, to twist things that were straight, and to assume things generally. He froths around under the impression that I am opposed to mitigating the drink evil. Like many others, in his temperance he is intemperate. He seems to think that total prohibition is the only remedy, and that nothing else is worth considering. He forgets my argument some weeks ago that it is the saloon and not the liquor—paradoxical as it may sound—that is the cause of intemperance, and that if men were compelled to drink at home or not drink, abolishing the sociable, rag-chewing "drinks between drinks" at the barroom, nine-tenths of the temptations to drink and of the excesses occurring therefrom would be abolished. He wants to abolish the use of alcoholic stimulants and refuses any mitigation of the evil short of enforced total abstinence—a condition neither possible nor desirable—and will have nothing else, and he gets nothing. The most practical temperance law in the United States is that of South Carolina. But that don't interest him. He wants an impracticable, unattainable condition. Now, lemme 'lone, "P. Q. Liar;" I didn't never want no argument with you nohow.

Instead of this unproductive, impractical worrying over what can't be helped, why did not my friend give us an account of the presentation of a watch and fob to Chairman Whitehead, of the Convention Committee, by the Job Room Chapel? That was a matter of some interest; the other was "full of sound and fury, signifying nothing."

A brief but very pointed paper on the temperance question, by William North, was called to my attention the other day. He said: "I would rather see the whole world drunk than one man sober by compulsion." My friend "Liar" would see the whole world perish of thirst because some overdrink themselves. There have been drink, drunkenness, and intemperate temperance men from the beginning down, and there probably always will be.

Allusions to myself by different correspondents last week affect me from head to foot. I feel like lifting my hat to "Cycle," and my boot to "Hot Scotch, jr."

* * * *

I have read some very conflicting letters from printers in the Philippines lately. It seems that, though the war is over, the conflict is not.

* * * *

It was a good deal of a shock to me when Shelby Smith made a remark one day last week derogatory to the intelligence of the individual delegates to the I. T. U.—generally, not locally, of course. There had been a conversation as to the failure of the referendum because of the unwillingness or neglect of the majority of members of the union to so inform themselves in regard to men and measures as to be able to cast an intelligent vote on questions presented. The remark had been made that because of this apathy legislative matters should be left to the I. T. U. It was then that Mr. Smith made the remark that one is always surprised at the number of lunkheads and utterly irredeemably sodden, ignorant incompetents whom he meets as delegates at a session of the I. T. U. Without having given the matter any particular thought, I had always taken it as a matter of course that the unions send their ablest, brainiest, most competent men to represent them in the international body, and Smith's statement fell on me like a bucket of ice water. I shall look about me carefully at Cincinnati with the hope of finding the remark entirely unwarranted.

John F. Welch, who was "chief time clerk" under Mr. Palmer's first administration of the G. P. O., is serving his second term as postmaster of Dover, N. H. I taught Mr. Welch to eat limburger cheese and thereby earned his everlasting gratitude. A brother of Mr. Welch is a newspaper correspondent in this city.

* * * *

A letter from T. K. Heath, delegate from Danville, Ill., admits that he is the same old T. K. of the Spess, 1876-86, and he says that he is glad to know that he is remembered in the G. P. O. He says Danville is his old home, to which he returned after a "reduction of force" in 1886, and that, with its 25,000 inhabitants, it is the most business city he was ever in. It is the place of location of a soldiers' home and Uncle Joe Cannon. He promises his support for "Washington in 1903."

* * * *

From what some of the correspondents say, I judge that the month's respite the readers of THE TRADES UNIONIST will have while I am away, obeying the behests of the Union and performing the arduous duties thrust upon me, will be very gratifying. Sometimes when a man is dragged from his loved solitude and obscurity, he becomes strenuous to the extent of being burdensome. Sometimes, also, we lay out plans for future rest and enjoyment that miscarry.

* * * *

Miss (or is it Mrs?) Sadie Maguire, who reports typographical matters for Frank Kennedy's Western Laborer, of Omaha, made a blunder a week or two ago—a form of misfortune which really befalls the softer sex. From Secretary Bramwood's report she deduced the startling fact that in many (perhaps most) of the large unions not a single member is a subscriber to the Typographical Journal, being mislead by the figures in the column of the financial statement headed "Journal," which merely indicate the receipts from unions for advertising, etc., and the few instances in which unions subscribe for the magazine as a body. Miss (or Mrs.) Maguire has probably seen her error before this, but if I don't cackle over it now I may never have an opportunity. It is true that the Typographical Journal is not supported to the extent to which its official character entitles it nor proportionately to its value, but it is not nearly so bad a case as Miss (or Mrs.) Maguire was led to believe. Mr. Kennedy's attention probably was not called to Miss (or Mrs.) Maguire's statement until too late to prevent its publication, for his wide knowledge and great experience would have detected the error at once.

* * * *

Very shortly after THE TRADES UNIONIST readers shall have been edified by this week's issue the delegates to the I. T. U., and the Convention Committee will start for Cincinnati—Friday night 11.10—by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, to arrive Saturday evening, at 5 o'clock. The party will number probably 25 or 30, including a number of ladies. T. A. Bynum will go a little earlier than the rest of the party, in order to attend the anniversary festivities at Indianapolis on Saturday night. Mr. Whitehead, chairman of the Convention Committee, who went to Chicago a week ago, will accompany the Chicago delegation and those passing through Chicago to Indianapolis and then to Cincinnati, and is expected to have them all "cinched" for "Washington in 1903" before the latter city is reached. Among those going from this city is Dr. D. W. C. Chadwick, ex-secretary and ex-delegate of Cincinnati Union, if his professional engagements will permit, though he may go in advance of the party. Of course all are not going who expected to some weeks ago, for a reason very easily understood. It is never any trouble to go anywhere in a couple of months from now, exactly as it is always easier to pay a bill at next pay day than now.

* * * *

Newark is beginning to get a hustle on for the 1903 convention, as articles in the Typographical Journal and Inland Printer indicate, but I don't believe she can reach, though one never can tell how the matter may appeal to the members of the I. T. U. I do not believe there is any reason to doubt that Washington will win, but the committee have so conducted the campaign that they will have nothing to reproach themselves with in case of defeat. Asheville, N. C., may be a factor too, especially with Southern delegates, but neither she nor Newark can offer a tithe of the attractions that are to be found at the Nation's Capitol.

Rah, rah, rah, who are we?
Washington, Washington, nineteen three!

* * * *

I have just received a "sample copy" of Appeal to Reason, a Socialistic paper published weekly at Girard, Kans., at the extremely low price of 25 cents, considering that it prints no advertisements. This is not the first time I ever saw this paper, and to one Socialistically inclined it furnishes a mass of more or less exaggerated information. While I plead guilty to Socialistic tendencies, I can't go as far in that direction as do many others. In fact, I never yet have found any one with whom I agreed even approximately on these questions, and I doubt if anybody else ever did. As no two of them agree as to what should be done, no concerted action is taken and every one perches on his own stump and hollows out his own views. Socialism preaches a community of prosperity and opportunities in greater or less degree, but fails in securing a community of ideas among its advocates as to the proper procedure or as to results to be striven for. There should be some efforts made, however, merely as a pastime, to educate those who consider Socialists and Anarchists as of the same class, if such density of mind is not hopeless.

L. L. Burke, whom many will remember as a compositor here twenty years or so ago, has been conducting the Brookville (Ind.) American for several years, and his editorials are recognized as among the ablest of the country press of the State. He was postmaster under Mr. McKinley's administration. When I first knew him he worked on the Record and in those good old days we kept our dupes for a month before turning them in to be measured. Mr. Burke used to take his home (to have them ironed, some of the boys uncharitably said) and kept them in a bureau drawer. Mrs. Burke chanced to find them there one day in Mr. B.'s absence, and being an orderly lady, she could see no sense in having the drawer littered up with scraps of paper, so she burned them. By making an affidavit to what he had (or believed he had) he succeeded in getting paid for his toil Eddie Geyer, of the Night Force, comes from Mr. Burke's town of Brookville.

One of the boys in the Proof Room came across a reminder of former days the other night in one of the Proof Room drawers in the shape of a lead-pencil with a colored spiral wrapper, labelled "Compliments of Charles H. Leeds." It was one of the seductive vote-getters with which Charlie Leeds won his election as delegate to Boston in 1891, at which time his colleagues were W. E. ("Kid") Shields, L. H. Julien, and Charlie Otis.

A. F. BLOOMER.

Specification Notes.

The "extras" all speak well of Uncle Sam's forbearance.

Miss Hattie Robinson will spend her vacation with home friends at Auburn, N. Y.

F. M. Lewis will devote a fraction of his leave to a visit in New York and New Haven.

G. W. Hall will join the Knights of Pythias in their excursion across the country to California.

L. O. Knowles is back to work again and is getting on "just tolerable" since his recent protracted illness.

Billy Howlin will confirne himself to the sands of Colonial Beach and the et ceteras which go with down river luxuries.

A. J. Benton (Ajax) has arranged his program of leave-taking to include sections of the beautiful Hudson, and will top off at Coney Island.

Captain Ramsey laid down the reins of government this morning for fifteen days' recreation in Frederick County, Md. He will be accompanied by his wife.

'Sam Kirby will, as he is wont to do each year, take his family to a quiet nook in Maryland, where they will enjoy together the restful days of an annual leave.

J. B. Rogers will spend his leave at Berkley Springs, W. Va., accompanied by his wife, who hopes to receive a benefit from the health-giving waters of that famous resort.

The following enter upon their annual leave to-day: Misses Robinson, Guild, Trefts, Yowell, and Robbins; Messrs. Lewis, Howlin, Rogers, Burgess, Jones, Gardiner, Kirby, Doyle, Benton, and Hall.

While riding on a tricycle the other day, David Pollock's little boy fell from the seat and broke the bones in his forearm. The fracture called for the services of Dr. Chadwick, and the lad is now doing well.

Miss Brook A. Yowell has decided to spend her leave at Atlantic City, where her eyes will behold for the first time the billowy sea and where she will welcome any good that usually comes by contact with the rolling surf.

We naturally wonder how we ever managed to get along without the annual leave, and wonder if the time will soon come when the benefits of the sick leave will include the G. P. O. so that the time intended for rest and recreation may not be consumed by sickness unavoidable.

Miss Carrie A. Robbins has planned a very pleasant vacation, which includes a trip to Niagara Falls and Buffalo, thence to New York and by boat down the Sound to Boston, where, and in the vicinity, she will spend the greater portion of a thirty day's leave with relatives and friends.

Our much respected fellow-craftsman, D. W. Grady, who passed his leave in the vicinity of Pen-Mar, has returned, bearing evidence of the good that may come from a much needed rest. Apparently he has regained years that were counted as lost or considerably added to the number yet his due.

FUDGE.

Treasury Branch.

Elmer Coates is with us again, his leave having expired.

Miss Annie F. Leonard, of the press room, is spending her leave in the mountains of Pennsylvania.

The following compositors are on leave: Edward S. Moores, James B. Knapp, George C. Williams, and C. M. Evans.

Joseph S. Cornish, who was encamped with the District boys at Leesburg, has about recovered from the effects of digging trenches and is feeling like himself again.

Among the ladies on leave at this writing are: Misses Susie B. Carlisle, Bertie Martin, Mary B. O'Toole, Margaret Brosnan, Theresa M. McDevitt, and A. Trumbo.

Miss Ella A. Featherstone, who has been employed here for some time as an extra, received her probationary appointment, recently. Miss Featherstone has made many friends while with us who were glad to hear of her success.

Judge Holeman, who was sick when he took his leave on July 1, has been granted another month without pay. A recent letter from his daughter states that he is improving and hopes to be able to join us again about September 1.

SUBSCRIBER.

T. V. Powderly, ex-Commissioner of Immigration, and who was formerly at the head of the Knights of Labor movement, is now at the head of a $1,000,000 company that is opening up operations in the anthracite coal field of Pennsylvania, near Tremont.

JAKEY DWIGHT IS ALL RIGHT.

A sure source of delight
Is the wit of Jake Dwight,
Which is clear out of sight
As it breaks on the ear, unbidden, unsought,
And we laugh and grow fat
And scarce know where we're at,
When, plump, plain, and pat,
Into our alley this quaint query is shot:
"Hello, Augie, old jay,
Come now, tell us, I pray,
How your lamps are to-day?"
Said "lamps" being the eyes in Aug's head.
Or when Jake sings his song
'Bout that game of ping pong,
Which he says, will ere long,
Be played by friends of Ross and McPike, we are led
To exclaim in great glee,
Though the point we can't see,
A born wit is Jakey,
Who can "knock the socks" from all rivals, you bet,
Yet, e'en here there's no stop,
For 'cross cases he'll pop,
Now and then, a small crop
Of queries infernal, which make our souls fret.
They're popped at friend Sam,
Who is nobody's clam,
But may not care a d——
'Bout "who stole the ham?"
Though he invariably responds, with a leer,
That Billy Smith is the chap
Who was in on that snap,
With the ham on his lap
And cold bottle on tap,
But just when, where, and how, doesn't ever appear.
And thus, day after day,
Jakey's mind is at play,
With no one to gainsay
That his keen-witted way
Of getting off jokes is in no sense a fake;
Meanwhile we gaze at Jake's jaw,
And, with irreverent awe,
Almost regret there's no law
For sending home to his maw,
That prince of all jesters, our genial friend Jake.

AROUND THE PRINTERIES.

Down Town.

On to Cincinnati!

Fred Fox, of late on Bill Force, G. P. O., left for his home, Syracuse, N.Y., Monday night.

Secretary Wm. M. Garrett, who was indisposed for a few days the past week, was at his desk Wednesday.

George W. Sylvester, of the First Division, G. P. O., is confined at Sibley Hospital, with typhoid fever.

Frank Estep, late of the G. P. O., has left for his home at Danville, Ind., on the banks of the Wabash.

Charles A. Sheldon has been somewhat under the weather for the past few days, but is now convalescent.

O. S. Webster, of the Specification Division of the G. P. O., was indisposed this week, at his country villa, in Brookland.

Joseph O. Young, of the New York Press, delegate-elect to represent Big Six of New York at Cincinnati, made friends and this office pleasant calls this week.

Charles T. Graff, of the Proof Room of the Governmet Printing Office, accompanied by his wife, left to-day for a few days sojourn at Rohoboth Beach, Delaware.

Ex-Vice President Walter V. Smith and ex-Delegate Ernest E. ("Ikey") Wear are spending their annual leave at Harper's Ferry, W. Va. Ping-pong and progressive euchre from 7:30 a. m. until 9 p. m.

The Washington baseball club plays on their home grounds in this city, August 13, 14, and 15—St. Louis being their opponents on said dates. It behooves "our own," from the results of games abroad, to do a little stepping.

There promises to be a large delegation aboard the Washington special for Cincinnati, to attend the International Typographical Union Convention, Friday night. A good time and a lively time is no doubt on tap If not in, get in.

John C. Kellar, of Cleveland, Ohio, President of the National Association of Letter Carriers, is in the city, closing up official affairs, preparatory to going to Denver, Colo., to attend the convention of his organization in September.

"Doc." Beck, well known in the Swamp, who now runs a Merg. on the San Francisco Examiner, writes that William C. Watson and 'Round the World Benj. G. Ferguson have arrived in San Francisco and are contemplating starting the publication of an evening bulletin, similar to the one issued in this town. Here's luck.

The following have recently deposited their traveling cards with Secretary Garrett and became part and parcel of Columbia Union, No. 101: Herbert Eby, Newport News, Va.; W. A. Stewart, Annapolis, Md.; W. A. Randall, Philadelphia, Pa.; G. A. Seaman, New York, N. Y.; D. N. Pendergast, Pawtucket, R. I.; E. D. Hall, E. L. Hall, and Arthur D. Hill, of Grand Forks, British Columbia.

M. J. McCarthy, of the plumbers, who has continuously represented his organization in the Central Labor Union since its formation, has started in the plumbing business in connection with W. J. Hutchinson, 520 Tenth street northwest. "Mike" has always taken a prominent part in the affairs of the Central Labor Union, and his services both as a member of the Contract Committee and the various Labor Day Excursion Committees, will be sadly missed. A successful business career must surely await him, and that he achieves success is the earnest wish of his many friends in the local labor movement of the District.

Table board $20 per month, at 810 New Jersey avenue northwest. Convenient for lunch from the G. P. O.

MRS. M. T. WORK.

Second Division.

There was a considerable shake-up Where, oh where is "Sis" Hopkins? Hope he isn't lost.

The following are on leave: Hutchinson, Holton, and Fitzgerald.

on the Night Force, last Saturday night, and Fred C. Sefton and H. P. McKevitt landed in this division.

A great many from this chapel attended the base ball game last Saturday, and saw a well played game.

J. M. Lenhart, the original average man, has gone on a two months' visit to Pueblo, Colo., for the benefit of his health.

The latest news from Atlantic City is to the effect that our genial foreman is basking in the sunshine and dipping daily in the bowels of the mighty deep at that favorite resort.

Goldstein, our superior man, has gone on his annual leave. During his absence he will visit New York, Philadelphia, and Atlantic City. It is supposed that we will manage to get along without him and not be obliged to close the office during his absence.

Several changes have taken place in this division during the absence of the foreman. Mr. Sherman is acting foreman, and Mr. Saltzman is acting assistant. Mr. Gerber, who hails from a little town out in Missouri called St. Louis, is acting as proofman in place of Mr. Pearshall, who has been advanced five numbers to acting average man and pink-slip artist. All the changes seem to have given satisfaction. Of course, we can not all be trusties.

Third Division.

M. M. Smith was on the sick list last week.

We are all right now since "Funny" Roberts is with us.

Charles Hartwell returned from his leave last Monday.

Martin N. Evans came to work again last Friday, after having spent a very enjoyable month's vacation.

A. F. Lowe and George A. Seaman came to this division as probationary appointees from Porto Rico last Friday.

W. H. Duling "showed up" for work last Friday with a smiling countenance. Bill had a good time and is now ready for hard work.

In the absence of A. L. Randall and J. H. Heslet during the week, W. C. Beddow acted as assistant foreman and T. F. Ellis as postmaster.

E. B. Evans, John M. Loughran and W. D. Thornton were transferred to the Specification last Wednesday. And we have lost our "Little Willie."

It is rumored that while E. E. Richards was sojourning in New York City on his leave recently he kept that precious panama hat of his safely locked in the safe of the Waldorf-Astoria hotel.

W. R. Abbott, Benj. B. F. Graves, F. C. Roberts, and I. Walter Sharp were added to this division last Monday morning. They were formerly of the Night Bill Force until it was dispersed last Saturday night.

Frank Bell, of this division, found a purse last week containing something over a hundred dollars and valuable papers. He was informed soon after that it belonged to Mr. Livermore, of the Proof Room, who, upon its safe return, rewarded Bell quite liberally for his honesty. Bell says that he has five dollars and an easy conscience for his trouble.

The box of peaches which A. M. Willingham sent up from Cartersville, Ga., as a treat for a member of this division, were more than several of the boys could stand. Some of those who got them reported sick Monday morning and most of those were sick who didn't get them. Better results could have been obtained, no doubt, by a more equitable distribution.

So long as "Pard" Bloomer has escaped the "hot mush" pot, we are egotistical enough to not worry much over the literary fate of "Hot Scotch, Jr." "Hot Scotch, Jr.," never studied his rhetoric in a side-door sleeper or learned his arithmetic by counting railway ties, but he has mastered enough of the former in a legitimate way, to prefer the editorial "we" in preference to the personal pronoun "I."

We would advise "P. Q. Liar," of the Job Room, to save his "prohi" ammunition and not waste any more of it on "Pard" Bloomer. It's to good to throw away on such a subject, and it would be far better to fire it in some direction where there are promises of better results. We are in full sympathy with your ideas, but this reckless extravagance of ammunition is something appalling. Keep it dry and may be a lucky chance shot will tempt you in the future.

HOT SCOTCH, JR.

"Old Smooth" is still doing business at the old stand.

Silas Phelps—that name has the ring of hayseedism, hasn't it?—is taking it so-so these days, since his assistant, Colonel Sweeney is on leave.

Old friend effervescent Ellis is still among us, though his name has not appeared in these columns for several moons. He occasionally draws 24 cents extra for a day's sub for some trusty.

Tommy Jones makes a hot chairman. He is up to snuff. He gets his decision—vocalization—a little pied in the delivery, but when it is all out it is a just and good one—at least, from one side.

A. L. Randall has about recovered from the shock that he sustained upon the announcement of the vote received by a friend for whom he "rooted" in the recent election. Al. has lost his cunning.

Poet McPike can grind out a yard or so of poetry at a moment's notice. His latest attempt simply drove Jakey Dwight—my dear Gaston—to the woods for a few days' rest. Jakey says it has a rank-able merit.

We regret that our old friend, Hard Luck Spencer, did not land in this division after leaving the Proof Room. Johnny is a good fellow, but he can set more solid when tables are running than any man in the shop.

Patsy McAuliffe, the boomer and promoter of suburban resorts, spends all his spare time this summer at his favorite outing grounds, Chesapeake Junction. I am told that Mac can now trip the light fantastic to the Queen's taste—the Queen being the lady in red.

"Skinny" Allen, the Wallstreeter, is showing a picture of his boy to his friends. Hank says that the boy is the handsomest that ever struck the town, which statement, of course made "old man" Milt McLaughlin hot under the shoulder straps, for the "old man" has, he says, the finest.

Deacon Wright, defunct chairman and a breezy Westerner, is still long on bear stories. He now tells how he teased a bear by shooting single hairs out of his lordship's eye-lashes, the bear being some 400 yards distant. This is respectfully referred to Windy Brooke and Tom Noyes.

Cochnower, since his return from the Republican State Convention at Harrisburg, Pa., where he helped to fix up the slate for the State offices, has developed into quite a sport. He wears a Panama and has the strut of the ward heeler. "Cochy" is sticking close to his frame these days, though.

Veteran True still keeps fresh war stories on top; Willie was a fighter from way back. Veteran Willie Bailey also has a few selects to give to his friends. These boys are getting gay with the Spanish war veterans—real fighters, these be—and some day we may expect the light and heavy artilleries to meet in mortal combat, b'gosh.

"Dad" McLaughlin goes to Round Hill every Saturday to see his family who are summering there. Last Saturday, "Dad" took out a base ball and bat to Milt, jr., and a ping pong game to little Ikey. "Boys will be boys," says he, "even though they are as gray as I am." Old Milt is a little crickety, but still manages to be around, thank you.

This is not a return to the field of journalism, but simply a re-entry with no return coupon, in order that I may disown that youngster who signs himself "Hot Scotch, Jr.," and to state emphatically that he is not a chip of the old block. Old man "Hot Scotch"—always at your service—believes in strenuousness, and in giving—though with no hard feeling and in the best of spirits—a gentle knock or two to any one who happened our way. At first we thought the baby (H. S., Jr.) would be skee-gee, but later developments proved that he is not of the old man's stamp, and we hereby disown him. He is too pety and feverish. "Hot Scotch" kept everybody on the q. v.

Amos Cummings' Welcome Visitor.

A pathetic incident, not hitherto published, in connection with the last few days of the illness of Amos Cummings, the great newspaper correspondent and member of Congress from the city of New York, was related to the writer a few days ago by an intimate friend of Mr. Cummings.

A few days before Mr. Cummings' death this man paid a visit to the bedside and found Mr. Cummings' face all aglow with excitement. He could hardly restrain himself until his friend took a seat before he drew himself up on his pillow and said in eager tones: "Well, Charlie, who do you suppose called in to see me to-day?" Charlie answered: "Well, I don't know." "Well, guess, Charlie. I want you to guess who called in to see me to-day." His eyes at the same time were beaming with the news he was going to impart gave them.

Charlie answered again: "Well, I don't know, Amos. I might guess all night and then perhaps I would not guess right."

"Well," he said, "it was Cardinal Gibbons. I never spent happier moments in my life than the time when the Cardinal was here with me. He came over to my bed and said: 'Mr. Cummings, I am Cardinal Gibbons. I have never had the pleasure of meeting you personally, but I have known of you for a great many years, and I thought I would come to see you.' 'Cardinal,' I answered, 'I am glad to see you; but I am not a Catholic.'

"'I know that,' replied the Cardinal, 'but you are a good man. You have done a lot of good work in the world. You have used the brains and energy which were given you by God for the betterment and uplifting of your fellowman.'

"'Thank you, for that,' I said, 'I appreciate that compliment, coming from you, more than anything that has ever been said to me. I have simply done what I thought was right in the world and fought for the under dog, and what you say about my work pleases me more than any compliment I could receive.'

"'The world is better for men like you, Mr. Cummings,' replied the Cardinal. 'I have watched your career for a great many years and I know the difficulties you had to contend with in your youth and how you struggled against them, and I have watched your career in public life and have read your newspaper stories with the greatest interest, and in every sphere of life I noted that you had been a good man, that you had done good work, and I hope that God will bless you for it.' Then the Cardinal left."

Mr. Cummings' whole being seemed to be moved with new life as he told the story. The day before he had seemed discouraged and disheartened at the thought that he was surely going to die. After Cardinal Gibbons' visit his spirit seemed to have changed. He seemed to have a load lifted from his shoulders, and he was as happy over the visit of Cardinal Gibbons as a boy with a new found toy.—Boston Republic.

If some people did nothing but mind their own business they would soon become rather narrow-minded.

Many a man would be happy if he could only get a divorce from his mother-in-law without severing his other domestic ties.

THE CENTRAL LABOR UNION

Chair Appoints Standing Committees for Ensuing Term.

ROBERT I. FLEMING INDORSED

Credentials Received—Telephone Operator Matter—Many Cases Referred to Grievance Committee—Dahle Matter Referred to Carpenters and Joiners—Communications Disposed of.

The Central Labor Union was called to order in weekly session, Monday night, at Typographical Temple, by President Hamerstrom.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Secretary Winslow, and approved by the body.

Credentials were received from Grocery Clerks' Association, No. 533, certifying Messrs. T. I. Cavanaugh, L. C. Chauncey, Lawrence Hayes, Joseph F. A. O'Brien, and John W. Gill; from International Interior Marble and Slate Cutters and Setters' Association, No. 8, certifying J. W. Fanning; from Journeymen Horseshoers' Union, No. 17, certifying Andrew Wise, vice P. Curtin; from Musicians' Protective Union, Local No. 161, certifying Messrs. M. S. Crown, J. B. Caldwell, W. H. Mohler, George W. Sunderland, and L. R. Boyd.

Bartenders' League communicated their grievance against J. J. Lewis, saloon keeper, 109 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. This matter was referred to the Grievance Committee.

Paperhangers, Local No. 420, requested that this body place the firm of Bogan & Leary, dealers in wall paper, upon the unfair list. This matter was referred to the Grievance Committee.

Journeymen Barbers' International Union, No. 239, presented a lengthy communication stating they had placed the following upon the unfair list: George T. Harper, 3320 M street; George W. Raybold, 311 315 Pennsylvania avenue; C. W. Fischer, 1211 Thirty second street; A. E. Schulze, 2907 M street; Phil German, 928 Ninth street; Hohmann, Bros., corner of Fifth and H streets; J. Philip Eimer, 432 Eleventh street northwest; Henry Bredekamp, 309 Seventh street, and Fred Wassmann, 218 Seventh street southwest. This communication was referred to the Grievance Committee.

The communication of Haller & Haller, paperhangers, 1338 New York avenue, requesting the secretary to call upon them, was referred to the Painters' Union.

The officers of the National Convention of Employer and Employe communicated inviting the officers and members of this body to participate at a convention to be held at Minneapolis, September 22 to 26. They believe, so the communication goes, "that this convention will complete the arrangements and settle all difficulties between employers and their employes." This communication was placed on file.

The Watch Case Engravers appealed for the moral support of this body and requested that its members avoid purchasing sweat shop or non-union made goods from the factories of the T. Zurbrugg Watch Case Company, of Riverside, N. J., the Philadelphia Watch Case Company, the Crescent Watch Case Company, the Fahys Watch Case Company, the Brooklyn Watch Case Company, and the Wadsworth Watch Case Company. The communication was referred to the Label Committee.

A communication was read from International Union of Steam Engineers, No. 99, indorsing the action of this body in placing a fine of $5 upon any member of their organization patronizing Chevy Chase Lake and grounds. The communication was placed on file.

The communication from National League, United Protective League of Labor, inviting this body to visit them at an open meeting for union workers only, was filed.

The Brotherhood of Railway Freight and Baggage Handlers of America communicated setting forth their intention of later requesting affiliation with the American Federation, and their plan and prospectus of organization. This communication was referred to the Organization Committee.

Grievance Committee reported that E. C. Dahle had signed a Central Labor Union contract, and requested that his place of business be removed from the unfair list, he having succeeded his father in the business. Contract was accepted and the matter relative to removing Ernest Dahle from the unfair list was referred to Carpenters and Joiners' Union, No. 190

Carriage and Wagon Workers, No. 72, stated that Charles Walters had unionized his establishment and requested that he be removed from the unfair list. Request granted.

Carpet Upholsterers complained of inactivity of Grievance Committee, and requested that their grievance against W. B. Moses & Son be taken from the hands of said committee and that this body place the said firm upon the unfair list. Request refused.

Oil Wagon Drivers called attention to the union sign displayed on their wagons, so that members would patronize only union firms when buying oil.

Recently the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, it is said, discharged one of its switchboard operators, who was prominent in forming the Telephone Operators' Union. The body took steps to have her reinstated, and appropriated a sum sufficient to reimburse her for the time lost.

Robert I. Fleming, a carpenter and union man, was indorsed for the position of Commissioner of the District.

President Hamerstrom named the following standing committees for the ensuing six months:

Legislative—Milford Spohn, chairman: J. B. Shurgue, H. W. Sherman, A. R. Cowan, and Miss C. W. Costigan.

Grievance—J. B. Dickman, chairman; Charles W. Winslow, E. A. Bachrach, William Silver, and N. Sprague.

Contract—J. H. Babcock, chairman; H. T. Rogers, T. Stevens, A. R. Raymond, and George Miller, jr.

Organization—F. V. Pletcher chairman; G. D. Baily, S. M. Wilder, W. Miller, N. Jobes, and E. J. Ratigan.

Bakers Drivers' Union.

At their meeting held on Thursday evening last nominations for delegates and alternates to the Toledo convention, on September 8, were completed. The following members were placed in nomination for delegates, two to be chosen: Messrs. Carl Hering, Thomas C. Fox, J. E. Toone, William Jorg, and Fred. W. Fox. Messrs. J. E. Toone and Fred W. Fox were chosen as delegates, and Messrs. William Jorg and Thomas C. Fox were named as alternates.

In order to place matters right before the public relative to the driver who was recently arrested for stealing bread and who forfeited his collateral of $10 and was not a member of their union, this organization adopted the following resolution:

WHEREAS, A short while ago a non-union baker's driver forfeited $10 collateral after being arrested on the charge of stealing bread from a union driver, we desire to express our appreciation of the vigilance and faithful discharge of duty by a member of the Metropolitan police force, therefore be it,

Resolved, That we, the members of Bakers Drivers' Union, No. 33, forward to Major Sylvester the sum of $5 to be turned over to the police relief fund.

To the Oil Wagon Drivers Local, No. 296, belongs the credit for most prominently displaying in this city the sign of intelligence and the emblem of liberty—the team drivers' official union label.

WASHINGTON AT CINCINNATI.

A Letter Narrating Incidents of Trip and Arrival in the Queen City.

[Staff Correspondent THE TRADES UNIONIST.]

CINCINNATI, O., Augnst 10, 1902.

The Washington contingent, thirty strong, arrived in Cincinnati on Saturday evening and immediately started a campaign to secure the convention for Washington in 1903. Every visitor and delegate was soon supplied with the official button and argument in favor of Washington's claim for the next convention. The result is beginning to show itself in the sentiment created in favor of Washington. The convention committee have received assurances sufficient to warrant the statement that we have all other competitors distanced.

The trip from Washington to Cincinnati proved very enjoyable to the party, although some of the crowd tried to banish sleep and make the night into one long day. Nature, however, asserted itself, and sleep that was at a premium at one time went down to par.

The arrangements for the party was looked after by Mr. Bond, of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway, who came down to see that all the wants of the crowd was fully met.

Nothing elsewhere can compare as favorably as the scenery on the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway through the Allegheny Mountains, and those of the party who were making their first trip West enjoyed the picturesque scenery through the Shenandoah Valley and the New River section.

The local entertainment committee has prepared an extensive program for the visitors and delegates. Saturday night was given up to a stroll around the classic precincts of the Rhine country, while Sunday evening a smoker was given at one of the summer gardens over the river in Kentucky.

The convention met promptly at 9:30 Monday morning, and, after the usual greetings from the city officials and the local union, President Lynch declared the convention ready for business, the chairman of the golden jubilee committee first presenting him with an ivory gavel.

Resolutions of sympathy and encouragement were passed on account of the United Mine Workers' strike.

After announcing appointment of the committee on credentials, the convention adjourned to meet Tuesday morning, after being invited to pose for a group photograph.

The local committee then extended an invitation to all delegates and visitors to take a trolley ride in the afternoon to see the city and its beautiful suburbs and to take a boat ride to Coney Island, on the banks of the Ohio, a resort about 12 miles up the river, which, of course, was readily accepted.

Referring again to the button given out by Washington's convention committee, the toothpick seems to have been received with greater favor, as it is more of a novelty as well as being a useful and necessary article.

The Newark delegation have met us with good-natured rivalry, and no one will receive better care than the gentlemen comprising that delegation when they come to Washington next year.

Since the arrival of the Washington contingent here it has been augmented by the coming later of ex-President E. A. M. Lawson, Oscar Ricketts, B. F. Constantine, and D. J. Roberts, the last-named gentleman being en route back to Washington greatly improved by his trip West. T. M. R.

Bindery Notes.

Foreman P. J. Byrne has taken a trip by sea to Boston and Portland, Me.

Wiley Reed has returned from his leave, which he spent in this city.

Foreman Miller has returned from Atlantic City much improved in health.

"Slippery-Slick" Joe Day expects to spend his leave in Paradise Park, New York city.

R. H. McPherson, a well-known and highly respected bookbinder, died on August 3. He was buried August 4.

Johnny Burns, the champion ping pong player of the bindery, has been suffering of late from an over indulgence in crabs.

Joseph Beal, an old member of the union, died on July 31. His funeral was held on August 1, from 320 East Capitol street.

One of the new men just appointed recognized Bob Barrett as the delegate who cleaned his eye-glasses in the last convention with a $10 bill.

George Barnes celebrated his golden wedding at Atlantic City. It was his first trip outside of the District, and when he heard the tidal waves he took up quarters near the railroad station.

Jack Quinlan, after returning from a recent smoker, while undressing in a great hurry pulled the neck band off his shirt. The room was dark so he carefully laid the band away on a chair. Great was his surprise when he woke with his shirt on. Jack tells this himself.

On August 7, the wedding bells rang out for James McManus, a cutter in the bindery. He engagaged Bill Reese to look after a banquet for his friends in the bindery. Bill did his work well, and that night many toasts were drank to Jim McManus, and a few bromos the following morning.

The serious illness of Ernest LeGrys is deeply regretted.

After a prolonged siege of illness, I am glad to see Ed. Stough back in the harness.

After enjoying a well-merited vacation, Huse returned looking as brown as a berry.

L. D. Weeks has charge of the Proof Room in the absence of Williams, who is on leave.

The following went on leave last week: Dennison, Leighton, Hennessy, Heidingsfeld, and King.

Castel has been suffering from a boil on a very tender spot for several days, although able to follow his occupation.

This week the following will take their leave: F. W. Follett, G. D. Ellis, J. A. Morrow, D. L. Mackley, Ernest LeGrys, and Arthur West (laborer).

Brayton reached the conclusion it was harvest time, consequently a mower was called into requisition, and that enormous crop of hair disappeared like chaff before the wind. The lucky finder will have enough to fill a good size mattress.

That sponge episode in which our temporary folio man was the chief sufferer, is proof that boys will be boys. The worst feature of it was that the fancy white suit had to be hanged on the clothes line to dry, and a change to something heavier was necessary the next day.

Doty returned from his fishing expedition in Ontario, looking hale and hearty and reporting good sport. He is very modest as regards the size of the fish caught, a 5½ pound bass being the average; but the largest sea serpent seen reached half way across Lake Ontario. That's a good snake story.

On their way to Cincinnati, Messrs. Young and Flanagan, of New York, stopped in this city for a brief time to renew old acquaintances and making lots of new ones. Pete Flanagan is the embodiment of good nature, and the anecdotes told showed his jovial nature. Mr. Young is one of the representatives of Big 6 and Mr. Flanagan an ex-delegate. Both are bankmen, the former on the Press and the latter on the Times. Call again, boys.

Jerry Dennison and Frank Kidd, of this division, are attending the Typographical Convention at Cincinnati. By the way Jerry will take advantage of this occasion to visit his old home, Anderson, Indiana. By the size of the trunk he carried, the visit will not be very extended, for the contents were not meant for the display of wearing apparel, etc., but for joviality. Joe Fritz was told to handle the trunk very carefully while at the depot awaiting the arrival of the train, with strict orders not to let it drop. Suppose Joe had dropped that precious bundle, what a calamity.

Anent the intention of Stanley B. Ridings to pay the old homestead in Missouri a visit during the latter part of the month, the long-lost "Hannibal" hands in the following:

When Stanley returns to the home of his childhood,
The ducks and the geese will rejoice in their hearts,
They well they remember how, when in his boyhood,
He always took pleasure in taking their parts;
He fed them and nursed them when in deep affliction,
And saw that their babies ne'er suffered no harm,
He coop'd them, releas'd them, and hence the commotion
When Stanley appears at the gate to the farm.
The king of the barnyard in accents stentorian
Will welcome the stranger with "Cuck-cuck-cuck-koo,"
Then Stanley will brace like a born Washingtonian
And ask the old rooster, "Well, Bill, how de do?"
But when the gray mule will espy the young master,
The tears will flow as they ne'er flow'd before,
And Stanley will pat the long neck of the critter,
Promising he'll never leave home any more.

Judging from the daily crowds that take advantage of the cheap and frequent train service to this popular resort, at last the sun-scorched, worn-out crowds, caused by the humidity of the weather, have found and appreciate this nearby seaside resort.

The cooling zephyr breezes from the bay dance to the ozone-laden rippling wavelets.

The bathing, crabbing, and other fishing is particularly good.

THE CINCINNATI CONVENTION

The Next Convention To Be Held in Washington in 1903.

365 DELEGATES WERE PRESENT

President Lynch Presides—The Largest Convention Ever Held—Sympathy and Moral Support Extended to the Miners—The Referendum Sustained—Important Legislation—The Militia Proposition.

[Special to THE TRADES UNIONIST.]

CINCINNATI, August 14, 1902.

The convention, by a close vote today, decided to hold the Forty-Ninth Annual Typographical Convention at Washington in 1903.

The forty-eighth annual convention of the International Typographical Union began its session at Cincinnati, Monday, with 365 delegates in attendance. Many women were present owing to the first convention of the Ladies' Auxiliary. Acting Mayor Chas. J. Christie, Chairman Local Committee on Arrangements Edmund O'Connell, and President Cincinnati Union Alvin McReynolds made addresses of welcome, to which President J. M. Lynch, of the International Typographical Union, responded.

A resolution of sympathy and support for the United Mine Workers in their anthracite strike was adopted.

Much time was taken up by reading the report on laws and President Lynch's supplemental address on the same. The officers then made their annual reports and the convention adjourned to Tuesday.

The report of Secretary-Treasurer Bramwood showed that the receipts from June 1, 1901, to May 31, 1902, were $151,141, and the expenditures for the same period $145,760, the balance on hand being $38,072. The present membership is 39,711—typographical (English and German), 37,986; photo-engravers, 476; mailers, 789; type founders, 407; newspaper writers, 73. During the year there were 20 strikes, 9 resulting in victory for the union, 3 being lost, and 8 in progress.

Frederick Driscoll, commissioner of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, delivered an address on contracts, arbitration, and relations between publishers and printers' unions. He asked for enactment of several amendments to the general laws which would promote the best interests of both parties. His address was ordered spread upon the minutes.

In order that the Typographical Journal, the official organ, might be self-sustaining, it was decided to issue same monthly instead of semi-monthly as now in vogue.

In the consideration of laws the committee on laws was sustained in disapproving the majority of the eighty propositions presented. The most important reversion of the committee was on the restricting of the time of machine operators. The committee were opposed to limiting machine men to six days per week, and other restrictions, so as to give substitutes better opportunities, but the convention reversed this action.

The following special and standing committees were named:

Appeals—Walsh of Springfield, Ill., Drury of Montreal, Anderson of Macon, Thorson of Topeka, and Gray of Lansing.

Label—Gibbons of Detroit, Wells of Memphis, Downway of Portland, Ore., Byrne of New Orleans, and Walls of New York.

Union Printers' Home—Haley of New York, Weakley of Kansas City, Stidgert of Colorado Springs, Wilson of Grand Rapids, and Farnhof of Chicago.

Organization—Williams of Milwaukee, Powell of Toronto, Scott of Cleveland, Stock of Charleston, and Gerth of Louisville.

Allied Trade Relations—Wickers of Boston, Finlay of Cincinnati, Anderson of Toledo, Healy of Albany, Grosse of Kansas City, Miscellaneous Business—Corliss of Scranton, Dowling of Elmira, O'Donnell of Columbus, O., DeWarf of Indianapolis, Devereux of St. Paul.

Officers' Reports—Davelen of Salt Lake City, Stewart of Philadelphia, Whitmore of Rochester, Garman of Denver, Finkel of Peoria.

Returns and Finance—Maddigan of Chicago, McPail of Boston, Kelly of Bay City, Mich., Hay of Los Angeles, Hill of Nashville.

Subordinate Unions—Walker of Galveston Beautain of Springfield, O., Coryell of Buf-

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL WASHINGTON. 2

THURSDAY, AUGUST 14, 1902.

IN order to do justice to our local unions and members and give prompt attention to required changes of secretaries and meeting place and time of unions affiliated with the Central Labor Union, the insertion of trade news and so forth, that disappointment in this respect may be easily avoided, we would urgently request all unions to forward the former matter to Charles W. Winslow, secretary of the Central Labor Union, and the latter to this office at their earliest possible opportunity.

Too True.

We have too many politicians in this country of ours who imagine they are a whole constellation of bright stars, when they are a poor quality of candle dips—except when they dip deeply, too deeply into the pockets of the people. The workingman should take a more active part in politics and not let the politicians have everything their own way, and their own conditions would be improved.—Exchange.

Operators Who Don't Operate.

It seems rather impertinent for the coal-mine owners to call themselves "operators." The men who really operate the mines are the miners, engineers, firemen, pump men and laborers. The owners operate Wall Street financial deals; they operate fake "conciliation" plans which don't conciliate; they operate news agencies for the purpose of lying about the unions; they operate shrewd political schemes for their own benefit. But the coal industry could very well be operated and the people supplied with fuel without their intervention—and the real operators, the workmen, would be better off. Let us call things by their right names. Let us call the workmen "operators" and call the capitalists "appropriators."
—The Carpenter.

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

A little over thirty years ago, Billy Wade and I having arrived in Pittsburg (the only time I ever went there looking for work) just in time to witness the obsequies and listen to the eulogies of The Paper, up to that time Pittsburg's greatest newspaper venture, and which had run for about three months on wind and water, it was up to us to get elsewhere, for the town was alive and crawling with printers, attracted by the fatness and apparently glowing prospects of the late deceased. We had come from Philadelphia, the month was March, the weather was cold, we were broke, and the bluebird had not yet whistled that it was time to "take to the road." We started out across the Allegheny River, with Wheeling as an objective point and Steubenville as an intermediate oasis in the desert of ice and snow.

As it was late when we started, we did not reach Steubenville until the next day, where we found warmth, rest, and sleep the following night in a glass furnace, and workmen generous with their dinner pails. We worked a day on the Steubensville Cataclysm, solid long primer, 21 cents a thousand, and earned just enough to carry us to Wheeling — say $1.23 apiece. At Wheeling we were no better off—the overflow from Pittsburg had flooded the town and every "frame" was watched by from two to six "subs" to see if the owner thereof was likely to fall dead. As we were domiciled at the famous hostelry of Mrs. Haggerty, we were sufficiently comfortable to wait a few days. But the prospect of work growing worse instead of better, we made up our minds that we would have to again take the road.

Across the Ohio and down to Bellaire we wended our way, where we made a faint bluff at "jumping a train," without success, as Billy Wade never was a train jumper, and I was blood raw at the business. Westward we marched, camping at night wherever we could find shelter—once or twice by burrowing into a straw stack. One night we came to a little switch house, with a stove in it. I think the edifice was about 5 feet square, for I could not straighten out, lying beside the stove, which we had fired up to warm and dry ourselves, as we had been caught in a rain. As the little shack got warmed up we heard a buzzing.

"Holy Harry!" said Billy; "we have struck a hornets' nest!"

"Hornets or no hornets," said I, "I am not going out into the rain."

We took off our coats and covered our hands and faces, which fairly protected us, and, lulled by the murmurs of the discontented little beasts, were soon fast asleep. While we did not escape scatheless, our wounds were few, and the fire having died out during the night, and the hornets again reduced to torpidity by cold, we got away in the morning without bidding our hosts good-bye.

The only towns through which we passed that I remember were Barnesville and Zanesville, whose chief mission has been the furnishing of printers to the outside world, not in employing those from elsewhere.

After five days weary, continuous plodding we saw the spires and domes of Columbus, and late on a Sunday afternoon we arrived in the composing room of the State Journal. After listening to our story of adventures and escapes from the perils of field and flood one blessed old brother asked me to go home with him and take tea. Tea!—with the gnawing there was in me! But, though I had left my society clothes behind and would have looked more appropriate in a livery stable with a four-tined fork in my hands, I went. After witnessing my opening the family sat back and dallied with their spoon; they were interested in me, and considerate as well—interested to see how much I would eat, and considerate in leaving it for me. The average Sunday evening tea is not much at its best; this was less than nothing at its worst, which was when I got through with it. The next day I secured quarters at the Hotel Reynolds, and for three weeks I held forth on the Journal, when I flew the coop and went to Cleveland in a car that had doors at the ends. Billy Wade had gone to work on the Statesman, of which Graff Pierce was foreman, and Johnny Handiboe tells me he stayed in the town about two years, finally going to Cincinnati by the same mode of conveyance by which we had come from Wheeling. I have never seen Wade since, but often heard of him, and now in his old age, I am glad to know that he is comfortably domiciled in the Colorado Springs Union Printers' Home, where he has been for several years, accredited to Chicago, but he belonged to the whole United States. I hope he may live as long as did his father—an old employe of the Hansards in London—which will give him twenty-five or thirty years yet.

* * * *

This was my first real "tramp," but I had others later on. I do not remember the names of many who worked in Columbus at that time, but there are a few who still live in my recollection. Jim Turney, a former Wheeling man, was foreman of the State Journal; "old man" Riley and "one-eyed" A. W. Reynalds were among the caseholders, while "Wes" Stevens was just finishing his apprenticeship. Milt Burroughs and Rod Mears were subbing. Dave Boyer was a prominent members of the Union, but I don't remember where he worked. There was an election contest on for officers of the Union, and among the contestants were Major Williams, of the Statesman, and Sam Leffingwell, of the State printing office. Sam captured me on my arrival and I voted for him and supported him loyally. He has been, to the best of my information, a frequent candidate since, but has changed his bailiwick from Columbus to Indianapolis. Of course Major Williams was elected delegate.

Ring, H. F. Sauter, A. W. Bowen, C. A. Sheldon, E. E. Wear, Charles T. Graff, W. M. Leavitt, Don L. Murray, and the four for this year, whose names are still remembered.

A. T. Cavis, Robert Penman, T. F. Maher, J. T. Halleck, D. W. Flynn, E. MacMurray, W. R. McLean, T. F. Fitzwilliam, W. J. Bennett, J. M. Richards, A. F. Randolph, W. H. Norton, M. B. Godwin, E. B. Robinson, Samuel Haldeman, F. C. O'Neill, Julian L. Wright, W. W. Nolle, J. T. Clements, O. S. Montz, and L. H. Jullian are dead.

The whereabouts, or whether living, of S. P. Robertson, S. E. Culverwell, T. W. Clarke, and J. K. Seagraves are unknown to me.

B. S. Platt is enrolling clerk of the United States Senate. Allen Coffin is practicing law down on Nantucket Island, Mass. August Donath, Harvey G. Ellis, R. W. Kerr, E. W. Oyster, and George W. Cox are Department clerks. Geo. M. DePue and E. M. Blake were in the Labor Bureau the last I heard of them. William Briggs and John J. Higgins are clerks in the G. P. O. Jackson H. Ralston is a prominent lawyer of this city. George A. Tracy and E. C. Jones are in the Philippines. J. L. Kennedy was an Industrial Commissioner—I believe a newspaper man now. Dexter Hussey is a Chicago machine operator. J. W. Usilton and W. E. Greenfield are in Baltimore. M. H. Kendig is a Chicago employing printer. Tom Lawler is running a wet goods emporium at Sunbury, Ed. Toner is in Denver. Jake Schoepf is a street car magnate of Cincinnati. Charlie Holmes is in the Weather Bureau somewhere. Ed. Morgan was in Pittsburg, but is now about town.

George M. Ramsey, who was a delegate to New York in 1885, has since been president, secretary, and delegate of the Pressmen's Union, the I. P. P. and A. U., he being a pressman as well as an all-round printer.

W. R. McLean was three times a delegate and was president of the I. T. U. in 1873-74. A. T. Cavis, George A. R. McNeir, D. W. Flynn, A. P. Marston, Wm. Briggs, and John S. Leech were each elected delegate twice. Samuel Holdeman was president of the I. T. U. in 1879-80.

The following ex-delegates also served as president of Columbia Union: George A. R. McNeir, W. W. Maloney, O. F. Mattingly, W. R. Ramsey (three terms), W. H. Sweeney, C. M. Robinson (two terms), A. P. Marston, John B. Dickman, J. L. Kennedy (two terms), W. E. Shields (two terms), G. A. Tracy (two terms), E. C. Jones (two terms), and E. A. M. Lawson (two terms).

Members who have served as delegates and as secretary (corresponding or financial) are: E. MacMurray, A. T. Cavis, R. W. Kerr, C. M. Robinson, W. W. Maloney, Ed. Morgan, J. M. Richards, Wm. Briggs, and W. F. Dunn.

The following are or have been foreman or assistants: Geo. A. R. McNeir, A. T. Cavis, J. T. Halleck, D. W. Flynn, W. R. McLean, J. M. A. Spottswood, W. R. Ramsey, C. M. Robinson, W. H. Hickman, D. W. Beach, Albert Cottle, W. H. Norton, J. M. Maloney, Sam Haldeman, R. W. Kerr, F. C. O'Neill, W. F. Dunn, G. A. Tracy, E. W. Oyster, W. E. Shields, E. A. M. Lawson, C. C. Thompson, J. L. Kennedy, J. K. Seagraves, A. L. Randall, John S. Leech, C. E. Holmes, E. C. Jones, and A. W. Bowen. I do not mean that they were foremen when elected, though the Union has been reasonably generous in that regard.

As there are about 60 ex-delegates in this city, 49 of whom are on the active roll of the Union, I suggest the advisability of forming an Ex-Delegates' Association. Not being eligible to membership until next year, the suggestion is entirely disinterested on my part. A meeting and banquet once a year would be very enjoyable—say the last night of the year, when everybody could be there. Who will start the movement?

A. F. BLOOMER.

Los Angeles will organize a union labor party, advocating the political demands of the American Federation of Labor.

Job Division.

For reasons satisfactory to myself I have not sent notes from this division for several weeks, and was much surprised to see my temperance effusion three weeks after it was written. I do not wonder that Mr. Bloomer was disgusted that I had taken up space with "nonsense," when there were so many items of real interest that might have claimed my attention. But it was not my fault that it appeared; I thought it had perished in the waste basket. I write this in self defense that I may not appear to be wholly wrapped up in my hobby. But "them's my sentiments," and we'll let it go at that.

The fairy god that presides over the realm of dreamland got her trolleys crossed a few nights ago, and the following wireless was delivered to me. It was possibly intended for my old friend Bloomer, so I respectfully dedicate it to him:

BLOOMER'S UTOPIA.

Last night I dreamed of a land so fair,
Where the rivers were Heurich's beer,
Where gin fizzes, like fountains, shot up in the air,
And everything else was queer.

Broad streams of old Wilson on every hand,
Great lakes of cold Rhine wine,
And pumps spouting cocktails to beat the band,
For the thirsty ones standing in line.

Creme de menthe swamps of beautiful green,
With islands of fine cracked ice—
Such a sight never before was seen—
Ah! But that dream was nice.

Mint juleps in puddles filled the street,
The gutters were flowing with booze,
And tired old hoboes, from their curb-side seat,
Wept that so much they must lose.

High balls galore rolled around on the ground
And were chased by a thirsty crowd,
While the paralyzed grafters hanging around
In drunken glee shouted aloud.

Champagne flowed from the fire plugs,
And bubbled, and sparkled, and popped,
And the street sweepers drank it from big stone jugs—
All kinds of work had been stopped.

But I found when I woke from this bibulous dream,
The result of an all-night bat,
And when the wet things had flowed in a beautiful stream—
They had carried me home on a slat.

Third Division.

W. R. Abbott is on leave.

Alfred Thomson was on the sick list last week.

Burr G. Williams is subbing at the press for McLaughlin.

Willie Beddow has been acting postmaster during the past week.

"Deacon" Wright says he told the bear story so long ago that he has forgotten all about it.

J. W. Vanarsdell has returned from his leave and is now able to smile without the least effort.

Titus F. Ellis, "Jakey" Dwight, and William H. Bailey are in Cincinnati during the convention.

C. J. Sheriff is bankman during the absence of Hank Allen, who is off on leave. There is a lull in the financial quarters of the office since Hank left and the symposium is like a ship without a rudder.

Since "Pard" Bloomer has gone to Cincinnati with the crowd and is performing a portion of the arduous duties that usually fall upon our delegates to the I. T. U. convention, we haven't anything but the most kind words for him. We wish him a pleasant journey and a good time and hope that he will come home covered with convention honors.

Gee whiz! Old man "Hot Scotch" has sobered up long enough to write a line again. It would seem, however, that his Rip Van Winkle sleep ought to have been refreshing enough to have enabled him to write about something aside from ancient history. Give us some "hot stuff" about modern affairs, old gent, and we'll let you have the field.

The following is the farewell note of a disconsolate night-hawk found upon his frame by the day man: "Well, pard, it's done! Yes, the fatal blow has been struck! Before the sunshine and showers, joys and vicissitudes, pink slips and alls of another year shall have came and went, I fear the Goverment Printing Office will be hopelessly beyond redemption—all because the P. P. thought he could run it without me. Farewell! My one comforting thought is that I shall not be here to see the terrible end. I'm off to 'Georgy.'"

Steve Smith, an old employe who became "separated from the service," recently," sent me a copy of the Port Huron Times, and in it I discovered the following lines from Steve's poetic pen, which show that, although in a way luck has deserted him the muses have not, and that he takes life in a philosophical fashion, enjoying the pleasant things of life as they come along:

FISHIN' ON THE BLUE ST. CLAIR.

When you've labored hard and steady
Till the world seems gone to rack,
When it seems there's nothing in it
But to wait for doom to crack—
Then's the time to hunt your tackle,
Come along—forget your care,
Here's the place to lose your troubles,
Fishin' on the blue St. Clair.

Light your pipe, put on a minnow,
Drop your hook in anywhere;
Straighten up your stooping shoulders,
Fill your lungs with good fresh air,
Then a fish will take your minnow—
Gone is every single care,
And your troubles are forgotten—
Fishin' on the blue St. Clair.

When your string has grown a plenty,
And you homeward wend your way,
With your pipe a working smoothly
In the moonbeam's silver way,
What a story you're concocting,
And you've but one single care—
'Tis the tale of how you caught 'em,
Fishin' on the blue St. Clair.

HOT SCOTCH, JR.

Treasury Branch.

John T. Heck was transferred to this division from the First last week.

Theodore Reier, pressman, and Farmer Thompson, of Virginia, are on leave.

The following compositors went on leave this week: John Mulroy, Ira Taylor, and W. Brice Coston.

Miss Lucy Morrison returned to work last week after having spent fifteen days of her leave very pleasantly at Atlantic City.

Eddie Moores returned to work Monday. He took in the trip to Boston by sea and all the points of interests in and about that city during his three weeks' absence.

The following ladies were transferred to this division from the main office last week: Miss Mamie T. Kane, Anna M. Keefe, Julia A. Wyatt, Mary E. Mangan, Augusta Russell, and Esther L. Danforth.

Mr. Patrick T. Wade, father of Leonard Wade, of this division, died Monday evening after a long illness. Mr. Wade was in the seventy-third year of his age, an old resident of this city, and a highly respected citizen.

A letter from Jim Knapp, who is spending two weeks on the Chesapeake Bay, says, among other things, that he is learning how to play cribbage during his spare time and that he hopes to win a game now and then when he returns to the city.

SUBSCRIBER.

We are in receipt of a souvenir copy of the Golden Jubilee Convention of International Typgraphical Union now in session at Cincinnati. It is a neatly printed book of ninety-two pages, containing the program of entertainment and covention, the list of delegates in attendance a few interesting sketches, many half tones of prominent union printers, and an array of tastely displayed ads. The whole is inclosed in a dark Bokhara cover richly embellished in gold and green inks. All in all it is a rich piece of the art typographical.

Of 798 unions, with an aggregate membership of 60,590, reporting the state of employment to the American Federation of Labor for the month of June, 1,206 were without employment, or 1 9 per cent. This is the lowest point reached so far this year.

AROUND THE PRINTERIES.

Down Town.

Union meeting Sunday.

How about that union label on that box from which you buy your cigar?

W. A. Beasley, late of Bill Force, G. P. O., left Wednesday for Chicago.

Thomas J. Travis, late of the big printery's Bill Force, left for York, Pa., to-day.

Frank Parks and Al. Huggins, late of the Census Printing Bureau in this city, are located at Springfield, Mo.

Don't forget in your list of pleasure engagements the excursion of the Central Labor Union to River View, on Labor Day. Make it one of them.

The office of President Gompers and Secrtary Morrison of the American Federation of Labor, are undergoing much needed repairs in the way of papering cleaning, etc.

F. S. Clinton and Rodney L. Thixton, of the G. P. O. foundry, represented their union at the first convention of the International Stereotypers and Electrotypers at Cincinnati, this week.

Charles W. Otis, of the Proof Room, G. P. O., leaves for Saratoga, N. Y., where he will remain for a few days, and from there he will go to Arlington, Vt., to enjoy a well earned leave.

J. W. Halford, late of the Weather Bureau at Raleigh, N. C., is now pleasantly located with us. Having formerly been employed here, he has many friends, who were pleased to see him back again. Mr. Halford represented his union at Raleigh at the I. T. U. convention at Cincinnati.

The Washington baseball team returned after a disastrous Western trip and began a series of three games with St. Louis. On August 16, 18, and 19 they cross bats with the Clevelands, and with Chicago on August 20, 21, and 22. Perhaps they may play better ball, being at home, or at least let us hope so.

The Departmental League, composed of baseball teams from the different Government Departments in this city, are playing interesting ball. To-day the War Department and Navy Yard meet at the ball park at Seventh and Florida avenue northwest at 5:30 p. m. This league is scheduled to play until October 1.

J. F. Gambrill, formerly employed on the Bill Force in the G. P. O.. and later transferred to Specification Division, resigned last week to accept the position of superintendent of a large fruit-packing establishment at Princess Anne, Md. Well, here's hoping there is more money and comfort in it than on the Specification.

If you want Crabs go to Driscoll's, N. Cap. and G. Overholt whisky 10c.

First Division.

Visitors go scurrying,
Cockroaches go burrying,
Comps stop work in affright.
Cats go on wauling,
Kids go on bawling,
We're all in a terrible plight.
The frame go a shaking,
The building is quaking,
The lights flare up and go out.
The type goes a rattling,
The floors are a settling,
We don't know what we're about.
The fans go a jangling,
Sure someone is strangling,
We start to go down on our knees.
When we're told with alacrity,
And Leed's sagacity,
It's Major's "dad gasted measly old sneeze."

Frank Richardson has gone to Boston by sea for the benefit of his health.

Chairman Mabrey after a two-weeks' sickness returned to work on Monday last.

W. T. Heritage has been granted an extra 30 days' leave of absence on account of sickness.

Charles Warren has gone on a trip to St. Louis, Mo., to visit his relatives. On his return trip he would visit Niagara Falls and Canada.

George W. Sylvester, who is at the Sibley Hospital suffering from typhoid fever, is reported as somewhat better, but not out of danger.

In a letter received from E. S. Brown Eubanks, late of this division, he states he is going to enter the Printers' Home for the benefit of his health. Mr. Eubanks was transferred from here to the Weather Bureau at Austin, Texas, last winter.

The Schubert Male Quartet, composen of Nelson Moyer, first tenor; C. W. Bridwell, second tenor; D. D. Sore, first base, and B. A. Linebeck, second base, furnished the music at St. Paul's Lutheran Church last Sunday.

Herzinger having gone on his annual leave, his alley mates requested me to insert the following:

Mr. Herzinger has taken a much-needed rest,
His doctor told him 'twould be for the best,
Would have gone before but the folks on the Hill
Without his assistance couldn't turn out a bill.

On the day that he left he said he'd a pain,
We hope 'twill be gone when he comes back again.
To keep him in health each one should try,
For what should we do if "Hershey" should die?

Perhaps it is not the right thing to poke fun at our neighbor's little discrepancies—little earmarks of what might be termed ignorance; but, as in this case, it is so evident that the proof-reader in question was thinking of the pleasant days to be spent on leave, possibly, or perhaps suffering from the sultry weather, he will hardly take it as a personal "fling"—something entirely without our meaning—something impossible in our nature—if it is stated that, in marking the first proof of a well-known compositor of the First, he evidently was stumped when a great big obstacle in the form of a semicolon loomed up in the place where he thought a comma ought to be. Instead of marking out the aforesaid semicolon, he penciled off the upper or point portion of the semi-colon, leaving the comma end intact, and thus solved the problem! How is this for one on you, Sir Guy?

John Debus, one of the most popular men of this division, passed away last week after a few days' sickness of typhoid fever at Sibley Hospital. He had been complaining for a short time before, but never dreamed that the grim destroyer was so near. "Johnny," as he was formerly termed, was always ready to assist a fellow workmen, ever pleasant and generous to a fault. His death struck us as a gentle reminder that we are here to day and gone tomorrow. He leaves a wife, also an aged mother, to whom he had always contributed to her support. The chapel held a special meeting and the following resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS, It has pleased God, the Ruler of the Universe, to remove from our midst our late friend and fellow workman, John Debus, after an illness of short duration at Sibley Hospital, Thursday morning last at 5 o'clock, and,

WHEREAS, The said John Debus was a man of exceptionally fine characteristics—and kind to those who appealed to his knowledge, generous to the needy, faithful to his friends and employers, honest in all transactions of the heart and mind, and respected universally by numberless acquaintances and friends, and,

WHEREAS, The said John Debus was cut off from the living by the keen sickle of death at a most youthful age and in the full enjoyment of life and its fulsome pleasures; and

WHEREAS, He also leaves behind to mourn his loss, one who but recently joined life's issues with him—a loving, faithful, and sorrowful young wife, who being a stranger within strange gates, will, when the door to sympathizing friends has been barred and she is left alone to reflect, when nightfall will indeed extend its broad, dark, and gloomy mantle and enshroud the uttermost recesses of a welding heart, and

WHEREAS, It is then that the stoutest heart welcomes the sincere sentiments of a like affected and bereaved community and is succored by its kindly words of cheer; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the First Division Chapel, of the G. P. O., in respectful assemblage, on this day, Thursday, the 7th of August, 1902, do express ourselves in humble and sincere grief at the loss of our late and lamented friend and fellow workman, and extend our heartfelt sympathy to his bereaved wife and to those of his family who remain to mourn his demise, and revere his memory,

Resolved, That the the press of Washington and of the city of St. Louis, Mo., are respectfully requested to print these resolutions:

Resolved, That these resolutions be suitably engrossed and the same presented to the the widow of the deceased.

Second Division.

John Murray has given up the horses and pays all his attention to baseball.

A. M. Le Merl has returned from his leave and has some new deal up his sleeve.

During the absence of D. B. Halleck, E. J. Wood has been acting foreman of the time alley.

W. F. Johnson has been promoted to the correcting alley during the absence on leave of W. Branham.

Thomas L. McEneany has developed into first-class lead and slug man during the absence of R. L. Moler.

The many friends of A. M. Forester were sorry to see him leave Thursday. We hope he will return in the fall.

The man who writes an anonymous letter detrimental to his brother workman is both a coward and a traitor.

The many friends of J. C. Sowers are glad to learn that he has almost entirely recovered from his recent attack of rheumatism.

W. H. Phillips was transferred from the Night Bill Force to this room Friday. He feels at home in this division as he has worked here before.

We are glad to hear of the good fortune of Harry Pierce, who was recently appointed to a position in the Bureau of Statistics, Treasury Department.

In speaking of the changes recently made we neglected to mention the fact that G. C. Sparks had been transferred to E. C. Saltzman's position as bankman.

Hoyt Holton has returned from his leave looking as red as a lobster. He visited his old home in Indiana, and if appearances count for anything he must have had a good time.

The correspondent of this division was informed, on what he considered good authority, that our chairman, Mr. Razey, had committed matrimony during his absence, and he thereupon put a notice in this division's notes to that effect, but if Mr. Razey's word is to be relied upon, and we think he is placed in a position to know all the facts in the case, the story is untrue. Gentlemen in the future furnishing such information must let us see marriage license, not for publication, but as a matter of good faith.

There is a story going the rounds to the effect that our medicine man, H. F. J. Drake, has been taken for Admiral Dewey. It appears that the whilom Drake aforesaid spent Sunday up in the mountains near Bluemont. He was dressed in a navy blue suit and had on a white navy cap, with the word "Oregon" on it—perhaps to bluff the Rubes in that vicinity—and the country jays, who had only seen an inferior likeness of the Admiral, thought, perhaps, one Drake was the "real thing," as the Admiral sometimes travels incognito, and as Mr. Drake sat alone in the carriage waiting for a friend to come out of a store the natives came by and saluted, as they thought, the man who saved the day at Manila and indirectly caused all this trouble in the Philippines, and they do say that our acting chairman sat there like a stone wall and received, without a protest, the glory and honor that belonged to his superior officer. No wonder he crosses the street when he sees Dewey.

If you want Crabs go to Driscoll's, N. Cap. and G. Overholt whisky 10c.

falo, Henderson of Minneapolis, Kane of Springfield, Mass.

Thanks—Rodier of Montreal, Waring of Cripple Creek, Stimmel of Helena, Reynolds of Syracuse, Leaming of Lexington.

Arbitration—Small of Omaha, Schweitzer of Newark, Rogers of Chattanooga, Wells of Austin, Ryan of Birmingham.

Press—Drake of Council Bluffs, Marios of Quebec, Ficks of Seattle, Ross of Bradford, D. J. McCullough of Sioux City.

Resolutions—Connelly of St. Louis, Kizer of Norfolk, Green of Atlanta, Coffeen of Troy, Kenney of Shreveport.

Propositions providing for the oldest substitute getting the first vacancy, restricting the hours per week to a maximum of fifty-four, and putting evening papers with Sunday editions on the evening basis were adopted. There was a strong opposition to indorsing the newly organized International Ladies' Auxiliary. A proposition to prohibit printers from joining the militia was defeated, notwithstanding the sentiment was generally expressed against union men joining the militia, but many holding these views did not wish the Typographical Union to go on record against any part of the Government or against any individual rights. The recommendation of the laws committee that all unions put forth every effort to abolish the interchange of matter previously used in type or matrices was recommitted with instructions that said committee construct such a law as would prevent the exchange of local matter, but not interfere with syndicate matrices. All efforts to change from the referendum system in the election of officers were defeated. The proposition to substitute piece work in daily newspaper offices in place of time work and time work in place of piece work in job offices was lost. The proposition limiting the rights of machine men and other than printers by debarring them from operating machines was lost, and the action of the Birmingham convention extending equal rights to all allied crafts was sustained.

Amendments against working for less than the scale of any union, men recommended by the supply agents or others, and granting labels to unions where the scale falls below $10 per week were adopted. Several changes were made in laws regulating labels from firms violating any union laws; also some changes were made regarding membership cards and dues.

Contests for place of holding next convention were participated in by Asheville, N. C.; Newark, N. J.; Richmond, Va.; Washington, D. C., and Salt Lake City, Utah. Nashville, Tenn., and Portland, Oreg., gave notice that they would ask for the convention in 1905. It is conceded that St. Louis will capture the convention in 1904. Ottawa, Canada, wants the convention in 1905, New York in 1906, and Norfolk in 1907.

Vol. VII. No. 11. WASHINGTON, D. C., THURSDAY, AUGUST 28, 1902. Price, 3 Cents.

THE CENTRAL LABOR UNION

W. B. Moses & Son Declared Unfair to Organized Labor.

GRIEVANCE COMMITTEE REPORT

The Barbers Report Two Cases—Excursion Committee Appointees—Many Unions Impose Penalty in Chevy Chase Lake Resort—Registered Drug Clerks—Several Communications and Minor Mention.

The Central Labor Union met in weekly session, Monday night, at Typographical Temple, President Hamerstrom presiding.

Credentials were received from International Association of Machinsts, Columbia Lodge, No. 174, certifying Emmett L. Adams to fill the unexpired term of Daniel Freeland; from Local Union No. 4, International Brotherhood of Bookbinders, certifying James A. Stockman, vice P. R. Flanagan; from Local Union, No. 5, United Association of Journeymen Plumbers, Gas Fitters, Steam Fitters, and Steam Fitters' Helpers of the United States and Canada, certifying Messrs. A. E. Anderson, Charles McGowan, Jos. Clark, Joseph Garner, and E. J. O'Brien.

A communication from United Mine Workers of America, District No. 9, requesting financial assistance for the striking anthracite miners was received. The body instructed the secretary to communicate that former appeal had been received and donation made and remitted to their treasurer.

The Bartenders communicated that their organization had followed the recommendation of this body and placed a fine of $5 upon any member of their organization patronizing Chevy Chase Lake Resort and the car lines running from the lake to the circle.

The Cigar Makers, Local No. 110, communicated that they had also followed the request of this body relative to Chevy Chase.

The Bricklayers' Union, Theatrical Stage Employes' Union, No. 22, United Brotherhood of Carpenters, No. 1103, and United Brotherhood of Leather Workers on Horse Goods also took similar action. These communications were ordered filed.

Barbers' Union, No. 305, communicated, stating they had exhausted all honorable means to unionize the following and failed, and therefore declared them unfair to organized labor: Michael H. Robinson, 320 Pennsylvania avenue, and Garrett's Shaving Parlors, 153 B street southeast. This communication was referred to Grievance Committee.

The following communication was received from Registered Drug Clerks and ordered filed:

REGISTERED DRUG CLERK'S ASSOCIATION,
1110 Fourteenth Street Northwest,
Washington, D. C., August 19, 1902.

To the Central Labor Union:

DEAR BROTHERS: We again call attention to the fact that the Registered Drug Clerk's Association have Union Cards in a number of the stores that are fair to union labor. The different localities of these stores will not leave any excuse for patronizing any that are not in sympathy with us. We wish the Chair to emphatically state our position and cause.

The following stores have Union Cards:

A. J. Schaffhirt, H and North Capitol street.
Christiani Drug Co., 484 Pennsylvania avenue northwest and Seventh and Pennsylvania avenue northwest.
Z. D. Gilman, 627 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.
F. R. Richardson & Co., Third and Pennsylvania avenue northwest.
Charles Gross, Fourteenth and Park place.
H. C. Easterday, 700 New Jersey avenue northwest.
A. N. Conner, Fourth and N streets northwest.
Eshleman & Harrison, Second and F streets northwest.
Kell's Pharmacy, 901 U street northwest.
F. M. McComas, Fourteenth and L streets northwest.
Ireland Edmonds, Second and C streets northeast.
G. M. Neely, 254 Eleventh street northeast.
N. E. Webb, Eleventh and Pennsylvania avenue southeast.
J. E. Woodford, Seventh and H streets southwest.
George Wooldridge, Maryland avenue and Four-and-a-Half street southwest.
J. P. Sullivan, 311 Seventh street southwest.
J. H. Purdy, Seventh and Q streets northwest.

The Grievance Committee reported that Messrs. Roach and Lewis, against whom the Bartenders made complaint, had signed contracts with this body. The contracts have been referred to Bartenders' League for ratification.

The committee also reported that they had been unsuccessful in their attempt to obtain a conference with W. B. Moses & Son, and recommended that the matter be referred to Carpet Upholsterers. The Carpet Upholsterers requested that said firm be placed upon the unfair list, and upon motion the request was granted.

President Hamerstrom appointed W. W. Winfree, Carpenters and Joiners, E. J. O'Brien, Plumbers, and B. V. Walz, Bartenders, on Labor Day Committee to fill vacancies.

If you are a true union man do not patronize the Chinamen who spend no money with the union men in return, but send your work to the Boston Steam Laundry, First and G Streets N. W., who pay 40 per cent of their gross earnings to American working people. Telephone E 226-A. —7

Congressman FRANK C. WACHTER, of Maryland.

Hon. FRANK C. WACHTER, of the Third District of Maryland, was born in Baltimore, Md., September 16, 1861. Leaving school at an early age he learned the trade of clothing cutter at which he worked for a number of years, during which time he took a deep interest in labor matters. He was an active member of Clothing Cutters' Assembly, No. 7507, of K. of L., and afterwards became Acting District Master Workman of National District Assembly, No. 231, of Clothing Cutters and Trimmers of the United States. He was always zealous in advocating and advancing the cause of his fellow-workmen and the thought uppermost in his mind was their betterment and elevation to a higher standard. In 1889 he represented his assembly at the Knights of Labor Convention at Rochester, N. Y., over which convention he presided.

His naturally ambitious nature resulted in his venturing into business on his own account and he engaged in the business that he now conducts of examining, adjusting, sponging, and refinishing woolens, etc., in which he has been very successful.

In 1896 he was appointed as a member of the Jail Board of Baltimore City on which he served for two years. In 1898 he was unanimously given the Republican Congressional nomination and was elected by the narrow plurality of 122 votes in a district considered normally Democratic. Evidently his record must have been satisfactory to his constituency for he was again renominated in 1900 and re-elected to the Fifty-seventh Congress by an increased plurality of 2,071, running ahead of the Presidential ticket 281 votes. In Congress Mr. Wachter has evinced the same consideration and concern for labor that he manifested when working at the bench and which marked his membership in the Knights of Labor. He was particularly active in obtaining for the employes of the Government Navy-Yard an annual leave of fifteen days and all other bills in which labor was interested, such as the Eight-Hour Contract Labor Bill, Chinese Exculsion Bill, and Increased Pay for Letter-Carriers' Bill received his most active support.

During the present session he has been exerting his efforts in behalf of having all war ships in the future authorized by Congress to be built in the Government Navy-Yards, as he believes that they can be just as cheaply constructed as if given out to private contractors.

His representation has brought to the City of Baltimore numerous appropriations, among which can be mentioned $309,000 for dredging out of Spring Garden Harbor, which was so much needed to relieve the congestion of the city's present harbor facilities.

He also obtained an appropriation of $65,000 for the construction of a Light-House at Point-No-Point in the Chesapeake Bay, which the shipping and maritime interest of Baltimore had been trying to get for the past seventeen years without success.

He also obtained an appropriation of $120,000 for the erection and construction of a Light-House and Fog Signal at the entrance to the Baltimore Harbor, known as the Baltimore Light-House and Fog Signal, which the business of Baltimore demanded and which the shipping and maritime interests have been endeavoring to obtain since 1894 without success.

He has been friendly to and ever ready to serve the old soldiers and the widows and orphans of those that laid down their lives in defence of their country's cause, and for their benefit has called up more than 1,000 pension claims, of which more than a fourth have been allowed, bringing to these worthy people about $25,000 back pay and an income annually of more than $20,000.

The indications are that he will be renominated to the Fifty-eighth Congress, and if he is his election seems assured.

Labor Day Excursion.

The excursion to be given under the auspices of the Central Labor Union on September 1—Labor Day—will be truly representative of organized workingmen of this city, seventy organizations participating, and will be the largest affair of the kind ever given here. The sale of tickets is progressing to a flattering degree, all organizations manifesting an unprecedented interest, and to some extent approaching rivalry to outdo one another. However, no matter how many tickets are sold the committee having the excursion in charge has been assured by Captain Randall, of the Randall Steamship Company, that ample provisions to handle the crowd have been made—that boats will be on hand to carry all that desire to go to River View and return on that day. Consequently the committee feels confident that the comfort of all will be provided for and again extends to all friends of organized labor the invitation "Come one, come all, and enjoy the day."

To those inclined toward athletics a list of events is presented for which they may enter, free of charge. The following is a list of the events:

FIRST EVENT—1 p. m.—100 yard race, open to all.
First prize—Umbrella.
Second prize—Box of cigars.
SECOND EVENT—1:30 p. m.—100 yard race for boys.
First prize—Fountain pen.
Second prize—Belt.
THIRD EVENT—2 p. m.—50 yard sack race, open to all.
First prize—Rocker.
Second prize—Belt.
FOURTH EVENT—2:30 p. m.—Wheelbarrow race, blindfolded, for ladies.
First prize—Parlor table.
Second prize—Willow rocker.
Third prize—Silver article.
FIFTH EVENT—3 p. m.—Greasy pole.
Ten graded cash prizes.
SIXTH EVENT—3:30 p. m.—Ball game, Government Printing Office vs. Navy Yard.
Prize—$25 base ball outfit.
SEVENTH EVENT—Prize waltz.
First Prize—Stone Ring.
Second Prize—Silk waist.
EIGHTH EVENT—Fancy dancing.
Handsome prizes.

The foregoing prizes warrant the prediction that there will be interesting contest for all the events, and will be entertaining from start to finish. The day's events will be concluded at the pavillion, where dancing for prizes will begin shortly after the arrival of the last boat, about 8 p. m.

The friends and rooters of the respective base ball teams will be out in force, as the game will be one of unusual interest. Considerable rivalry exists between the teams and the friends of both claim their nine to be the best.

The teams will line up as follows:

G. P. O.	NAVY YARD.
Hunt, r. f.	Chism, c. f.
Vaughn, s. s.	Hughes, 2b.
Havens, c.	Bishop, c.
Adams, 1b.	Gibson, s. s.
Wood, 3b.	Dunn, 1b.
Beall, c. f.	Carr, 3b.
Hughes, 2b.	Much, l. f.
Corrigan, l. f.	Demar, r. f.
Ashley or Brown, p.	Buckingham, p.

The following is respectfully dedicated to the fans:

—JOE LERR in New York Herald.

Music will enliven the trip, so that all—old and young—will feel that life is worth living, and for that day forget their cares. Dancing at the pavillion will be free of charge, so that those of slender purse who might otherwise hesitate on account of cost can enjoy themselves just as well on that score as though they possessed greath wealth and cost were not an item.

A ride of thirty-two miles on the Potomac River is worth more than the price of the ticket, which is sold for 25 cents. The tickets are all numbered and purchasers or holders of the coupons may get many times the price of their tickets in the handsome awards that go to the coupon holders.

theeighthourworkday

A sure way to bring about a universal eight-hour workday would be to patronize eight-hour printers exclusively. If you are now patronizing ten-hour printers STOP IT—show that you are in favor of short hours and good pay. Place your orders with the printers who operate their plant eight hours a day and pay nine hours' wages—THE TRADES UNIONIST PUBLISHING COMPANY. . . . .

THE TRADES UNIONIST, THE EIGHT-HOUR PRINTERS,
Nos. 441-443 G STREET NORTHWEST, WASHINGTON D. C.

A Conservative Labor Union.

At the annual meeting of the International Typographical Union, in Cincinnati, last week, the printers showed an admirable conservative spirit. For one thing, attempts to justify a boycott on trivial grounds were frowned upon. One of the most important actions was on a resolution offered by a Pennsylvania delegate forbidding members of the union to join the State militia. The resolution was rejected. It has been the case in various labor unions that hostility to the militia has received approval. The fact that the militia has occasionally been called out to check rioting among strikers has been sometimes foolishly represented as an indication that the citizen soldiery is hostile to laboring men and a special agent of the employers. Nothing can well be more unreasonable than such an opinion. The militia is never called out in case of a strike except for the suppression or prevention of lawlessness, and there is no class of people who get more ultimate benefit from the maintenance of law and order than the workingmen. A Cleveland delegate, who is a recognized Socialist leader, offered a long resolution in favor of abolishing the wage system. The committee on laws reported against it, and the report was sustained by an almost unanimous vote. This large organization of printers appears to be controlled by conservative, level-headed men, and not by revolutionists.—Boston Herald.

James L. Feeney, superintendent of Sewing Division of the Government Printing Office, and president of Bookbinders, Local Union No. 4, of this city, sailed this week for a trip on the continent. He will visit England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, France, and Germany to take observations of the methods and progress of the bookbinding art in those countries. He will also give the labor movement some attention while abroad.

The strike of the 1,800 bituminous coal miners along the Allegheny and Kiskininetas rivers, which began April 16, has been settled.

It is believed that the structural workers of the Pittsburg district will not be asked to strike in aid of the Philadelphia union in its contention against the American Bridge Company.

In default of their own candidates, the Chicago Federation of Labor has decided to pass judgement on representatives of the political parties now up for municipal, country, and State positions.

Freight handlers in the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific freight houses at St. Joseph, Mo., won a raise of from 12 to 14 cents an hour by threatening to strike. They claim the company promised to raise their pay August 1.

The first national convention of employer and employe will be held in Minneapolis, September 22-26. President Roosevelt has accepted an invitation to be present one day. Every labor and trade organization of any importance will be well represented. Presidents and managers of important employing concerns have listed as delegates with Secretary Rockwell. Among those who will attend are John Mitchell, Florence Kelly, the secretary of the National Consumers' League; T. V. Powderly, James M. Lynch, presideut International Typographical Union, and F. P Sargent, former grand master of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen. The national employer and employe convention idea is the enlargement of a plan to call together those interested in the eight-hour movement. It is a gathering designed for free exchange of thought on the labor problem of to-day. The one aim is to give opportunity for opposing sides in labor disputes to get together on neutral ground. Prof. J. B. Clark, of Columbia University, will speak on "Is Compulsory Arbitration Inevitable?" and Carroll D. Wright on "Is There a Solution to the Labor Question?"

EDWARD J. FOGERTY, a member of the bricklayers' union, has been elected mayor of South Bend, Ind.

AT the Longshoremen's convention, recently held at Chicago, it was decided to expel any member of the union who joins the militia.

AT the recent convention of the Iron Moulders, held at Toronto, Canada, a motion to withdraw from the A. F. of L. was voted down.

THE Brotherhood of Carpenters now has a total membership of 105,000, and has the 8-hour workday established in almost every city in the United States.

AT the West Pittston, Pa., Congregational Sunday School, the scholars recently refused to be taught by Superintendent JAMES DAVIS, a non-union miner.

THE International Glass Blowers' Association, in convention assembled recently, raised the salary of their president, DENNIS A. HAYES, from $1,800 to $2,400.

COMPULSORY arbitration of labor disputes was defeated by the British Trades Union Congress, held recently at Swansea, Wales, by a vote of 676,000 to 366,000.

DON'T forget to ask the driver who serves you with milk if he is a member of the Milk Drivers' Union. It is just as wrong, morally, to patronize a non-union driver as it is to have your printing done in a non-union shop.

FOR years railroad lines have been advertised mostly by booklets, folders, circulars, and the like, using the newspapers only for time tables. Recently several managers have used newspaper space for display advertising, and one says that soon all the companies will reduce or abandon other forms of publicity in favor of the newspapers.—Record.

THE following resolutions of national importance were adopted by the I. T. U. at its recent convention: For the election of United States Senators by direct vote; for public ownership of public utilities, and the abolishment of all exploitations; for trade autonomy; for trades labels on all manufactured articles. A resolution to indorse socialism and single tax was voted down.

Has the Public Any Rights?

The great coal strike now in progress for the fifteenth week, and conditions brought about by same, cause the suffering public to wonder and ask the above question.

The facts and figures leading up to the above strike are well known to all readers of the press, and all fair minded men know the anthracite coal miners have long been oppressed and their condition worse than foreign serfdom, hence they have been and are justified in their demand that they receive a living wage—one sufficient to clothe and feed their families, and send their offspring to school.

The miners have repeatedly expressed their willingness to meet half way any fair and honorable movement that would end the strike. The operators, on the other hand, have refused to listen to or accept any suggestion of compromise or arbitration, stating they have nothing to arbitrate. The operators may think they have nothing to arbitrate, but the public certainly has a say in this matter, especially, when coal is soaring so high in prices—$12 per ton, wholesale, in New York—with prospects of it going higher as cold weather approaches. This condition must surely entail suffering and hardship to the poor and those in the ordinary walks of life.

Yet these kings of control, the coal barons, wonder why desperation and hunger and want cause blots in our history like Homestead and Lattimer.

What this country needs is a little less absent treatment and a little more present execution in the way of enforcing the following excerpt from President ROOSEVELT'S Providence speech:

All corporations, and, therefore, those great corporations containing some tendency to monopoly which we have grown to speak of rather loosely as trusts, are the creatures of the State, and the State not only has the right to control them, BUT IS IN DUTY BOUND TO CONTROL THEM WHENEVER THE NEED OF SUCH CONTROL IS SHOWN.

We believe the need of such control is here shown, and that all laboring men throughout our broad land should use their best endeavors and influence to place men in control of the reins of the Government who would see to it that their States enforced its laws and guarded their rights. Question your candidates and make them pledge themselves to do their utmost to bring about the enforcement of our laws. Patience and dallying have now lost their charms.

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

Not long since I gave a brief description of my stroll from Newark to Philadelphia, with Joe Berry, in 1872. We were unable to "catch on," it being the height of the dull season—by the way, it is nearly always the dull season in Philadelphia, isn't it?—and we cast about for means of getting away from there. I had a friend holding cases on the Record and he put me on. But the foreman discovered that it was Thursday, or some other day when he didn't permit strange subs, and he put me off My little friend then said he would hock his watch for a couple of bones, and he did so. With that we got to Baltimore through the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal without other incidents than those produced by hunger and mosquitoes.

But the dull season had slopped over from Philadelphia to Baltimore, and three days' hustling produced no more gratifying results than a plateful of hog face and greens at the Ma'sh Market and a magnificent display of aurora borealis. We started for Washington one charming Sunday morning, about 10 o'clock, our carcasses absolutely empty of everything but disgust, which lacked nutriment.

We stopped that night in Laurel, the sign on the hotel being "B. & O. R. R., capacity 34,000," and the next afternoon, about 3 p. m., I had my first view of the dome of the Capitol. I little thought then that over a quarter of a century of my life would be spent almost within its shadow; but I did think about getting something to eat. Joe Berry knew somebody in the G. P. O.—no matter now whom; he's dead anyway—and he hunted him up. He took us down to "John's" restaurant, in a basement at the corner of Seventh and D streets, and bid us order and eat. What we did to the bill of fare was quite sufficient.

We both found work in the city. Joe wasted a lot of money for clothes and went home to Ohio. Wash Chew had come along in the few weeks that I stayed here, and he and I went to Baltimore and took a steamer to Savannah.

About a hundred years ago I met a Cincinnati man in Chicago named Evans. I forget his first name, but I wouldn't give it if I remembered it, for he may be living (the mercy of the fool-killer surpasseth understanding). He was then training with Bill Cunningham and perhaps later had some of the idiocy knocked out of him. Evans got stuck on a youngish widow in Wheeling, the daughter of a printers' boarding house keeper, and though there was no human interference to ruffle true love's course, his mode of communication with her was through "personals" in the Cincinnati Enquirer. He would pay a dollar or so for his "ad" (all newspapers bleed fools), then buy the paper and send it to her. How she responded I never heard, but he kept up the attack as long as I knew him. Thompson's colt (the one that swam three rivers to get a drink—I believe he performed other freakish tricks) was a sage compared with my old-time friend Evans.

A year or two ago Billy Brockwell was a sufferer from a carbuncle, as many will remember, and numerous friends called to see him during his affliction. Among the number was Charley Warren—he of the "Spess"—who is very prompt and kind in visiting the sick. On being admitted to the sick room he raised the window shades so as have a good view of the patient, seated himself by the bedside and gave forth his words of cheer.

"Gee whillikins, Brocky, but you have fallen away terribly," said he. "Man alive! You certainly do look bad."

"Yes, Charley," said Bill, "and I feel pretty bad, too."

"Feel bad! By the great jiminy criminy, you must feel bad to look so bad," said Warren. "You must have lost 60 or 70 pounds."

"I've lost some, Charley; that's a fact," said Brocky. "And I'm afraid I'll lose some more before I get out of this."

"Lose more! Why, sure you will! Do you remember —— ——, that big bookbinder? He had a carbuncle like yours and it kept him in bed six months."

"It's a bad thing, Charley," said Brocky.

"Bad thing!" said Warren. It's the worst thing in the world. It's just awful! But I hope you'll get well, Brocky," and he said good-bye and was off.

From that moment Brockwell began to improve and in a short time he was out. This shows the value of cheering up the sick and the control of mind over matter.

All who have been here as long as a dozen years will remember Carl Weller. One pay day Tim McMahon got him to change a twenty-dollar bill, but did not give him the twenty—an oversight that Carl did not observe. In a little while he discovered that he was shy $20 and thought that he had dropped it. Every place was searched, but in vain. Tim expressed the greatest solicitude, and finally, procuring nineteen silver dollars among "the boys," who were let into the fun, he handed them to Weller.

"Carl, old boy," said he, "the boys sympathize with you in your loss and have made it up to you."

Carl carefully counted the sinkers.

"It's awful good of the boys, Tim," said Carl, smilingly, as he jingled the coins; "but say, Tim," a shade of trouble coming across his face, "go around and see if you can't get the other dollar, won't you?"

This was too much for Tim, and he passed out the twenty and gathered in the white metal, returning it to its owners.

I once had a little experience in Boston with a Dago barber in the matter of making change. I asked him to change a ten for me one Saturday about noon (they have Saturday half holidays in Boston in summer), then went to my room, wrote some letters, read awhile, and then counted my money, preparatory to declaring a dividend. I found I was $10 long on my cash. I cogitated where I could have got it, and wondered if the cashier had overpaid me, resolving to keep it if he had, for I knew I was well worth $10 more than I was getting. Finally, the barber shop transaction came to my mind and on way to dinner I stopped in and said to the barber:

"Look and see if your money comes out correct. You changed a bill for me and mine don't."

"Yes, by Godda!" he hissed out, "you gotta my tenna dol'; that why."

"All right; here it is," said I.

"You comma' 'long with me," he said, and grabbing his hat and coat he rushed me around into another street and wanted to buy everything in the place for me; but as I never take nothing nohow all he could expend on me was a hysterical batch of Dago gratitude in broken lots. The other barbers told me later on that he sure was a wild Dago for two or three hours and hunted for me everywhere. I have always been glad that I found him first, for if he had had me arrested I would have had hard work explaining it. The appearance of an attempt to deprive another of his money without giving an equivalent is the most heinous offense known in Boston. That is why Boston people are so rich and have a mortgage on the rest of the world.

J. H. Malees, of the Night Bill Force, tells a story of the old days in the New York Tribune office when Horace Greeley was its editor. There was only one man on the paper who could read Greeley's writing, a man named Larkwood, and he set all his editorials. Larkwood was a good deal puffed up over his accomplishment and crowed about it a good deal to the annoyance of the foreman and all the other men. Some enthusiastic farmer friend had sent Greeley a pair of fine-bred roosters, which had the freedom of the editorial room for awhile, until, having eaten all his paste one day, Greeley ordered the foreman to take them upstairs to the composing room. There they stalked around, looking wise and getting into everything, and one chancing to step on a proof roller and then on a sheet of paper lying on the floor, a new idea struck the foreman. Calling a couple of the boys and taking them into his confidence, he put up his job for the everlasting humiliation of Larkwood. They spread a number of sheets of paper on the floor—the kind Greeley used to write on—caught the roosters, inked their feet well, and set them to fighting. After renewing the foot-inking operation and renewing the fight two or three times, the paper was gathered up, folioed, a heading, "The Duty of Congress," scrawled across the top of page 1, and hung on the hook. Mr. Lockwood came in, took off his coat, loaded his pipe, and went and looked at the copy hook.

"Aha!" said he, "you left this for old Larkwood, did you? Well, he's here."

He put the copy on his cap case, grabbed his stick, and went to work. He toiled along for sometime, apparently meeting no obstacles, but finally took down a sheet to study it more closely. After looking at it awhile he walked over to the foreman and asked:

"What's that word, Mr. Rooker?"

The foreman refused to look at it.

"You know I can't read that d—d slop," said he; "go to Mr Greeley."

Downstairs went Larkwood.

"Mr. Greeley, I'm stuck. What is that word?"

Greeley glanced at it.

"That's 'unconstitutional,' you d—d fool," said Greeley. "Get out of here. You're getting more idiotic every day."

The editorial appeared all right, and the unrighteous attempt at the undoing of a good man was foiled.

Mr. Malees is a very reliable gentleman and under no circumstances would he tell what is not true.

THE CINCINNATI CONVENTION.

Some of the Principal Propositions Favorably Acted Upon.

Among the more important acts of the Cincinnati convention which were favorably acted upon were:

"That the executive council of the International Typographical Union and the first vice president are directed to act as a committee for the purpose of devising and putting into effect plans for the establishment of an eight hour day throughout the jurisdiction of the International Typographical Union at as early a date as possible. That local unions be required to act in conjunction with the said committee in furthering its plans, and that they be enjoined from making contracts extending beyond October 1, 1905, which require their members to work more than eight hours per day."

"That the International Typographical Union of North America does hereby agree in convention assembled at Cincinnati, Ohio, to refrain from purchasing the brands of cigars known as 'Tom Keene,' 'General Arthur,' 'Owl Brand,' 'George W. Childs,' 'Henry George,' 'Capadura,' 'Sandow,' 'Cubanola,' and all such as do not bear the union label of the Cigar Makers' International Union, or local headquarters of the cigar makers."

"Subordinate unions shall not allow proprietors, who work at the trade and who are not active members, to use the union label on any work performed by such proprietors. Local unions shall have the right to grant the use of the label to any proprietor who is an active member, when he wishes to do his own work, and where union help can be obtained, works not over fifty-four hours in any week."

A sum not to exceed $250 was appropriated for the removal of the remains of ex-President Edward T. Plank from Boise City, Idaho, to the plot of San Francisco Typographical Union, No. 21.

"That our delegates to the next convention of the American Federation of Labor do not work or vote for any proposition which may be introduced which has for its object the placing of the American Federation of Labor on record as advocating socialism or any other political idealism, and that our delegates stand so instructed"

A draft of the joint resolution relative to a memorial statue to the late Hon. Amos J. Cummings, at Washington, to be presented to Congress was indorsed.

The convention pledged its influence and best energy in discouraging the sale of school books manufactured and published by the American Book Company, said books being the product of cheap and scab labor.

The newly formed International Women's Auxiliary to the International Typographical Union was indorsed.

The Louisiana Purchase Exposition was indorsed, and convention placed itself on record as favoring St. Louis as their meeting place in 1904.

"That on or before October 1, 1902, subordinate unions of the International Typographical Union shall prohibit the use of all photo engraving plates that do not bear the union label of the photo-engravers of the International Typographical Union; provided, that this does not include cities or towns where there is no International Typographical Union of Photo Engravers."

Relative to fraternal and insurance societies the convention says: "That members of subordinate unions request organizations of which they are members to have the union label appear on all printed matter, and members are urged to refrain from joining organizations which to not recognize said label, and our delegates to the American Federation of Labor are instructed to use all honorable means to procure the indorsement of this resolution"

The proposition "that the Executive Committee be and is hereby directed to transfer $2,000 from the burial fund to the general fund, and that this sum be appropriated from the latter fund and forwarded to the national secretary of the United Mine Workers of America, to aid the anthracite miners in their present struggle," was unanimously adopted.

The resolution of Delegate Herbert relative to increase of anarchy, and the death of President McKinley, "That the International Typographical Union in this forty-eighth session tender its aid in helping to exterminate from our country this (anarchists) class who violate our laws and are a menace to good government," was indorsed.

The Two John Smiths.

From Judge

John Smith No. 1 stole one chicken. He was sent to jail for thirty days. While there he reformed and became another man. He became John Smith No. 2. John Smith No. 2 organized a chicken trust, took 2,000,000 chickens as his fee for organizing it and sold the chickens when the market was at its highest. Thus he was enabled to endow the jail with a library.

The United Garment Workers' convention at Cleveland decided to establish a reserve fund of $50,000 for the organization. This will be raised by a 10 per cent. per captia assessment of all members for the next five years.

AROUND THE PRINTERIES.

Down Town.

A Megwe was seen in the Swamp last week.

Don L. Murray spent part of last week at Dike, Va.

Chas. E. Dietrich and wife are visiting friends in Linden, Va.

Wm. R. Bromley, late foreman at the Globe, is at Norfolk, Va.

Good afternoon, what did you give for your Panama? Job lots for 19 cents now.

Monday being Labor Day there will be no meeting of the Central Labor Union until Monday, September 8.

F. N. Whitehead, "Ike" Wear, and B. E. Harrison spent last week fishing in the Monocacy and Potomac at Dickerson.

A. F. Bloomer is visiting his brother at Lehigh, Choctaw Nation, Indian Territory. "Pard" will return to this city about September 3.

Chairman Pierce, of the Post, is in favor of a race for delegate next year of all the unsuccessful candidates who have been ambitious to represent the local union at the I. T. U.

Bindery Notes.

Ask Jack Atkins to explain to you where his friend Green got married.

Harry McAleer, an extremely popular young bookbinder, died Monday last of typhoid fever.

Johnny Burns came in Saturday after a week's absence. You can't loose John on a short day.

The stork visited the home of H. O. White during the week, the first time during his married life of seven years.

Bill Nevins did not like what he saw when looking down that gun barrel Sunday and never stopped running until he reached Washington.

The Highbinders, a Northeast Washington organization, defeated a nine of bookbinders in a game of baseball, Sunday, at Four Mile Run. Score, 14 to 13.

"Cowboy," having gone away for a couple of weeks has put on a "sub" during his absence, so he should not be blamed for anything appearing herein.

It has become painfully evident that no matter what else the Cowboys can do they can not play baseball. They were defeated again Saturday by the blank book men 41 to 5. Jake Wideman is unanimously voted the worst player in the push, with Charlie Holbrook a close second.

Bill Haslett recently paid a visit of two week's duration to Cape May. He says the first week he devoted purely to enjoyment, while the second he put in reading a letter sent by friends in the bindery. This letter was unique. In fact it was a series of letters, pasted end to end, and when spread out measured twenty-one feet.

Saturday last Capt. Dennis Toomey, of the Cowboys, presented James McManus with a handsome silver service of six pieces, contributed by the latter's friends in the bindery. The occasion for the presentation was the recent marriage of Mr. McManus. As this was his second trial in the matrimonial line, Captain Toomey took the opportunity to praise him highly and to contrast him with some of those in the bindery who had never even had one trial. "The War Eagle of the Susquehanna," as Captain Toomey "dubbed" him, and his wife wish their friends to know that they greatly appreciate the beautiful present.

Lucy and Weber make a good team at the helm.

Chairman Whittaker, of the main press room chapel, has been in the repair shop for a few days.

Several new pressmen in various parts of the room suggest the large amount of work the office.

Our new acquisitions to the force of feeders are exceptionally clever in the handling of the elusive 48, 96, etc.

Guiles will spend his fifteen days' leave in erecting fences and planting strawberries around his new home near the Monastery.

Dave Moran is on the sick list again, having sprained his optic nerve on the bleachers. He says the actions of the Washington nine remind him of the G. A. R. veterans on Decoration Day.

I am instructed by President McCauley to state that all who wish can have copies of the Baltimore Souvenir by calling on or addressing the Secretary, 19 Grant Place. Why not send each chairman his quota?

"Wise" Murray, late of Altoona, Pa., but now of the Proof Room, won several medals while at school for efficiency in English grammar. It is a popular belief among his colleagues that when he hocked the medals he lost his "holt" on the grammar.

Up at the Specification Division the other day I bumped into an individual whose main duty seems to be to load the elevators at 4:30. I did intend to give a brief sketch of my experience with him, but in the words of an illustrious colleague, "Its waste of lather to shave an ass."

Tommy Martin has a pugilistic rooster named Mamie Taylor. Mamie won a scrap out at the Hyattsville pit last week and Tommy raked in a few. Next to the discovery of a bog mine on the Martin estate, this is the greatest event that has occurred in Maryland since the Hagerstown fair.

Joe Watson recently attended the fourth annual reunion of the Watson family at a small settlement named Watsontown, near Camden, N. J. Eighteen hundred Watsons registered on the Watsonian roster; the eldest was 92 and the youngest 2. These came from Camden and various portions of the United States.

My absence from the city at the time Foreman Dennis J. O'Leary and Miss Mary O'Leary became man and wife prevented me from extending my best wishes to them, for I should much rather wish them health, happiness, and prosperity verbally than in this way. However, I know the population of the Press Room will join me in one stanza of that good old hymn that mother used to sing:

Blest be the tie that binds
Their hearts in perfect love.

As a financeir Doc. Sprague has few equals. He knows how to reckon interest but don't know how to collect it. His most recent financial losses, while trivial, are amusing. He engaged an artist to kalsomine his hotel, dust the carpets, renovate the the oil paintings, etc. At the end of the first week the man had about half finished but he drew down the full contract price and went home. The next morning Doc. was summoned to the police court by his artist friend, who had been arrested the previous night for some breach of Seventh street etiquette, and Sprague paid his fine of $5. Up to the present writing Sprague has failed to keep his end of the contract. Right on top of this experience Sprague left his dimensions at a tailoring joint for a new toga, and was required to deposit $6 as an evidence of good faith. Three days later, when he went to have his coat tried on, he discovered that the sheriff had seized the tailor shop for debt. In order to complete his chain of hard luck Sprague should stake Cunningham to some coin and permit him to use his judgment at St. Asaph's.

In Memoriam.

The following resolutions were adopted by the Post chapel upon the death of John Darlington, who was for a long time connected with said chapel. His death occurred August 5:

WHEREAS, God, in His infinite wisdom, has removed from the chosen field of his labor our friend and brother, John Darlington; and

WHEREAS, The Washington Post chapel, in the death of Mr. Darlington, has lost a competent, earnest, and conscientious member, and the cause of trades unionism a true and tried champion; therefore,

Resolved, That this chapel here records its esteem and appreciation of the splendid character of the deceased, and testifies to the noble qualities of mind and heart of the honored one who has gone before.

Resolved, That the members of this chapel deeply deplore the loss we have sustained, and tender to the family of Mr. Darlington our heartfelt sympathy and condolence in their hour of affliction.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this chapel, and that they be published in the Typographical Journal and THE TRADES UNIONIST.

Resolved, That a copy be sent to the family of the deceased.

THE TRADES UNIONIST.

OFFICIAL ORGAN CENTRAL LABOR UNION, WASHINGTON BRANCH, AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR.

Vol. VII. No. 12. WASHINGTON, D. C., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1902. Price, 3 Cents.

LABOR DAY AT RIVER VIEW

The Central Labor Union Gives Enjoyable Time to Organized Labor.

SIX THOUSAND PARTICIPATED

Representatives from all the Organizations Affiliated with the Central Body in Attendance—Sports of all Kinds Indulged In—The Prize Winners—Committees in Charge—Truly a Workingman's Reunion.

Labor Day was celebrated as never before, organized labor enjoying the day to the satisfaction of all. River View was the scene of merriment from early morning, when the fond parents brought the little ones on the early boats, and carrying baskets of good things to eat for themselves and the youngsters—a regular picnic. The afternoon boats brought those inclined toward athletics, while the late afternoon crowds were composed of young people who came to enjoy the ride and the dancing.

All appeared in a pleasant frame of mind—just right to enjoy themselves and make all with whom they came in contact feel agreeable—making a jolly crowd of all present. Perfect order was maintained, for which the management of this famous resort merits unstinted praise. Every detail for the day, looking toward the comfort of the patrons and friends of the Central Labor Union, had been carefully attended to by the painstaking committees, the members of which worked hard all day to make one and all feel that they were with friends.

Members and their families of the different organizations fraternized, recalling that they had not met since last Labor Day, making this truly a reunion. While the elders sat and talked the childrem romped on the spacious grounds, enjoying themselves to their little hearts' content. These reunions have come to be looked forward to, and so from year to year those whose duties preclude visiting, annually meet and recount the occurrences of the past year.

Those of an athletic turn had a fine bill before them, and some of the contests were spirited. The first, which was a 100-yard dash, open to all, was run at 2 o'clock. The first prize, an umbrella, was won by W. Cornish, and the second prize, a box of cigars, by W. Cook.

Next on the list was a 100-yard race for boys. Master E. McVey won first prize, and Master C. Dean the second.

In the 50-yard sack race, open to all, first prize, rocker, was won by W. Cook; second prize, belt, by Charles Spate.

The ladies took a lively interest in the wheelbarrow race, all feeling confident that the prize was easy, but like pinning the tail on the donkey when one is blindfolded, after the bandage had been placed over their eyes they made some laughable zig-zag moves to reach the goal. Mrs. Smith won first prize, Miss N. Smith won second, and Miss E. Smith won third.

The ball game resulted in a victory for the Navy Yard nine, The rooters for both nines were lusty and numerous, but the Navy Yard boys won out handsome.

After the arrival of the last boat, about 8 o'clock, the prize waltz took place in the pavillion. There were about twenty-five entries and all participants were cheered lustily by their friends. All the available space in and about the dancing floor was taken up by handsome young ladies, matronly chaperones, and gentlemen escorts. The first prize, a handsome gold set ring, was won by Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Dorsey, and the second prize, a box of cigars and a silk waist, by Mr. J. Vierstein and Miss Fannie Cleveland.

Chairman H. W. Sherman, of the Excursion Committee, is entitled to much credit in the general outcome of all the arrangements. With him were associated an able and energetic corps of committeemen, all working in perfect unison, with one object before them—to make the excursion a great success.

The following is a list of the committees in charge for the day:

Executive—H. W. Sherman, J. B. Dickman, and N. C. Sprague.

Athletics—John Hamerstrom, Milford Spohn, George Miller, J. S. Stevens, J. Hengster, R. W. Cowen, G. Bakersmith, C. R. Waldecker, W. P. Zergles, Fred Pletcher, and J. Wheeler.

Order—W. S. Crown, J. Moser, T. Saunders, J. Lynch, H. J. Wells, W. Roberts, W. E. Thompson, R. Morrison, and J. C. Whelan.

Tickets—E. J. Ratigan, John Sheehan, J. A. Daley, C. W. Winslow, W. Silver, W. Schwartsmann, W. H. Merriman, C. Sproesser, and H. J. Lanbach.

Donations—J. F. McCarthy, W. S. Crown, D. Lear, G. W. Fox, and E. Nan Ness.

Floor—J. A. Daley, C. W. Winslow, W. Silver, C. Sproesser, and H. J. Lanbach.

The day passed without mishaps. which attests more than all else that in handling such a large number of people much attention had been given to detail on the part of the committees and constant vigilance on the part of Captain Randall and his assistants.

May happy recollections of the Labor Day celebration of 1902 abide during the coming year with all organizations and also the friends of the Central Labor Union.

NOTES.

Ratigan looked at home in the ticket office.

Some of the rooters think that was a "base ball."

Spohn, the sage of the bricklayers, was in attendance.

Pistori and Crown, of the musicians, were down "blowing themselves"

There was no shooting the chute. None of the boys brought a pistol.

The Clerks were well represented. Pfau, their business agent, is a hustler.

Sprague, of the pressmen, was on hand early and worked to the close of the day.

Of course Silver was on hand. He is always around when the C. L. U. is concerned.

John Hamerstrom, President of the C. L. U, did faithful work in the ranks of one of the committees for the day.

Pletcher handled the sporting events like an old stager. Looked as though this was not his first turn at the game.

Chairman Sherman was all smiles, as well he might be, for everything ran along smoothly. He is a man of large experience in Labor Day celebrations.

The Sheet Metal Workers' Union made some sheetiron boxes wherein the charitably disposed could keposit coin of the realm to assist the striking miners.

Joe Babcock took part, though he but recently returned from an extended sick leave. He is one of the active delegates to the C. L. U., likewise chairman of the contract committee.

Winslow, of the ironworkers, was on the go early and late. When there is work on hand he is a good man to call in—looking for something to do all the time. The ironworkers know him and that is the reason he is their business agent.

D. J. Kaufman, the popular clothier at 1005-7 Pennsylvania avenue, has long been recognized as a staunch friend of union labor, and his action in closing all day Labor Day will serve to give him a still stronger hold on the patronage of all union men.

The writer remarked to Mr. Kaufman that he was glad to see one firm who had the courage to close all day when most of his competitors remained open a half day. "We don't care about our competitors," answered Mr. Kaufman; "I made up my mind to close on Labor Day several months ago, without consulting anybody else. I know we didn't lose a cent by it, for we had a very busy Saturday preceding Labor Day and have been busy ever since we opened Tuesday morning, and even if we did lose money, I would close just the same."

Good for D. J.

A Little Bit of All Sorts.

The Allied Label offices in this city number over thirty, and the good work goes on.

"And Her Golden Hair Was Hanging Down Her Back."—Favorite song of Harry MacFarland.

Washington is preparing to win the championship next season. We always have a great club here in January.

I see it announced in the press that the Knights of Labor concluded finally not to have a public parade on Labor Day. I was greatly disappointed, as I am a great admirer of immense bodies of men on parade.

And the Philadelphia Ledger and the Baltimore Sun are issuing Sunday editions. Our own Evening Star will follow next, as they have been very much worried at the amount of business in the Sunday Post this year or two.

The Commissioners paid $8 50 a ton for some coal last week; bought same grade last year for $5.14. Presume will have to pay at least $10 for it this winter, because the coal barons need the money and have nothing to arbitrate.

One of the biggest fakes in the country is the ad-writing school. One of them shows photos of writers they have turned out in a few weeks who are drawing pay all the way up to $150 a week. Maybe so, but I have me doots.

Time must have dealt very leniently with most of the Cincinnati prints, judging from pictures in the "Souvenir," especially with my old friends, "Buttercup" Crowley and Bob Curl, who look just as they did twenty and more years ago.

Frank Hoover, now hereof, was a delegate from Minneapolis to the Buffalo convention, and his speech in advocacy of the Flour City as the place for the next meeting of the I. T. U. was a gem so rare that he was only defeated by Adrian Jones's cowboy suit, which carried the day for Kansas City. Some of Hoover's points are quoted yet, and I have no doubt were used in Washington's favor at Cincinnati.

Jim Alburtis tells a good one on himself. Says he was "solicited" several times one day by the genus hobo, until he thought to inquire why he was made such a particular mark. After yielding gracefully to about the sixth applicant, he mildly requested of the needy brother why it was that he seemed to be such a particularly good thing. Jim says the hobo smiled benignly at his interrogatory and replied: "Well, I'll tell you, pardner, you certainly do look like a puddin'."

"Blood" Thornton says his capacity for the German beverage keeps pace with his increasing waist measurement. I recollect going into a thirst emporium with a party some years ago, and as several of the party called for "small ones," the barkeeper put them all up small. Col. Thornton looked at the one put before him and inquired, "What's that?" The barkeeper said he supposed everybody wanted them small. "Do I look like a man who drinks small beer?" demanded William Henry. "Give me the biggest you've got in the house—and no bubbles."

As Bloomer says, this may have been told before. Some years since a police officer named Slack was killed, and the conundrum was going round the office, "Why is the police force like a tight-rope?" the answer being, "There is no Slack in it." Somebody sprung it on Chris. Auracher, and, with the German facility to always get the point of a joke wrong, Chris. tackled Johnny Burnside as follows: "Say, Chonny, vy is der bolice force of Vashington like a dighdrobe?" Burnside couldn't see the resemblace and so acknowledged. "Pecause Slack is dedt," said Chris.

When Gen. J. S. Clarkson was editor of the Des Moines Register, Uncle Billy Colescott came along and got a take of the General's manuscript. After viewing it from all sides he put it back on the hook, put on his coat, and gave the foreman his opinion, as follows: "I don't mind the great State of Iowa offering every inducement to those d—d Swedes and Norwegians to come into the State and settle, but when it gets so that they hire 'em to edit the newspapers and expect a union printer, who always carries his card, to set such stuff as that I am going back to Indianny and cut hoop-poles."

The large number of ex-delegates to the I. T. U. employed in Washington at this time would seem to warrant the formation of some sort of an organization to take part in the entertainment of the convention next year. Columbia Union's exs number something like sixty, I believe, and it is safe to hazard that there are pretty nearly as many more who have represented other unions now employed here. That number of men who have had the experience of many years should be able to do something handsome in the way of hosts, and the start can not be made too soon. At the New York, Boston, and Philadelphia conventions the exs were very much in evidence in the entertainment line, and I doubt if either had anything like the number of men that are here to-day nor the facilities to make their efforts successful.

Columbia Union years ago was prolific of the Jones family, and to most of them was attached some nickname. There was "Pap" Jones, daddy of the sporting family of that name, several of the boys being printers as well. Then there was "Small Cap" and "Thin Space" and "Forenoon" and "Rocky Mountain" and the "Jack of Clubs" and others I do not now recall, most of whom have passed over the Great Divide. "Rocky Mountain" was so called, I believe, because he was comparable to that great range by the size of the stories he could tell. He came from somewhere in East Tennessee, and always wore a butternut suit of clothes and a silk hat. His shoes being entirely worn out, a purse was made up of some $3 or $4 and given him to get a pair. He paid $1 25 for a pair of low quarters with immense buckles and blowed in the balance playing seven-up. His low shoes were not much protection from the winter weather, but he kept the buckles well polished.

"Pard" Bloomer made mention some time ago of one Thomas F. Deane, who was known about the New York Herald as "Holy Dogan," because of a bull he perpetrated on that paper. Deane was a man of versatile talents. He was not only a poet, but an artist with the pencil as well. Some of his sketches of the prominent characters in the famous Beecher-Tilton trial, at that time occupying the attention of the entire world, would have been worthy of Homer Davenport of this day. When Deane first came about the Herald he was considerably "on the hog," and trained in with a gang of newsboys and bootblacks who occupied the stairway leading to the composing-room for sleeping purposes, and grubbed around at the cheap lunch counters of the neighborhood. He was fortunate to catch on to a frame whose holder had met with an accident of some serious nature, and, after working about a month, he showed up at the office dressed in the height of fashion, with kid gloves, high silk hat, etc., and deserted the haunts of the newsboys for a boarding-house somewhere uptown. This his former chums of the stairway resented by smashing his high hat and soiling his good clothes and, I believe, eventually driving him from the office by their persecutions. The last time I saw him he was traveling with the famous emotional actress, Marie Prescott, playing the part of a Catholic priest, one of the leading characters in a very strong play, and playing it in a very superior manner.

Specification Scintillations.

Miss Reith M. Eisenhour visited Atlantic City, last Saturday.

James H. Wiley left last Saturday for Atlantic City to disport in the ocean.

Charles P. Peake has returned to work after a pleasant vacation of fifteen days.

William Y. Clarke has returned to his old frame to electrify his sidepartner, Ivins Davis, on the "Benefits of an Exemplary Life."

Andrew McGarraghy is holding down the important position of "property man," formerly filled by the rotound and rosy John R. Sturgis, now employed on the make up bank.

Charles J. Duffy is the proud father of a bouncing 10-pound boy. This is his first attempt and last Thursday his many friends and admirers worked his arm like a pump-handle in their ecstacy of congratulation.

There was a "run" on the Sym. last Saturday and F. H. Melick, grand keeper of the wampum, was kept busy tiding over the Labor Day enthusiasts. He withstood the shock, since the Specification Sym is as solid as Gibraltar.

It is not often that we wade into poetry, but the recent "dropping" of genial Stephen B. Tilley provoked the following the wail:

The world seems dark, cold, and drear,
And everything seems silly,
Since cruel fate at last did tear
From us, our own sweet Tilley.

Come back, oh Tilley, to thy frame,
With mellow voice and face,
And teach us to set the "average,"
Out of an empty case.

Joseph W. Schmaling is one of the best all-around compositors in the G. P. O. Recently he set one hundred and thirty-six lines without an error, and he receives "O. K,s" almost every day. Schmaling's erudition and ability entitle him to a prominent place on the "waiting" list for promotion, and some day, sooner or later, like Cincinnatus, he will be called "from the plow to the forum."

Possibly the most interesting branch of Uncle Sam's printerv is the Specification Room. Situated in the Union building, far above the din and strife of plebian life, this hive of industry occupies a commanding view of the "City of Magnificent Distances." As the eye wanders toward the south, a magnificent panorama of the Potomac accosts the vision, and on the north, east, and west the bustle of busy life, the many historic spots, and the cool, inviting parks hold the spectator spell-bound and brings about a desire to heap maledictions upon the heads of those who advocate a removal of the seat of government. The work of this division is both instructive and interesting and gives the compositor a fair idea of the inventive world and a knowledge of the skill and abilities of American mechanics and artisans who have contributed in no small degree to make this country the foremost of all in the march of progress. But it is not my desire to inflict the readers of THE TRADES UNIONIST with an essay, and I deem it appropos to "make even" at this point.

Union Building Bindery.

Rumor says we will move to the new building soon after October 1.

John T. McCauseland returns to work this week, after a pleasant vacation in New York and Philadelphia.

Harry Kaiser, a member of the arbitration board of the Bookbinders' Union, is one of the most popular men on this force. Harry is a Jerseyman, but he can't help that.

"Noodles" Conroy, formerly of Bosting, spent Labor Day on the Bowery, in New York. He didn't have money enough, he said, to tempt the green goods men, but had a good time at the museums and shooting galleries.

If Tom Loftus is looking for talent to strengthen his team for next year, the many friends of Sammy Wakefield think he would fill in all right. Sam is not only a good all-around player but as a coacher he has them all faded.

One of the most popular ladies of this force is Miss Charlotte Miner. Besides being an active worker in union matters she is vice-president of the Union Mutual Relief Association and one of the most vigilant members of its governing board.

Tom May recently completed his fortieth year as an employe of the G. P. O. bindery. Mr. May is an excellent workman, a quiet, unpretentious gentleman, and everybody hopes he may be able to hold on for forty more if he wants to.

"Diamond Bill" Barth took advantage of the Labor Day rates to visit New York, for the purpose of putting a century or so on his choice in the great Futurity and, incidently, to lay in a stock of Dunlap and Knox hats and Fiske-Clarke neckwear. His shopmates always look to him to introduce the very latest on the market.

The many friends of Finley Hayes were grieved to learn that he had met with an accident, while at the Specification Division, which necessitated his removal to his summer cottage at Colonial Beach. The nature of the accident was not disclosed, but let us hope it is nothing of so serious a nature as to long deprive the Government of his valuable services.

For a big man Guy Knehner is as lively on his feet as any one I ever saw. He weighs over 250 pounds but has that springy, light step so characteristic of the German athlete, and he is as good natured as he is big. Gus is mighty well posted and a fluent talker on economic questions, and is a firm believer in the single tax doctrine of the lamented Henry George.

Arthur Frishee is spending his vacation up in the woods of Maine, where he has gone every summer for many years. Frishee works faithfully for about ten months in the year—and there are no better workmen at his trade than he, and few finer men—and then he takes his little old thirty days' leave and goes up in the Maine woods to enjoy it.

"Cupid" Welch is a very fine cornet player and was for years leader of a band in Wilmington, Del. He has had many opportunities to turn his musical talents to good account since becoming an employe of Uncle Sam, but steadfastly refuses to do so, as he believes that the musicians, who depend upon music for a livelihood, are entitled to these opportunites. And that is true union principle.

In a well-contested game of baseball at the Arsenal Grounds, Saturday, August 30, between the Union Building Branch and the Blank Men, the latter were defeated by the following score:

									R.	H.	E.
Union Building...	1	3	1	5	0	1	4		15	14	5
Blank Men	0	4	3	1	3	0	1		12	11	4

Batteries: Union Building, Wakefield, Grosham and Ruedy; Blank Men, Arends and Chute. Umpire—Kirch.

The game was interesting, inasmuch as the score was twice tied, once in the second and again in the sixth inning. Among the features were the home run of Ruedy and one of Chute, both catchers evidently having their eyes on the ball. The game had to be called at the end of the seventh inning, as the Arsenal Grounds are closed promptly at 6 p. m. A return game will be played next Saturday, if arrangements can be made.

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL WASHINGTON. 2

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1902

I would as soon think of doing business without clerks as without advertising.
—JOHN WANAMAKER.

Nothing, except the mint, can make money without advertising.
—GLADSTONE.

When you pay more for the rent of your business house than for advertising your business, you are pursuing a false policy. If you can do business, let it be known.
—FRANKLIN.

IT seems to us that the war play, by far worse than horse play, of both our Navy and Army branches of the Government is sheer nonsense. Whoever heard of a person doing just the same act in play as in earnest? And then as it requires many thousands of dollars of the taxpayers hard earned stipends and there is no other way to squander the filthy lucre nothwithstanding our large number of unfed and unclothed citizens, perhaps it is all right that we should furnish the money for both Messrs. HIGGINSON and PILLSBURY to put up a little matinee in order to earn their salaries. Great is our free Government indeed when the useless office holders must be kept in public view.

BY recent newspaper publications of the manner in which one B. H. WARNER, who has become one of our principal realty men through the turn of time and fortune in this city, received representatives of certain labor unions, relative to the printing of the G. A. R. official programme is worthy of our time, to pay the said gentleman "the renewed assurances of greatest respects," sometimes, these being one of the times. It is reported by the daily press that when a member of the Allied Printing Label Committee visited the said committee who had charge of the issuance of the said publication, and of which the said B. H. WARNER is one member, he discourteously and abruptly informed one Mr. CAMPBELL that "it was none of his business" and proceeded to relieve himself of a special tirade toward printers. Now, Mr. CAMPBELL is not a printer, but a stereotyper, and secretary to the Allied Printing Trades Council, and it comes within his province by the position held by him to see to it that all printing of moment in this jurisdiction bears the Allied Label—the proof that union wages and fair conditions exist in the establishment from which the printing is turned out.

We lament to state Mr. WARNER forgets that Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, made a liberal appropriation, which was largely augmented by private subscriptions amongst its membership, amounting to nearly up to the one thousand dollar mark. Now, if these same printers and union men have not a right to inquire who is who and use their influence to have satd publication printed in a union office then who has a right? How long since and upon what flesh does Mr. WARNER feed that he all at once assumes that he is "the whole thing" and all should genuflect or crouch in fear of him? Does it ever occur to him that many who rent his houses are union printers and union men? Is it not about time that the citizens of the District place some one or at least suppress this self-appointed one on matters of any form of celebration or entertainment? It is certainly a sad commentary if there is none to fill his place for should he die the Grand Army and other organizations coming here who were dependent upon the citizens doing their share would be in a sorry plight. Let us bid one B. H. WARNER good night, and forget him.

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

In the late fall of 1873, Wash Chew, Dick Toler, and I had occasion to walk out of Nashville, Tenn, and we kept going until we got to Atlanta, Ga., a little matter of 289 miles. Of course it was easy enough to hop trains, but we were in no hurry. The first day out from Nashville we made 15 miles—we had got a late start—when we came to a little wayside church and schoolhouse. It was pretty cold at night, even in a Southern latitude, and we were delighted to find—it was Saturday night—that a supply of wood had been provided for Sunday. We entered the building, fired up the stove, and spent a very comfortable night, but took good care to hike out early the next morning and travel rapidly, for fear that perhaps we had trenched upon some favorite prejudice of the community.

We passed through Murfreesboro, Tullahoma, Wartrace, and a number of sizeable villages, but nothing to warrant a stop was found. At one of these towns we found a young fellow printing the proceedings of a Baptist convention, two pages at a time on an "Army press," a sort of amateur printing machine worth about $7. He was doing the whole job himself and feeling as independent as a duck in a swimming school.

We finally arrived at Chattanooga, passing around the base of Lookout Mountain en route, and explored a cave in the mountain where "the hand of man had never trod" but a few times before we got there. Chattanooga was a great straggling village of about 3,000 then, with two little jerk-water dailies, on one of which there was no work, and on the other there was no pay—except in grocery orders.

We left there, after a rest of about three days, and by the aid of a candle we groped our way through the tunnel which penetrates the abdominal region of Missionary Ridge. Then we followed the railroad in its meanderings down the valley of the Chickamauga Creek, which it crosses at least two dozen times. Ringgold, Dalton, Rome, Cartersville, and Marietta were all captured and evacuated without the loss of a man. At that time there were many reminders of the then "late" war along the road, in the shape of earthworks, old fortifications, etc., and we took our time and examined objects of interest critically.

We arrived in Atlanta safely, after being eleven days out, and found a union election just getting ripe. Dave Walton was the president, and he was succeeded at that election by J. Knox Thrower. D. T. Wilson ("Tom") was elected delegate to the St. Louis convention of the I. T. U. Tom Wilson afterwards came to this city and stayed a year or two, after which he went to Chicago, where I believe he is yet.

We got a little work on the Constitution, but not much, and afterwards were compelled to continue our southward journey in the same manner in which we had arrived, after a stay of about six or eight weeks. Among the printers I remember in Atlanta at that time were Dave Walton, Tom Wilson, Bill Pittman, Gus, Fred, and "Buffalo Bill" Cunningham, Cornelius Willingham (a relative of whom was employed in the Night Third recently and I hope still), John Marshall, Harry Worsham, Ed Doutney, Tony Travis, Isaac Pilgrim, Dr. Yeager, Raschal Moran (recently deceased), Tandy Wilkinson, Walter Henderson, Dave Humphrey, Saloshin, and —— Jackson.

* * * *

Somebody not long ago brought to mind J. W. ("Dirty Shirt") Armstrong, who has been away from here nearly twenty years. I last saw him on Park Row, in New York, nine or ten years ago, and I suppose he is still trotting up and down that descendant of old Chatham street. Armstrong used to work in the G. P. O. and at one time was quite a spellbinder among the various labor organizations of the city, during the period when Isaac Cohen, Jack Hamilton, and Ed Blake were bright particular stars in labor's constellation. He originally hailed from Wheeling and was really a bright, able man.

* * * *

Armstrong's opprobrious nickname brings up recollections of "Dirty Shirt" Brown, who I knew in Kansas long years ago, but have not heard of for at least thirty years. I think his range was a rather restricted one, and I have the impression that he originated in Iowa. He was pock-marked, but otherwise a good fellow.

* * * *

What fond recollections come back to those of us who learned our trade in the country—and most of us did. What devilish "devils" we were as a rule—designers of half the devilish schemes which are about the only amusement of boys in country towns and leaders in their execution. On publication day we had to "roll" for the boss, who was the editor, proprietor, publisher, printer, and pressman. If he was a purse-proud aristocrat, he perhaps had an inking machine, but generally we used hand rollers. After the edition was off—10 or 12 quires was about the amount of paper we used—I had to fold the papers, while the boss put up the mail, and then I carried it to the post-office. After that I delivered the papers to the "city subscribers" (sometimes as many as 30 or 40), and the day's work was done.

To get a real, raw boy from the cornfield into the office and show him around was "nuts" for me. I never failed to show him the "type lice" before he got away. One day I soaked one big, lanky fellow's eyes full of the dirtiest water I could get, and as soon as he could see he made for me. Down street, across lots, through yards, up alleys I ran, with him after me, gaited like a Suburban winner, until I claimed the protection of a friendly blacksmith, who helped me laugh the fellow out of his rage.

A big sunburned youth came into the office one day and talked to me as I was piling up long primer to beat the band. He reached over to the galley beside me and picked up a handful of live type about the same way as he would pick up an ear of corn. Of course it clattered all over the galley and the floor.

"Well, great geewhillikins, the danged things is loose, ain't they?"

They were; so was my language.

As I grew older I was at first permitted and later required to "pull" the old handpress myself. I delighted to show visiting boys how much stronger I was than they, though I was a very slender, peaked, scraggy youngster, for I could pull the lever around with ease, while they would strain and tug and maybe not then accomplish it. One big fellow, after making one failure, dragged the lever around by main strength. Then the press went to pieces. Then the boss gave me—a talking to.

But I don't remember that I was ever as mean as Foreman "Hick" admits he was at this adolescent period. An honest old farmer would come in and say:

"Hello! My paper struck off yet?"

"I dunno," says Hick; "I'll see."

Then he would make a bluff of looking through the printed papers and then the unprinted ones.

"No, sir," he would say; "your paper is away down here; but I'll soon get to it."

And then he would keep the simple minded yeoman sitting there three quarters of an hour until he printed that particular paper. No wonder he became a foreman when he grew up.

Mike Molan told me a couple of stories lately of Lou Hudson. It will be remembered that Hudson was a proof-reader here for a year or two about 1890-91.

At Trinidad, Colo., Hudson and Bill Cunningham were working in an office which was about to remove to another building. They helped in the work and among other things they took apart a Campbell press, cleaned it up nicely, and when they got it into the new quarters they discovered that neither knew how to set it up again.

"Bill," said Hudson, "I don't know a banged thing about putting that press together; do you?"

"No," said Cunningham. (This was Cincinnati Bill Cunningham, the "rounder," fighter, "tourist," and all-round hobo whom everybody in the West knew, and who was killed in a fight at Pittsburg about ten years ago) "You're bossing this job; you ought to know how to do it."

"Well, I don't," said Hudson. "What will we do?"

"Let's get up a row with the boss and quit," said Bill.

"Agreed," said Lou; and they did so.

The proprietor went to Raton, N. Mex., where Molan was working, in search of a man to set up his press, and Mike went over and fixed it up for him.

While working at Raton Hudson got himself a big Mexican buckskin sombrero, and one night he went over to "Chihuahuatown" to have some sport. Molan told him before he started that he had better not take that sombrero to Chihuahuatown (a sporting section of Raton), but Hudson would have his way. He got back minus sombrero and one boot. Molan went over the next day to see what he could discover. He found the sombrero behind the bar of a saloon, where it had been put after being snatched off Hudson's head in a dispute about paying for some drinks, and by representing that it belonged to one of the editors and redeeming it he was given possession. Then Molan asked about the missing boot.

"He had his boots when he left here," said the barkeep. "He went out the back way when the shootin' commenced."

Molan went out the back way and discovered a fence. Hanging in a crotch between two rails was the boot, which made a perfect bootjack. So Hudson was again in possession of his property. A fine sombrero is the most valuable thing a Mexican owns, and this one of Hudson's had cost him about $20.

W. N. Brockwell (have you ever noticed what an inexhaustible fund of stories he has) told me a story a few days ago of the late Geo. E. Dummer. Mr. Dummer was a very enthusiastic Single Taxer, besides having a few pet schemes of his own for the temporal salvation of mankind. One day, after the publication of one of Henry George's books, Dummer, who was in ecstacies over it, met Brockwell and said:

"Mr. Brockwell, here is a book that you must read. Let me put down your name for a copy," producing a slip of paper and a pencil.

"Oh, I don't know," said Brocky, in a hesitating way.

"Yes, yes, Bill," said Dummer, "you must have it."

"All right, George; put me down," Brockwell answered, giving in gracefully.

Things went on for three or four weeks; the book was not forthcoming and Dummer said no more about it. One day Brockwell asked him:

"George, when am I going to get that book?"

"What book?" asked Dummer.

"Why, that Henry George book that you took my subscription for," said Brocky.

"Brockwell, I'm a printer, not a —— book agent," said Dummer. "I don't know what you are talking about"

The whole circumstance had slipped the old man's mind.

Harry B. Judson is spending his vacation at his home in Delavan, Wis.

Misses Mary L. Bergin and Grace L. Dubant are enjoying a visit to Boston.

John Mulroy began his vacation on August 14. He will be gone a full month.

M. G. Molan is at his old home in Minnesota, where he will remain till September 19.

Raymond E. Gery, of the proof room, is spending his leave at Atlantic City. He has been there since August 25.

Brown as a berry, Ira Taylor is with us again. Crabs in the vicinity of Bay Ridge will now have less apprehension of future well-being.

C. S. Shutterly and T. L. Wade, temporary men, were stricken from the role one day last week. Also, Mrs. Julia A. Wyatt, one of the feeders.

William M. Holeman returned from Kentucky last week, where he has been recuperating for the past two months. The Judge has the appearance of having been restored to his old time vigor.

Charles M. Evans returned Monday, having spent the greater part of his leave in and around his old home in Annapolis. He has every appearance of having been greatly benefited by his outing.

Geo. C. Williams has returned from a month's leave spent at his home in Providence, R. I., looking like a well-trained athlete. Being considerably too strong for heavy work, he has in consequence been assigned to duty on the bonds.

The longest way home is the shortest road to a family row.

The Value of the Union Label

EDITOR TRADES UNIONIST:

Why is it that so many of our members and, in fact, members of all organized bodies pay so little attention to the label outside of their respective trade or calling? How many who are in possession of a card ever stop to think about the importance or the value the label has on the labor question? A very small number, no doubt. How many men who hold a card buy union clothes or have them made by union tailors? When we buy non union goods we are using our money in employing non-union workers; we are doing the very thing that we condemn an employer for doing—employing non-union help. A union man wearing a scab hat, scab clothes, buying scab tobacco, or the various products of scab labor is, in my opinion, doing more to retard the trade-union movement than some of our enemies on the outside. The label is the union man's trade-mark, placed on the product of his toil, and carries with it a guarantee that it was made under fair and just conditions and that a living wage was paid to those who produced it, and that neither children nor convicts worked upon the goods. The union label is like most everything else—there must be a demand for it or the merchant will not handle it. The label represents the practical side of the trade-union movement, and if the 2,500,000 union men which we boast of having in our ranks to-day, and including their families reaches nearly 10,000,000, would only demand the label on everything they purchase that a label could be used on, what a boom it would be to the men and women in the various industries of life! It would mean fewer strikes and lockouts and a general improvement all around. Men and women who are putting on the market label-bearing goods are appealing to us to demand the label, thereby assisting them to better their condition and become free men and women. We condemn the sweatshop as an un-American institution, and so it is. Then why do we buy the products of the sweatshop? Demand the Garment-Makers' label on all clothes, and the cursed sweatshop will be a thing of the past. While it is not my desire to criticise the employes of the Government Printing Office, for in that big establishment there are many able and staunch union men and women and are generous to a fault, still I can not help but refer in this article as to what a tobacco drummer told me on Labor Day while discussing the label question with him. I hope his statement is not true, but he informed me that nearly two-thirds of the cigars sold in the vicinity of the G. P. O. were of the non-union variety. If that statement is true, it is a sad commentary on the union men employed in Uncle Sam's big printery. There is no excuse for scab cigars being sold in the Swamp. Columbia Union has a fine of $5, I believe, to be imposed on any member buying a scab cigar. Then, who buys them? Printers and those connected with the printing trade especially ought to be the first ones to stand up for the label, for I have yet to see the first piece of literature sent out by the various local and international unions that does not bear the insignia of our trade. Then why not act like true union men by reciprocating? A man may call himself a union man, but if he will not make an honest effort while purchasing to secure the label on what he buys he falls far short of being a trades unionist. The I. T. U., in its recent convention, said its members should pay more attention to the label of other trades. Some of us have been denied the right of free speech, or the right to assemble peaceably for the purpose of discussing the rights of those who toil, but, thank God, there is no law on the statute books that can deprive us of our liberty for demanding the label on what we purchase, for if there was Judge Jackson or Judge Keller would have resurrected it ere this. The Union Label is or ought to be to every true union man what the cross is to religion.

AROUND THE PRINTERIES.

Down Town.

Arthur Armstrong and family are spending a few weeks at their old home in Butler, Ky.

J. A. Phillips, of Second Division, G. P. O., is visiting at Houston, Halifax County, Va.

Major Russell, of the Proof Room, G. P. O., returned last week from a visit at Jamaica.

The Third Division of the G. P. O. donated a barrel flour, through the Machinists, to the striking miners.

F. H. Long, who has been visiting for some time at his old home, Harrisonburg, Va., has returned to this city.

Eugene S. B. Eubank, from Galveston Typographical Union, No. 18, died in the Home hospital, August 20, of tuberculosis.

W. R. Johns, Jr., reports having enjoyed a very pleasant time at Prince Edward Island, from whence he returned last Friday.

The eight hour movement is truly a coming and lasting condition. The police force of this city started in on the eight-hour plan September 1.

Charles A. Morgan, of the Proof Room, G. P. O., accompanied by his family, left last week for a short sojourn at Atlantic City by the sea.

The Knights of Labor printing for their Labor Day celebration was very conspicuous for the absence of the Allied Printing Label. How about it?

E. E. Wild, wife and mother, and William Leavitt and family, have returned from a few weeks sojourn at the home of Mr. Leavitt at Lake Sunapee, N. H.

The many friends of "Dud" Fleming, late delegate to Cincinnati, will be pleased to learn he is improving from his late illness and is now at work in the G P. O.

C. E. (Turkey) Miller, formerly employed at the big printery and well known here, is now located at New York in the employ of the Lanston Monotype Machine Company.

Mr. Joseph Lenhart, of the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., is spending a thirty-days' vacation in Colorado, He was employed in the Chieftain office, Pueblo, twenty years ago.—Labor News, Colorado Springs.

Second Division.

W. V. Parshall has deveioped into a first class bankman.

Warren L. Wilmeth, of Dallas, Tex., started on his leave, Wednesday. He will be gone thirty days.

Our old friend La Costa Rodier has taken out a license and is grinding out poetry at a lively rate. Good luck, old man.

E. C. Saltzman is still acting as average man during the absence of Mr. Lenhart, who is recuperating in Colorado.

"Goldy," our superior man, returned Friday, looking as if he had been basking the sunshine and having a good time generally.

George C. Sparks is running the page proof press, and Theo. Gerber, from St. Louis, has returned to the "mines," as it were.

The many friends of George C. Sparks will be pleased to learn that his wife, who has been seriously ill for several weeks, is gradually improving.

Monday, September 1, being slug 36's birthday, the office closed down in order to give the boys an opportunity to fittingly celebrate the occasion.

Our accommodating "lead and slug straightening artist, R. L. Mohler, has returned and is doing business at his old stand, after a pleasant visit to the Old Dominion.

It is rumored that our popular helper, Thomas A. Fitzgerald, is contemplating matrimony at an early date. Here is hoping that his cup of matrimonial bliss may be filled to the brim.

Maurice H. Phillips, of this division, is somewhat elated over the contents of a telegram received by him on Labor Day, which stated that the Stork had visited his home in Illinois and presented him with a baby girl.

Clement C. Hipkins, our acting secretary in the absence of W. M. Garrett, returned to work on Friday, looking as brown as a berry and somewhat swollen. The swelling was the result of going against a poisonous oak vine, while rambling in the mountains.

W. F. Johnson went with the crack sharp shooters to Sea Girt, last Thursday. He is a member of Captain Robinson's company. Captain Robinson, who is a member of the First Division chapel, was unable to accompany the boys on account of illness in his family. It is pleasing to note that the District boys carried off most of the prizes this year.

We are glad our accommodating paymaster, Major Clifford, took kindly to our suggestion and changed the payday from Mondays and Tuesdays to Fridays and Saturdays. Our money seems to go further when we receive it on Saturday, and then, again, there are many nearby pleasure resorts where we can go to spend the Sunday if we have the price. Most of us have a family to support—some of us have two—and, owing to the increased cost of living, we don't have much left on Sunday when we get paid on Monday. Let us hope that he will keep it up.

The truth of the old adage that "in union there is strength" was never more clearly proven than in the case of a certain milkman, whose name we deem it unnecessary to mention here, as he has been selling milk in the office for the past ten years. Notwithstanding the fact that he has been patronized by union men and women—thanks to the efforts of organized labor this office is union throughout—he stubbornly refused to comply with the expressed wish and request of his patrons here to unionize his "plant" and comply with the rules and regulations of the milk wagon drivers' union. As a result of his stubborness the members of this chapel, and in fact the entire office, refuse to patronize the aforesaid milkman and now he has milk to "burn," as it were.

Watch for a Town.

Johnny Castell is also suffering from a boil. They must be in order. Change the menu.

Gus Diers has been a sufferer from an ugly boil on the side of his neck, but is getting better.

In the absence of Assistant Dow, the chair is ably filled by Make-up Boone, our former assistant.

If Le Grys took his contemplated trip, by this time he must be enjoying himself upon the briny waves.

After a few weeks of fresh air at Ocean City, Brother Smith is back in the harness. He looks hale and hearty, reporting good times.

Uber has been more or less under the weather for some time, but he has finally reported for work, although he claims that "Richard is not himself" by no means. Cheer up, Bill.

For the next few days New York City had better look out, for our only Wolfe intends preying on the innocents of that city. We are not responsible for his depredations, but we pray for his safe return.

Among others who will enjoy a few whiffs of the balmy zephyrs of September will be D. T. Lloyd, who intends spending a couple of weeks with his cousin, Mr. George Hughes, mine inspector, of Scott Haven, Pa.

The contemplated trip of Chairman Rowe to the woolly West is looked upon as an ovation after his Boston experience. Jake has been with us but a comparrtively short time. In the meantime his popularity among the craft has placed him with the top-notchers.

Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Carl Tegethoff started, by the way of Baltimore and Newport News, for Boston. They will also visit Biddeford, Me., where Mr. Tegethoff was formerly employed. Carl says the woods of Maine will be minus some of its game before he returns.

Our friend Reddy Morrow, after showing the young damsels of Spartansburg, S. C., some of the queer ways of the National Capital, returned without being accompanied by the buxom young widow he promised to produce. At any rate Reddy looks as having enjoyed himself to his heart's content.

Dave Walton played the part of the wise guy when he took his leave. Under the pretense of going North fishing, he did not do a thing but cross the pond and land in Scotland. He reports a good time, but is willing to admit that all the whales and porpoises seen on the journey are still disporting themselves in the haunts of the deep. Everybody is not modest enough to admit even that much.

DIXIE.

If you are a true union man do not patronize the Chinamen who spend no money with the union men in return, but send your work to the Boston Steam Laundry, First and G Streets N. W., who pay 40 per cent of their gross earnings to American working people. Telephone E 226-A. —7

Bindery Notes.

Blake Espey is spending a few days in New York.

Robert Barrett looked like a hop-toad going over the breakers near Young's Pier.

Walter H. Terry went into the courthouse at Atlantic City, thinking it was the railroad depot.

William B Hyde is recuperating at Asbury Park. He has been in very poor health of late.

The umpiring of the baseball game by Mike Dunn will never be forgotten. The police officers are laughing yet.

Jim Rutherford has returned with a very healthy glow in his cheek. He no doubt enjoyed his vacation at Atlantic City.

Chas. McEnaney heard a stammering class studying at Atlantic City, and remarked they must be Elks and are practicing a new yell.

The smiling face of Billy Dougherty can be seen on the porch, with a bunch of the fair sex, at Chester Inn, Atlantic City, every evening.

Jerry Connell, now known as Pads, took a rest the day after the last meeting. He needed it after defending his friend from Hyattsville.

A well-known bookbinder won the heart of an actress at the St. Charles, Atlantic City. She mistook him for a New York broker. He certainly did put up a good front.

A young man sat on the end of the steel pier, Atlantic City, one afternoon last week, and the young lady was heard to say, "Do not leave me, Charlie." He was recognized as Wm. C. Connor, who was bidding his last farewell. She was a peach.

On August 25, at 12 o'clock midnight, Harry McAleer died of typhoid fever. He served his apprenticeship with John C. Weidman, District of Columbia. He was 28 years of age; became a member of Bookbinders' Union December, 1895. He will be missed by his many friends in the Bindery, and was one of the most attentive, cheerful men in the cow section. He leaves a wife and two children.

Cow Boy.

The Rev. P. F. Brannon, a Catholic priest from Texas, gave a very eloquent lecture on "Purgatory" at the Union Printers' Home on the evening of the 13th. He quoted much scripture to prove an intermediate state, was listened to by the large audience with respectful attention, and at the close of the lecture was tendered a unanimous vote of thanks.—Labor News, Colorado Springs.

Increase of Anarchy.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 1, 1902.

The passing of a resolution by the International convention deploring the "increase of anarchy" may have been the easiest disposal of one of those impertinent things that all assemblies are more or less fated to endure. It may be necessary to clothe many things in whereases because simple truth is so hard of comprehension in the abstract; I don't know. Webster says an anarchist is "one who excites revolt or promotes disorder in a state." It would be far-fetched to make that definition apply to Czolgosz or to any American condition. It fitted past conditions in some of Europe, and is now mostly obsolete there. No president of the United States has been killed by an anarchist or a "cowardly assassin."

However, the result of misdirected patriotism, disappointment, anger, or intense desire for notoriety may be deplored, but a man who realizes that the result of his act is death to himself is not a coward in the definition in any of the English language dictionaries.

Czolgosz came from a class inordinately ambitious to be "in evidence," and was educated beyond position or seeming possibility of attainment. There is too much free education in the United States. The child is educated for the parlor, for a taste of the luxury of ease and the perfume of the rose, and at manhood is put to digging ditches and hauling manure. It is evolution and devolution.

If your Federal judges and cabinet ministers were put by the Government to digging ditches and hauling manure anarchism might become an apt word in America, but it will not become so through those brought up to the ditch spade and the manure wagon.

Child Labor.

No enlightened mind can fail to see the wrongs involved in imposing hard and continuous toil upon young children. Not only does it deprive them of the sunshine and joyousness of childhood, but it stunts their growth physically and mentally. The first stages of reform in this matter in our cotton mill States, as well as in England, disclose horrible conditions of cruelty to thousands of children hardly older than infants. The mercenary spirit which would coin the blood and hopes of childhood into dollars deserves no mercy from the public or the Legislatures of our States.—Democrat and Chronicle, Rochester, N. Y.

Gov. Ezra P. Savage, of Nebraska, in his Labor Day proclamation, says: "To the hand that toils society is largely indebted for its existance, welfare, and happiness. Idleness, whether in high or low stations of life, is a germ of crime. It is a fungus growth on industry. No pestilence contains so many elements of danger. Labor is a heritage. Providence decreed that man should earn his bread by the sweat of his brow. The law of industry, therefore, is immutable. To toil is an hereditary legacy whose title can not be passed. Conditions may strike uneven balances between individuals which may and do manifest their presence and influences in the form of industrial disquietude, but the most pitiable object is not the one who is required to labor incessantly, but the one whose keenest solicitude inclines to physical lethargy. Human architecture contemplates labor and he that contravenes nature's laws and does that which is intended to transform into a social, moral, and physical derelict. Honorable employment in whatever capacity contains none of the essence of disrespect. If there is one thing which more than another entitles an individual to popular respect, it is that he eschews idleness. That alone marks him with virtue in the estimation of all mankind."

In the Police Court yesterday there were but few prisoners, as compared with the previous records of Labor Day. The fact that there was little or no disorder during the day that required attention at the Police Court was very gratifyiug to the police authorities and spoke well of the conduct of the real laboring man, who rarely creates disorder.—Post.

Vol. VII. No. 13. WASHINGTON, D. C., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1902. Price, 3 Cents.

THE CENTRAL LABOR UNION

Funds and Donations for the Striking Miners to Be Received.

GENERAL GOBIN DENOUNCED

Large Attendance—Grievance Committee Report—Many Communications Disposed Of—Bogan & Leary Declared Unfair—Different Committees Busy—Other Matters of Real Interest.

The Central Labor Union met in weekly session Monday night, at Typographical Temple. Owing to the absence of President Hamerstrom and Vice-President Silver, Delegate Spohn, of the Bricklayers' Union, was called to the chair.

There having been no meeting the previous Monday night, on account of its being Labor Day, much business was transacted.

Credentials were received from Bricklayers' Union, No. 1, certifying Messrs. Milford Spohn, P. H. Shugrue, Joseph Hutton, and John O'Connor; from Local Union, No. 5, of United Association of Journeymen Plumbers, Gas Fitters, Steam Fitters and Steam Fitters' Helpers, certifying Messrs. John M. Barrett and Samuel Tapp; from Stone Laborers' Union, No. 9013, certifying Messrs. F. J. Rose, James Tate, Frank Peacock, Wash. Gordon, and Berney Wood.

Several unions communicated their indorsement of this body's action in the Chevy Chase Resort boycott.

A communication was received from New York Stereotypers' Union, No. 1, calling attention to several firms having their electrotypes for printing can labels done by the U. S. Printing Co., of Brooklyn, an institution they were endeavoring to unonize. This matter was referred to Grocery Clerks' Union.

A communication from M. Bachrach & Co, of Philadelphia, stating W. D. Tennille, of this city, was handling their line of union-made clothing, was placed on file.

The following communication relative to union drug stores in this city was ordered filed:

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 7, 1902.

Mr. WINSLOW,
Secretary Central Labor Union.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER: In my last communication there were omitted the names of druggists that have adopted the union store card. They were of the very first, and I wish particular mention of their names made so there will be no claim of injustice. W. C. Field (Stanhope Pharmacy), H street and New Jersey avenue northwest; Hill & Dewey, Fourth street and Massachusetts avenue northwest; W. P. Kenealy, North Capitol and I streets; C. Kraus, First and H streets northwest. These omissions were the result of accident.

There were several more that have received cards since the list was given, but their names have not yet been given to me officially.

Fraternally, yours,
FRED. T. HAFELFINGER,
Recording Secretary Registered Drug Clerks' Association.

The Grievance Committee reported their inability to adjust the difficulty between Paperhangers' Union and the firm of Bogan & Leary, dealers in wall papers, etc., and this body then placed said firm upon the unfair list.

The name of Ernest Dahle was ordered stricken from the unfair list, he no longer being in business. The matter of Mr. Roach and the Bartenders' League was referred back to Grievance Committee.

The Hod Carriers reported that the George A. Fuller and Shoreham hotel matters were straightened out.

Columbia Lodge of Machinists reported that donations amounting to about $500 in goods had been forwarded the striking miners, and thanked the different organizations for the same.

Upon motion prevailing, Messrs. Cowan, Sprague, Shugrue, Dickman, and Winslow were appointed as a committee to arrange to receive donations and contributions for the striking coal miners.

Delegate Shugrue, of Bricklayers' Union, offered the following, which was indorsed:

The recent order of Brig. Gen. J. P. S. Gobin, in command of the militia in the anthracite coal fields of Pennsylvania, which directs the troops, at their discretion, to deprive persons of life and liberty, is an inspiration of the spirit of militarism, which tends to provoke disorder and lawlessness and is subversive of civil law. The order is a license to an irresponsible armed force to become legally riotous and provoke again upon the soil of Pennsylvania mob violence and bloodshed to further the interests of the mine operators and end the strike of the miners.

The order evidences the prostitution of a soldiery, maintained for the protection of the homes and defense of the liberty of the citizen, to a police force engaged principally in escorting and protecting the miserable hirelings who are being used by the coal companies to defeat the union miners in their struggle for better industrial conditions.

The Central Labor Union therefore denounces the action of Gen. Gobin, and calls upon the miners and the member of organized labor generally in Pennsylvania to remember this abuse of the armed force of the State and other abuses and strike vigorously against them at every election at the ballot box.

Messrs. Sprague, Sherman, and Winslow were appointed as a committee to formulate a method of roll call.

The International Brotherhood of Stationary Firemen communicated an appeal for assistance. This matter was ordered to be brought to the attention of all organizations affiliated with this body and request donations.

The case of M. F. Coxen, saloonist, 468 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, at the request of Bartenders' League that he be placed upon unfair list, was referred to Grievance Committee.

The communication of Carpenters' Union, No. 190, relative to Ernest Dahle was referred back to them with the action of this body noted therein.

The communication of Federal Labor Union, No. 7295, of Knoxville, Tenn., relative to the unfair conditions imposed by the Knoxville Woolen Mills Company, and appealing for aid, was referred to the Label Committee.

Secretary Morrison, of the American Federation of Labor, communicated relative to International Association of Car Workers, of Buffalo, stating this body had seated delegates from a local organization of car workers, and requested him to see that section 1, Article XII, of the A. F. of L. constitution was complied with. Referred to Organization Committee.

EDITORS THE TRADES UNIONIST:

The September issue of the American Federationist has been placed in my hands, and its contents, especially that portion which is given over to press reports of the great campaign of President Gompers and members of the American Federation of Labor Executive Council throughout the great West, is so full of interest that I can not refrain from expressing the hope that these press reports and the speeches of Mr. Gompers will be issued in pamphlet form for general distribution—not to members of labor organizations alone, but to those who do not yet understand the benefits arising from organization. In these speeches Mr. Gompers established himself yet more firmly in the hearts of attentive hearers and disarmed critics by his forceful logical utterances. A million copies of these speeches could not fail of profitable results in the missionary field. Political parties claiming especial interest in the cause of labor could do a favor by putting these speeches of Mr. Gompers in the hands of voters.

EIGHT-HOUR LAW IN DANGER

St. Louis "Compendium" Uncovers Plot to Kill the Same.

TRULY A STARTLING STORY

Workingmen Warned to Be on the Alert—Unions Everywhere Urged to Immediate Action—Pledge Your Representative and Senators to Support Bill Making Eight Hours a Maximum Legal Day.

The St. Louis Compendium, than which there is no more reliable labor paper in the United States, in its last issue prints the following startling news:

Do the workingmen of the United States know that the eight-hour day is in peril?

Do they know that a systematic plan is now under way to put a stop to any further consideration of eight-hour legislation in the halls of Congress, and thereby deal a death blow to the movement for eight hours in every class of industry?

That it is high time for the wage earners of this nation to awake to the fact that the eight-hour day is in danger, and take immediate steps to thwart the attempt to force longer hours in nearly all industries is evident from a circular recently issued by the National Association of Manufacturers of the United States of America, of which Daniel M. Parry, of the Parry Mfg. Co., Indianapolis, Ind., is president; Hamilton Carhart, of Detroit, Mich., treasurer, and Marshall Cushing, of New York City, secretary.

The executive committee of the association is composed of the above-named officers and eighteen vice presidents, as follows: Daniel C. Ripley, United Glass Co., Pittsburg, Pa.; William McCarroll, American Leather Co., New York; James F. Taylor, American Oak Leather Co., Cincinnati, Ohio; D. A. Thompkins, D. A. Thompkins & Co., Charlotte, N. C.; Fred A. Geier, Cincinnati Milling Machine Co., Cincinnati, Ohio; George T. Coppins, Walworth Mfg. Co., Boston, Mass.; C. R. Hoag, Whitehead & Hoag Co., Newark, N. J.; W. H. Withington, Withington & Cooly Mfg. Co., Jackson, Mich.; William H. Hart, the Stanley Works, New Britain, Conn.; Chas. A. Schieren, Chas. A. Schieren & Co., New York; E. B. Pike, Pike Mfg. Co., Pike Station, N. H.; Charles Arthur Carlisle, Studebaker Bros. Mfg. Co., South Bend, Ind., Lucien Scharpe, Brown & Scharpe Mfg. Co., Providence, R. I.; Frederick W. Sivyer, Northwestern Malleable Iron Co., Milwaukee, Wis.; Summerfield Baldwin, Warren Mfg. Co., Baltimore, Md.; Theodore C. Search, Consolidated Lake Superior Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; James Deering, Deering Harvester Co., Chicago, Ill. The general offices of the association are given as 170 Broadway (Maiden Lane and Cortland street), New York.

It will be noted that several of these gentlemen are well known advocates of and professed supporters of unionism—associated with the anti-eight-hour movement with some of the most outspoken opponents of union labor.

The circular which leads the fight that is to be made against the eight-hour bill before the next session of Congress, came to the notice of this office through the kindness of a well and favorably known St. Louis manufacturer, well and favorably known for his consistent advocacy of the rights of wage earners. It is in part as follows (the italics being improvised):

NEW YORK, July 24, 1902.

DEAR SIRS: The eight-hour bill, so-called, has now dragged along through several years, advocated persistently and intelligently by the labor leaders, opposed in a vigorous but somewhat desultory and thus far unsuccessful way by manufacrurers.

Our association by unanimous vote at its Indianapolis convention last April adopted a resolution protesting against this legislation * * *

Now, must not the members of our association and the manufacturers of the country generally stand together to defeat this bill beyond resurrection? It can be done. Is it not time to do it now? The National Association, through its legislative committee, and its other officers, will take the lead, night or day, in this battle.

Will you help us by answering at length the inclosed questions? We are convinced that the only way to provide the committees of Congress and the Senators and Representatives themselves with reasons for killing this measure is to give them as many unimpeachable facts as possible. Please make them such as you would gladly stand for publicly—but do not hesitate to add for the guidance of your officers any confidential facts and opinions that would be of value in aiding us to wage this fight successfully * * *

Be good enough to consider this appeal as personal to your industry and yourself. I beg you to believe that if it does not now seem to concern you directly, it is certain to do so a little later on.

DAVID M. PARRY, President.
MARSHALL CUSHING, Secretary.

Accompanying the circular is a list of twenty questions, calculated to inspire the recipient to raise all possible objections to the eight-hour principle and to create antagonism where it does not already exist. It is useless to give space to the questions here; they will be held for future reference.

WAGE EARNERS, AWAKE!

Wage earners of America! Let not the more energetic employers catch you napping!

Take this matter up at once in your several meeting halls and adopt resolutions reaffirming your stand for the eight-hour day.

Write to the United States Senators of your respective States, urging upon them the interest you take in the eight-hour principle, and write to the Representatives-elect (of all parties) in your respective districts, asking them to pledge their support to the eight-hour bill. There are Senators to be elected also. Write to the avowed candidates (of all parties) for these offices, and show them that it is your intention to place them on record.

Do this at once! Don't wait until these officers are elected. Take up the question immediately and pledge yourselves, your energies, and your best efforts to defeat the aspirations of any candidate for Congress or the Senate who refuses to pledge his support to a bill making eight hours the maximum legal day on all Government work of whatever kind or description.

We agree with the last suggestion, as we noted in the Congressianal Record that during the debates on the labor bureau bill that some corporation Senators took occasion to point out that the hundreds of petitions received by honorable Senators and Congressmen were couched in the same verbiage, and that therefore the inference be drawn that all these petitions were the product of the same father. There are none so blind as those who will not see, and these Senators did not wish to see that a stereotyped form of petition was most convenient for workingmen and labor bodies, but in view of the advantage taken by these honorable gentlemen it is much better to deprive them of the opportunity to do so again by each locality and labor body drafting its own petition in original form.

The importance of taking action on this subject can not be overestimated and unions everywhere should act promptly in this emergency.

Organized labor has spent much money and labor for the passage of the eight-hour law, and it would be worse than criminal neglect to permit these wolves in sheep's clothing to nullify what has been done and defeat future favorable legislation by their conspiracy.—Western Laborer.

Next Sunday, September 14, marks the year since our martyred President, William McKinley, died from the results of the shot fired by one Leon Czolgosz in the Temple of Music, at the Pan-American Exposition, in Buffalo, N. Y., on September 6.

Anarchist Czolgosz, after a nine-hours' trial, on September 24, 1901, was sentenced to be electrocuted at Auburn on October 29.

Following this awful catastrophe Congress enacted laws providing for severe penalties to any person making an attempt upon the lives of our Chief Executive or other high officials of the Government. Let us hope the said law will never need to be invoked.

WASHINGTON TO MANITOU

The Trip Interestingly Described by Frank A. Roderick.

THE UNION PRINTERS' HOME

On a Trip from Washington the Sights and Scenes That Readily Appeal to the Traveler Through the Great States, Distant Cities, and Imposing Mountains Graphically Noted.

EDITORS THE TRADES UNIONIST:

With visions of white-capped mountains and frost-laden vales, the sunlit Capital City so grand and so heated was left for a midsummer "course of empire" tour. As seen from the rear platform of one of the B. & O.'s splendidly-equipped observation cars, the frizzly-headed Capitol Dome Goddess and the capstone of the Washington Monument were the last of the city to apparently sink into the Potomac marshes as the train crossed the District line and continued its onward rush over the verdant plains of Montgomery and, along the northern bank of the historic river, by the jagged ends of Frederick and Washington's mountains crags. "Harper's Ferry" shouts the train official, and the tourist passenger attempts to read the legends on the blackboards that pitifully stand in the place of John Brown's arsenal fort. The sound of the vanished hammer was not heard in conservative old Martinsburg; but the town of O. Shaw had an industrial ring. Over the Alleganies, through the famed Connellsville coke, coal, oil, and natural-gas region, and we were in the midst of the fire and smoke of Pittsburg. Dust and grime are the chief joy of Pittsburgers, and so wa left them alone in their glory and pushed out onto the Western Reserve—a fair region carved out of the wilderness by sturdy men who desired above all things else liberty and independence for themselves and all others—the home of a Giddings, Wade, Garfield, and McKinley. Across Northern Hoosierdom, with its fertile fields and pretty towns, its forests and swamps, a run around the lower end of the great lake and the train came to a standstill in America's second greatest city, variously distinguished for its enterprise and enthusiasm, its beastliness and braggadocio, its fads and frauds, its courtliness and cosmopolitanism, and for its anarchistic growl and river water foul. The sky-scraping buildings and the seething, surging, struggling mass of humanity that make up this great trade center were viewed from the summit of one of its greatest structures—the Auditorium. And then, as onward we sped over the rich farming country of Northern Illinois, there was a brief hold up in the town where the long-term boarders of the State hotel, in striped uniforms, are jolly-yet. The "Father of Waters" was crossed at the "three cities," Moline, the youngest of the trio, being the most progressive, will doubtless very soon lead her older neighbors in wealth and population. Rock Island retains its importance as the seat of the great island arsenal of the United States Government and because of its historic associations as a frontier town dating as far back as the Black Hawk war. The huge steel bridge connecting this place with Davenport was built jointly by the United States and C. P., & R. I. R. R. and cost $1,200,000. Moving on across the rich agricultural State of Iowa, the old and the new capitals were passed. The situation of the latter is beautiful and its public buildings costly and elegant. At the western end of the State, we stopped at the place where the red man in council with the civilized (?) whites were usually bluffed, and then onward across the muddy Missouri and its adjacent marshy bottoms, and we were among the lofty chimneys and elevators of Omaha. A copy of the Bee was purchased from a buzzing newsboy and while devouring the honeyed words of that stinging sheet, we covered the distance between the chief city of the State and its capital—the home of William Jennings Bryan—where copies of the Commoner were very much in evidence. The town, with its fine capitol building standing in the midst, presented a pretty appearance, despite the fact that it had materially decreased in population during the last decade. "On again, and gone again" through Nebraska cornfields we finally struck the northwest corner of the State jointly claimed by Captain Dunlap and the Au(r)ther of "Flotsam and Jetsam," where for an entire afternoon the thermometer stood at 105° in the shade and the simoon of the desert blew across the dusty plain, blasting every green thing in sight except the inhabitants, who seem not to mind such trifles. In "the queen city of the plains" the first vision was had of that mighty procession of great peaks, marching from north to south as far as the eye can reach, which forms the front range of the Rocky Mountains, and it was refreshing to gaze from the hot pavements to these snow-clad solitudes. The breezes from the mountains seem to have blown into the souls of the architects who conceived and executed with so generous hand the public buildings, parks, boulevards, and churches of the pretty, finely-located, and elevated city of Denver. A ride of 75 miles south brought us into the city that has an interest for every typo in our broad land, all of whom have, doubtless, heard something of its beauty of situation, its fine streets, and palatial homes. "The Home" is a substantial-looking building, prettily perched on rising grounds from which a most delightful scene of mountain and plain, city and country is presented to view. It is pleasing to know that some of our aged and infirm craftsmen are enabled to live so pleasantly amid such beautiful surroundings. A pleasant chat was had with the only inmate from 101—Mr. Robinson, but I missed the touch of the vanished hand of Tom Sandy, an incident in whose Washington life it may not be improper to recall. Soon after his arrival, in the early 80's, from the sandy shores of the Tar-heel State, the President of the Union named him as one of a committee of three to conclude a contract for the rental of a room for meeting purposes from the trustees of St. Joseph's Hall. "Tom," who prided himself on the possession of a little legal lore, appeared on the scene at the proper time and began to read a most voluminous and carefully prepared-paper; but before he had proceeded very far with his "party of the first part" and "party of the second part," he was rudely interrupted with such ejaculations as, "Mein Gott! vat is dot?" "Sthop! ve no sign babers like dot." It is needless to say that further negotiations for the time were suspended.

More than a little of interest might be said concerning the gateway to Pike's Peak and the source of Colorado Springs' mineral water supply—the unique mountain resort of Manitou; but that may be deferred for a time or two.

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL WASHINGTON. 2

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1902.

THE following poem is copied from the New England Printing Trades Journal, and is unsigned. The author should be publicly proclaimed as the poem deserves a place amongst the classics:

BALLAD OF THE SHOP GIRL.

The wolf of poverty follows me on
Through the dingy streets of town;
So close beside that his shaggy hide
Might almost brush my gown:
And after him thrust, the wolves of lust
Come eager to drag me down.

And body and soul have a scanty dole
From the pittance that I earn;
And cold as the breath of the wind of death
And the lessons that I learn;
With a pitfall dug for my weary feet
And a trap at every turn.

And ever a tempter is near at hand
To lure with a Judas kiss,
And lead me away if be led I may
To the depths of that black abyss,
Where in serpent guise old memorise rise
And over the fallen hiss.

I never may know surcease from woe,
But I know of fortune's frown;
I am one of a score of thousands more
Who toil in the cruel town;
And the wolves of lust and poverty
Are waiting to drag us down.

And the Christ that the Bible teaches of
For only men did die;
Or he else would heed in this dreadful need
My bitter, despairing cry;
And the Creeds alway for the heathen pray
And the Christians pass me by.

And many and fast the days whirl past
While early I work and late;
And around my path for the aftermath
The basilisk watchers wait;
And civilization bids me choose
The grave or a harlot's fate.

And I dread the light of to-morrow's dawn
And the weight of the future years;
My life is blurred by a hope deferred
And my heart is numb with fears;
And my hands that rise to the sullen skies
Are wet with a woman's tears.

Alone I walk where the spectres stalk
In the roar of the mighty town;
Oh! God, for a knight to aid my fight
Of high and pure renown;
Is there never a man to lift me up
Where myriads drag me down?

FIVE of the largest publishing houses in Chicago are now using the union label. The greatest favor you can do the printing trades is to refuse to talk to any book agent who can not show you the union label on his books.

IF the trade unionists would be true to themselves for six months, trust-made tobacco and cigars, scab printing, non-union team drivers and members of the building trades, as well as non-union clerks and agents, would fade away like snowballs in the summer air.

IN another column we call attention of our readers to the plot of the deadly octopus, the National Association of Manufacturers, to nullify the eight-hour law. It is now up to every union man and organization to be up and doing and assist in thwarting the motives and actions of these labor crushers and long hour and large dividend makers. Every member of organized labor should get a "move" on themselves.

THE UNION LABEL.

What It Should Signify and Its Real Purpose.

EDITORS THE TRADES UNIONIST:

Great movements sometimes seek paths marked out for quite another purpose. The union label, invented as a mere distinguishing sign, a marker, as it were, of the line of battle in a great economic struggle, is indicating to-day the pathway along which mankind may march to a social victory, the result of which will be the abolition of the slavery of circumstance—a great and bloodless revolution.

But those who take in the broader meaning of the movement, the wider possibilities of the label as an agency in hastening the brotherhood of man in its fullest sense, are sometimes discouraged at the attitude of some of the friends and advocates of the label.

It is absolutely painful to read in an apothesis of the label a denunciation of the "scab." In the first place, the term itself is beneath the dignity of the thoughtful; secondly, the juxtaposition is incongruous. What the label signifies is not hostility to those whom circumstance or environment or misconception or all combined have kept without the labor organization. There is no close corporation, no "labor trust" intended for the advancement of the interests of the few and consequent exploitation of the many. The labor organization which does not stand for man, as against men, has no part or place in the forward movement. Then why abuse and embitter those whom we would help to a higher existence? The label is prostituted when used as a text to deride and defame the poor devils whom it should be our purpose to uplift, to gather into the organization, and such derision and defamation hold back a movement which can only be successful when labor generally is organized intelligently and along wise and national lines; when the words labor union will not suggest the word strike; when all men are convinced that self-preservation and love of fellow-man equally inspire the efforts of organized labor.

Broader and nobler is the true conception of the label. It is a certificate that the labor producing the labeled article is performed under the best possible conditions at the time of production; that the producer receives and consumes a greater pro rata of his production than other producers of similar articles receive.

That is the true gospel of the label. It is a modification of the text that "man liveth not unto himself alone."

The possibilities of the label as a substitute for the strike are but feebly appreciated. Organized labor handles yearly a very considerable percentage of all the capital of the country. Too long has it contented itself with the amount of that capital received. We are about to witness a realignment of forces, the formation of a new line of battle.

But is there one so shortsighted as to believe that the contest to be waged is only for the benefit of those who now constitute the body of organized labor? God forbid.

Let the label be our standard. Inscribe upon it "The fatherhood of God; the brotherhood of man." Let the missionaries of that standard and that legend remember how organized labor in the time from which we are but emerging helped the weaker brethren, the blind, and even the erring by raising their "wages" by the process of attraction.

Now that we have reached the higher plane and have set out upon the holy mission of giving to each a larger and fairer share of his production, let us not sully the standard by the application of epithets to those who do not see the light as we see it.

Preach to organized and unorganized alike what the label means. It is the emblem of those who aspire to a higher life, of those who would restore to productive labor its proper dignity and importance, of those who would insist upon a proper division of the results of toil among those who toil.

J. L. RODIER.

EDITORS THE TRADES UNIONIST:

Mr. F. C. Roberts in his letter last week says:

The label is the union man's trade-mark, placed on the product of his toil, and carries with it a guarantee that it was made under fair and just conditions and that a living wage was paid to those who produced it, and that neither children nor convicts worked upon the goods.

All this is very true; but there is one other thing the union label should guarantee which Mr. Roberts does not mention. Every article upon which it is placed should be by it guaranteed as the standard of excellence of its kind and price. A trade-mark, to be of value, must guarantee quality. The union man's trade-mark on an inferior article should not entitle it to preference.

The union label, almost without regard to quality, should and does appeal to every union man. But there is a large body of consumers of every line of production who have nothing in common with trades unionists, and to whom the label alone does not appeal. To satisfy these people the label must be backed up by quality. Trades unionists can do much to help each other, but they can not do all. They must have outside help in the matter of consumption. We, as union men, are pledged to uphold the label. The general public often discriminates in favor of quality and price.

I am sure no one will dispute the statement that in many lines of manufacture the non-union-made outclass the union-made article; and while this fact is to be regretted, it is with existing conditions that we must cope, not with theoretical propositions. We are willing to make some sacrifices for the cause. The general public, as a body, is not. We are not strong enough to bear the whole burden. Mr. Roberts speaks of the $5 fine for buying non union cigars. I would like to have him explain to me what effect that resolution was intended to have on the kind of unionists who would buy non union cigars. Men who will not voluntarily live up to an obligation can seldom be threatened or terrorized into doing so.

In conclusion, the article referred to says:

The Union Label is or ought to be to every true union man what the cross is to religion.

When the union label guarantees as much to the union man as the cross does to religion it will give the same guarantee to all men, and the troubles of trades unions will be over. But before this comes about some of the labor organizations will be obliged to unhitch their headlights from behind and put them on in front.

Specification Scintillations.

Edward H. Sturm and John W. Childress, two of our popular swifts, are enjoying their annual outing.

One specification last week contained fifty-two "takes." Long specifications are neither productive of needful heads nor pious thoughts.

J. F. Hauer, chairman of this chapel, is on leave, and the duties of his high office devolve meantime upon the broad shoulders of Col. F. H. Melick.

Austin D. DuGanne, the altitudinous mercury of the proofroom, has returned from his vacation. He spent the major portion of his time at Atlantic City.

George M. Ramsey, foreman of the press room, and Aug. M. Laing, a specification "vet," reported for duty last Wednesday, after an enjoyable vacation.

James Finnegan, the handsome and able press room helper, is enjoying his vacation. It is currently reported that he is hard at work on an invention to revolutionize type-washing.

J. H. Edsall held down Tilley's vacant frame for "one day only," last week, but despite the change only a few fair ones were victimized, since while "the frame was the frame of Tilley, the voice was the voice of Edsall."

A raw recruit recently remarked to Col. J. H. Brodnax that he had lost twenty minutes, and inquired of the affable Brodnax a way to make up lost moments. Quote Brodnax, "Nevermore." As a wit Colonel Brodnax takes the bakery.

Among those who returned from their vacation, last Tuesday, were: Misses Carrie L. Whitehead, Nellie G. Stagge, Kate M. Ellis, Ella M. Wallace, Anna Wilson, and Allie Trefts; Messrs. Mord Hyams, John B. Jacques, Will E. Burchfield, and H. Densmore.

The following employes left last Wednesday on leave: Misses Clarissa B. Regan and Marion H. Booth; Messrs. T. H. Collins, J. L. Sinn, Harry L. Colestock, H. F. Tompkins, Armstrong, J. W. Palmer, S. L. Battles, L. J. Runyan, Marion B. Richmond, and A. Gormley.

Last Tuesday noon, some practical joker approached Walter L. Evans with a glass containing a fluid that dangerously resembled "that which made Milwaukee." The effort to deceive, however, proved abortive, and upon discovering the glass to be a trick one, "Atmospheric" Evans requested the joker to go to some warm place.

Beyond cavil Capt. E. D. Smoot, a ring-alley "machinist," possesses a sneeze that is inimitable in its sonorousness and incomparable in its volume. It is a cross between a locomotive whistle and a calliope, and shakes its owner from center to circumference during its delivery. The captain is a man of ordinary size, but when a sneeze is on tap, his neighbors hold their cases and protect their sticks.

While Atlantic City has proven a veritable mecca for the major portion of the employes of this room, we can boast of four who have taken European trips this year, namely: Misses Sarah C. Cromelien and Jessie F. Dumble, Mrs. Josephine Simpson, and F. E. Buckland. Mr. Buckland was accompanied by his "better half," and gave a glowing account of his trip. Misses Dumble and Cromelien are still absent abroad.

Last Wednesday morning the following battalion of swifts reported to Captain Ramsey for active duty: F. C. Roberts, W. A. Lavalette, Lee Hartley, E. J. Scanlon, T. J. Galvin, H. H. Brayton, Elmer Dement, C. B. Tomlin, David Eccles, W. C. Wood, L. L. Dixon, George Atkinson, J. R. Alvord, C. J. Unger, and C. B. McDonald. After being duly registered by Major J. R. McBride, they were assigned "anvils" by Corporal McGarraghy.

Last Thursday was a ten-hour day, the entire force being employed until 6:30 p. m. An amusing incident of the occasion was the belated march to the dumping bank of Col. "Funny" Roberts, of Gorgah, sah, who needed the "take" in his business. The hour being 6:28 p. m, it caused the boys to whistle and laugh and Col. J. W. Carter, custodian of the copy box, reluctantly turned on the light and placed 1,400 ems to the credit of the undismayed Roberts.

DRANEM.

LONG PRIMER SORTS.

THE AGE OF HUSTLE.

From hour to hour we madly rush;
Our day hums like an old-time week;
So fast we tug and pull and push,
Time's dry old joints give back a creak.

We slam our weeks into the past;
We bang our months against its walls;
We bowl our years in breathless haste
Down Time's reverberating halls.

The antique eons with amaze,
Old laggards in the earthly morn,
On our bald-headed decades gaze
In lofty, patriarchal scorn.

Ah, me! our moments bravely spin;
We bravely mold them into hours;
Too blithely whirrs the round of sin;
Too swiftly vanish youth's frail flowers.

A writer signing himself "Ex," in last week's issue of THE TRADES UNIONIST, calls the International Typographical Union to task for passing the resolution deploring the "increase of anarchy." It is hard to tell exactly where he stands, but his idea seems to be that anarchy is a mere phantom of straw and that men like Czolgosz are developed because, as he puts it, "there is too much free education in the United States." As a matter of fact, the resolution regarding anarchy was not only timely but serves a good purpose in helping to quiet the silly fears of a misguided class of well-meaning people who really believe that organized labor does not stand for patriotism and the advancement of all that is best in a government of the people.

Bindery Notes.

Young Peyser has been transferred to the stamping room.

The following committee from Local No. 4, I. B. of B., has been appointed to collect funds for the striking coal miners: Messrs. Connor, Cohen, McCullough, McCarthy, and Kirch.

A beautiful encampment badge has been made for Comrade John Cunningham, and will be presented when the old boys arrive. His friends have placed it on exhibition at Riley's.

Gus Bauer, a very popular cowboy, started on his leave, Thursday. There has been mysterious whisperings going on among his friends recently, and it is hoped that the lady of his choice will bring him a wealth of happiness.

Bill Haslett works every card possible. He is going around among the boys, who are thinking of taking some leave, and recommending Philadelphia as particularly restful. He also intimates that he has a brother who keeps a saloon in that city and offers them letters of introduction to him. It is believed that Bill gets a rake off on all expenditures.

Bob Stack, after a long ride through several States, recently arrived with his carpet bag in Albany, N. Y. With no collar on and black from soft coal, he approached the hotel clerk and asked for a room. "All rooms are taken," responded the clerk; "but we will let you have a bath and room across the way." "All right," said Bob. The boy that was sent over with him looked up and asked, "Say mister, did yer ride on de enjin?"

Leonard Meyers, who is renowned for many things in the Bindery, decided to spend Labor Day and the Sunday preceding in Baltimore. It is unnecessary to state what consternation this caused among the Baltimore contingent and all decided to take trips away. One unfortunate remained, however, and true to his instinct "Len" found him on Sunday and ate all his chicken legs and drank all the bottled beer which he had laid in for Sunday night. "Len" came around again Monday morning, but one experience was enough for the Baltimorean, who had "gone to get shaved."

Diamond Sam, a colored man with a stone of pure white glittering in his shirt front, rang Johnnie Burns' door bell, recently, and asked to be shown through the house. The blood rushed to John's bald head. "No indeed," said John; "you can't see this house, and you get off the porch or there'll be a funeral around here and I won't be the corpse." The colored gentleman then swelled up, and said: "Never mind, your rent next month will be increased five dollars. I am your new landlord." John faded away, and the gentleman of color smiled, and whistled: "I've got an Irishman working for me."

It has been reported that "Doc." Bush left the city without notifying the boys of the indefinite postponement of his farewell banquet. It appears, so the story goes, that "Doc." had promised a supper on quite an elaborate scale previous to his departure for the State of Bryan, but at the eleventh hour, or rather noon of the day of the supper, he fled, leaving nothing behind with his friends but a hungry feeling. They say this was the chance of "Doc's" life to show himself, and in justice to him, the boys say that had it not been for his meeting with McGraw he surely would have done the right thing. The boys are willing to give him a chance to redeem himself.

AROUND THE PRINTERIES.

Down Town.

Bill McSween is first out this year with an overcoat—September 9.

Good job printers and linotype operators are in demand at Oakland, Cal.

Keep up the agitation until every scab cigar is kept out of the Swamp.

Jimmy Fox, of the First Division, G. P. O., is spending his vacation at his home, Syracuse, N. Y.

Daniel Hegerty, of the Night Bill Force, G. P. O., is suffering an attack of typhoid fever and is at Sibley Hospital.

Henry T. Rodier, of the Times, who has been resticating up in Maryland for the past two weeks, returned to work Monday.

Don't forget the drug clerks are organized, and such drug stores displaying the union card are entitled to our patronage.

James E. Brister has returned from a short visit to Norfolk, Va. Jim says that Milt Smith, "Spike" Leonard, and Bill Bromley are working in the city of Norfolk.

W. S. (Sankey) Sampson, well and favorably known in this city, having worked in the Government's great printery and down town offices, is now located in Pittsburg, and reports work plentiful there.

W. K. Jones, late of the Specification Division of the G. P. O., left Monday for Manila, Philippine Islands, where he has secured a position in the Government Printing Office in that country. Here's good luck.

First Division.

When we referred to Major's sneezing,
We did not dream 'twould be displeasing;
But we are threatened with a whaling,
For mentioning his little failing;
He may whale us whene'er he pleases,
We'd rather stand it than his sneezes.

He says that when that funny feeling
Comes upon his system stealing,
He can't help it, sneeze he must,
If he didn't he would bust,
And would give a lot of money,
If it didn't sound so funny.

A. R. Nathan contemplates taking a sea trip to San Francisco, Cal., in the near future.

John B. Miller has returned from his vacation, which he spent at his home in South Carolina.

F. F. Moore and James B. Harris received their regular appointments during the past week.

"Honest" John O'Neill lost a $1.50 umbrella last Saturday, and now swears he will be honest no more.

Steve Wall, who has been very sick with typhoid fever, is getting along all right and will soon be with us again.

Charles Holmes, late of the Weather Bureau at Galveston, was transferred to this office last week and assigned to this division.

Charles M. Warren has returned to work after a visit to St. Louis. He reports the World's Fair as the greatest thing on earth.

W T. Heritage has returned from a two months' vacation, which was spent at his old home at Biltmore, N. C. for the purpose of regaining his health.

The many friends of E. S. Brown Eubank will be sorry to hear of his death from hemorrhage, which occurred at Creedmore, Texas, while on his way to Colorado Springs.

Charles Fiesse has gone on a two months' trip to Paris, France, to visit his mother. Mr. Fiesse goes every summer to visit her and says he will continue to do so as long as she lives, and then no more.

George Sylvester, who has been sick for the past eight weeks with typhoid fever at Sibley Hospital, paid us a visit last Monday. He will take a trip to his home at Lewiston, Me., for a couple of weeks before returning to work.

The friends of Nelson P. Moyer are congratulating him on the marriage of his eldest son, Ernest, which took place last Wednesday, to Miss Augusta Radtke, a charming young lady of Prince George County, Md. The residence of Mr. Moyer, where the wedding took place, was beautifully decorated with palms and orange blossoms and a dainty repast was enjoyed by the select gathering that witnessed the ceremony. They were the recipients of many beautiful and useful presents.

Summer is gone, winter is near,

Union Initiates Governor.

Charleston Typographical Union, No. 146, is probably the only branch of that order that can claim the honor of having as members the two highest officials in the State. At a meeting held Saturday night Governor A. B. White, who has been an honorary member for some time, was given the Galar initiation. Secretary of State Dawson is already a member.

Third Division.

For the past two weeks there has been an absence of news notes from the Third Division. Permit me to chronicle a few of the current annals of the Third:

J. M. McLaughlin is among the absentees.

Chairman Jones is back from his vacation tour.

D. J. Snyder is still confined to his home by sickness.

James H. Heslet is enjoying a few more days of rest.

Dr. Trudgian has returned from a visit to his old home.

Hindman Doxey has received his permanent appointment.

H. M. Claflin left last Thursday to enjoy his annual leave.

W. C. Beddow is the affable and capable clerk during the absence of James H Heslet.

A. T. Maupin is back from a sojourn in the Old Dominion. He seems to have grown younger.

"Phat" in abundance has fallen to the lot of the comps. of late, and no one of the workers has had any trouble in securing the average.

In the washroom the other day there were six or seven notices of rooms to rent posted on the wall. Why are the advertisements not placed in THE TRADES UNIONIST?

The Cincinnati delegation has returned—in the main in good shape The pleasant voice of Titus Ellis is again heard in Ring Alley 1. The air of the Queen City did not reduce Capt Bailey's form to thinner proportions. He has returned improved, if such can be, in health and is as jolly as of yore.

George Furbershaw, brother of James Furbershaw, of this division, died at his home in New York, last week. Deceased was a pressman, employed at Martin C. Brown's for twenty-five years, and was well known in this city.

Parsons is back from a thirty-day trip to the mountains, Guiles has finished painting his house, Moran has fully recovered from the operation performed on his spleen, Gillen is still wiping the salt water out of his eyes, and Whittaker is with us once again.

E. A. M. Lawson, of the firm of Lawson & Co., owners of a tract of land which, when laid out with city streets, will be a subdivision of Brookland, has been ca-ting about for an appropriate name for this newly acquired territory. Up to the present writing "Wahneta" has been the only suitable one suggested. The name once had a bunch of ardent admirers.

My very solicitous friend of the bindery lay-out at the Union Building, in referring to an accident which befell yours truly, scathingly referred to the loss of my services from the G. P. O. Let me offer him a hunch that may do him good. I am not one of those who believe that I will be missed at any stage of the game. Unfortunately for me, perhaps, I am not in his class.

Kelly and Maloney went on a fishing expedition one day last week, and the craft in which they set sail became imbedded in the mud of Analostan Island. At least this is the story they told when they returned, and all were inclined to believe it until the fact leaked out that they telephoned their mishap to the office, and then of course the suspicious ones wondered how they got the connection from the mud bank.

If the daily papers are to be believed, "the girl with the auburn hair," of vaudeville fame, and the seven Sutherland sisters have been sidestepped into obscurity by some of our feeders. Not long ago some fair damsels shied paper pellets at me because of my lack of frizzes, forgetting for the nonce that what little hair I wore on my dome grew there. It is obviously difficult to please every one. Some have too much hair and others haven't enough.

Two of the most charming and accomplished young ladies employed in Uncle Sam's big printing office are Misses Pullinger and Collins, of the press room. They have been in office about two years, and are expert press feeders. There is a striking resemblance between these two young ladies, and they are both deservedly popular.—Times.

I suppose the next we will hear of them they will have joined the Florodora pretty maidens' bunch. But, on the level, wouldn't that jar you?

Cunningham spent Labor Day at Chesapeake Beach, and had succeeded in getting two or three red-eyes to the good, when Ed. Roach asked him to "heft the baby." Cunny reluctantly and awkwardly grasped the kid and Roach ran away. For half an hour poor Jack sang lullabys and cooed, while he toted the baby from one end of the beach to the other in search of its owner. John's lullabys very much resemble the wail of a lost soul, and the baby bawled in sympathy. Fancy the spectacle.

Another One to the Front.

W. O. Smith, an old time employe of the G. P. O. and well known to many typos here, was nominated for Congress by the Republicans of the Twenty-first Pennsylvania District, the 8th inst.

The nomination is practically equivalent to election, hence, it is safe to say that Mr. Smith will be the next Congressman from that district.

His brother, Frank D. Smith, is chairman of the Night Bill Force chapel, G. P. O.

Woodward & Lothrop,

How Does This Strike You?

It is said "comparisons are odious," and perhaps they are, but they may be instructive. Note the following: Adam entered upon earthly existence about 6,000 years ago; we will call it even 6,000 for purpose of comparison. We will suppose him still living, and as having been engaged in productive labor for 300 days of each year, and that he saved $100 for each day of work.

Three hundred days of labor for each year of the 6,000 years gives 1,800,000 days, which multiplied by 100, the number of dollars saved each day, gives $180,000,000 as total savings at $100 per day for 6,0000 years.

John D. Rockefeller, the Standard Oil magnate, is credited with having "saved" $200,000,000 during the last forty years.

Working men, remember the universally accepted truth, that labor is the only means by which wealth can be created; also the truism that "to the toiler belongs the product of the toil," and you may find in the foregoing food for profitable thought.—F. L. West, in Appeal to Reason.

Reflections of a Bachlor.

New York Press.

It is a great shock to have a man return money that he has borrowed.

When a woman has on her best clothes she wants admiration; all the rest of the time, love.

Women will weep for a man and love him the more; when they must blush for him it closes their hearts against him.

The average woman thinks of a queen as having stately shoulders and flashing eyes; the genuine article is fat, flabby, and fishy.

Some women who would drop from exhaustion if they had to sweep a square yard of carpet can shop all day and come out of it with an appetite for an all-night dance.

THE TRADES UNIONIST.

OFFICIAL ORGAN CENTRAL LABOR UNION, WASHINGTON BRANCH, AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR.

Vol. VII. No. 14. WASHINGTON, D. C., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1902. Price, 3 Cents.

THE CENTRAL LABOR UNION

Body Flatly Refuses to Indorse A. M. Lawson for Commissioner.

THE EMRICH BEEF CO. MATTER

Miners' Donation Committee Busy—Credentials Received—Vice President Silver Presides and John B. Dickman Acts as Secretary—Many Communications Disposed Of—Several Grievances Presented.

Vice President Silver, in the absence of President Hamerstrom, called the Central Labor Union to order, Monday night, at Typographical Temple. John B. Dickman acted as secretary in the place of Charles W. Winslow who was absent from the city attending the convention of Iron Workers at Milwaukee.

Credentials, which were laid over until the next meeting, were received from United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, No. 1103, certifying Ernest Lowe, vice Thomas Curtis; from Journeymen Stone and Marble Cutters' Association of North America, Washington Branch, certifying George Kline.

The application of Stereotypers' Union, No. 19, for reaffiliation with this body was granted and the secretary was ordered to notify said union of said action.

Glass Bottle Blowers' Association, No. 68, notified this body of the settlement of their grievance with Whittemore Bros. & Co., shoe polish and leather dressing manufacturers, and thanked this body for assistance rendered. Placed on file.

The communication of Council of Allied Building Trades relative to the matter of Christian Heurich, brewer, and Samuel J. Prescott, builder, being placed upon the unfair list by the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' Union because these firms continue to employ non-union carpenters and painters, requesting the indorsement of all affiliated unions by refraining to work on any job owned or controlled by said firms. This communication was indorsed and, upon motion of Mr. Babcock, was referred to the Executive Committee for action.

Local Union No. 99, I. U. S. E, communicated that all honorable means had been exhausted in endeavoring to persuade Mr. Bowers, an engineer at the Arlington Brewing Co., at Rosslyn, Va., to join the union, and requested this body to take the matter in hand. Upon motion of Mr. McGowan this matter was referred to the local bodies of Engineers and Brewery Workers.

The request of Brewery Workmen's Union, No. 118, that this body appoint a member to act in the arbitration of difficulties between their union and the Arlington Brewing Company, relative to the discharge of one of their members, was granted.

The communication from Grocery Clerks' Union, No. 533, requesting this body to indorse their action in placing the Emrich Beef Company on the unfair list, was referred to Grievance Committee.

The communication of Retail Clerks' Union, No. 262, requesting the name of Benjamin Schwartz, who had failed to abide by his contract with their union, be placed upon the unfair list, was referred to Grievance Committee.

Bartenders' League, No. 75, requested that the name of J. Killeen, saloonist, 1314 Thirty-second street, be placed upon the unfair list. Referred to the Grievance Committee.

The Miners' Donation Committee reported progress.

This body indorsed a motion of Delegate Spohn that the Central Labor Union hold a public meeting, at which speakers would be present to address the same, next Monday night.

The resignation of Delegate Silver from the Grievance Committee was accepted. The action of Mr. Silver was necessitated by the fact that he was recently appointed on the Executive Committee of the Granite Cutters' Union and thereby would be unable to attend to the duties of both.

Upon motion, Delegates Spohn and Baker were added to the Miners' Donation Committee.

Special Committee on Attendance Card submitted a sample of attendance card. Committee asked that the quarterly be adopted. Adopted.

A resolution looking to the indorsement of Alonzo M. Lawson as labor's choice for the vacancy in the District Commissionership was emphatically and unanimously laid on the table. This body was on record as having indorsed the candidacy of Robert I. Fleming for said position, and did not believe Mr. Lawson to be the proper candidate to represent organized labor in the District.

Plumbers' Union, No. 162, of Dayton, Ohio, communicated their thanks for donation from this body. Placed on file.

Receipts and expenditures of body read, and there being no further business adjournment was ordered.

Little Factory Slaves in the South.

The "New South" stands to-day as a synonym for courage, enterprise, and progress, but strange as it may appear she is deliberately repeating an economic error of the past, the folly and wrong of which can not be too strongly set forth.

Child-labor in the great factories of England, which was made possible by the cupidity of mill owners and manufacturers, was interfered with not only by humanitarians, but by economists of the day, whose figures went to show that the whole system was suicidal. Just one hundred years ago the first law of protection was passed by the English Parliament, forbidding night work for children under ten years of age. Law followed law, and the manufacturers fought the restrictions at every point. It was not until a better educated class of manufacturers grew up that protective legislation for the child was appreciated, and the manufacturers themselves in many cases fostered legislation, seeking to raise the age limit for child labor in the mills.

All Europe followed England's lead in this matter, and it remained for New England, when the cotton industry was introduced, to make use of child labor and sacrifice child-life to the greed for gold. Slowly but persistently this evil has been uprooted, and to-day it is said that Massachusetts has the best protective and educational laws in the world, 98 per cent of her children being in school, while she is herself the richest manufacturing State in the Union. Twenty-five other Northern manufacturing States have excellent protective laws, and for some years past little has been heard about protectiou for child-life in our industries.

But now the South, in the renewed enterprise along industrial lines which characterizes her, has made the great moral and economic mistake of introducing child-labor, and it is said that "there is scarcely a factory out of the 663 running at the beginning of 1901 without a batch of little victims under twelve. When the mills run at night brilliantly lighted by electricity the little ones are still at work."

Not long since a correspondent of the Cincinnati Post made thorough investigation in the Southern States concerning this matter, and the facts related are startling and shameful. He says: "I have talked with children whose names are on the pay rolls of the mills, who are scarcely more than babies, yet they are working twelve and twelve and one half hours every day at the spinning frames for 10 and 20 cents a day. Children of nine and ten in the mills are common, and I have talked with several who made no claim to more than eight years of life. Their statements were verified by those in authority."

A Southern paper says that in Augusta, Ga., there are 567 children under twelve working in mills. In Alabama there are from one thousand to twelve hundred children under twelve in the mills, most of whom are illiterate. These conditions are also found in other Southern States where the cotton industry is prominent.

A strange complication arises in that the children employed in the mills are almost entirely white. This has become necessary because the white children will not work with the black, and so to-day "the illiterate negro is sending his child to school, while the illiterate white man is sending his into the mill!"

Following the lead of other generations, the mill owners and manufacturers, many of whom are Northerners, are doing everything in their power to defeat legislation in favor of the children! It is a strange and complex situation, and it is earnestly to be hoped that agitation in behalf of the little ones will not cease for the sake not only of the little ones, but of the new and glorious South herself.—Woman's Home Missions for September.

GOMPERS ON UNION MATTERS.

Some of the Best Excepts from His Recent Speeches.

The recent campaign of President Gompers and others of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor covered a period of about six weeks. The trip from Washington to the Pacific slope and return was marked by ovations at every point touched, and much good was accomplished for the cause of unionism.

If space were not limited we would be glad to make use of the full press reports of the remarks by Mr. Gompers, who, throughout the entire circuit of his travels, is reported to have been in the finest mettle and surpassed all former efforts in the great labor service of which he is the chosen head.

At Denver, Colo., he reviewed labor's fight from the early days and led up to the wage system in industrial development.

"Asking more wages," said he, "is not new trade unionism, but it is the natural, logical outcome of the laboring class. If the capitalists who have so much and control so much, find it best to organize and unite, how much more important it is for the laboring men, who have nothing and control nothing, to organize for a common cause.

"I have no patience for the man who claims to have such love for the toiling masses and then says the toiler will be happy when his dream comes true.

"I have no patience with the minister who stands in his pulpit and piously hopes for a sweet by and bye. We want some of the good things here and now. We want bliss now. My friends, we are engaged in the struggle now, to-day. He who will not try to make the life of the workingman better to-day is a coward and has no love for his fellows.

"Trade unions avert and avoid strikes more than any other factor in human society. But losing one's manhood is worse than striking."

At Colorado Springs, Colo., Mr. Gompers said in part:

"I have got over defending trade unions as such whenever they are attacked, except in the case of particular accusations. The result of the work of the trade union is its own best defense. When the trade union came on the ground in the industrial trades the cdnditions of the workman were apalling. The trade union was the first factor; it made the first effort to deal with actual conditions. It proposed to carry out the divine command, 'Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven.' It proposes that we shall have some of the good things on earth now, so that we may not be too much shocked in the hereafter. (Laughter.)

"The trade union movement has shortened the hours of labor. The rule is now nine or eight, in a few cases ten, and seldom longer. Who concerns himself with the effort to secure more leisure, better hours, and better general conditions if not the trade union?

"The movement is the envy of all organizations of other kinds. Two millions and more of brawny workmen of the United States, all federated in one organization built on the broadest of platforms—the American Federation of Labor.

"See the vast improvement in the homes of the workmen of to day and ask what agency has brought this about. We propose to keep on advancing and never quit until we have obtaided absolute justice and the brotherhood of man is established."

The Tribune, of Sacramento, speaks of the meeting in that city as the greatest assemblage ever gathered in the capital park. Here Mr. Gompers paid his respects to the Chinese exclusion act, a single sentence of which is sufficient to show his position:

"Any man who tells you that we have an effective Chinese exclusion act tells you that of which he is ignorant or else wants to impoes an untruth upon you."

Further on in his address, Mr. Gompers said:

"In the abstract the world now regards labor as honorable. This is an improvement, but in the concrete the question is, How much can be squeezed out of it?

"The question now arises with us, Is it not our bounden duty to unite to obtain a larger share of that which we produce? We ask, in a country of our boundless resources—with the enormous capacity for production through machinery—the question arises, Have we not a right to insist upon a larger share of that product?

"You can not improve the condition of the wage-earners without improving the condition of the whole human family.

"In an experience of more than 25 years in the labor movement, in the cases of breaking of agreements between wage-workers and employers, more than 90 per cent have been broken by the latter class."

In conclusion, Mr. Gompers urged his hearers to take a larger view of the labor question. The labor movement must be maintained in all of its integrity. One of the requisites for this was the protection of innocent children. Happily, child-labor was abolished in most of the States, but is still obtained in some of the States of the South. The children must be taken out of the factory and the mine and placed in the schools. The children must be saved from the money monger. It is a sad comment upon our time that we find busy children and idle men.

"If there be any limit to the opportunities to secure to every child an education," he said, "who is going to suffer—the millionaire's child? No. It will be the printer's child, the bricklayer's child, the shoemaker's child, the wage-worker's child.

"I beg of you do not do anything that will deprive the children of their opportunities to obtain a better start than we had when we began in life."

At Portland, Oreg., there was a big rally, and the enthusiasm of the 1,200 people assembled in the opera house responded with cheers to the sentiment when the speaker declared:

"We want more, we demand more, and when we get that more we shall insist upon again more and more and even more, until we get the full fruition of our labor."

At Los Angeles is published the Times, which bears an unsavory reputation in union circles and of which the notorious General Otis is the responsible head. By editorial articles Mr. Otis unwittingly drew from Mr. Gompers a reply which strengthened the cause of unionism by the adroit use of his adversary's own words, as follows:

"General Otis refers to his payments in wages. By what measure I would ask him, by what measure does he regard that as a fair wage? Surely, not a fair wage as compared to workmen in China. Surely, not to hodcarriers; surely, not to street sweepers; surely, not to tailors or garment workers or boot and shoe workers. He must have something in mind when he publishes the payment that he makes for wages to his printers and others in his employ. Well, what has he in mind to compare it with and to claim that that is fair wages? Unconsciously, Mr. Otis pays the tribute to Typographical Union. [Applause.] If he did not, what would he regard as fair wages? Because, if he pays the wages he claims he does, then it is far above the wages paid in several other industries."

HELP THE MINERS!

Throughout the entire civilized world, even in the remotest part of the continent, the great strike of the anthracite miners is a household story.

It is sufficient to state that we who are blessed with health and steady employment should quicken in our efforts to aid these 150,000 miners who have been engaged in a strike for the past summer for the purpose of bettering their worse than serfdom condition. By ready response we may be able to make some sunshine in the homes of these miners who are struggling for American freedom.

These miners are face to face with the greatest corporations of the present day. These cold-blooded operators have contemptuously spurned all conciliatory overtures or propositions to submit the matter in dispute to impartial arbitration. They demand unconditional surrender, hoping thereby to crush out the organization—the only hope and safeguard the miners have against their debasement by the greed of corporations.

In order to win this strike the miners must have food and clothing for their wives, children, and themselves, and every loyal and liberty-loving trades unionist in the city of Washington should contribute something, be it money, food, or clothes.

Resolutions of sympathy, in their way, are good, but—"sympathy without relief is like mustard without beef."

The Central Labor Union have a committee composed of Messrs. Cowan, Sprague, Shugrue, Dickman, Winslow, Spohn and Baker, who will receipt for all goods or donations left them at their rooms at Typographical Temple. Drop them a card and they will cheerfully send for any donation proffered.

Be prompt and help these struggling miners in their fight for right.

LONG PRIMER SORTS.

HIS TRAGIC SOUL.

Buskin, the great tragedian, lay stretched upon his couch;
Each time he stirred he muttered a not very tragic "Ouch!"

Alas, some fiend through Buskin's legs had thrust rheumatic darts;
Those towers of tragic strength refused to play their kingly parts.

His friend, Bill Stagestride, came and stood in grief by Buskin's bed,
And, hoping thus to cheer him up, in hearty
accents said:

"Though overthrown, still do you look your regal self, by jing!"
Then Buskin's tragic soul found voice: "Aye, every inch aching!"

"Then Fancy came, that sweet but wild
Enchantress of the human mind,
And Romance, Fancy's darling child,
Around my heart her charms entwined."

Mr. H. S. Sutton, the irrepressible author of "Rhoda Roland," quoting the aforesaid stanza the other day, remarked that it would be illustrated in a forthcoming volume. "One of the ladies, representing Fancy," said Mr. Sutton, "should be in the middle 30's as to age, with a face possessing three characteristics—sufficiently gentle and confiding to be charactered 'sweet,' sufficiently vivacious to be called 'wild,' and sufficiently 'enchanting' to attract and hold the attention of the passer-by. The figure representing Romance, the daughter of Fancy, should be about 18 or 19 years of age; not necessarily pretty, but with clear-cut features."

A number of similar illustrations will likewise add to the spell of the novelist's enchanted pen, and as the work will be published as soon as they can be secured, another wave of literary excitement is likely to roll through the Big Printery about the time that coal is quoted at $49.98 per ton.

Central Labor Union's Open Meeting.

A public meeting will be held next Monday evening by the Central Labor Union at Typographical Temple, in order to awaken interest in the cause of the striking miners. The meeting will take place of the regular weekly session of that body. The arrangements are in the hands of a committee consisting of R. E. Cowan, N. C. Sprague, P. H. Shugrue, J. B. Dickman, C. W. Painters Strike at White House.

Tuesday thirty painters affiliated with the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paperhangers, Local Union, No. 368, ceased work at the White House. The difficulty was not over the matter of wages but on account of the employment of members of the Amalgamated Association of Painters of New York. It seems the matter is a fight between rival organizations. The Amalgamated Painters are independent of the American Federation of Labor and control matters of their line in New York City only: On former occasions any painters from the Brotherhood seeking employment in New York were compelled to join the Amalgamated or not work there, and now the Brotherhood are simply giving them a taste of their own medicine.

The matter was settled Wednesday, the Amalgamated members withdrawing and the Brotherhood people resuming work to-day.

Eminently Correct.

Printers' Ink, the standard authority on advertising, says: "A labor paper is a far better advertising medium than a secular daily, relatively to the number of subscribers. A labor paper, for instance, with 5,000 subscribers, will bring better returns to the merchants advertising therein than would a daily of 10,000 subscribers."

Must Recognize Union Foreman.

Sixteen frescoers and decorators, employed at the Record and Pension Bureau of the War Department, went on strike Tuesday.

The grievance of the decorators and frescoers lay in the fact that the Government time-keeper would not repognize the union foreman, Mr. V. C. Carr. The men state they will not go back until the matter is straightened out and their foreman recognized, believing the time-keeper should make his wants known to the foreman and he in turn to the men. This is as it should be, as every position has certain requirements and responsibilities attached thereto.

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL WASHINGTON. 2

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1902

INJUNCTIONS are simply a whip to lash the back of labor.

THE man who helps to raise the standard of wages adds to the happiness of his fellow men.

THE man who employs scab labor may be depended on to do a scab job and disregard all contracts.

THERE is no excuse for union men wearing scab clothes nowadays, for overcoats, suits, shirts, collars, cuffs, suspenders, hats, and shoes can be had with the label on them.

THE action of the Central Labor Union, Monday night, in flatly refusing to indorse one ALONZO M LAWSON for the vacancy in the Commissionership of the District, plainly shows that this body still does business in a business-like manner, and the delegates there present are to be congratulated upon their action.

Several meetings past this body indorsed Mr. ROBERT I. FLEMING for the position, knowing him to be the friend of organized labor and well fitted for the duties of Commissioner.

Up to the present time we know of no good reason why one ALONZO M. LAWSON should be entered in this contest as labor's candidate; nor can we just plainly see our way why he or his friends should seek the indorsement of a large and influential body like the Central Labor Union, toward whom he and his followers have been most conspicuous by antagonizing the same at every opportunity.

Again we congratulate the Central Labor Union upon its conservative and wise action.

WE INVITE attention to the article in this issue headed "Little Factory Slaves in the South." It is a strange commentary on the profession of New Englanders that many manufacturers of that section are transferring their interests South, where the restrictions upon the employment of child-labor are less severe. The better sentiment of New England people has pronounced against this system of cruelty, and while the good people of the South may be anxious to repair the damages resulting from the wastes of war by encouraging the establishment of industries, they can hardly afford to sacrifice their young or establish a system of industrial slavery which sends the colored child to school and the white child to the mill. This is one of the evils of the times that trades unionism is sworn to correct, and will, notwithstanding the cupidity and protests of the "captains of industry."

How Is This?

If the following extract is a part of Pennsylvania's State Constitution, why should there be a hesitancy in its enforcement? Can it be the State officials are controlled or fear the coal mining corporations? Let the law be enforced alike with the wealthy and the poor:

Sec. 5. No incorporated company doing business of a common carrier shall directly or indirectly prosecute or engage in mining or manufacturing articles for transportation over its works; nor shall such company directly or indirectly engage in any other business than that of common carriers, or hold or acquire lands, freehold or leasehold, directly or indirectly, except as shall be necesssry for carrying on its business; but any mining or manufacturing company may carry the product of its mines and manufactories on its railroads or canals not exceeding fifty miles.

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

Along in the early spring of 1874, Wash Chew, "Texas" Smith, and I walked out of Newark, N. J, with Scranton, Pa., as the objective point All the older people here knew Wash—he died here in 1894, after nearly twenty years' service for Uncle Sam. "Smithy" is roaming the country yet somewhere, but it is two or three years since I heard f om bim. There was no particular reason for our walking, or even traveling, so far as I can remember, except that if we stayed in town we would have had to work. Times were a little dull, however, and we had a fever to go West and couldn't wait for railroad trains.

We took in the town of Washington, N. J., then the scene of the Daniel Beatty organ manufactory, probably more extensively advertised at that time than any other scheme, but as there was no printing to do and we did not have our organ-building kit with us we went on.

The next town of any consequence that we struck was Stroudsburg, Pa., where we sought for sufficient heat to soften our snowballs—all we had had to eat for a day or two, but to no purpose. A careful exploiting of the town was productive of no more tangible relief than permission to leave, if we did it quickly. We were all young then, and it was no trouble at all for us to get in a hurry.

Climbing over Pocono Mountain, sleeping in a sawmill, jumping coal trains and riding until frozen off of them—all these are hazy recollections, but we finally arrived at Scranton, where we fell in with as choice a collection of hoboes as ever adorned a city. Among the number were W. M. ("Mickey") Camp, now reformed and a member of the Second Division Chapel; Russ McQuillen, Ed. Flanigin, Fitzhenry, Geo. Green, and others whose names have slipped me. We remained in Scranton two or three weeks and then pulled out again.

I remember that the towns we visited on our northward and westward journey were Elmira, Binghamton, Horseheads, Painted Post, and Corning. At the latter we boarded a freight car and rode until we were switched off at Avon Springs. We sprinted the 18 miles from there to Rochester one morning before breakfast—we often had late breakfasts—the cause of our haste being the intense cold that distinguishes that section.

Our reception at Rochester was still chillier, and a wayside wind break of railroad ties was our childhood's happy home compared to the fraternal greeting with which our Rochester brothers received us. Again we sallied forth toward the setting sun The next night out I lost my traveling card in a hay mow, which the owner, after feeding us sumptuously, had refused us permission to occupy.

Lockport was the next town we struck, and though there was no work, we were treated royally, well fed and housed, and our fare paid to Buffalo, a haven of rest where there was always work to be got, "chuck" to eat, and enough liquor procurable to prevent gripes from drinking water. Here we stopped several weeks, I pulling out in a lake steamer for Detroit with "Nosey Bill" Doyle, leaving Wash and "Smithy" behind.

* * * *

While in the Indian Territory recently I picked up a copy of the Kiowa Breeze, which is so good a specimen of the old-time country paper that we all remember but now rarely see, that I quote liberally from it that others too may be rejoiced:

I once more don my editorial cap, thanking the people of Kiowa for their support in the past. I hope to merit their future support. Our paper has been suspended for about eight months, during which time it has been tied up in an estate, so it will now go under the management of Fortson & Lee.—J. R. Fortson, editor, and Wm. Lee, solicitor, collector and Treas.

Mr. Wm Lee, whom we have espoused as our partner in the publication of the Kiowa Breeze, is from Iowa, where he has a fine stock farm with the best breeds of horses, cattle, sheep and hogs. He is an industrious, stirring, energetic man; has bought good property here, is a citizen of the Choctaw Nation by blood, is a specialist on cancer, and we vouch for his taking a cancer out by the roots; and he insures them not to return. For further evidence call on ye editor, who will show you a rose cancer about three inches. Charges from 10 to $250. If you have a cancer, come at once and investigate, and have it out before you begin to suffer with it.

Died, at Rogers, Ark., Aug. 10th, Old Uncle Thomy Thompson, and was brought to Kiowa for interment, and was buried in the Kiowa cemetery at 6 o'clock the 11th of Aug., 1902 Burial services by Rev. A. K. Mllier.

Uncle Thomy, as he was familiarly called, by his many friends, was about 70 years and two months old. He was one of the pioneers of the Indian country, having lived here a great many years He leaves several children to mourn their loss of a well providing father. May the blessings of the Almighty be showered sufficiently upon the children to bring eternal life to them.

Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy.—Christ.

Ye editor would like to buy some pants, but Kiowa is so little that it can not reach 42x34.

Dr. Allen has a new horse, now. If you want him, he has a fresh horse and will get there now

Aug. 20.—Mr. Joe Weatherspoon, from Texas, is here, and wants two car loads of hogs, as soon as possible, and will take all he can get later.

Rev. Lamb, of the Comeouter persuasion, who came from Texas here, to make hay, had quite a spell of fever in Hay Camps, has left for his home in Texas.

The prolonged strike of the Anthracite coal miners keep the public eye on Mr. John M. Mitchell, the president of the United Mine Workers of America.—F. & F.

Mr. Williams, the clerk at the Palace Drug Store, who has been here a few weeks, has gone to Haileyville. Peace, joy, comfort and reformation go with him, until he shall be made alive to God, and dead to sin. ED.

Rev. Garret preached at the camp ground Monday night; his text was the answer Pilot gave the Jews, when they ask him to change the inscription that he wrote over Jesus' head when he was crucified, he said, "What I have written I have written." He made a very good thing out of it.

A. F. BLOOMER.

Handy Andy's Aphorisms.

The next event important enough to be chronicled here is scheduled for October 8.

Whittaker has moved up town to a swell apartment on —th street. He is tired of the never changing grind and the unsatisfactory Katzenjammer which results from the strenuous life in Swamppoodle.

I am now prepared to admit that the most exasperating feeder in the office isn't all high compared with an automatic manipulator of the elusive 96, and gymnasium exercise for the reduction of avordupois or the cure of insomnia is entirely unnecessary in the case of a pressman who runs the economic (?) machine.

"Sunny Jim" Bright informs me that the next "fest" indulged in by Congressional Council, National Union, will be planned so as to include the gentler sex in its list of guests. James can be relied upon to do the elegant on such an occasion; also to provide a convenient place of hiding for a small bottle of—that's all.

Charlie Parsons is again on the sick list. Charlie is not as young as he used to be, and the excitement occasioned by the championship games of ping pong and golf in which he indulged while in the mountains on his leave are now telling on his nervous system. I do not care to have it understood that ping pong is a mixed drink.

I haven't heard of any aspirants for union honors bold enough to fling their banners to the breeze as yet. Perhaps it is a trifle early, but heretofore we have had rumors afloat long before this. I have been told of two worthy men who are tingling with a desire for delegate credentials next year, but that's a long way off, and I won't mention any names for fear the men may change their minds.

Armstrong insists that Ferris would be eligible for admission at all the festivities of the approaching G. A. R. encampment if he would but put a gilt band on his hat and wear a badge. While Ferris, with his classic repartee, the result of early training in the shades of old Harvard, boldly avers that Armstrong was too old to be drafted when the war broke out. This is a Græco-Roman contest between the deans of the press room.

Doc. Sprague, the workingman's advocate, the friend of the unfortunate and the oppressed, desires me to set forth in these columns some of his "hunches up to date" as they apply to the miners on strike—the whys and the wherefores and the remedy. I would gladly review all of Sprague's works and select the gems of thought for reproduction here, but my space is limited and my readers must be content with a few quotations:

"The importation of droves of Slavs, Scandinavians, and Italians has caused an over supply of miners and a comparative weakness in the stability of the whole class of workingmen so far as the principles of unionism are concerned."

AUGUST DONATH,

"The amount of coal mined during the past year would even more than supply the demand, but by forcing a strike the operators have created the impression that inaction of the mines causes a scarcity of the product, and withholding shipments further corroborates this false impression and forces up the prices."

"If Congress should put foreign coal on the free list the passenger trains would have to be sidetracked to let the coal out of its storage in Pennsylvania."

Give the Doctor a hand out—gold or clothing, both are useful—and help him push the good work along.

Specification Scintillations.

Our poet laureate, James M. Montgomery, is enjoying his vacation.

The inimitable and irrepressible David Pollock is with us once more, after a brief illness.

When a man's wife visits him on pay days, with startling regularity, does it imply devotion or mistrust?

John G. Jameson is one of our stellar lights who has succeeded in mastering the intricacies of "Spess" work. He is a valuable acquisition.

B W. Butler and Perry T. Grimes, two shining exponents of Specification possibilities, returned to work, Monday, looking the pink of condition.

Miss Katharine K. Spencer of the proof room, Mrs. Eleanor L. Bryant, Mrs. M. A. Evans, S. J. Gompers, and Harry Miller have returned from their vacations.

C. J. Unger, the crack checker player of the Night Bill Force, met his Waterloo when he essayed to tackle Col. F. H. Melick and Cornelius A. Connor in the seductive game.

Col. John R. Sturgis has returned to his post of duty, after a temporary service as maker up. He is one of our most popular employes and understands "Spess" work from alpha to omega.

In case of doubt see Major William A. Dodge, chief censor of the proof room. The major is unsurpassed in his urbanity and sympathy for the erratic compositor and invariably gives him the benefit of the doubt.

"With malice toward none and charity for all," your scribe sincerely hopes that no one will take umbrage at these friendly scintillations. Dual constructions should not be placed upon expressions nor sentiments distorted.

The following compositors have been transferred to the main office: E. J. Lindberg, H. Densmore, L. L. Dixon, T. B. Hoagland, Albert P. E. Doyle, E. D. McKenna, James H. Wiley, W. H. Gardiner, C. B. McDonald, and Thomas J. Galvin.

In a recent conversation with a raw recruit he complained of the rigid punctuation of "Spess" work and expressed a desire to return to that class of work requiring no punctuation—such, for instance, as "tabs" and leaderwork. He is serious, and devoutly prays for a transfer.

Hon. O. S. Smith, of Punxsutawney, County, Pa., brother-in-law of Major J. R. McBride, of this division, has received a nomination for Congress. Mr. Smith is a compositor and was employed in the Government Printing Office from 1880 to 1884. He is now engaged in journalism, being editor and proprietor of the Spirit, a leading journal of the Keystone State.

William L. Gutelius, the popular ex-chairman of this chapel, has returned from his vacation. Mr. Gutelius has creditably filled the office of chairman for a number of years, being eclipsed only in years of service by W. N. Brockwell, who now wields a censor's pencil in the main Proof Room. "Billy" Gutelius would reflect credit upon Columbia Union as a delegate to I. T. U. pow-wows.

To paraphrase Tennyson, "Men may come and men may go, but Ellis G. Myers goes on forever." While not born I command, Myers seems ordained by Providence to be intrusted with important functions. It was my pleasure to meet Myers some twelve years ago in the old Third Division, where he presided with dignity and ability over the italic cases, and in later years I find him on the Official Gazette, holding down a job that requires conservative judgment and involves grave responsibilities. Myers is very popular and never swerves from the treadmill of duty.

Another popular member of the Official Gazette chapel is the oleaginous and affable J. E. Payne. Colonel is a stalwart defender of unionism and has filled, both figuratively and literally, the chair of vice-president of Columbia Union. Payne's countenance is a study. In repose his cherubic features strongly suggest the ecclesiastical, while in mirth he resembles Lew Dockstader or DeWolf Hopper. Payne has been on the pay roll for some time and gives every evidence of continued official longevity. But I will not deal further with "old timers," for fear of intruding upon the sacred preserves of my venerable and honored friend, Col. A. F. Bloomer.

DRANEM.

POETRY.

Intoxicating draught
Above the bitter sediment of life!
What bacchanal, what monarch ever quaffed
Forgetfulness with rarer visions rife?

E'en though its visions told
Of what has never been and can not be,
Were it not better that they should enfold
Our wearied hearts in their sweet scorcery?

Go drink it mortal throng;
You have a thirst of wordly care to slake,
Drink from the poet's fountain-head of song
Whose charms have power all fretting bonds to break.

You need no piercing ken,
No artful interplay of magic words;
'Tis the unwritten language of the glen,
The hill, the sky, the river, and the birds.

If you would know the sweets
Of purest poetry in any lay,
Go where the giddy leaves in mimic fleets
Beneath the river-suckled willows float away.

Go watch the sleepless main,
The shifting vapors and the stately trees,
Or rest you where the patriarchal grain
Bows to the benediction of the breeze.

In city, field, or wood,
All that combines to make existence bright
Is poetry well read and understood
By him who strikes it from the lyre of right.

—WILL SUMMERSMITH.

Death of C. B. McElroy.

The friends of C. B. McElroy were shocked to learn of his death at Detroit, Mich, September 10.

Mr. McElroy, who has been identified with the War Department Branch of the Government Printing Office, was on his way to enter a sanitarium at Battle Creek, Mich., to be treated for stomach trouble. On his route he stopped over to visit a sister at Detroit, Mich., where he died of neuralgia of the stomach.

He was a member of Columbia Union, No. 101, National Lodge, No. 12, F. A. A. M., and Congressional Council of the National Union.

His age was 39 years, and he leaves a wife and children to mourn his loss.

His remains were brought on to this city and funeral held from his late residence, 19 O street northwest.

Interment was made Monday at Glenwood Cemetery.

One of the features of the Cincinnati Labor Day parade was 100 union waiters in full-dress suits and silk high hats The printer-delegates must have been extremely liberal in their "tips."

AROUND THE PRINTERIES.

Down Town.

Help the miners!

Donate something for the striking anthracite miners!

The straw-hat alarm whistle sounded its final last Monday.

W. C. Hamner, of Baltimore, Md., made this office a pleasant call Tuesday.

W. H. Davis has returned from a short leave at his home, Newman, Ga.

Columbia Typographical Union meets next Sunday. There'll be "something doin'."

Alexander H. Dunlap, of Chattanooga, Tenn., made this office a pleasant call this week.

Union men can now purchase hats made by Henry H. Roleofs & Co., as they now bear the Hatters' Union label.

Charles E. Dietrich and wife, who have been visiting at Linden, Va., for the past few weeks, have returned to the city.

R. W. Christian and family have returned to the city, having enjoyed a protracted visit at Rehobeth Beach, Greenwood, Del., and Richmond, Va.

Thomas J. Travis and Charles W. Straughan returned to this city Saturday from York, Pa., where they had been employed by the Hubley Printing Company.

The Inland Printer refers to H. S. Sutton's "Rhoda Roland" show card—a product of THE TRADES UNIONIST—as being attractively designed and forcibly displayed.

E. W. Patton, of THE TRADES UNIONIST and one of the trustees of the Union Printers' Home, at Colorado Springs, Colo., is in attendance at the annual meeting of the board in that city.

The Washington Base Ball Club, American League, returning from their trip abroad, will meet Baltimore here to-morrow for three games. Next Tuesday they meet Boston for a series of three games.

Charles W. Winslow, secretary of the Central Labor Union of this city, left Sunday for Milwaukee, Wis., to attend the convention of the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers in that city, he being a delegate from the local union here.

When purchasing collars see that they bear the union label of the Shirt Waist and Laundry Workers' International Union. By a perusal of the ad. of the American Collar Company, in another column, it will be seen they are handled by a number of our local firms.

Bushrod C. Rowlett (Joe Bush) formerly employed in the Government Printing Office, and an ex-sergeant-at-arms of Columbia Union, is now located at La Grange, Ky., where he is to launch out in the newspaper business. Well, here's the best of luck to you, Joe.

First Division.

Secretary Lillard is off on leave.

Charles E Groome has returned from Sea Girt, N J, where he won two prizes

T. B. Hoagland, L. L. Dixon, and Claude McDonald have returned from the Spec.

Walter Smith returned to work last Tuesday, having spent his vacation at Harper's Ferry.

When is Butler (J. H.) not a butler? When his tongue is a waggin'. For further particulars see alley 13.

Frank O. Jones, Marion De W. Siewers, and J. W. Martin received their regular appointments during the past week.

Ed. McCormick, our genial italic man, is off, threatened with typhoid fever. During his absence Philip Steele is acting in his place.

Wanted—A plug hat and a family horse, both of which have been used for parading purposes. Apply to J. Burnside, this division.

Frank ("Pedigree") Jones, of Iowa, was among the fortunate ones to be given a permanent appointment this week. He did the act.

"Cherokee" Mayers is the singer of alley 13. He has under advisement a contract to join the Winter Opera Company, which opens in Alexandria on October 21, 1902.

"Foxy Grandpa" Garner has returned from his leave, which he spent at Chesapeake Beach. He reports having caught 325 fish inside of forty-five minutes. Tony belongs to the Northeast Men's Club, so the story goes.

John Burnside, our popular imposer, was appointed on the civic escort to General Torrance. Johnny is supposed to ride a horse, and can be seen every evening practicing on the grounds of the American League Baseball Park, under the instructions of Charlie Garrett.

J. Ligon King has been appointed to the Public Order and Comfort Committee, of which Major Sylvester is chairman. This committee is empowered to advise the police department as to its management and assistance during the G. A. R. encampment, and has full police authority. Mr. King has been also elected as a delegate to the National Army of Spanish War Veterans, which meets in Detroit on September 22, but, owing to the indisposition of his wife, will be unable to attend.

One day last week Col. Chas. Leeds, of this room, while "hoofing home ward," as usual, after eight hours of talk with Harry Major, was pleasantly hailed by a friendly Jehu and invited to accept of a gratis "lift." Blushing under several summers' sunburn, the gallant Leeds loaded in, and, planting himself on the rear seat, threw his shoulders back and spread his stomach out. In the meantime the friendly Jehu, hack, and Colonel Leeds continued up New Jersey avenue, and the Colonel, recognizing several National Union delinquents and others on the sidewalk, bowed in mock imitation of Gen. Horace Porter to the boys, doffing his plug to each side in rapid succession. At New York avenue a Times and Star boy stopped and gazed in a puzzled manner at the Jehu and his freight.

"Who'd de —— is dat lobster?" said the Times boy.

"Looks like some little man been pizened," said the Star lad.

Second Division.

J. C. Sowers left Thursday for a visit of 26 days at his old home in Illinois.

J. S. Garner has gone on leave. He will spend his twenty-six days in New Jersey.

Mr. Wood is acting assistant foreman of the time alley during the absence of J. C. Sowers.

E. J. Hall has been promoted, temporarily at least, to the time alley. A deserved promotion.

F. E. Warren has gone on an extended trip to New York, Boston, and other small towns down east.

M. V. B. Stevens, our popular table-casting artist, has taken fifteen days off to get the country air.

John Murray, also of New Jersey, started on leave last week. The bookmakers had better look out.

Clyde G. Hopkins is confined to his home on account of sickness. We hope that it is not of a serious nature.

Barrister Will E. Soult has returned to "the mines," so to speak, after a two months' visit to his old home in Colorado. He is very much improved in health.

The many friends of Theodore Gerber will regret to learn that he is confined to his home, threatened with typhoid fever. We sincerely hope that he will soon recover.

The last turn-in was a very strenuous one, so to speak. We were up against a straight long primer game from start to finish, and some of the favorites got left at the post, we believe. The track was in bad condition.

The following probationaries were made glad, Wednesday, by receiving their permanent appointments: A. K. Williamson, I. D. Williamson, W. L. Washburne, Frank R. McFadyen, W. I. Reed, and Fred I. Nobles.

Treasury Branch.

Farmer Thompson, of Virginia, is with us again.

Harry Hughes is spending his leave at his old home, Mount Holly, N. J.

W. S. Cady, of the Third Division, called to see his old friends Monday.

Misses A. Trumbo and Bertie Martin returned recently from a month's vacation.

John T. Heck, of this division, received notice of his reinstatement Monday morning.

Miss Gertie Stern, of the folding room, returned recently from a trip to New York and Atlantic City.

Miss Kate V. Smoot, president of the Woman's Bindery Union, was a welcome visitor last week.

Misses Anna M. Keefe and Mamie T. Kane, temporary feeders, were dropped from the rolls several days ago.

John Mulroy and W. Brice Coston returned to work last week, each having been absent about a month on leave.

L. L. McWhorter, H. G. Pride, and Edwin W. Edmonston, temporary men, were dropped from the rolls last week.

George Griffith and wife returned last week from Atlantic City, where they had been sojourning for a week or more.

Misses Mary E. Mangan, Augusta W. Russell, A. E. Andrews, and Esther L. Danforth, of the folding room, are on leave.

Mrs. Susie C. Carlisle went on leave August 7, but has not returned at this writing, owing to ill health. Her many friends hope to see her back at an early date.

Misses Mary Bergin and Grace Dubant, of the folding room, returned recently from a trip to Boston by sea. Notwithstanding the fact that they were both seasick, they look well and report a splendid time.

James G. Mulroy, son of John Mulroy, of this division, returned several days ago from the Philippine Islands, where he served three years in the army. He has decided not to re-enlist, although his appearance would indicate that he enjoyed good health in the Archipelago.

A lady in this division, who has been a subscriber to THE TRADES UNIONIST every since it started, says that she missed Bloomer's "Flotsam and Jetsam" very much last week. She also says that she coincides with that gentleman in every word he has said on the liquor question.

G. P. O. Veteran Society.

This organization is composed of nearly all the honorably discharged soldiers and sailors of the civil war borne on the rolls of the Government Printing Office and its various branches, and has a large Ladies' Auxiliary composed of the wives and daughters of the members. The object of the organization is to cultivate a true spirit of comradeship among the members and sociability between their families, which has been accomplished to a very satisfactory degree.

Capt. Charles M. Robinson, chief of the Proof Room, G. P. O., is the efficient president of the society, and is assisted by a competent executive board. The society has secured Maccabee Temple for their social gatherings and will inaugurate the fall and winter campaign Saturday evening, the 20th inst. These socials are made highly entertaining through able speakers and a variety of talent of a high order. Refreshments are served in abundance and every opportunity afforded for an enjoyable evening. A feature of the gatherings is the singing of popular war songs, with W. B. Reed as precentor.

The Ladies' Auxiliary will hold a reception in Maccabee Temple, New Year's Day, from 2 to 10 p m.

The married men of the Blank Room met the single boys in a ball game and were defeated 28 to 3, last Wednesday. The men say they would have won out if it had not been for the tearful appeals to the umpire by the kindergarten, and also in ten or fifteen years, when the kindergarten fills out, they will be ever ready to take them on for a game.

Squire Roberts, of Brentwood, invited a number of his shopmates to a barn dance out to his section recently. The Brentwood Orchestra (all land owners) put a hole in the floor keeping time, eat all the sandwiches, and all had to gallop to keep warm. Nevertheless, it was a great success and Squire Roberts was made one of the Honorable Knights of Maryland.

IN AID OF STRIKING MINERS

Central Labor Union's Mass Meeting Indorses Strong Resolutions.

GOMPERS AND KENT, SPEAKERS

Miners' Side of Trouble Given by President Gompers, Who Has Just Returned from the Coal Fields—Rev. Doctor Kent Lays the Blame Upon Our Economic System, Strongly Advocating the Initiative and Referendum in National Affairs—President Mitchell Unable to Attend.

President Hamerstrom, of the Central Labor Union, called the mass meeting in aid of the striking anthracite coal miners, Monday evening at Typographical Temple, to order, following an overture by the National Guard Orchestra, under the direction of John N. Pistorio.

The speakers of the evening were Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, and Rev. Dr. Alexander H. Kent, pastor of the People's Church of this city.

President Hamerstrom, after a simple appeal in the name of the suffering wives and children of the miners, introduced President Gompers, who was received with applause, and said in part as follows:

I wish some of the miners, the practical miners, who spend their hours of labor in the bowels of the earth digging away at the veins of coal, could come before you to-night and tell you what they have suffered and why they are in the position they now occupy. I believe that if the people knew the exact conditions that have prevailed in the anthracite coal regions for the past quarter of a century, they would raise such a hue and cry that the men who own the mines, the operators one hears so much of, would not dare oppose the strikers in their demands, so great would be the indignation of the public. I have been in the mines as a lay visitor, and I have spent time in going over the causes that led to this great strike that has thrown 147,000 men out of work for four months and a half and has placed 350,000 women and children in a distressing situation. But I want to speak to you as one not a miner and to lay before you the case of those who struggle in the anthracite coal regions, and trust that what I have to say may win for them your support.

Up to 1873 the condition of the workmen in this section of the great industrial world was fairly good. They received good wages, their work was that of skilled laborers, and they and their families were fairly well off in this world's goods. The conditions at that time, or prior to that time, were good, and there was a stimulus to honest toil During the panic of 1873, however, the operators began a systematic and well-planned movement to undermine and deteriorate the conditions of their men. They began the process by sending agents to foreign countries, whose business it was to induce men in the rural districts of the Southern European countrtes to migrate to America.

These foreigners were brought here in great numbers and were taken immediately to the coal mines by the agents who had induced them to leave their homes. Once in the mining district they were huddled together in frame houses resembling the barracks built for the soldiers who fought during the war. Hundreds and hundreds of these creaturss were herded together in these great barn-like structures. They lost their identity completely. Their employers did not know their names and they were given numbers to distinguish them one from the other. They were compelled to live in these houses and were made to pay an exorbitant rate in rent Some of them were furnished meals in the company houses, and others were compelled to get their food at one or more of the boarding houses owned by the company.

The immigration continued, thousands of these ignorant foreigners coming to our shores to go into what was almost abject slavery in the mines. After a while those who had wives were permitted to send for them, and hundreds of other women were brought over to provide wives for the other men. When these families arrived they were housed in the hovels of the company. The company did everything. The child was brought into the world by the company's surgeon, it grew up under the care of the company's task master, and received its meager education in the company's schools. When it grew to an age for marriage it was married to another of the company's children by the company's preacher. When it died it was buried in one of the company's coffins, by a company priest in the company's cemetery. The families that did not expend all their earnings in the company's store were suspected of buying food and provisions elsewhere, and were warned not to continue such a practice, as it would lead to dismissal. The men knew not what it was to handle a single dollar of their wages.

All this oppression was accompanied by a constant reduction of wages, until the earnings of a man of family were so low that it was hardly possible for him to make both ends meet. Several times the men thought of organizing, as they had seen and heard of other classes of labor doing. This process was nipped in the bud by the watchful operators, who dismissed all who even ventured to suggest organization. This is the condition of affairs which led to the organization of that band of determined men known to history as the Molly Maguires. The desperate straits to which the men had been put required desperate remedies. The Molly Maguires were stamped out and strung up on the gallows.

This cowed the men, and they returned to work as animals that have been whipped go to their kennels. Their spirit was almost broken. When the great strike occurred in the soft coal districts in 1897, when 2,000,000 men went out and demanded an increase of wages, better hours, etc., and got their demands, the men in the anthracite districts took heart. They marched through the country to inform their brothers of what had happened, and were met with cold lead from the muskets of the posse under a despicable sheriff on the field of Lattimer. Again the men returned to their toil, cowed and subdued. The indomitable spirit did not die entirely. In 1900 the men demanded certain reforms of their employers, and after a strike of seventeen weeks their demands were conceded to. They received an increase of 10 per cent in wages.

The price of living is higher now than it was then, aud the cost of maintaining a family has increased accordingly. The men want more reforms. They want another increase of wages, and they want to have a man of their own employment to check off the weight of their coal as it is mined, and not be subjected to the work of a company checkweight, who frequently makes the miner send out from 3,600 to 3,800 pounds to the ton.

These are the demands that they have made to the operators to-day. They have asked them to arbitrate before a disinterested body, and the demand has been refused. They struck, and they will not work again until their demands are granted. I appeal to you in their name for help for their wives and their children, for the 350,000 women and children who are suffering from the strike, and who may suffer more. I grant you that they are not now suffering more than they did under their old wages, but there is a growing need, and it is for you and such as you to help them.

At the conclusion of President Gompers' speech Secretary Dickman read the following telegram from President Mitchell, of the United Mine Workers of America:

J. B. DICKMAN, 425 G street, Washington, D. C.:
I regret that the situation in the coal fields makes it impossible to attend in person or send representative to meeting Monday night.

JOHN MITCHELL.

President Hamerstrom then introduced the Rev. Alexander Kent, D. D., who is well known throughout the country as a defender of the rights of the oppressed. Doctor Kent made a very impassioned speech in which he pointed out that public ownership of public utilities was the remedy and that the operators were not alone to blame for these unjust circumstances but our economic conditions needed alteration. He denied the Government had a right to let any set of men have control of the coal fields which belong to the people and that the time would come when the people would take charge of the mines. He made an eloquent appeal for the adoption of the initiative and referendum in national affairs.

The following resolutions were presented and adopted at the conclusion of Dr. Kent's address:

WHEREAS, the mine workers in the anthracite coal regions of Pennsylvania are engaged in resisting the impositions of conditions which are the prolific causes of poverty, ignorance, vice, and crime; conditions which will deprive 150,000 wage-workers of the common privileges granted by the charter of this republic, and which tend to provoke lawlessness, disorder, and bloodshed, and which, if tolerated and continued, will seriously imperil the stability of our institutions.

In the struggle now pending we are experiencing the evil results of the absolute ownership and control of a product which is necessary for the comforts and wants of the people by a few who, by a combination or organization of capital, arrogantly claim themselves because of corporate so-called vested privileges to be absolved from all moral obligations; both to the half-million miners and their helpless dependents and to the public generally.

The repeated refusals of the mine owners to submit the questions at issue to investigation and arbitration places the responsibility for the conditions as they apply both to the miners and the consumers of coal wholly upon the operators, and they should, there-

COLUMBIA UNION'S MEETING

Another Appropriation of $500 to Aid Striking Miners.

THE MERIDIAN UNION ASSISTED

President Johnson Reports—Appropriation of $100 for Relief Committee—The Matter of Non-Union Cigars—Committee of Whole—Committee on I. T. U. Convention Report—Many Communications Received—Traveling Cards Read—S. D. Houck Unfair—Minor Matters.

Columbia Typographical Union met in monthly session Sunday at their Temple, a large attendance being on hand.

President Johnson was in the chair, and minutes of previous meeting were read by Secretary Garrett and approved by the body.

Reading of traveling cards deposited since last meeting.

The report of the Nominations Committee was received and adopted.

Communications were read from President Lynch notifying officers that Mr. O. T. Pierce, chairman of Post, had made an appeal from the action of this union in passing and enforcing by resolution a 48-hour law; from Philadelphia Union calling attention that the Postal Guide was being printed in a non-union office and requested the co-operation of this union to endeavor to have it published in a union office; from Missoula Union stating they had placed the name of Geo. E. Booze upon their honorary roll and requesting this union take similar action; from Central Labor Union stating National Engraving Company, Benjamin Schwartz, and Finley & Sons had been removed from the unfair list; from W. B. Wilson, secretary of the United Mine Workers of America, acknowledging receipt of $500 appropriated by this union for aiding the striking miners; from Meridian Union, No. 153, asking a donation to assist in their fight against the Evening Star of that city, and many circular letters calling attention to very important propositions adopted by the Cincinnati convention to be ratified by the membership on or before October 21.

The Business Committee made their report and their recommendations were referred to the Laws Committee.

The Grievance Committee made their report, stating some matters were still pending, but recommended that S. D. Houck, harness dealer, 301 Tenth street northwest, be placed upon the unfair list.

Upon request of Chairman Stelle, of Relief Committee, $100 was appropriated to carry out the needs of said committee.

Mr. Ennis, chairman of the Laws Committee, reported the following amendment, which was adopted:

Amend General Rules, Scale of Prices.—
No employer can claim that a style exists, or is in force, for the guidance of employes, unless the same be written or printed and pasted in a conspicuous place in the composing room. All markings in proof not covered by said style-sheet shall be governed by paragraph 12 of General Rules, Scale of Prices; Provided, That said style may be changed temporarily or permanently, or a special style adopted for any particular work, at the will of the office; but such change or changes shall be in writing (or printed) and be posted in the composing room, or the same can not operate against the employes. Any deviation from such posted style shall be corrected at the expense of the office.

Mr. Babcock, delegate to the Central Labor Union, stated that a committee from that body was receiving donations of cash and merchandise for the benefit of the striking miners, and notified all members who had anything to donate to please notify the members of that committee, who had headquarters in this building.

The special committee appointed at the June meeting to endeavor to secure the next convention of the I. T. U. ih this city reported among other matters that expenses for stationery, printing, postage, souvenirs, banners, railroad fare, etc, amounted to $422.41, and asked for an appropriation of $97.41 to finish up the accounts. The appropriation was made and committee discharged with a rising vote of thanks.

President Johnson reported the death of Messrs. Emmett C. Jones and C. B. McElroy; his discision upon certain points in paragraph 4, of the new scale; that Edward J. Hall was appointed on Printing Committee, vice George R. Boone, resigned, and Joseph W. Fritz on Allied Printing Trades Council vice O. T. Pierce, resigned; that the proposition of Attorneys Weed and Blair, relative to securing 30 days' leave with pay for G. P. O. printers, was a good one and recommended that members enter into agreement for that purpose.

The body then went into Committee of the Whole to consider amendments offered by Laws Committee. Vice-President Merritt presided.

Upon motion of Mr. Babcock $500 was appropriated for the benefit of the striking miners.

Upon motion of Mr. Brockwell $50 was appropriated for the benefit of Meridian Typographical Union, No. 153.

Upon motion of Mr. Kidd a committee of five was appointed to revise the machine book and job scale.

Upon motion of Mr. Roberts a committee of five was appointed to carry out the instructions contained in the circular letter issued by the I. T. U. relative to the eight-hour day.

Mr. Whitehead moved that a committee of fifteen, to be known as the committee of arrangements for the 1903 convention, be appointed and announced not later than the October meeting, which was agreed to.

Consideration of the resolution offered by Mr. Bynum relative to a souvenir publication in view of the meeting of the I. T. U. convention in this city in August, 1901, was deferred until the next meeting of the Union.

Mr. Roberts' motion relative to the local Union punishing members for purchasing non-union cigars, as recommended in a circular letter of September 2 from the I. T. U. headquarters, was laid over.

First Division.

No tears will be shed for the Symposium crowd
Though their grief is deep and their groaning loud;
They were trying to profit by the weakness of others
Regardless of children, of wives, and of mothers.

Charles M. Sizer has gone on his annual vacation.

Chas. A. Durno was transferred from the day Second to this division.

Secretary Lillard has returned from a two-weeks' trip to Colonial Beach.

Wm. J. Galbraith sent in his resignation last week, to accept a machine on the Post.

Anson L. Bodwell has composed a piece of music called "Dreamy Eyes," which he intends to dedicate to alley 21 of this division.

John H. Hogan, Ira M. Ingalls, F. W. Kern, and Charles Wilhelm were transferred to this division from the Job Room last Monday.

Murray Hackett, foreman of the "ring alley," has returned from his leave, having spent it with his family at Atlantic City and New York.

The first prize, a Huntington piano, donated to the Masonic Fair, was won by John H. Butler, the ticket having been sold by Horace Cranford.

Gus Herzinger returned from St. Louis Monday, where he spent part of his leave. He reports Missouri to be richer, more populous, and larger than ever.

The following gentlemen got their reguar appointments during the past week: Jos. E. Donellan, R. H. Mayers, F. W. Gist, Thaddeus J. Coles, and John T. Haskins.

It is with pleasure that I announce the candidacy of Chairman Mabrey for re-election. Mr. Mabrey's first term has shown him to be one of the most fair-minded chairmen that this room ever had. Always courteous, he is ever ready to give his ear to all complaints, no matter how many or how often.

"LARRY" LOITERS IN LONDON

Interesting Resume of One's First Experience Across the Pond.

THE COST OF FOOD VERY HIGH

J. L. Feeney, of the Government Bindery Here, Writes—London Behind the Times—American Workmen Superior to English—Bartending a Woman's Occupation—British Trades Union Congress—Printing Trade Thoroughly Organized—Return Passage a Difficulty—Mode of Travel.

LONDON, ENG., September 9, 1902.

A trip across the Atlantic Ocean in a modern steamship is a pleasure I have always desired, and when the twin-screw steamer Philadelphia, of the American Line, sailed from New York on Wednesday, August 27, I knew that my chances of seeing the Old World were exceedingly bright. The steamship Philadelphia is a massive vessel of 11,000 tons, 560 feet long, and has accommodations and berths for 1,100 passengers.

There were only 80 salon passengers on board, and we soon became acquainted with each other. The weather at sea was fine, and as the boat did not roll or pitch to any extent, very few were seasick. The long days were passed on board in games, entertainments, and on Sunday, church services. On Wednesday, September 3, we arrived at Southampton, and after our baggage was inspected by the British customs officers, we boarded the special train for London. The distance from Southampton to London is 80 miles, and the run is made in two hours.

The coaches, or railway carriages, as they are called here, are divided into small compartments, accommodating ten persons or less, and the entrance to each compartment is from either side of the car, there being no center isle, and no one can go from one compartment into another while the train is in motion. There are three classes of compartments—first, second, and third—and the only difference in the compartments that I saw was in the furnishing, but there is considerable difference in the fare.

I have only been a very short time in London, but I have seen a great deal of the city and its people. I have noted the difference between this city and our great American cities, and as my observations and views may be interesting to the readers of THE TRADES UNIONIST who have not been across the pond, I submit them for their benefit. London is composed of several small cities that were formerly suburbs. Its population now is over 5,000,000. Its business streets at all times of the day are almost impassable on account of the traffic. Judging from the number of people on the streets, the women are greatly in the majority. I have been told that there are at least a half million more women than men, and the result is that women occupy positions generally filled by men in the United States.

The position of tending bar is exclusively a woman's occupation here. The bar maid can be found in the low public bars and also in the swell cafes. It is stated here that women behind the bar tend to elevate the drinking saloon (if such a place can be elevated), as the men do not indulge in the profanity or loud talking that is generally heard in an American saloon. In all the music halls and a large number of the theaters the ushers are young girls, and they sell cigars, drinks, and programs in every music hall. The salary paid the bar maids and waiters is very small. They work long hours and receive but 12 shillings ($3) per week. It is customary to tip every one that serves you in any capacity, the barber even expecting a tip after you have paid him for a shave.

London is behind the times in rapid transit, as they still stick to the old-fashioned bus and cab. There are two underground railroads, one operated by steam locomotives and the other by electric motors. It is anything but comfortable to travel in them, and the general public patronize the bus. You pay on the bus according to the distance you travel, one penny a mile being the general fare. The cab fare is very cheap—one shilling for two miles. Cabs and busses are very plentiful, and very often the business streets are jammed with them.

I had the pleasure of attending several sessions of the British Trades Union Congress, which met in this city last week. Mr. C. M. Robinson, of Columbia Typographical Union, was also a visitor to the congress. I interviewed several of the delegates regarding the scale of wages of their unions, and, compared with the scale paid in the United States, it is very low, 40 shillings ($10) a week being considered high pay, and very few mechanics receive that much. Clothing and shoes are sold a little lower than we pay in the States, but food is high. The average workingman can not afford meat on his table more than twice a week. I have been in several manufacturing establishments, and, judging from the way the men work, I now believe that one American workman can do more work in eight hours than an Englishman can do in twelve hours.

There is considerable complaint here on account of the trade America is taking away from England, and a very wealthy diamond merchant, named Alfred Mosely, has invited twenty trade unionists, each representing a different trade, to accompany him to the United States and visit the manufacturing centers and, on the return of the expedition, to report their views and recommendations for publication in book form. The commission of inquiry, as it is called, will leave for the United States the latter part of October. Mr. C. W. Bowerman, chief secretary of the London Compositors' Society, and Mr. W. Coffey, general secretary of the London Bookbinders, will be members of the commission, and both gentlemen informed me that it is their intention to go to Washington and visit the Government Printing Office.

The printing trades are in a thoroughly organized condition and very few non-union men are in the city. The 48-hour week is in force in all shops, and all manufacturing establishments observe the Saturday half-holiday. Most of the newspapers have the Mergenthaler machine. The binderies are equipped with machines that lead all other countries. American goods are sold in the stores, and what is surprising to me is the large number of American flags that can be seen floating from buildings that deal in American goods.

All vehicles and tram cars drive to the left, and the same system is in vogue on the steam cars.

Gold and silver is the circulating medium, and the lowest paper note is £5 ($25); the smallest gold piece is the half sovereign ($2.50). The slang phrases for money is used to a great extent, which is very confusing and puzzling to strangers. A shilling is called a "bob" and a gold pound piece a "quid." The two-penny copper piece is pronounced "tupenny" and "trepenny" for three pennies, "hapenny" for half penny. The small farthing is also in general circulation. The hotels here are full of Americans who came to witness the coronation, and as they all want to return this month and next month the steamships will not be available to carry them in that time. I have found it a very difficult task to secure a return passage, and I have no idea when I can secure a berth, as I can not get one on any steamer from any European port this month. I leave for Paris the end of this week, and if I have time will write you a letter from there. With kind regards to all my many friends, I remain,

Fraternally, yours,
J. L. FEENEY.

Did you ever stop to think that the Chink laundrymen in Washington are taking employment away from several thousand American working people and are hoarding their money to send back to China? Shall yours go there or be spent among your own people? —7

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL WASHINGTON. 2

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1902.

WE are in receipt of a copy of The Labor Sentinel, published in the interest of labor at Helena, Mont. From its appearance it is worthy to represent the many unions mentioned in that busy city's domains. May it prove a bulwark in the defense of trades unions and fulfill the mission for which it was launched.

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

While in the Indian Territory recently I was impressed with the magnificent opportunities for young men to get a start in the world. The Territory is being opened up and people are flocking in by hundreds. The allotment of lands to the Indians is going on, and under the law they will be permitted to sell one-fourth of their holdings each year, if they so desire, until all is disposed of. In the section I was in, the Choctaw Nation, the towns were built without any regularity, the towns sites never having been laid out and every one building where he pleased. Recently the towns have been laid out by town-site commissioners, streets run, boundaries defined, etc., and this involved moving houses to get them on lots and out of streets. It is astonishing with what little capital a man can get into business there, and the opportunities for doctors, lawyers, dentists, and pharmacists exist in every town. Especially will the securing of titles to lands make work for lawyers, for disputes over boundaries and other questions will be interminable. The climate was warm, but, lacking the humidity prevailing in this city, was much more endurable at 104° than it is here at 94°. In some sections there are vast coal fields, requiring many miners and other employes for their exploitation, whose monthly wages make things hum. Any one who has noticed the difference between a "pay-roll town" and one merely depending on the surrounding country will appreciate the conditions in these Territorial mining towns. Everybody has money and everebody lives well. As to the condition of society, I never saw but two pistols while there, both on law officers, and I never saw anything locked up except pastures to keep other people from putting in their stock. If a young fellow is tired of working for a salary and has half a dozen hundred dollars or a profession he can go to the Indian Territory now and gain a start that I do not believe any other part of the country can equal.

* * * *

I looked in on President Lynch and Secretary Bramwood while at Indianapolis, and in the office of the latter I found old Sam Leffingwell, whom I knew at Columbus over thirty years ago. "Old Sam Leffingwell" he is indeed—over 70 and getting decrepit.

* * * *

Some twenty-odd years ago, when I was assistant foreman of the National Republican, a young fellow named Bob Tilney came along and worked awhile. I met him in Cincinnati, and though he has quit printing and runs a wet goods emporium, he is the same Bob with all his friends. He mixes up a good deal in politics and is one of Boss Cox's lieutenants, and I expect to hear one of these days that he has landed an office that will bring him into at least State prominence.

* * * *

Jack Woolwine, who was known here about twenty five years ago, whose home is in Cincinnati, was in evidence during the convention. On the old Republican, on one occasion when the office was being rescued from "rats," was the first man in the composing room, and he proceeded to slug the first "rat" he met. He was quite a scrapper in those days, but I guess he is getting a little mellowed, being somewhere in the neighborhood of half a hundred.

* * * *

A lady in the Treasury Branch who was so good as to express herself complimentarily in regard to my writings in THE TRADES UNIONIST and who "coincides with every word" I said "on the liquor question," has my sincere thanks, for nothing gives me greater gratification than to please the ladies; but I think I'll keep off the temperance question after this, having found one of my articles copied into a liquor trade journal. I never did take the liquor side of the question except to argue against impracticable attempts at repression.

* * * *

Coming up on the train from the Indian Territory, I fell in with a Dr. Bennett, of Aguas Calientes, Mexico, on his way to Chicago to take a post-graduate course. He told me that he is the son of Charlie Bennett, a printer well known in Cincinnati, Chicago, and many Western cities, and doubtless to many "old-timers" hereabouts. He said he has his father with him in Mexico, the old gentleman having become superannuated. It struck me as a coincidence that I should meet the son of an old-time printer under such circumstances.

* * * *

Another evidence that this is, after all, a small world, occurred to me in the Indian Territory. On being introduced to a chap, he said:

"You are from Washington, are you?"

"Yes," said I.

"What do you do there?" he asked.

"I'm a printer in the Government Printing Office," I answered.

"Do you know Hindman Doxey?"

"Very well indeed."

"Well, he's some kind of a relative of my wife."

POTOMAC TO THE GOLDEN GATE.

WHEELSOME AND FLOATSOME.

Chapter one of the above-entitled story leaving the reader still far away from the Golden Gate, the narrative is resumed where it was dropped, namely, at that resort of wealth and fashion and invalids known as Manitou, "the Saratoga of the West." The town crouches in a mountain notch, the heft of the buildings being hotels of one sort or another, the guests of which, whether sick or well, grave or gay, throng the pavilions and drink freely from the iron and soda springs. A union of great strength and exalted rates is that of Manitou busmen, who demand Man-I-One—dollar per head for a half hour's drive through the "Garden of the Gods"—a few acres of ground in which it has pleased Nature to rear red rocks into fantastic shapes. Here all eyes turn toward that mighty overshadowing pile of rocks named for Gen. Pike, and not being able to overcome the strong desire to view the landscape o'er from the top, we got into the strange-looking train, with an engine of stranger design, on a three-rail road, center rails and wheels fitted with cogs, and commence the ascent. The road is 9 miles in length, and the grade at one point 1,300 feet to the mile. About a third of the way up the tall trees and plentiful foliage change to a hardier growth and become thinner and smaller, and rising higher the "timber line" is passed at "Windy Point," car windows are closed, and overcoats and wraps are donned. Finally reaching and looking away from the rock-pile summit, all the world seemed to lay at our feet, Colorado Springs appearing as a vast checker-board and the smoke from Cripple Creek smelters piercing the deep blue far below.

Descending to the plain, the route was resumed over the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad by the famous Arkansas River canon known as the Royal Gorge, the beauty and grandeur of which has been but faintly described by poet and painter and prosy penman of the railroad folders. As the train pushes its way through the narrow defile, by the side of the rushing river, eyes are strained to see the tops of the perpendicular rocks that rise for thousands of feet on either side. The point of chief interest on this route was the principal town of the Latter-Day Saints, which was found to be in the possession of the Elks, who were here holding their annual convention, and this prettiest of American cities was tastefully decorated and brightly illuminated in honor of the visitors. Being unable to break into the Mormon world's most sacred edifice, we were forced to be content with a visit to the Tabernacle, of most wondrous architectural design and finish. Does the erection of this 10,000 seated building, of most wonderful acoustic properties, of no apparent roof support, with the finest-toned organ in the world, built of native wood by men who were not skilled in organ building, support the Mormon claim of Divine instruction and assistance? or does it simply evidence the mighty genius of the great Brigham, who so fearlessly led a persecuted people to this place, where, under the shadow of the Wasatch, he founded a city, and by the inauguration of a splendid system of irrigation, for which the whole country owes him a debt of gratitude, made the arid plain one of earth's most productive spots? Apostle John Henry Smith, one of the twelve, spoke eloquently to an immense audience, on the Sunday afternoon of our visit, on the faith and practice of the Mormon Church, and the great organ and choir of over 500 trained voices furnished the sweetest of music. At Saltair, about a dozen miles from the city, where the Mormons have erected the largest of all bathing houses, we washed, buoyed, and salted in the briny inland sea, whose rapidly decreasing dimensions are due to the diverting of the waters of its feeders by irrigators. Continuing our journey westward through Ogden and over the great plains, the red man, in his fuss and feathers, the squaw afraid of his kodak, and the cowboy in his rugged attire were frequently seen. The golden spike that once marked the completion of the first Pacific railroad, at Promontory, where the two constructing parties met, not having been found, it was concluded that a party of Eastern tourists had preceded us. Passing under the 40 miles of snowsheds, and by the lakes and over the tops and along the sides of the lofty Sierra Nevadas, of most beautiful and varied scenery, and we were skimming over the fertile plains of the golden State. After a hasty glance of the State capital, with its fine legislative building towering above all others, and another three hours' ride, we alighted on Oakland pier. Here we took passage in an immense ferry boat and floated across the bay, landing in the golden-gate city at "early candle light," or just at the time when the streets and buildings were ablaze with electric light and colored glory in honor of our coming. We were, however, afterwards informed by the misinformed that the unusual display was due to the presence of the Knights of Pythias.

FRANK A. RODERICK.

LIFE IN THE INDIAN TERRITORY.

[From the Kiowa Breeze.]

Dr. Chas. D. Frick, of South McAlister, is dead. He is said to be one of the leading physicians of that city, also a good man.

Dr. Y. M. Miller has his beautiful residence finished, and is now residing therein, but the grays trot as fast as ever; if you send for him he gets there, now.

W. E. Kaye, of Fort Worth, Texas, is a real estate agent and engineer. He is here looking after a land title. He is deaf and speaks very loud.—A very intelligent man.

Whilst in conversation with one of the old pioneers of Texas Christianity, in our sanctum, he said, at one time during his Presiding-Eldership in Texas there was a very old preacher that frequently went with him to his appointments. At one of those appointments, whilst standing around, some young men approached where we were standing, and began searching his physique with glaring eyes, and at last one of the young men approached him and asked him if he was a preacher. His answer was, "No, I am a dog following the preacher around barking at the devil's hogs."

I am very particular about my eggs, said the Dr.'s wife, and you ought to hear the Doctor splutter when he gets hold of a store egg—he can tell them in a minute.—Bright.

Dr. Y. M. Miller is having a barn built, such as will add to the looks of his residence and home; more comfort for the trotting greys.

Now is the time to advertise, to-morrow the other fellow will have the job or sell the goods, or win the confidence, or win the love of your sweet heart.

It was whispered through the Breeze, to this office, that Earnest miller, that jovial young mechanic and contractor, would be married, Sunday, to Miss Hereford.

Dr. W. F. Hargrave, of Emit, I. T., is in town prospecting for business. We hope he will succeed, as he is a very sober, honest, trusty Christian gentleman. We have known him and known of him for about 17 years, and have always found him honorable in all his dealings.

How many of you Christians have cleansed yourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness, in the fear of the Lord? This will be answered by many with a sneaarl, and say it is impossible, though the Apostle demanded it.

If ye would be saved from sin and become a child of God, yield to the influences for good that surround you until you receive a knowledge of yourself, which will enable you to repent, believe, and be baptized with the Holy Ghost, which is the power of God unto salvation.

Many old veterans of the cross are camped on the camp ground, and are having a good meeting; some of them are looking for quite a revival in the near future. May the good Lord lift from them carnal reasoning, and preach the Word, for He has said: My word shall not return unto me void.

We rise

With the sun, this morning though dim with flying clouds and thank the giver of true and perfect gifts, for his preservation through another night. The paper will be ready for the mails late.

We can't see the policy of the farmer in selling his corn at 25 & 30 cents, and buying it again next spring & summer to make another crop to sell the same way, and then blame the man that buys at 25 & 30 cents, and they that sell it to them in the spring and summer for 75 and 100 cents. No wonder they grunt when they are hard pressed.

Bindery Notes.

We all sympathize with our friend John Burns, he having lost one of his children last week.

Robert Beir, the comic cartoonist, has leased a farm at Branchville, where he expects to raise live stock and make funny pictures.

The men working in the roof garden responded handsomely to the relief of the striking miners. These men displayed their union principles by their contributions.

Little Johnnie Atkins has gone to Great Falls a fishing. A special was received of the first day's catch—7 perch and 17 bottles of beer. Jack carries good bait.

George W. Bilyen, of Eckington, spent Saturday night with the boys. This is the first time George has been out in many moons. He held a jubilee over Philadelphia winning the pennant and related many ancient reminiscences.

Last week a number of sporty bookbinders visited Laurel, Md., to take a look at Jim Stockman's horse called Rube. Jim has Rube on a quarter of an acre sand lot, and the animal devours the sand off the lot the same as if it was the richest feed. Jim says he is a wonder.

Tommy Kelly, of the blank room, received short change from a young lady in one of the stores. Tom counted his money, and without looking up, said, "Come up there, you are shy." The lady blushed, gave him the right change, and said, "You must be a poker player."

You know what a sport (?) Bill Haslett is. He challenged Billy Hyde and Tom Kelly (the curly-headed Tom) to match pennies, odd man to win. The challenge was accepted. Hyde to play heads and Kelly tails was the game. You can imagine who wins. Haslett remarked at the end of the game, or when his money was gone, "that they cheated him out of his beer and pretzels for a week." When you are short of change go and see Bill Haslett, from Philadelphia. Nuf ced.

Labor Notes.

Grand Rapids has a reporters' union.

Denver shoemakers now receive $3 50 a day.

New York City has 150,000 organized wage workers.

Albany Telephone linemen will receive $2.75 a day.

The Master Horseshoers' Union has 25,000 members.

Morganville, W. Va., will have a $1,000,000 plate glass plant.

Spain has ordered the eight hour day for government work.

Cleveland's new $45,000 labor temple project is assuming a definite shape.

The English Britannia metal trade dispute was settled after five months.

Rochester waiters have organized. They want $3 for day and $2 for evening work.

Greater New York's 5,000 carpenters won the strike for the eight-hour day and $4.50 a day.

A judge has just decided that a man with a paid-up union card in his pocket is not a vagrant.

In Austria 70,000 miners have won a nine-hour workday. The men were on strike nine months.

Twenty factories have adopted the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union stamp during the month of July.

The Bank of England employs about 1,000 people, pays a quarter of a million a year in wages, and £35,000 a year in pensions.

Mexican labor is so scarce as to necessitate sending for negroes from Jamaica. The latter are guaranteed employment for a year.

"A man may be ever so honest, but if he lacks the courage to stand up and fight for his honest convictions he is no good."—President Roosevelt in a recent speech.

A trades carnival will be given by the organized labor people of Birmingham, Ala., opening Monday, November 3. The proceeds will go toward building a labor temple.

Judge Richardson, of the Washington Supreme Court, in a decision just handed down, holds that a boycott when it is peaceably conducted, is not illegal.

The National Association of Post-Office Clerks, which held a convention in Kansas City, again declared its sympathy with the objects of the American Federation of Labor, but declines to affiliate.

The arbitration board of the Chicago City Railway agreed upon a 10 per cent increase in wages, a uniform working day of nine hours, and pay and one-half for all work over and above nine hours, and two holidays a month.

A general committee of fifty-seven members of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employes has formulated a uniform scale of wages and sets of rules for its membership in the employ of the Southern Pacific Company.

The laws of Kansas provide that the labor unions of the State shall organize a State order and select the labor commissioner, thus giving the unions the privilege of saying who shall represent them in so important a position.

The weavers of the American Woolen Company's Saranac mills at Blackstone, Mass., who went out on a strike against the two-loom system in sympathy with the Olyneyville weavers, have given up the struggle and returned to work last week.

The movement for a strict law against child-labor has been taken up in earnest in Indiana, and an effort will be made to push a stringent bill through the next legislature. An educational qualification, similar to that in Massachusetts, is proposed.

Factory girls who have been on a strike for several months at Kewanee, Ill., have started a factory in opposition to their former employes, to be known as the Union Girls' Manufacturing Company. Mittens, gloves, and overalls will be put on the market, all bearing the union label.

AROUND THE PRINTERIES

Down Town.

Messrs. Pugh and Cuen, formerly employed by the Globe Printing Company, of this city, are in Pittsburg.

A. R. Nathan, employed in the First Division of the Government Printing Office, left for a thirty days' sojourn in San Francisco, last week.

Dan McDowell, late of the Times, is holding down a mergenthaler on the Chronicle-Telegraph at Pittsburg, M. W. Longfellow is doing likewise on the Press in the same city.

Ambrose O'Keefe, of the War Branch, G. P. O., has returned from his extended western trip to the coast. He visited relatives in California and stated he saw William E. Shields, late of the Times, at Denver.

Al. Taylor, of Tacoma, Wash., arrived in the city, Sunday, and reported for duty at the bindery in the Government Printing Office, Tuesday. His many friends here are pleased to have him with them.

At Columbia Union's meeting last Sunday the doorkeeper—and he has been a member of this union for twenty years or more—was kept busy demanding to see the working card of a great number of those desiring admission. Moral: Important business at every meeting.

Timothy J. Murphy has removed to Washington, D. C., where he will resume his old position with the Granite Cutters' Journal. He was a delegate to the I. T. U. convention and attended the August meeting of No. 13. Knowing his innate love for Boston, his friends have formed a pool as to the length of time that he will remain in Washington.—*N. E. H. F. Tompkins has returned to cheer up his colleagues of alley 8.

Misses Sarah Cromelein and Jessie Dumble returned to work last Wednesday.

Lee Hartley, a late arrival in this room, enjoys the distinction of having his first proof an "O. K."

Thomas H. Collins, one of our efficient floor hands, and Marion B. Richmond returned to work last Friday.

H. F. J. Drake, a veteran employe of the Government Printing Office, paid us a pleasant visit one day last week.

James C. McDaniel has returned from a visit to the Tar Heel State. He is growing a magnificent crop of side whiskers.

Despite the prevailing cool weather, some of our male employes continue to brave public sentiment and risk their standing in society by wearing straw hats.

W. D. Thornton, better known as "Blood," was dropped from the payroll last Saturday. The usual term "dropped" is ill advised, since Thornton weighs 250 pounds.

Simeon Johnston, compositor, weather prophet, and veteran of the civil war, was excused Thursday, on account of sickness. This is the first time he has been sick in fifty-eight years.

George D. Colquitt, J. W. Childress, W. A. Griswold, Edward H. Sturm, J. W. Naylor, and John F. Putnam have returned to their posts of duty with renewed ambitions and redoubled energies.

Fred W. Henke, a disciple of Edison and a devotee of Nicola Tesla, is one of our most studious employes, devoting most of his spare moments to the study of the science of electricity and its practical application.

Mr. Klein, the elevator man, recently found a set of false teeth in his car. They occupied a conspicuous place in the car, and judging from the accompanying placard the teeth once adorned the pretty mouth of a reigning belle.

It is alleged that some fiend, without the fear of God in his eyes or love of man in his heart, recently entered our bicycle room and "borrowed" a wheel, returning the same demolished. If caught, the wretch should be given the water cure.

E. J. Scanlon returned to work Saturday, after a week's absence. It is rumored in some quarters that "Doc's" eyesight became impaired looking for more than one "head" per diem. Oh Carter, Jim Carter, why hast thou forsaken me?

Alley 5 still remains the banner reservation of feminine devotees of "the art preservative of arts," from a numerical viewpoint, the following ladies being exemplars of Gutenberg's immortal avocation; Misses Mary Blore, Reith M. Eisenhour, Louisa Gunton, and Brook A. Yowell.

William Y. Clarke recently purchased a Bristol fishing-rod and gun, and he anticipates a fine time among the hills and creeks of Alexandria County when he takes his annual vacation next month. Clarke is every inch a sportsman and it is expected that quail, canvasbacks, bears, and mountain lions will fall in droves before the unerring aim of this mighty Nimrod.

Capt. O. S. Webster, a veteran of the unpleasantness of 1861 and well known in military circles, will entertain a few friends during the coming G. A. R. encampment. Appropos of the oddity of names encountered in "Spess" work, Captain Webster recently showed us a "take" that contained the name of one Noah Cornfield, of Chicago, whose gigantic brain tended toward the improvement of emery-grinders.

Charles H. Coe, formerly of the "Spess," but now connected with the Job Room, is winning laurels as a photographer and writer. In a recent literary contest conducted by the Camera, a Philadelphia journal, he won first prize of $10 for a well written article, entitled, "Aids to System in Photography." He spent his vacation on an island in Chesapeake Bay and secured many interesting pictures of his surroundings.

The chairman of a chapel should be accorded courtesy and deference. Recently, an attache of the Official Gazette chapel was accused of copy-box irregularities and sought to belittle the dignity and besmirch the fair name of Chairman Redfield by calling him a blank fool. A fine of one dollar was imposed and a chapel meeting called to have said fine remitted. The chairman was sustained by an overwhelming vote and the sulphureous atmosphere was soon dispelled by the sunshine of truth and right.

A commanding figure, with an easy poise and pleasant face, is to be seen every day behind his desk in the proof room. Devoid of malice or strife, this gentleman is the composite of sincerity, earnestness, precision, kindness, and intense unionism. He stands high among the membership of Columbia Union and has been honored with its presidency. Born on a tropical isle, he brought hither with him that sunny temperament and congenial spirit that won friends everywhere. The writer takes considerable interest in him, having met many of his relatives and friends of yore during a sojourn in his native clime—Key West—in 1880. He is well known in labor and fraternal cirles of this city and stands second to none in popularity at the "Spess.' This nobleman of nature of whom I speak is W. W. Maloney.

Law Reporter Chapel Outing.

For the third time in as many years the empioyes of the Law Reporter Company held an outing, Saturday, September 20.

The location of the outing was Cabin John Bridge. It was an occasion of good fellowship and all around enjoyment. When superiors and subordinates meet on a common level, it naturally follows that all take turns in throwing the hammer, and as this is the one time in the year that the opportunity is afforded, the "boss" has the underside of it most of the time. However, he usually "makes good" before "time" is called.

The committee in charge had made arrangements for a game of base ball between the married men on one side and the boys on the other, and at 2:30 the opposing teams lined up for the fray. The game was full of exciting incidents, phenomenal plays, and sensational acrobatic feats. But the feature of the game was the startling decisions of the umpire (the "boss," M.W. Moore) and also the batting of James O. (Buck) Taylor, head pressman. It is claimed by the victims, and conceded by the victors, that the umpire could have performed just as successfully blindfolded, and if he ever knew anything about fouls, strikes, balls, etc., he must have left his knowledge at home that day. The game resulted: Married men, 15; Single men, 20.

After the game all hands repaired to the hotel where a supper had been prepared and was served in the main dining room. The table was attractively dressed in ferns and flowers, and as each guest took his seat he discovered on his plate a neatly printed menu card. As coffee was being served and cigars circulated, Mr. Taylor said that as it was customary on occasions of this kind to have a little speech making, he had prepared the following toasts which would be responded to by the gentlemen called upon: "The Craft," Frank B. Crown; "The Professional Man as I Know Him," A. D. Smith; "Our Wives, Daughters, and Sweethearts," A. C. Houghton; "The Old-Time Print," Lon A. Shimp.

Attention was then called to the fact that the manager, M. W. Moore, had been saying nothing and sawing wood. A chapel was at once organized, a meeting held and a resolution adopted, declaring it the sense of the body that the "boss" was next on the slate with copy in the box. He was ordered to "take out," which he did, and set his "take" in this way:

Enb ,sqmzrs .opyc b-l2Mp.w sdtk ɣ;9

A vote of thanks to the committee of arrangements and meeting adjourned to 1903.

fore, be severely condemned at the bar of public opinion; therefore,

Resolved, That we, citizens of Washington in mass meeting assembled, commend the mine workers of Pennsylvania for their effort to obtain just and equitable conditions of employment, and extend to them our sympathy expressed in substantial means of support, pending an honorable and satisfactory adjustment of their grievance.

Resolved, That the Congress of the United States be petitioned at the next session to institute a thorough investigation of the conditions in the anthracite region of Pennsylvania to the end that the people will in the future be protected from the arrogance, greed, and unlimited license of corporate combinations by wholesome and enforcible legislation.

Resolved, That as citizens of a common country and immediately affected by the conditions prevailing in the coal mining fields of Pennsylvania, we call upon the executive authorities of that State to perform their sworn duty and enforce the constitutional law of that Commonwealth, which provides that no incorporated company doing business of a common carrier shall directly or indirectly prosecute or engage in mining or manufacturing articles for transportation over its works; nor shall such company directly or indirectly engage in any other business than that of common carriers, or hold or acquire lands, freehold or leasehold, directly or indirectly, except as shall be necessary for carrying on its business, but any mining or manufacturing company may carry the product of its mines and manufactories on its railroads or canals not exceeding fifty miles.

Death of John F. O'Sullivan.

John F. O'Sullivan, Fourth Vice-President of the International Typographical Union, and delegate to the American Federation of Labor, was killed by the cars at Lynn, Mass., on Tuesday.

Mr. O'Sullivan was well known in labor circles throughout the land, and his wise advice and co-operation will be greatly missed in their councils.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the United Hatters of North America it was voted to levy assessments of 10 cents per week on each of 14,000 members—making nearly $6,000 a month—toward the support of the striking miners.

OFFICIAL ORGAN CENTRAL LABOR UNION, WASHINGTON BRANCH, AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR.

Vol. VII. No. 16. WASHINGTON, D. C., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1902. Price, 3 Cents.

THE CENTRAL LABOR UNION

Benjamin Schwartz Again Declared Unfair to Organized Labor.

GRIEVANCE COMMITTEE BUSY

Credentials Received—The Plumbers' Matter—The Registered Drug Clerks Active—Sheet Metal Workers and Saks & Co.—Miners Relief Committee Report—Minor Matters.

The Central Labor Union met in weekly session at Typographical Temple, Monday night, President Hamerstrom in the chair and Secretary Winslow again at his desk.

Credentials were received from Bartenders' League, No. 75, certifying Messrs. J. F. McCarthy, B. V. Walz, J. W. Grigsby, J. J. Burns, and W. Riordan; from Carpenters and Joiners', No. 884, certifying C. F. Holden, vice W. W. Winfree; International Union Steam Engineers, Local No. 77, certifying Messrs. James Develin and J. A. Stockton; from R. A. Lanis Association, No. 10, certifying S. H. Way, vice George Meitzler, resigned; from Gas Workers' Union, certifying Messrs. James R. McClelland, Samuel H. Walker, W. A. Meyers, Michael J. Corkely, and Thos. Holland.

The convention call of the A. F. L., to be held at New Orleans, La., November 13, 1902, was read and made special order of business at 9 o'clock next Monday. Secretary was directed to notify locals of same that action may be taken relative to electing a representative thereat.

The Registered Drug Clerks' communication stated the withdrawal of their card from Ireland Edmonds, 201 C street northeast, for non-compliance of contract and the expulsion of one clerk; they also stated the following druggists, in addition to those formerly named, had signed their contracts and entitled to union patronage:

J. F. Simpson, Rhode Island avenue and Seventh street; A. Kloczewski, Ninth and E streets; W. H. Bradfield, Twenty-second and P streets; G. W. Hurlebaus, 2030 Fourteenth street; E. R. Nichols, 1901 Pennsylvania avenue; R. L. Quigley, Twenty-first and G streets northwest; W. Armstrong, 700 H street northeast; A. H. F. Luerssen, Brookland, D. C., and C. H. Blumer, R and North Capitol streets.

Journeymen Barbers' Union, No. 239, communicated that C. Graefe had unionized his shop and requested this body remove his name from the unfair list. Request granted.

Glass Bottle Blowers' Association communicated that the difficulty existing between their organization and Whittemore Bros. & Co. had been adjusted and now said concern was strictly union.

National League, United Protective League of Labor, communicated inviting this body to appoint five delegates to an open meeting at Plasterers' Hall, October 1. Messrs. J. H. Brinkman, M. Spohn, H.W. Sherman, J. F. McCarthy, and W. H. Cook were appointed to carry out said request.

The communication of Secretary Ratigan of the Building Trades Section requesting the Central Labor Union wiihhold recognition from Plumbers' Union, No. 5, until such time as they reaffiliate with the Building Trades Section, the said Plumbers' Union having notified the Section of their decision to withdraw therefrom, was, after a few amendments, laid upon the table upon a substitute for the whole to that effect carrying.

International Union Steam Engineers, No. 75, communicated requesting Central Labor Union to revoke contract with Eugene Tapscott as a contractor. Matter referred to Building Trades Section.

Carriage and Wagon Workers' Union, No. 72, requesting that this body place Corby Bros., bakers, upon the unfair list, on account said firm patronizing a non-union Baltimore wagon-making firm, was referred to the Grievance Committee.

The matter of one Stuart, engineer at Portner Flats, was communicated by Washington Association, No. 1, National Association of Steam Engineers, and same was referred to Grievance Committee.

The communication of Beer Drivers and Stablemen's Union, No. 234, relative to the insertion of the words "and stablemen" in certain contracts was referred to Grievance Committee.

The Arbitration Committee's report relative to the dismissal of one Charles Albert from the employ of the Arlington Brewing Company, the action being objected to by Brewery Workmen's Union, No. 118, was concurred in by this body, the board of arbitration recognizing the fact that employers have the right to dismiss an employe for just cause.

The Grievance Committee recommended that Benjamin Schwartz, who had failed to keep his contract with the Retail Clerks' Union, be again placed upon the unfair list. Recommendation concurred in.

The case of M. F. Coxen, restaurant keeper, 468 Pennsylvania avenue, was settled, having signed a contract with Bartenders' League.

Paperhangers, No. 420, reported that Bogan & Leary had signed their contract, and they requested said firm be removed from the unfair list. Request granted.

The Miners' Relief Committee stated donations were not coming in quite satisfactorily, and Secretary Winslow was again instructed to notify all organizations relative to matter. Columbia Lodge of Machinists stated that they had made two collections for aid of miners and turned over $200 to the Central Labor Union Miners' Relief Committee. Delegate Dickman stated Columbia Typographical Union had forwarded $1,200 in aid of miners. Retail Clerks stated they had forwarded two donations through their International.

The Sheet Metal Workers reported the adjustment of the Saks & Co. matter and requested matter be withdrawn from Grievance Committee. Request granted.

A vote of thanks was extended Musicians' Protective Union, No. 161, for music rendered at the public meeting in behalf of the miners.

The Miners' Relief Committee stated arrangements had been perfected to hold an open-air meeting Saturday night, October 4, at Seventh street and Market Space, in which prominent speakers would participate; also that there would be a grand concert at Chase's, Sunday, October 12, in which Haley's band and local musicians would take part. Tickets can be purchased from any member of the committee at usual prices.

Al J. Gompers expects the quality and merit of his 10 cent El Sublima and 5 cent La Federacion cigars to sell them. The Union label is not used to palm off inferior cigars. The cleanest and neatest factory in Washington, 209 Penn. Avenue N. W.

Oyster pan roast, 10c. R. A. Driscoll's, N. Cap. and G sts. Overholt whisky, 10c.

Death of Captain Murphy.

William H. Murphy, a familiar personage in the Government Printing Office, who generally assisted Paymaster Clifford in disbursing the salaries of that institution, and who was familiarly known as "Captain," died suddenly Sunday, September 28, 1902, at his home, 64 I street northeast, aged about 60 years.

His funeral was held Tuesday morning, from St. Aloysius' Church, and interment was made in Mt. Olivet Cemetery.

Oyster pan roast, 10c. R. A. Driscoll's, N. Cap. and G sts. Overholt whisky, 10c.

THE NEW FADS.

Very good you will feel
Riding in a 'mobile
  Until it gets ready to stop,
When the machinery'll unwind
And you will pop out behind,
  Where the debris on you will drop.

But 'twill be better to fly
In a machine to the sky
  And "see the whole world at your feet;"
Then a wheel will get cranky,
The gas bag will get lanky,
  And soon a hot planet you'll meet.

Yet the greatest idea
Is to go down in the sea
  And skim swiftly over the ooze
In a boat that's corked tight
To exclude water and fright,
  In which air made to order they use.

But, alas for the ship,
Some cog-wheel will slip
  And she'll be stuck like the rocks of Gibralter;
And the poor cranks who went down
Can't even then drown,
  For they'll smother surrounded by water.

LONG PRIMER SORTS.

Here is an advertising suggestion for use by Novelist Sutton next winter: READ "RHODA ROLAND" AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR HARD COAL.

***

A SONG OF A FAN.

Put away the bat;
  Put away the ball;
Let the crank no more
  At the umpire call.
Put the charley horse
  In the stable now;
Let no lines of thought
  Seam the pitcher's brow.
Gloom o'erspreads the earth;
  Sad the song I sing;
I no more can yell
  Till the days of spring.

***

AN APPALLING FALLING.

Alas, my soul it doth appall,
  In fact it makes me grieve,
That when the leaves begin to fall
  The fall begins to leave.

***

A PESSIMISTIC WAIL.

Life is full of pesky trouble
  And our cake is often dough,
And too often we see double
  Through the Horoscope of Woe.

In the pathway of Endeavor
  Failure's thistles pierce our feet,
And the pinions of the Never
  Than Fruition's are more fleet.

We must lay the dust of battle
  With a sprinkling cart of tears,
And Ambition's baby-rattle
  Fails to tickle jaded ears.

What was once a star of glory
  Splutters like a tallow-dip
When completed is life's story
  By a man who's lost his grip.

ADAM BUGG.

LOVE.

My lady's motions are a visual wine,
  The glossy-throated languor of a dove;
But in a lowly cottage not remote,
  Burning in rustic veins, dwells simple love.

A comely-whiskered knight in brave array
  Calmly petitions for a lover's boon;
But where the bower of love is wet with dew
  Two simple lovers gaze upon the moon.

Little the distant stars of love can tell,
  But lowly flowers in tranquil valleys much;
The glare of courts may drown erotic gleams,
  But midnight darkness can not chill love's touch.

To Members of Columbia Union.

The Printing Committee of Columbia Typographical Union requests officers and members of committees to furnish their photos and sketches, as asked for recently, for the forthcoming Yearbook. It is the purpose of the committee to turn in the copy to the printer on October 15, and it is doubtful, the committee states, if any photos or sketches furnished at a later date will appear in the Yearbook.

In Miners Behalf.

The Relief Committee of the Central Labor Union announces that there will be held an open air meeting in the interest of the striking miners at the corner of Seventh street and Market Space, Saturday evening.

The committee is also making arrangements to hold a Sunday night concert at Chase's Theater, Sunday night, October 12, at which Haley's Band will be present and contribute several numbers as well as other professional talent. The proceeds from this entertainment will be sent to the relief of the miners.

Workingmen's Association Origin.

At the great London exposition in 1862, French workingmen came over to inspect the exhibits. They made the acquaintance of English workingmen, and, naturally, compared notes on the condition of labor in France and in Great Britain. These casual conversations led up to a meeting held in a London tavern, August 5, 1862. This was the origin of the International.

At this meeting a plan was sketched which was enlarged at a meeting in 1863. In 1864, Karl Marx became a member and on September 28, of the same year, a great International Assembly was held at St. Martin's Hall, London, and provisional regulations were adopted, and subordinate groups were formed all over Europe. The organization was finally perfected at Geneva, in 1866.

Marx had been appointed to prepare a constitution and other fundamental documents. Maezinni and Bakernin were present and had programs of their own. Marx's plan was adopted, and the name, "International Workingmen's Association," was agreed upon.

The fundamental principles laid down were these: The emancipation of the working classes must be accomplished by themselves. The struggle is for equal rights and the abolition of class rule. The subjection of labor to the monopoly of the means of labor lies at the bottom of servitude in all its forms, of all social misery, mental degredation, and political dependence. That all efforts in the direction of emancipation—the great end—had hitherto failed from lack of solidarity between the divisions of labor in a country, and the lack of fraternal union and co-operation between the workingmen of different countries. The emancipation of labor is not a local or national, but a social problem for all countries, embracing all workingmen, without regard to color, creed, or nationality.

The details of the organization were formulated, independent locals were recognized, and the Association in no way interfered with existing labor organizations. MACON.

When John Nolan went on his leave, recently, it was confidently asserted that he would do the "proper thing" after office hours, but his friends were disappointed to find that he and the Major had sought the seclusion of a far away liquid dispensary, where the two old cronies enjoyed themselves immensely. Returning to the neighborhood of the office later, when they thought the coast clear, they entered a place well-known to the employes of the big printery only to find that John's many friends were there awaiting him. He was thus forced to do the honors even against his will. Moral—Always do the "proper thing," and do it promptly.

The Right to Labor.

But it is said that the non-union man or scab has the right to labor and that he must be protected in this right at all hazards, and when he tries to break a strike he must not be molested.

Certainly he has the right to labor. There is no question about it. So has the small merchant and small manufacturer a righi to live and do business in spite of the trust, and when he tries to compete and thus destroy a trust he should be protected at all hazards. Yet he is crushed to atoms at once by these very men who talk about protecting the scab, and, strange as it may seem, the courts then appear impotent.

Let us look at this question of scabs a little further. Without organization the laborer will be ground to atoms and his children will be made beasts of burden. Through organization he has already improved his condition immeasurably.

Every time he achieves a victory he not only improves the status of his own family, but of the scab and his family as well, and that for all time. The non-union men and their families get the benefit of all that the union achieves.

On the other hand, when the non-union man takes a striker's place and thus defeats the object of a strike and crushes a union, he not only lowers the status of the union man and his family, but of himself and his own family, because his own family must share the degradation of all labor.

This being so, there is something dastardly about the act of a scab taking a striker's place.

But I wish to suggest to organized labor that to attack a scab who takes a striker's place is not only a violation of law, but is foolish, for it does not hurt the employer. It does not even inconvenience him. He does not smoke one cigar less on account of it. If a dozen scabs should be killed, he simply gets other hirelings to take their place. What cares he for widow and orphans? He may be morally responsible for having placed scabs in a position where they get hurt or killed, but he will not support their widows and their children.—John P. Altgeld.

AN APPEAL FOR THE MINERS

A Great Struggle for Manhood and American Freedom.

A BATTLE FOR DELIVERANCE

From a Condition Worse Than Serfdom, Which Still Rages in the Anthracite Coal Fields of Pennsylvania—Their Cause, Which Is a Just One, Must and Will Win—He Who Helps Quickly Helps Thrice.

As far as present indications go there is not a sign of settlement in sight, but instead the governor of that State is getting in readiness the entire military force of the commonwealth.

All efforts on the part of the miners, of business men, and citizens generally to bring the operators to arbitration have been lamentable failures. The operators insist that there is nothing to arbitrate.

We submit to all fair-minded citizens whether the miners are asking too much when they insist that they ought to have a check weighman, whose wages they will pay, without cost to the company, whose duty it will be to see that the coal mined is honestly weighed. Does it not appear that the miner's suspicions, likewise their charges of robbery, are correct, inasmuch as the parties so charged decline to disprove the same? Surely there appears cause for all this strife. The miner must be right, or else the operators would only be too glad to show the public generally that the charges against them are without foundation. But no! It would seem that the robbers had been caught redhanded and, of course, are not going to convict themselves.

These miners deserve public sympathy when it is understood that they are simply demanding an increase of 20 per cent of wages, which in the past has not been sufficient to support their wives and little ones decently; a reduction of the hours of grinding and dangerous toil and the recognition of the same rights to maintain an organization of workmen that they concede to the mine operators. We submit are these demands unjust, should they not be sustained by every well disposed citizen?

While this war goes on, humanity demands that the Christian people of this great and prosperous country give of their bounty to maintain the lives of the wives and children of those miners, innocent sufferers in this great drama. Their mute appeals to Heaven for deliverance must touch a chord of sympathy in the heart of every parent in this broad land and cause them to contribute to save the lives of these innocent ones. Give now of money and clothing, so that they can buy food and clothe themselves, for soon the icy blasts of winter will be upon them, increasing their sufferings, and make their condition worse a thousandfold.

All persons disposed to contribute for the relief of the miners and their families will send a postal card to the Miners' Relief Committee, Room 10, Typographical Temple, 423 G street northwest. The committee will call for contributions.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1902.

Words of Phophesy.

Pertinent to the discussions pro and con by pulpit and press, now being indulged in regarding industrial conditions, we submit the following as the expression of those who were early convinced of the dangers which threatened the relations of capital and labor:

The Bishop of Winchester predicts a tornado, generated by the "zones of enormous wealth and poverty." Cardinal Manning declares that "the world of capital is combining in alarm against the world of labor." Cardinal Gibbons warns us "of a struggle, the signs of which fill us with disquiet, because the thirst for wealth is daily more insatiable and the cries of the distressed more poignant and violent." "Lazarus," says the Rev. Mr. Hughes, "is no longer lying on the doorsteps of dives in the quiescence of sullen despair; he is vehemently gesticulating to hungry men at the corners of the streets." Bishop Berry says: "The working classes are now demanding that Christianity should be tried by its power to serve the welfare—physical, intellectual, and moral—of the great mass of men." The Bishop of Derry says: "What there is in the Gospel to rectify the relations of human life, to elevate the selfishness of capital and chasten the selfishness of labor that will find eager listeners. But to the men of the near future religion will appear a barren and worthless thing unless it bear the fruits of human love."

What is this dread sound and rumor? What is this that all men hear?
Like the wind in hollow valleys when the storm is drawing near,
Like the rolling of the ocean in the eventide of fear?
'Tis the people marching on!
Hark! the rolling of the thunder,
Lo the sun, and lo thereunder
Riseth wrath, and hope, and wonder,
And the host comes marching on!
—WILLIAM MORRIS.

AT St. Paul the young women of the Clerks' Union have completed arrangements for the formation of a league, the fundamental principles of which are that members shall refuse to receive the attentions of any young or old man who is not a member of organized labor. They hold "that a union built for two should be loyally affiliated with a union standing for decent hours and proper compensation." This may savor a little of coercion, but we wish them many new recruits.

IN a statement given to the press Monday, by President MITCHELL, of the United Mine Workers, he refutes the charges of President BAER in toto. Amongst other things, he says the demands of the strikers are:

"First. An increase in wages for men employed on piece work.

"Second. A reduction in the hours of labor for men employed by the day.

"Third. Payment for a legal ton of coal.

"Fourth. That the coal we mine shall be honestly weighed and correctly recorded.

"Fifth. We favor incorporating in the form of an agreement the wages that shall be paid and the conditions of employment that shall obtain for a specific period. As to the reasonableness of these demands we have proposed to submit to and abide by the award of an impartial board of arbitration."

The charge that the Miners' Union is a lawless organization is resented by Mr. Mitchell. He says:

"There could be no grosser perversion of truth than the assertion of the operators that the Mine Workers' Union is a lawless organization. During the past twenty weeks the whole power of the union has been exerted to preserve the peace among a voluntarily idle population of three-quarters of a million, and it is a tribute to the activity of our officers and the loyalty and self-restraint of our members that we have been more successful in allaying violence than the coal and iron police in inciting it."

Mr. Mitchell closes his statement with the following declaration of the position of the miners:

"We have entered and are conducting this struggle without malice and without bitterness; we believe that our antagonists are acting upon misrepresentation rather than in bad faith; we regard them not as enemies, but as opponents, and we strike in patience until they shall accede to our demands or submit to impartial arbitration the differences between us. We are striking not to show our strength, but the justice of our cause, and we desire only the privilege of presenting our case to a fair tribunal. We ask not for favors, but for justice, and we appeal our case to the solemn judgment of the American people.

"Involved in this fight are questions weightier than any question of dollars and cents. The present miner has had his day; he has been oppressed and ground down, but there is another generation coming up; a generation of little children, prematurely doomed to the whirl of the mill and the noise and blackness of the breaker. It is for these little children we are fighting.

"We have not underestimated the strength of our opponents; we have not overestimated our own power of resistance, accustomed always to live upon little, a little less is no unendurable hardship.

"It was with a quaking of hearts that we asked for our last pay envelopes; but in the grimy and bruised hand of the miner was the little white hand of a child; a child like the children of the rich, and in the heart of the miner was the soul rooted determination to starve to the last crust of bread and fight out the long, dreary battle to win a life for the child and secure for it a place in the world in keeping with advancing civilization."

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

There seems to be a good deal of illfeeling and disagreement between the I. T. U. and the I. P. P. and A. U. on the subject of the use of the label, the merits of which I do not propose at this time to go into, but it seems to me, and always did, that any office which employs nothing but union labor should be permitted to use the label. Any other course confines its use to large establishments and tends to make guerrillas and outlaws out of the smaller ones. There is no reason why we should discriminate because of the size of the office or the number of men employed if none but union labor is employed.

At the stamp window of the G street branch post-office is a well-known printer who reformed some years ago and "got out of the business"—Douglas G. Miller. For many years he was a compositor on Specifications, and I'll bet that he could go upstairs now and pile up the expected four-eight from the jump without any trouble. Mr. Miller is a well-known tenor singer and prominent in church musical circles. He is also a Mason of high degree and sings in many of the Masonic bodies.

For some time I have been worried by receiving numerous invitations from sundry merchants to visit their emporiums and fit myself out with clothing, overcoats, hats, shoes, furniture, etc., for the fall and winter season—a daily aggravation and grief to a man just back from his leave and looking up yearningly from the abyss in which he finds himself. All these things are sadly needed, but how is it to be done? Ah, here is a circular from the Easy Money Low Interest No Security Loan Company, offering me boodle at a positive sacrifice to the benevolent gentlemen who conduct it, and no out-of-date, shop-worn goods either. I guess I'll have clothes this winter after all. Besides, I have half a ton of coal in my coal house, and if the worst comes I can raffle that off and buy an outfit from head to foot. Great is Allah!

You know that imposing statue of Benjamin Franklin at the corner of Pennsylvania avenue and Tenth street, of course, but do you know the history of it? As I remember it, it is, in brief, about as follows: About 1872 William J. Murtaugh, then proprietor of the National Republican, built the big Seneca sandstone building at the corner of Thirteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue, as a home for his newspaper, and it was located there for several years. It has now been occupied for many years by the Southern Railroad Company. Mr. Murtaugh had large ideas for his building and he had niches placed in the walls for statues, among them one of Benjamin Franklin. Jouvenal, who conducted marble and stone works next door to the corner of Tenth and D streets when the Republican occupied that corner, was contracted with to furnish the Franklin statue. He had it pretty well under way when he ceased work on it, for reasons satisfactory to himself probably, and for many years it remained unfininished.

When Mr. Stilson Hutchins acquired the effects and good will of the Republican, nearly twenty years ago, he found the unfinished statue among the assets, and he entered into negotiations with Mr. Jouvenal for its completion. He then offered to present the city with a statue of Benjamin Franklin if the District government would provide the pedestal, which was done, at a cost of about $2,000, the statue was set up, duly unveiled with appropriate ceremonies, and so we have a statue of the patron saint of printers without any great expense to any one, and a right creditable one, too, scarcely deserving the newsboys' criticism, "The old man looks like he had a jag on."

Speaking of overcoats (or thinking of them, rather), some twenty years ago, when Dave Walton, of the Fifth, was real giddy, he had a beautiful mouse-colored overcoat erected from special measurements of his manly proportions, at an expense of about $40, and enfolded in it he was one of the real attractions of the city. For a whole winter he gloomed the souls of envious fellow-workman by his magnificence, and when spring came his own soul began to be troubled by fears of the soulless moth. With a perspicacity far beyond his years, he sought for protection, and his search brought him face to face with a moth-proof bag, warranted to keep safely whatever was placed within it. For $4 it was his, and when the sizzling days came and his coat reposed therein his was the peace that surpasseth understanding. On his occasional visits to the wardrobe in which hung raiment in keeping with the lovely top coat, but which was as chaff in his mind compared with that garment, he would pat the bag lovingly, saying, "Ah, there, my little moth bag; be brave and do your duty well." When the chill breezes of autumn came he took stock of things and examined his unprotected winter clothing with the full expectation of finding it riddled, but was gratified to find all uninjured. Then the moth bag was taken down and the admiration of the city extracted from its depths. The moth had accepted the challenge and eaten up bag and coat, nothing else being touched!

When Foreman C. M. Robinson made his first appearance at his desk last Monday, after his trip to Europe, he found a splendid bouquet of American Beauty roses awaiting him. As it was the tribute of the entire force, both day and night, and there could be no question of self-seeking on the part of individuals, he appreciated the gift for what it was—an evidence of the good feeling which the employes of the Proof Room have for him. Mr. Robinson was gone two months and greatly enjoyed his trip.

Among the old-time printers who may be here during G. A. R. week is Frank B. Colver. I knew Mr. Colver in Topeka in 1869, and we worked together there on the old State Record. He made a brief visit to this city about 1878. He left Topeka about twenty years ago and located in Los Angeles, where he speculated in real estate and made some money, I believe. I hear that he is back in Topeka and engaged in the hardware business. He was a delegate from Topeka Union to Montreal in 1873. Originally he came from Sandusky, Ohio, where he was in business, A. D. Kinney, now of the Job Room, being his partner. He was a soldier during the civil war and spent about sixteen months in Confederate prisons.

Schildroth, who went to the Philippines last winter, but was disappointed in his expectations of assignment to duty, jumped the game, returned to this country, and at last advices was somewhere between here and San Francisco, probably recuperating at his old home at East St. Louis. There is a wild rumor afloat that all our printer boys in the Philippines are going to come back in the near future.

There is something so delightfully breezy about the sketches of G. P. O. people in the "jolly column" of the Evening Times that I have often felt like copying them, especially a notice of John R. Purvis last week, in which most of the success of the Record was ascribed to him. I believe Purvis never worked on the Record except as a proofreader several years ago, but that fact did not destroy the interest in the statements made.

Here's a little gem I found in "Mrs. Wiggs, of the Cabbage Patch." Cut it out and commit it to memory:

Emile Zola, the great French novelist, departed this life with the same startling and dramatic finesse that characterized his life and his writings. With the price of coal at $20 a ton he was asphyxiated by coal gas.

It is with grief I hear of the serious illness of the mother of President McCauley and the fatal developments in the case of our co-worker Maas. Let those of us who have good health pray for its continuance, not forgetting one plea for those who are not so fortunate.

With commendable generosity Mr. P. B. Chase, the proprietor of the Grand, has given his theater, orchestra, and the company engaged for that week, for a benefit performance on Sunday, October 12, for the striking coal miners. Haley's Band will render two or three numbers, the Musicians' Union will unite in furnishing other instrumental features, and some of the principals from the other theaters will assist in making this an entertainment worthy of the cause for which it is to be given. In conclusion, permit me to add that our own Nathan Columbus Sprague has been the prime mover in this scheme. The miners should send him coal for the rest of his life and enough to keep him warm hereafter.

Barney Collins attended the wake of a departed friend the other night, and came mighty near being arrested for horse stealing. It appears from reports that Barney borrowed a one-horse chaise and a nag, with one lamp missing, to carry him to the scene of mourning. When the time arrived for him to return to the dismal swamp, he was very much befuddled as to which one of the horses in the yard had brought him thither. After a survey of the various specimens Barney picked out one he liked and proceeded to unravel the harness when the owner came and claimed the rig. Then he lassoed another bronco whose proprietor drove him off with threats of lynching. At last Barney bethought himself of the useless optic that his animal sported, and he went from horse to horse scrutinizing their faces by the light of sundry matches. "A horse, a horse, my kingdom for a horse," he yelled, loud enough to bring every mourner out into the stable yard. Then, by the light of a lantern, he found his Bucephalus tied to a shutter. If the horse hadn't known the way home Barney would still be riding somewhere.

During the past week one of the main press room staff, whose name it would be criminal to mention, took a few days of his leave to have a heart-to-heart tussle with an attack of malaria. Unfortunately, he chose a booze dispensary for the conflict, with the usual result. Realizing his helpless condition he sought a friend to whom he offered ten dollars (Confederate money) to restore him to a civilized condition. The friend needed the money and readily agreed to undertake the task, provided, the cheerful idiot would follow his instructions implicitly. He agreed, and the two hastened to the Turkish bath house on Connecticut avenue. Now, be it known, the c. i. had never experienced the mysteries of this form of ablution and it was with fear and trepidation that he doffed his gay rags and wrapped himself in swaddling clothes for his first degree. Once in the chamber of horrors his breath came in short gasps and when the good samaritan touched the button for ice water, in order to produce more presperation, the c. i. threw both arms high in the air and yelled, "For God's sake, don't turn on any more heat; I'm dying. Take me out! Take me out!" He was quieted after awhile but positively refused to get next to the second degree. Billy Peyton, one of the attendants, was summoned, and grabbing the c. i., forced him into the hotter room. With a succession of shrieks, he fell to the floor and floundered about like a hen with its head cut off. "My pulse has quit beating; everything has quit acting but me heart," he cried in pitiful tones. "Time enough to yell when that quits. Into the water now," said Peyton, and the c. i. was hurled into the tank. He landed on his head and remained feet uppermost so long that the bubbles came up through the hole he made in the water, and the good samaritan and Peyton were forced to dive in and restore him to his normal position. By this time the malaria had disappeared, the booze had evaporated, and he submitted to the finishing touches with the docility of a lamb. Once out on the street he steered for the nearest groggery, and as he bit off a high ball, said to his friend: "Them Turks must be d—d dirty mugs if they have to be scrubbed that a'way."

AROUND THE PRINTERIES.

Down Town.

Baseball is now only a pleasant memory—to some. Now for the races.

H. F. Worth, formerly of the Bindery, G. P. O., is now located at Denver, Colo.

W. Macon Coleman, of The Southern Mercury, Dallas, Tex., called at this office Monday.

I. B. Field, who was for sometime connected with the Washington Post, has acepted a machine on the Siar.

Arthur Armstrong, of the Record, who has been spending his leave in Kentucky, has returned to duty in the big printery.

Fred Garrison at one time employed in the Fifth Division, G. P. O., is now pleasantly located at Hudson, N. Y., in the laundry business.

Joseph Gibson, late of the Night Bill Force, G. P. O., leaves to day for a trip by sea to Boston, where he will be absent some three weeks.

Coal only $18 per ton, and still the barons have nothing to arbitrate. How about the Government taking a hand in the public's interest? The oppressed people surely have something to arbitrate!

Charles M. Robinson, chief of the Proof Room of the Government Printing Office, returned to duty Monday, he having been visiting in Europe several weeks. He was properly welcomed by the employes of his division.

Benjamin (Jerry) F. Cullen, for a number of years an employe of the Post in this city, left this week for Albuquerque, New Mexico, his mission being to seek betterment of his health. Jerry's many friends here wish him success and trust he may return at some future day a well man.

Walter L. Evans, of the Specification Division, G. P. O., has been called to his home in South Carolina, on account of his sister's severe illness.

The following item is copied from the New Jersey Herald, published at Newton, Sussex County, N. J.: "J. S. Garner, a compositor in the Government printing office at Washington, called at the Herald office, Tuesday, to see his friend John S. Bunnell, and was very much surprised to learn that the latter had resided on the Pacific coast for a number of years." Mr. Bunnell held cases on the Record four years.

First Division.

Edward McCormick is confined to his home with a severe case of malaria.

Charles Fiesse, who spent his leave in France, returned to work last week.

Edgar Bennet and T. M. Kern have been transferred to the Night Bill Force.

J. E. Fox returned to work last Tuesday, after a visit to his home at Fulton, N. Y.

George Johnson, Jr., starts on leave to-day. He will go bear hunting in the wilds of Maine.

Wiley H. Davis and David Pollock have been transferred to this division from the Job Room.

J. M. Johnston, who resigned from the Proof Room several months ago, has been reinstated and assigned to this room.

Sergeant Tony Garner will turn out with the Second Regiment, D. C. N. G., on Sunday, to do escort duty. He cordially invites all to be on the avenue.

The election for chairman took place last Tuesday. "Judge" Mabrey and W. R. Love were the starters. At the finish the vote stood: Mabrey, 91; Love, 46.

Miss Charlotte Safford Steele, the daughter of Mr. Philip Steele, was married last week to Mr. Arthur N. Gardner, of the Coast Survey. The young couple went on an extended wedding trip and on their return will reside in this city.

On October 8 will occur the greatest military, semi military, and civic parade that has ever taken place in Washington, with the exception of Coxey's Invading Army and the D. C. N. G. forced march to capture the Spaniards at the old Soldiers' Home. One section of the parade, within the civic lines, will be the U. S. G. P. O. Truck Artillery, commanded by the fearless and intrepid cavalry leader, Col. J. S. Burnside, who will be superbly mounted in a brand new G. P. O. delivery wagon. Colonel Burnside's brilliant staff, composed of the most accomplished equestrians, will be mounted on coal carts. Major Billbailee, in a bedazzling uniform of union labels, is to be Chief of Staff, and is to conveyed in a Roman chariot. Capt. Jack Robinson, that famous rough loop de-loop rider, will probably ride "Knight of Snouden," a well known Gravesend thoroughbred. Capt. Robinson will be adjutant of the Blind Baggage Brigade. Capt. Prognosty Jordan, Capt. Simon Poacher Eggs, and Capt. Hall N. Dutch, a well-known knight of the Order of the Hen Roost, will be in charge of truck companies. A steam caliope will precede the Truck Brigade. Remember the date, October 8, and be on hand.

CLOTILDE.

Second Division

Messrs. Zimmerman and Richards were transferred to this division from the Job Room.

Frank Hall, of the Laws Committee, has returned from his leave looking very much improved.

Daniel B. Hallock, the accommodating foreman of the time alley, is going home to vote in November.

We are sorry to hear of the continued sickness of Theodore Gerber, and hope he will soon be with us again.

M. V. B. Stevens, our accommodating table casting artist, has returned from his leave looking much improved.

J. A. Phillipps, our rule case man, is again doing business at the old stand. He looks as if he enjoyed his vacation.

Kaufman's Great $1.90 Hats.

They're not $1.90 hats either—for $2.50 is what they sell for everywhere else. Just to be different and to be busy—we make the price $1.90 and give you choice of every correct new shape and color.

D. J. KAUFMAN, 1005-7 Pa. Ave.
The Man's Store.

Thomas A. Fitzgerald, accompanied by his bride, attended the convention of the Spanish War Veterans, held in Detroit, last week.

J. L. Johnson has returned from his leave. He had a very pleasant time. He went with the District boys to Sea Girt, N. J., and from there to Buffalo, N. Y.

Notwithstanding the fact that a certain professional square man took "French leave" of us—left the United States and went to Jersey without a moment's warning—he has the "sym" of the entire division.

I. D. Williamson and A. K. Williamson, both of whom are located in alley 4 and who received their permanent appointments the same day, did "the correct thing" by their alley mates. Ask Wolfe how he enjoyed the lunch.

John J. Murray, who has just returned, says the statement about his breaking the bookmakers is untrue. He put in his spare time getting outside of Jersey "lightning" and fighting that other enemy of mankind, Jersey mosquitoes.

Specification Scintillations.

Walter T. Roche is enjoying his vacation.

Joseph W. McCann and Edward Nash reported for duty last Friday.

In spite of the protests and appeals of the ring alley, David Eccles took his annual leave last Thursday.

Aug. M. Laing presided at the copy-box last Thursday and Friday, in the absence of James W. Carter.

Last week several new iron case stands were received here, and singularly enough, Ellis G. Myers was the first man provided for.

J. F. Hauer, our efficient chairman, acquired quite a collection of photographs, etc., while visiting in Chicago and Milwaukee last month.

Fred L. Davis, of the proof room, is the embodiment of talent, cheerfulness, and ability. His effervescent temperament and general good nature permeates this division in a pronounced degree.

Edward R. French, N. M. Light, T. H. Collins, C. A. Capell, G. W. Graham, and J. C. Kaufman constitute a formidable array of efficient floor men and render incalculable service in their respective positions.

By reason of efficiency and accuracy, George H. Stull is often called to the proof room as a reader. Mr. Stull is a veteran of the civil war and his former regiments, the 87th and 125th Ohio, were conspicuous in many severe engagements.

One year ago Mr. Theodore Hodes, our capable assistant foreman, was seriously ill, but by superior medical attention and an indomitable will-power he has regained his health to the gratification of his host of friends throughout the city.

It is necessary at all times to have on hand a capable and efficient force of "emergency men," and the following gentlemen are often detailed to perform intricate and arduous duties as imposers, strippers, and stone revisers: Charles J. Duffy, William J. C. O'Brien, Frank McDermott, and W. L. Gutelius.

There is a strikling resemblance in countenance between S. S. English and George W. Hall, of the make-up bank. Phrenologically considered they differentiate but little, while both affect hirsute adornment and eye-glasses. In stature and general outlines they are the same and as workmen they are unexcelled.

Recently, a certain proofreader and an intelligent compositor became estranged and withheld both speech and recognition. A few nights ago their reconcilliation was brought about in a sinuous manner and they immediately repaired to an establishment, ornamented with huge mirrors, exhilarating exhibitions of high art, tapestry, and swinging doors. In a few moments a low gurgling sound and the sharp click of glasses announced to the world that the hatchet was buried.

Has it ever occurred to you that the Specification Room contains more ex-officers of Columbia Union than any other division of the Government Printing Office? It is here where the strenuous cease from toil and the weary are at rest. Well, to begin with, in the list of industrial centurions we find the name of Capt. W. R. Ramsey occupying a conspicuous place as president of Columbia Union 1880 and 1889 and delegate in 1873. W. W. Maloney is in evidence as president in 1868, vice-president in 1879, financial secretary in 1873, and delegate in 1877. J. Edwin Payne figured as vice-president in 1889 and 1890. E. C. Grumley served as president in 1883. A. J. Arnold ornamented the office of vice-president in 1894 and 1897. C. M. Cyphers held down the position of vice-president in 1877. Maj. William A. Dodge was vice-president in 1881 and delegate in 1882. Frank J. Ward was treasurer in 1886. D. W. Beach was elected delegate in 1876, and George M. Ramsey served as delegate in 1885. In these degenerate days the Specification claims but two active officers of Columbia Union—Trustee W. L. Gutelius and Auditor James W. Carter—and Chairmen J. F. Hauer and H. J. Redfied. We still have a patient coterie of Micawbers who are anxious and willing to serve Columbia Union in the capacity of delegate. All honor to our list of ex-officers! May they continue to uphold the banner of unionism, justice, and progress.

THE D. MAYDOLE HAMMER CO.

Credentials Received—Grievance Committee Report—John B. Dickman Elected Delegate to A. F. of L. Convention—Communications Disposed of—The Miners' Nightly Mass Meetings—Other Business Transacted.

The Central Labor Union was called to order, Monday night, by President Hamerstrom at Typographical Temple.

Credentials were received from Printing Pressmen's Union, No. 1, certifying Frank Ferris, vice W. C. Deane; from Registered Drug Clerks, No. 240, certifying Charles F. Collins, vice Samuel Deckman; from Horseshoers' Union, No. 17, certifying Messrs. J. C. Lynch, J. P. Martin, A. Wise, M. Walsh, and M. J. Collins; from Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, No. 5, certifying Messrs. Thomas Groves and Timothy Flaherty, vice Messrs. Charles E. Barbour and Charles Sherries; from Gas Workers, No. 10343, certifying John Quigley, vice J. R. McClelland; from Cigarmakers' Union, No. 110, certifying Messrs. George A. Markell and Joseph B. Hart, vice Peter Hahn and F. J. Dahler; from Tailors' Union, No. 188, certifying Messrs. W. E. Terry, M. Blom, J. Malloy, H. Hogan, and W. Running. This is a new organization.

Musicians' Protective Union No. 161, communicated relative to newspapers erroneously stating the music furnished at miners' benefits was under the auspices of the National Guard Band as music was furnished by members of this local.

The Shirt, Waist, and Laundry Workers' Union, No. 65, of Troy, N. Y., communicated requesting this body to use efforts to create a demand for union labeled collars and cuffs.

New York Stereotypers' Union, No. 1, communicated their continued trouble with the electrotype department of the U. S. Printing Co., of Brooklyn, N. Y., and mentioned a number of firms who use labels printed by this unfair firm. Communication filed.

The following communication from International Brotherhood of Blacksmith, No. 232, of Norwich, N. Y., was read and referred to Building Trades Section:

"We respectfully call your attention to the fact that we are endeavoring to have The David Maydole Hammer Company, of Norwich, N. Y., use the Union Label on their hammers. We have been organized now about nine months, and they refuse to recognize our Union or use the label. We therefore solicit your co operation and aid by sending them an official communication, bearing the seal of your union, requesting them to use the Union Label on their hammers. This is indorsed by our International Union of the International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths; also the central body of the A. F. of L. of this place.

"Hoping that you will comply with our request, and thanking you in advance for so doing, we remain,

"Yours fraternally,

"WM. R. CURLEY, President.

"J. O. DUNCKEL, Secretary."

Marine Trades Council, district of New York and vicinity, communicated asking this body to indorse Capt. J. A. B. Smith, of Steam Engineers' Department, for chief of Engineer Bureau, made vacant by retirement of Admiral Melville.

Grievance Committee reported that the cases of George Driver, 605 Pennsylvania avenue, and E. L. Harrison, saloon keepers, had been investigated and requested they be placed on the unfair list. Requested granted.

Excursion Committee announced the drawing for coupon Labor Day tickets would take place Saturday, October 18.

The special order of business for 9 o'clock—the election of a delegate to attend the A. F. of L. convention—was after much discussion and debate decided by naming Messrs. Cowan, of Machinists, Dickman, of Printers, and Ratigan, of Steam Fitters, as candidates. Upon ballot Mr. Dickman was declared duly elected having received a majority of votes cast.

A resolution was passed to the effect that the President of the Central Labor Union, in conjunction with the Miners' Relief Committee, arrange for nightly meetings at Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue, this week, commencing Wednesday night.

TABLE BOARD.—Good table board in private family $15 per month; also furnished room for two; near G. P. O. 819 New Jersey avenue, northwest.

Back from Manila.

R. A. Nelgner, formerly chairman of the Fifth Division, G. P. O., and who left April 23 last, for Manila, P. I., via San Francisco, to accept a position in Manila Government Printing Office, returned to this country, Saturday, October 4, via New York, having made a complete circuit of the globe. He left Manila August 14, and was on the high seas forty-two days. He made this office a pleasant call, leaving with us a curio of ebony in the form of a Filipino printer's composing stick—a one line affair. Among other things he said:

"I am glad to get back to the United States and civilization again. No more tropics for me so long as I can live in the temperate zone. The Manila office is very busy printing laws and circulars in English, Spanish, and Tagalog, all done on the linotype. Some of the boys are pleased with their new home, while others would like to return to their positions in Washington. Messrs. Allison and Brown were in the hospital when I left, the former with dysentery and the latter with dengue fever."

If you are a true union man do not patronize the Chinamen who spend no money with the union men in return, but send your work to the Boston Steam Laundry, First and G Streets N. W., who pay 40 per cent of their gross earnings to American working people. Telephone E 226-A. —7

ROOMS FOR RENT—Choice of two large rooms on second floor, rear, or two smaller rooms, front, with storage room, on third floor; heat and gas; for $15 furnished, or $13 per month unfurnished; bath on second floor. Call at 812 First street northwest. *

Bindery Notes.

Jim Nalley's caramels in the paste are large and juicy these days.

Bob McLanahan has returned to work after a protracted illness. He looks well.

W. C. Connor has been sick at home for several days. He was at one time threatened with pneumonia, but happily escaped it.

The decorations in the Bindery exceed anything ever attempted in this line before. The decorators deserve great credit, though the attempt to place a green flag before Mr. Byrne's office proved abortive.

It is rumored that Bill Lang is seen very early in the morning along the Avenue and he is said to drop in several places to help the bartender clean up. That there is a consideration involved goes without saying. Ah, Comrade!

The thrift of some of our bookbinders may be appreciated when we learn that Bill Barth and Dave O'Brien were selling umbrellas last Sunday at the Pennsylvania Station, while "Fatty" Fitz was whistling for the entertainment of the crowd and afterwards passed the hat.

Charley Moore was distributing free tickets to Berwyn during the week. He was interested in a land boom at that place but his fellow boomer got into trouble and was sent back to New York to answer a serious charge. Charley says he had nothiug to do with it.

The suggestion made by "Cowboy" in last week's issue of THE TRADES UNIONIST that a place be provided in the new building for a lunch room meets with hearty approval. The authorities of the union should see that the tubs of the cowboys are not placed so close together. At present it is only with great difficulty that one man can pass another in the alleys, especially if there are any jobs piled on the floor.

Editorial Comment on Coal Strike.

Following the lamentable outcome of the conference between the presidents and owners of the anthracite coal fields and President Mitchell, of the United Mine Workers' Union, called by President Roosevelt, last Friday, in which he impressed all that the "necessities of the public demand a settlement," and in which the manly, fearless, and able leader of the miners, John Mitchell, offered to leave matters to decision of a board of arbitration to be appointed by the President, and the soulless coal barons maintained their stolid and indifferent "we-have-nothing-to-arbitrate" position, it is interesting to read a few of the opinions of the leading papers of the country here appended:

Property has its duties as well as its rights and the unyielding attitude of the coal mine owners at Friday's conference indicates that they realize neither the duty they owe to the people in the present crisis nor the intensity of public feeling. * * * The public welfare is paramount to the interests and prejudices of owners and miners.—New York Herald.

Of the effects on the Presidential office of Mr. Roosevelt's extraordinary departure from its prescribed limitations nothing can be said profitably now. They will be felt in years to come. However, during the condition of affairs existing in the State of Pennsylvania schemes of settlement can not be proper subjects of any official's consideration.—New York Sun.

The outcome of President Roosevelt's attempt to arrange an armistice between the Coal Trust and the striking miners is not only profoundly disappointing, but ominously disquieting. John Mitchell, on behalf of the miners, proposed a plan of settlement which can not be regarded as other than perfectly fair. * * * The coal-road presidents not only rejected Mitchell's conciliatory advances, but heaped upon him abuse, insults, and contempt. Instead of meeting the President in the spirit of his invitation, they lectured him arrogantly on the subject of his duty.—Philadelphia North American.

The President can not directly force the operators, if he wished to do so, to accept the terms of Mr. Mitchell, or to negotiate with him at all. Nor is it easy to see any indirect pressure that he can bring to bear upon them sufficient to change their course. What he can do in securing the right of miners to work in safety for themselves and families remains to be seen. * * * In the present case, it depends immediately on the governor of Pennsylvania. Ultimately it may depend on the President of the United States.—New York Times.

The restoration and preservation of order remains for all parties; therefore, the one need and necessity of the situation. The laws must be enforced. Order must be restored. Without this nothing else is possible. —Philadelphia Press.

The word "intolerable" is often used carelessly to define a situation which is inconvenient but can be borne. In this instance it was used with sober precision, and those who heard it from the President's lips are without excuse if they failed to recognize the weight it carried. Yet we find in the statements presented later in the day evidence that some of the operators do not fully comprehend the responsibility they bear, the extraordinary and unprecedented crisis which confronts the country, and the appalling calamity which is imminent.—New York Tribune.

In refusing to negotiate the coal presidents betray a deep-seated hostility to any form of labor union, and in this they are clearly wrong.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

To be just to Mr. Roosevelt, he did the best he could. The public will credit him with trying to remedy a lamentable situation.—St. Louis Republic.

The President is none the less entitled to the heartiest public thanks for the exertion of his personal influence—eminently outside of his constitutional and legal powers as President—to end a situation which he fitly describes as "intolerable," and whose "evil possibilities are so far-reaching and appalling."—New York World.

Into the fierce conflict of labor and capital that threatens millions of American homes President Roosevelt has thrown his strong personality in the honest hope of bringing peace. He has, for the first time in his life, perhaps, met with defeat and insult.—Baltimore Herald.

The attitude of the Coal Trust before the people is incomprehensible. Their response to the President's efforts to settle the strike and avert what may be an awful calamity will excite general indignation and divest the coal corporations of all sympathy from any reasonable man.—Baltimore Sun.

Thanks.

Myself and wife, through THE TRADES UNIONIST, wish to thank the Night Bill Force and the day chapels for the generous contribution which they sent me during my recent illness. It was greatly appreciated and will be forever remembered by us.

PARIS, FRANCE, Sept. 21, 1901.

Paris is without doubt one of the most magnificent cities in Europe. Its beautiful parks, handsome buildings, wide boulevards, art galleries, museums, theaters, monuments, and its many historical scenes and relics make it one of the most attractive cities for American tourists and European travelers.

There is only one way for a stranger not speaking the French language to enjoy a visit to this city, and that is to join one of Cook & Sons' tours or some other tourist party where there is an English guide.

I left London about ten days ago with Cook & Sons' party. We took a train at London Bridge Station at 9 o'clock at night and arrived at a place called New Haven about 11 p. m. We boarded a small French steamer with accommodations for about 100 passengers. It was our misfortune to have 300 passengers in our party, and the result was the boat was uncomfortably crowded, very few being able to secure a berth or even a place to sit down; but such inconveniences have to be met with in traveling. I stood on deck and enjoyed (?) listening to the grumbling and many complaints of the passengers. The trip across the English Channel in fair weather takes four hours, and as the channel was not as rough as it generally is, we made good time and arrived at Dieppe at a little after 3 a. m. We immediately boarded a train for Paris, and in about three hours we arrived at our hotel very tired and sleepy. After breakfast we had a short nap. Being somewhat refreshed, we were then ready to take in the sights worth seeing in Paris. As I have been here nearly ten days, and devoted all my time to sightseeing, it would take two pages of THE TRADES UNIONIST to partly describe the many beautiful and historical buildings visited and the interesting and instructive information received. For five days I accompanied Cook's guide in an open stage or coach, holding 20 people, visiting all the historical buildings and galleries in Paris, one day being spent at Versailles visiting the King's palaces and beautiful parks.

The first building visited was the Grand Opera House, built about thirty years ago, and is a magnificent structure. The grand staircase, rich furnishings, and beautiful paintings make it very attractive. It occupies a whole square of ground, but as the interior is taken up so much with promenades, the seating capacity is only 2,200. Being desirous of seeing it lighted up, I attended a performance of the grand opera "Lohengrin," and, although not understanding the French language, I enjoyed the singing and music very much. The orchestra was composed of over one hundred musicians.

The buildings visited in our five-days' drive through the city are too numerous to mention, the many handsome buildings used in the last exposition being still occupied with some attractions for visitors. The Eiffel tower is one of the best patronized, and I had the pleasure of ascending to the top platform, which is 984 feet from the ground. If it was not inclosed with glass I believe it would be very uncomfortable to stand the strong cold wind that blows at that height. The "Arch of Triumph," at the end of the Champs Elysees, is a beautiful monument. Each stone is engraved with the name of a hero of the many wars engaged in by Napoleon. The arch was commenced in 1806, taking many years to finish it. During the Commune it was attacked and 2,000 shells fired at it, but the Communists failed to destroy it. The tomb of Napoleon is a handsome structure, costing millions of francs to build. It is a very large building, and so beautiful in design and statuary that it is more like a palace of art than a tomb of the dead. I spent four hours in the great art gallery of Paris, called the Louvre, one day, and consumed six hours more another. To view the many beautiful pictures and statuary it would take not less than a week. The present palace of the Louvre was commenced in the year 1541 and not completed until 1857. Being such a very large building, I will give but a slight description of it. It is built in the shape of the letter H and contains upwards of 800 rooms, several of them having sculpture and the jewels of Napoleon. There are 30,000 oil paintings, the most beautiful works of the great artists of the world, and if laid side by side would reach 17 miles. The works of Rubens, Rembrandt, Lebrun, and several other famous painters of the last century can be seen here. It is impossible to estimate the value of such a collection. As this is one of the greatest attractions in Paris, the French people collect thousands of dollars every year from the vast army of foreigners who visit this city to view the collections in the Louvre.

Paris is rich in churches, no city in the world having so many large structures devoted to religion. The French people years ago may have been very religious, but at the present time, from what I have seen, the respectable women are devoted to the church and, I believe, a majority of the men are atheists or non-believers. The Church of the Madeleine, built in 1764, is not quite so large as St. Peter's, at Rome, or St. Paul's, at London, but it is large enough to accommodate as many people as six of the largest churches in Washington. The Church of Notre Dame was commenced in the year 1173, and took 200 years to build. It is only 425 feet long and 157 feet wide, but the architecture is something magnificent. The towers are 226 feet high and contain 368 steps. The organ has 86 stops and 6,000 pipes, being the largest in the world. The Church of St. Eustachi is another historical relic and a most beautiful edifice, being commenced in 1532 and completed in 1642. It is very large, and the ceilings and walls contain paintings by the famous French and Italian artists. We visited a great number of other churches, all large and very beautiful, the oldest one being St. Germain, built in the year 560. The exterior is somewhat dilapidated, but the interior is very beautiful.

The guide furnished by Cook & Sons gave us considerable information regarding every place visited. We went to the cemetry of Pere-Zachaise, made famous by the great battle between the Communists and Government troops, where they fought for weeks behind tombstones. There are many famous monuments in the cemetery, as the dead of all denominations are buried in the 108 acres. In the Jewish portion can be seen the great tombs of the Rothchild and Dreyfus families, several presidents of the French Republic, and the beautiful monument of Heloise and Abelard, whose sad story is so vividly explained in Mark Twain's "Innocents Abroad."

The most grewsome sight we saw was in a visit to the morgue. Every morning there are from five to ten unknown persons found dead in Paris, suffocated in hotels, drowned in the Seine, or met with accidental death. The bodies are exposed on a marble slab in a refrigerating room and kept three days waiting identifiation. The room has a glass partition, and all strangers in the city are requested to visit the morgue and see if they can identify any of the unknown dead. The morning we called there were four men and one woman, but none of our party could identify any of them.

A visit to the factory of the Gobelins was very instructive and interesting. All the beautiful tapestry that adorns the walls and floors of the royal families is made here. The factory was establish by Jean Gobelin during the reign of Henry IV, in 1603. All the carpets are copies of well-known oil paintings and are reserved for the exclusive use of the royal families and ambassadors. As the tapestry is all woven by hand, it takes years to complete a large rug. The secret of dyeing the yarn and weaving the thread has been handed down from father to son for several generations. No one should fail to visit the palaces of the kings at Versailles. I never saw such splendor, and no pen can fully describe the beauties of the place. The garden, the statuary, the fountains, the handsome paintings, furniture, and coaches are marvels of workmanship, and the modern mechanic of to-day can not in any way surpass the workmen of centuries ago, judging from the display exhibited in the palaces. The palace of Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette contains several hundred rooms, the oil paintings on the ceilings and the gold and jeweled furniture being very beautiful. Marie Antoinette was very extravagant, and her every wish had to be gratified. Our guide related a story of her extravagance. She was very fond of sleigh riding, and one hot summer day, expressing a wish for a sleigh ride, the King ordered thousands of loads of white sea sand brought to the gardens and spread out so the Queen could take her ride. It is no wonder the French people, taxed and persecuted, arose en masse and decapitated Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette during the revolution of 1791.

The French people are very fond of pleasure, theaters, concert halls, and cafes being well patronized. Vice flourishes everywhere, and it is in reality a city of sin. The principal vaudeville theaters are the Casino and Folies Bergere. I saw a performance in each one, and it is anything but polite vaudeville. The Moulin Rouge is a very large hall and well patronized, especially by strangers in the city. The French quadrille and other dances, that would not be permitted in any hall or theater in Washington, are the attractions. At all the large cafes on the boulevards and Champs Elysees the men and women gather in the evening to drink wine, sitting at small tables situated on the sidewalk close to the windows of the cafes, while a constant stream of humanity is passing along. The greatest day for pleasure in Paris is Sunday, all the places of amusements being open on that day. In most places the prices of admission are reduced one-half, so as to accommodate the working people. There are several concert halls and cafes a short distance from the city, on the banks of the Seine, and small steamboats ply between these points. A great deal of wine is drank, it being very cheap, but you seldom see a drunken man or woman.

I paid a visit to three of the largest department stores here—the Bon Marche, Palais Royal, and the Louvre. The Bon Marche is considered the largest store in the world, composed of two separate buildings. I do not believe either one is as large as Seigel-Cooper's, of New York, or Wanamaker's, of Philadelphia.

I had less trouble with the money here than I had in England. Gold, silver, and bronze is the metal that is in circulation. The monetary unit is the franc, which contains 100 centimes, equivalent to 20 cents of American money.

Cook's people advertise that there are three things necessary in a tour of Paris—plenty of time, a good guide, and plenty of money. The last article I consider to be very necessary, as the French take great delight in doing the stranger. The tipping system is in full force here, and the cabmen, hotel people, and, in fact, everyone you come in contact with expect a tip.

Before leaving London I visited the American exhibition, now in full operation at the Crystal Palace, where American machinery and products of all kind are on exhibition. The palace is a fine work of art.

I called on Ambassador Choate for passports to France, but was informed they were not necessary.

While in front of the Horrex Hotel I noticed a large crowd standing and, on making inquiry, was informed that the three Boer Generals—Botha, De Wet, and Delarey—would soon emerge to attend the conference with Joe Chamberlain. I waited, and very soon they made their appearance, standing together on the steps of the hotel, and were received with a deafening cheer by the crowd, which contained a large number of soldiers just returned from South Africa, who heartily joined in the ovation to their old opponents. I took a snap shot of them.

I leave to-morrow for Ireland.

THE people must have coal!—Evening Star.
The miners must have bread.

THE strike leader, JOHN MITCHELL, missed the chance of his life yesterday, when he failed to guarantee the resumption of mining for the public weal. Had he risen in his place in the conference room and promised the close of the strike, for the sake of the people, he would have been hailed to-day as having patriotically met a serious emergency. Next spring he could, if necessary, have resumed his efforts to secure a redress of grievances for the miners with infinitely better prospects for success than he had last May, for he would have enlisted public sympathy as never before.—Evening Star, Oct. 4.

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

There is one move that organized labor has never made that I think is worthy of consideration—looking to the abolition in Government contracts of time allowance in completion of public works because of strikes. I am under the impression that such allowance is provided for in the contracts themselves. If not, the plea of a strike is always admitted as a good one in asking for further time for the fulfillment of a contract. If a man, or a firm, or a corporation contracts to erect a public building or to build a ship, and were given to understand that the Government would make no allowance in time because of labor troubles, there would be fewer such troubles. If the argument be made that the unions would take advantage of the employers' necessities to increase wages, I can only answer that that is the way of the world. Nobody intervenes to prevent traders, dealers, transportation companies, or anybody else from taking advantage of the people's necessities and putting up the price of commodities whenever they can. The $16 and $20 coal we have to buy now (or go without) cost no more to mine than the $6.75 coal we bought last winter, as it was all mined before the big strike. Yet nobody intervenes to protect the people from the extortion in any way. The high-priced beef and other provisions of the past year or so costs no more to make than did the lower-priced beef previously. Is there any equitable reason why people should be protected against anticipated extortions on the part of labor and never against those of capital? Let the contractor be compelled to comply with his contract and fight his own battles, as other people have to do, or else protect everyone from extortion. It would be a hard task any way to show where laboring men have ever made extortionate demands or asked more than a fair share of the prosperity going around.

The movement looking toward the securing of a universal eight-hour day in the printing business is taking shape and preparation is being made for its accomplishment within the next two years. We of the Government Printing Office have enjoyed that boon so long that many of us have become callous as to the wants of others, and there is a lukewarmness on the question as pertaining to our brothers in the craft that does us little credit. We have had the assistance of our sister unions in every move we have ever made looking to a bettering of our condition, and it is as little as we can do to extend them every assistance which they can ask of us. There is not that interest taken in union matters, and especially in International Union matters, that there should be and too much of a disposition to regard ourselves as a separate institution from the craft at large. The following is a circular sent out by the International Eight-Hour Committee:

IMPORTANT NOTICE—INSTRUCTIONS BY THE FORTY-EIGHTH CONVENTION.

"That local unions be required to act in conjunction with the said committee in furthering its plans, and that they be enjoined from making contracts extending beyond October 1, 1903, which require their members to work more than eight hours per day."

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., October 1, 1902.

To the Officers of Subordinate Unions:

GENTLEMEN—In circular No. 1, issued by the International Eight-Hour Committee, the following suggestion was made: "That an eight-hour committee of not less than five members shall be appointed at once."

Presuming that your union has already acted upon this suggestion or will do so immediately, you are now requested to furnish us with the names of your members constituting the local eight-hour committee, together with the addresses of the chairman and secretary of the committee. For this purpose an addressed postal card is sent the secretary of each union.

Your attention, and that of your committee, is again directed to the following from the first circular: "Every movement, to be successful, must be properly financed. It is recommended, therefore, that local unions and eight-hour committees give consideration to the establishment of an eight-hour fund. If needed, it is vital that the money shall be on hand."

Asking earnest consideration for the contents of this circular, the committee remains,

Fraternally,

JAMES M. LYNCH, Chairman.
J. W. BRAMWOOD, Secretary.

On Friday last at 2 p. m, Capt. Oscar Fitzallan Dunlap, for nearly thirty years an employe of the Goverment Printing Office, most of the time in the Proof Room, was called to his long home, at the ripe age of 77 years and 5 months. He was born in Monroe county, O., April 24, 1825, but spent his youth and early manhood at different places in West Virginia (then Virginia), Ohio, and Kentucky, learning the printing trade at Paducah, Ky., I believe. Early in its history he drifted to Kansas, and during the civil war he became captain of Company H, Fifteenth Kansas Cavalry. I had a brother who served in the same company, and it was through him that I first became acquainted with Captain Dunlap, at Topeka, in 1866, and with but slight intermissions of separation our acquaintance and friendship continued up to the day of his death.

After the war he again engaged in the printing business, publishing the first daily ever issued at Topeka—the Kansas Tribune—for several years He then became foreman of the State Record book room, after that paper became a daily and assumed proportions, a position which he retained until he received a situation on the Congressional Record, in December, 1873. At first working at the case he was soon transferred to the Proof Room, and from there to the old "Document Room." Later on he "gave out copy" in that room until transferred to the main Proof Room, in which he has ever since been employed.

About twelve years ago the employes of the night forces presented him with a handsome gold headed cane in appreciation of his services in securing for them increased remuneration for night work, for which, as chairman of a committee, he had worked faithfully and successfully.

He was given his rather romantic name in honor of the hero in "The Children of the Abbey," a very popular novel published about the time of his birth, and of men of approximately his age there are many Oscar Fitzallans, showing the impress the book made at that time.

Captain Dunlap was a member of Lincoln Post, G. A. R., and delighted in the society of his old comrades in arms.

As a man he was peculiarly loyal and faithful in his friendships; and there was nothing vindictive in his make-up toward those he had reason to regard as unfriendly. No man's hand sooner went into his pocket when there was a case of distress to be relieved, and his purse was ever at the command of an embarassed friend.

He was buried at Arlington National Cemetery, last Monday, with G. A. R. honors, the funeral having taken place at his late residence, 5 K street northeast. The Modoc Club, of Topeka, Kans., rendered the "Soldiers' Farewell" and "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

J. H. Malees, recently of the Night Bill Force, tells me more of his experience away back in the '60's. He was picking up 3 nick brevier (no 8-point in those days) on the Dansville (N. Y.) Express and making a fair living for a young man. Richard Dick, whom the boys called "Dickey Dick," was the 15-year-old devil, able to put the metal on end in good time and style, and for this reason his propensity for deviltry was generally overlooked.

The paper was then published by Robbins & Poore. On the editorial (?) page were the usual lines, name, rates of advertising, etc., with Robbins & Poore, Editors and Proprietors," at the bottom. Dickey Dick, without a word to anybody, transposed the names, took out the short "and" and the "s" in the last words, and the paper was issued two weeks before it was discovered, and then one of the good natured farmers walked into the sanctum sanctorium with a half-bushel basket of potatoes, and remarked:

"Hello, Robbins, what's become of Poore?"

"Oh," replied Robbins, "he's just gone after some flour to make paste."

"Then he hain't left ye?" anxiously inquired the farmer. "I see the name changed in the paper an' I thought he'd left."

"Name changed?" said Robbins, with same interest. "It's the same as it always has been."

"No, it tain't nuther! See there!" and sure enough, there it was

"POORE ROBBINS,
"Editor and Proprietor."

Mr. Malees did not care to repeat just what language Robbins used, but when he was about to take his second wind the farmer interrupted by saying:

"I thought it was kinda funny, and I didn't want to think you was going hungry, so I brought you a few potatoes. Good day, Robbins."

Another time Dickey Dick made a very serious mistake and got himself very much disliked. During the winter, in December, Robbins was married, and a lengthy congratulatory item was put in type, and while the form was on the stone Dickey Dick pulled four leads from the item and inserted a line, which read: "There will be a nest of little Robbins in the spring."

When Mr. Robbins returned from his wedding trip Dickey Dick went limping around and did not use his stool for a few days after.

A. F. BLOOMER.

SAN FRANCISCO AND ITS CHARMS

Interestingly Depicted by Frank A. Roderick.

Fanned by the briny breeze from ocean and bay, the sojourner in the great metropolis of the Pacific Coast is impressed with the imposing and picturesque appearance of this charming city. Its streets are clean and well-paved; its public buildings are grand and stately, and its private residences are neat and artistic.

Although scarcely more than half a century has marked its existence and progress, seventy and seven hills whereon it is built prove it to be greater than ancient Rome; its elevated parks, covered with the rarest tropical trees, plants, and flowers, rival Babylon's hanging gardens, and its spacious harbor, filled with treasure laden ships, is finer than the Golden Horn. In the number of skyscraping structures it falls far short of New York and Chicago. The most notable edifice of this class is the Call building, on the fifteenth story of which the wants of the "inner man" are supplied undisturbed by the shuffle and scuffle of the "maddening crowd" that throng the streets so far below.

Chinese life, as it is said to exist in cities of the Celestial Kingdom, was seen by the night shades, under the lead of a licensed guide, at $1 per head. A religious festival being in progress on the occasion of our visit, the theaters, restaurants, gambling dens, opium joints, and joss houses were seen in their best or worst, as it may be viewed by the oriental or occidental. The U. S. Mint, where the precious nuggets are rounded out in the bright coins; the Cliff House, near where the sea-lions delight to bask and bark; the Golden Gate Park, where flowers are said to bloom throughout the year; the Academy of Sciences, where rare and gigantic specimens of extinct animals face the visitor on entering; Mission Dolores Church, where memories of by-gone days in California's history are revived; the Presidio, where military paraphernalia, pageant, and pomp are the order of the day, and Sutro Heights, where ferns, shrubbery, and statuary profusely abound, are sources of delight and wonder to all visitors to San Francisco. An agreement to temporarily abstain from the use of peanuts is the term of admission to the last named park. A magnificent view of the Coast's chief city, ocean, and bay, as well as the suburban cities of Oakland, Berkeley, San Rafael, Alameda, and Belvedere was had from the summit of Mt. Tamalpais, which was ascended by that exhibit of marvelous engineering skill known as "the crookedest railroad in the world," the track at one point paralleling itself five times within a distance of 300 feet.

Traversing the highly-improved San Mateo valley, on the way south from the metropolis and its suburban environment, a stop was made at the Hispano-Moorish architectural buildings of the $20,000,000 endowed Leland Stanford Jr., University and the splendid mansion and ornamented grounds of the widow of the late generous patron of youth training. No little honor is reflected on the bereaved wife and mother for the substantial help constantly given to this already world-renowned institution of learning.

On the summit of Mt. Hamilton, in the splendidly-equipped astronomical observatory, is seen the benefaction of another of California's pioneer millionaires. From this vantage ground the Egyptian fatness and transcendent beauty of the Santo Clara valley may be reviewed. It is in this fruitful plain that the largest packing houses, the largest seed farm, the largest orchard, and the largest quicksilver mine in the world are found. The "Garden City," "Gem of the Valley," and "Handsomest of Towns," are terms not inappropriately applied to San Jose. Its streets, so smooth and clean, rival the boulevards of Paris, and its homes are bowers of roses. The old mission town of Santa Clara and Alum Rock Canon, where sulphurous springs abound, are among the suburban trolley connections. A most attractive summer resort is Los Gatos (the Cats—scat!) crouching under the foothills of the Santa Cruz Mountains. On the west side of this range California big-tree stories were satisfactorily verified by the sight of many gigantic redwoods, of the kind whose hollow base is said to have sheltered the heroic explorer, Fremont, and his men. Santa Cruz, "Gem of the Pacific," resting on the northern curve of Monterey Bay, in addition to all the attractions found in an Eastern seaside resort, has one of the finest beaches in the world. Balmy air and a riot of flowers, the place is reminded of the dreamy towns on the northern coast of the Mediterranean. In Monterey, the old State capital, on the southern horn of the bay, "all things remain as they were in the beginning," with the exception of the comparatively modern innovation of a steam railroad, a 20 minute horse car, and a glass bottomed boat to introduce visitors to bay-bottom wonders. To view the adobe ruins, the habitable and habitless houses, the useful and useless public buildings that line the quaint, quiet, narrow, crooked streets is to live in the brilliant days of the Spanish domination. Among the reminders here and in this vicinity of the zealous mission founder, Father Junipero Serra, is the fittingly inscribed monument that was erected to his memory by Mrs Leland Stanford on the spot where he first planted the cross. Going from here to the pleasant assembly resort of Pacific Grove or to the Hotel del Monte, in the immediate vicinity, is a sudden transition from the old to the new. Senator Chauncey M. Depew uttered a truism when he said the latter "was the most beautiful place on earth." In the 125 acres of exquisitely-cultivated grounds that surround this immense, gracefully-designed hotel are blooming flowers of every variety and hue and plants and trees of rarest kind—a place, indeed, where many of the wonders and beauties of California are compactly set apart.

The southward journey was resumed on the main line of the Southern Pacific R. R. at Pajaro (Pa-ha-ro). This is one of the Spanish names in which the Easterner is enjoined, on pain of instant —ridicule, to give the "h" sound to "j." Haunted with the fear that this punishment might be inflicted upon him, it was here, probably, that the "back-east" tourist when visiting a restaurant called for "hack rabbit and helly." FRANK A. EDITORS THE TRADES UNIONIST:

That "Ballad of the Shop Girl" was written by Ernest McCaffey, and appeared originally, I believe, in the Goose Quill, a little magazine published in Chicago.

It is too good a thing to be wandering around unfathered.

Fifth Division.

William J. Irvine is on leave.

Ed. Stough and Dave Mackley have been on the sick list.

Ex-chairman Taylor has been transferred to this division.

N. E. Ellingsen and wife will leave Friday for their former home in Chicago.

If any division can beat the Fifth in the number of marriages for one month, let them speak up.

And now it has leaked out that John Openshaw has been married several months. Good luck, John.

D. N. Prosser, after enjoying his days of grace, is again manipulating the leaden missiles at the old stand.

Ed. Heidingsfeld is thoroughly stuck on New York. Before you can say "Jack Robinson" Ed. will have been there and back. There's rapid transit for you.

After enjoying an extensive trip through Massachusetts and Maine, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Tegethoff have returned home. Carl seems to have been benefited by the change of air.

Marriage bells can chime as sweet in the Island of Britain as in the United States. On September 8, Mr. Ernest LeGrys and Miss Gertrude M. Calver were made man and wife at Dickleburg, Norfolk.

After catching all the whales that used to sport in the creeks of Illinois, Major Purcell returned home minus the rod that performed the miracles. Crawfordsville, Ind., is no place for trout, so the Major concluded there was no place like home.

Probably one of the prettiest marriages of the season was that which occurred on September 10, at Milwaukee, Wis., when Leo Rullmann took upon himself the responsibility of providing for an estimable young lady of that city. Long life and prosperity.

Another happy marriage was that which occurred at Meadville, Mo., on September 3, when Stanley H. Ridings of this division, was united to Miss Jessie M. Shiflett, of that place. Stanley did not forget his alleymates, either, for in a letter received was a little piece of paper bearing the signature of Uncle Sam, and the boys drank merrily to his happiness.

Thos. E. Doty and wife have returned from their vacation trip beyond the Rockies. The trip was made via Niagara Falls, where Mrs. Doty, who had been spending the summer in Canada, joined her husband, thence to Chicago and Colorado Springs, and via the Denver and Rio Grande through the Royal Gorge to Ogden. A two-weeks' hunt in the Uintah Mountain was full of life.

MT. VERNON AND ITS HERO.

In the shadows of Mt. Vernon,
By Potomac's rolling tide,
There's a mansion with a sermon,
Which forever will abide
With the patriotic pilgrim
Through all future years to come,
Because he loves and honors him
Who had a lovely home.

In the strength of early manhood
He was foremost in the land;
As a giant 'mongst the many stood,
So noble and so grand;
Ever ready to defend the right
'Gainst knave or foreign foe,
He soon arose in power and might
And struck the fatal blow

To England's long felt tyranny
Promoted by King George,
Who spoke in bitter irony
Of troops at Valley Forge,
With bleeding feet and poorly clad,
With purpose firm and true,
Who rallied, and were ever glad,
They wore the buff and blue.

When the British soldiers hastened
To plant the Union Jack,
By Washington were chastened
And bravely driven back
Across the waves to England,
That they should not return
And occupy this happy land,
To devastate and burn.

With Lafayette at Yorktown,
The friend of freedom, too,
George Washington, of great renown,
A chieftain, tried and true,
Commanded Lord Cornwallis
To lay his armor down
And sail to that metropolis,
Where George, who wore the crown,

Might know that he was conquered
By heroes brave and bold,
Who fought and never wavered
Through sufferings untold,
That they might gain the birthright
For millions yet to come,
Of liberty and every right
Of native hearth and home.

All hail the great immortal,
Brave victor of his age,
Who long since passed death's portal,
America's great sage;
But still his mem'ry brightens
The path of every one,
The soldier's burden lightens
With thoughts of Washington.

All quiet now and peaceful
Within its resting-place,
We turn with hearts most grateful,
And pleading special grace
To view the cold sarcophagus,
In which the hero lies,
Whose graceful form is hid from us
And from all mortal eyes.

In every city you note "old residenters" who have become rich by simply buying land when the town was in its early stage, and holding it until others' enterprise had caused it to become worth prices once undreamed of. Hyattsville is in the early stage of a career that will surely make it a city. I will sell lots in the very heart of the town at pioneer prices. Size, 40 feet front by a depth of from 101 to 170 feet. Price, $200 apiece. Terms, $10 down and $10 per month. Ten per cent off for cash.

AROUND THE PRINTERIES

Down Town.

To Chairmen, G. P. O.

There being issued and placed in hands of respective chairman only a limited number of tickets, every one of which guarantees a seat, for the benefit concert Sunday night, at Chase's Grand Opera House, for striking miners, it is requested all unsold tickets and returns be made to this office not later than Saturday morning.

Paul J. Maas, of the Record-Herald, Chicago, was a caller at this office Thursday last.

Dan Delahoyde, well known in this city, is reading proof on the Omaha World Herald.

Bookbinders' Union, Local No. 4, of this city, voted an appropriation of $500 for striking miners.

Joe E. Zimmerman left Wednesday for a thirty days' sojourn at his old home in Michigan City, Ind.

Daniel Hegarty, who has been at Sibley Hospital for some time afflicted with typhoid fever, is improving.

Patsy H. Macksey, of New York, was the guest of his brother, John C. Macksey, of the Times, this week.

J. H. Hooper, well known to the printing craft here, arrived from Charlotte, N. C., Monday, and has decided to remain with us.

Lee Riley, the swift, is confined in a hospital at Omaha, Nebr., with a broken leg, with the probability that an amputation will be necessary.

Edgar J. ("Jakey") Dwight, of the Third Division, G. P. O., is confined at Sibley Hospital with typhoid fever. May he soon convalesce.

M. J. Sullivan, formerly an employe of the First Division, G. P. O., but now of the State of New Hampshire, was calling on friends this week.

Ed. W. Hearne, some fourteen years ago an employe in the G. P. O., but now of Hearst's American at Chicago, made friends a pleasant call this week.

Shelby Smith, late of the G. P. O. Proof Room, and a candidate for the presidency of Columbia Typographical Union at its recent election, has resigned from the great printery and gone to Philadelphia.

International Organizer W. E. Kennedy, of the Electrical Workers, who has been doing yoeman service in the far West, and particularly the Coast, is in town for a few days and made this office a pleasant call.

Carlos B. Tomlin, for a number of years employed in the G. P. O, has left for Kansas City, Kans., where he will visit relatives and friends, previous to going to Fort Collins, Colo., in quest of bettering his health. May he find health and surroundings pleasant.

A. Thomas Campbell, secretary-treasurer of the Allied Printing Trades Council, and for a long time connected with the stereotyping department of the Star in this city, has severed his connection with said publication and accepted a similar position on Hearst's Examiner at San Francisco, to which place he goes shortly. May success be yours, Tom.

Second Division

Hoyt Holton has returned from Detroit looking as if he enjoyed himself.

Saltzman is again on the bank and Parshall has returned to the page proof press.

Warner L. Wilmeth, of Dallas, Tex., returned Monday from a visit to his old home.

Fred. I. Nobles, of Wisconsin, returned this week from a ten-days' visit to New York and Boston.

Max Knoble, who has been confined to his home on account of sicknes, returned to work on Saturday.

The office is beautifully decorated in honor of the G. A. R. Let us hope a large number of the members will pay us a visit.

The following compositors of this division went on leave during the past week: F. B. MacFadyen, F. L. McUmber, and G. L. Weidman.

The friends of Theodore Gerber are glad to learn that he has recovered from his recent spell of sickness and is again doing business at his old time.

Fred. Sefton and H. P. McKevitt were transferred to the Night Bill Force last week, and Elmer Dement and E. E. Wear were assigned to the frames made vacant by their transfer.

J. M. Lenhart, our popular average man and pink-slip artist, has returned from a two-month's vacation. He spent most of his time in Pueblo, Colo., and was greatly benefited by the trip.

All who are in favor of levying an assessment of $1 a member to assist the unfortunate miners who are fighting for principles against a soulless corporation will please stand up and be counted.

J. S. Garner returned to work Saturday. He reports having seen the man who took such a "deep interest" in the Sym. It was a somewhat unexpected meeting, and the all-round square man was just a little jarred.

The many friends of John Goodwin, at one time an employe of this office, but who for several years past has worked at Judd & Detweiler's, were very sorry to hear of his sudden death a few days ago. John was a good-hearted, honest fellow and well liked by all who knew him. His remains were taken to Annapolis, his former home, and interred in the family lot.

We have quite a number of celebrities in this division at present. For instance, there is Edgar Meritt, our popular vice-president, who has recently returned to work, and E. E. Wear, better known as "Ike," who led the ticket when he ran for delegate, and another "warm member," whose name we deem it unnecessary to mention here.

We are glad the efficient president of our union has come to the conclusion that there is considerable merit in Hall, and has appointed two of them on important committees. Now, if he wants to get more solid with his constituents, let him use his good offices to get the pay day changed to Friday and Saturday, as such a change would be a great accommodation to all.

We held quite an exciting election for chairman Saturday, and the favorite seems to have won by several lengths, notwithstanding the fact that he was somewhat handicapped. The result of the vote was as follows: Razey, 36; Johnson, 21; Goodkey, who has developed into a standing candidate, received 5 votes. Colonel Drake was again elected secretary and Delahunty assistant secretary.

Specification Scintillations.

M. P. Connelly is on leave.

Arthur Armstrong has returned to work, after a pleasant stay in old Kentucky.

S. J. Gompers returned to his post of duty last Thursday, after an illness of several days.

J. H. Brodnax, with much reluctance, consented to a transfer to the Night Bill Force last week.

William Howlin, of the ring alley, performed the important duties of "property man," last week.

George W. Graham, one of our imposers, returned to work last Thursday, after an absence of several weeks.

At a chapel meeting held last Thursday, F. C. Roberts delivered a neat speech withdrawing the resolution affecting the average.

Carlos B. Tomlin was granted an indefinite leave of absence last Thursday, on account of ill-health. He will return to his home in Colorado.

Capt. E D. Smoot, of the ring alley, and H. F. Wilson, of the proof room, resumed their duties last Saturday after a pleasant vacation of two weeks.

Cornelius A. Connor and Frank J. Ward, two very efficient employes, are often detailed to the proof room, as reader and copy-editor, respectively.

It is said that Will E. Burchfield had a speech on tap last Thursday, but the early adjournment of the chapel meeting deprived the orator of an opportunity.

C. R. McDonald, who superintends all form-proofs, returned to his desk last week. During his absence his position was acceptably filled by F. Fitzgerald.

The Specification chapel was beautifully decorated last Sunday, in honor of the G. A. R. encampment, and Chairmen Hauer and Redfield and the decoration committee are receiving congratulations.

Samuel G. Kirby, who performs the arduous task of setting "heads" for the bound volume of the Official Gazette, has been employed upon this work for many years. He is an incessant worker and is both speedy and accurate.

Miss Josepha Lange is noted for versatility and wit. Last Thursday, H. J. Redfield noticed a laborer cleaning windows, and remarked to the lady: "That fellow has a G. A. R. movement." Quote Miss Lange: "It appears to be an R. A. G. movement."

Last Monday a rumor became current around this chapel to the effect that William Y. Clarke, late of this division, was treed by a bull, while hunting in Alexandria County. This report is utterly without foundation, as Clarke's "bay window" would not permit him to approach a tree sufficiently close to attempt to effect a climb.

F. B. Wallace, our oldest and much-revered employe, wears the proud title of "Father of the Specification Chapel." He is about seventy-five years of age, and still gets up his "average." He is also a "warrior bold," having served with the First Defenders, from Pennsylvania when they entered Washington City. Of course, there must be a "Mother of the Specification Chapel," but for fear of starting up a Mount Pelee performance, a quietus must be placed upon all attempts at an investigation.

Among our grand old men may be mentioned Charles W. Baker, Daniel Grady, and John P. Morse. Messrs. Baker and Grady commenced work in the Specification Division in October, 1868, under Public Printer Defrees, and have been employed here continuously since that time. Mr. Morse's employment dates from 1869, after Mr. Clapp became Public Printer. These veteran compositors are capable, efficient, and punctual. They have also held many positions of trust and importance, and never failed to reflect great credit upon the office and marked distinction upon themselves.

An interesting chapel meeting was held last week Tuesday, when the election of a chairman occurred. J. F. Hauer, the present incumbent and R. W. Burgess were placed in nomination for the office. F. C. Roberts obtained the floor and in an eloquent speech introduced a resolution, calculated to smite the average "hip and thigh." Just as some of wind-jammers were getting ready to support the resolution, somebody offered a motion to table the matter, which was carried. J. W. Childress, R. H. Harstin, and B. E. Harrison were appointed a committee to take up ballots, with the following result: Hauer, 113; Burgess, 54. In the afternoon quite a number of "Doc." Hauer's supporters adjourned to a nearby establishment and celebrated the event with toasts, congratulations, and —other things.

The present encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic reminds me of the fact that there are thirty Union soldiers employed in this division, who served in almost every military rank from private to lieutenant-colonel. These veterans served in the Armies of the Potomac, Cumberland, Tennessee, and Gulf, and many bear honorable scars. Some of them marched down Pennsylvania avenue with Generals Grant and Sherman in 1865, and despite increasing years and growing infirmities marched down the historic avenue yesterday. In our midst also can be found two Spanish-American war veterans. Besides these are four gallant soldiers who fought the battles of the Confederacy during 1861-65, prominent among them being Marion B. Richmond, of Texas, and W. R. Burgess, of Virginia. It is refreshing to see these old veterans of the North and South chatting pleasantly together at lunch hour, reciting the thrilling incidents of days gone by when they chased each other alternately over the hills and vales of old Virginia. But their sprinting days are over, and basking in the sunshine of plenty, with records resplendent with deeds of valor and kindness, these old soldiers now drink from the same canteen and vie with each other in alleviating the wants of all true warriors who wore the Blue and Gray. Each succeeding year finds the ranks thinner, and one by one they are being summoned to the grand encampment "in that house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."

THE TRADES UNIONIST.

OFFICIAL ORGAN CENTRAL LABOR UNION, WASHINGTON BRANCH, AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR.

Vol. VII. No. 18. WASHINGTON, D. C., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1902. Price, 3 Cents.

THE CENTRAL LABOR UNION

Emrich Beef Company Declared Unfair to Organized Labor.

$500 FOR STRIKING COAL MINERS

The Drug Clerks Active—The Gas Workers' Request Granted—The American Federation of Labor Appeal for Miners—Many Communications Disposed of—Miners' Glee Club Entertained Body.

Owing to the absence of both President Hamerstrom and Vice President Silver, Secretary Winslow called the Central Labor Union to order, Monday night, at Typographical Temple, and placed the matter of selecting a chairman before the body. Delegate Milford Spohn was chosen to fill said position.

Minutes of previous meeting read, corrected, and approved.

Credentials were received from International Brotherhood of Bookbinders, No. 4, certifying Robert T. Frailey, vice George S. Kirch; from International Union of Steam Engineers, Local No. 99, certifying C. A. Holmes, vice J. C. Wheeler.

The Grievance Committee reported they had been unable to adjust the Emrich Beef Company matter, and recommended that the request of the Retail Grocery Clerks be granted and said firm be placed upon the unfair list. Request granted.

Brewery Workers' Union, No. 118, contributed a donation to the striking miners, and turned the same over to the Miners' Relief Committee of this body.

Musicians stated that arrangements were being made to give a ball for the benefit of the striking miners, and requested the co-operation of the Miners' Relief Committee. Request granted.

The attention of the body was called by Columbia Lodge of Machinists to certain statements appearing in the daily press, and the Secretary was instructed to correspond with Secretary of Navy Moody and ask if the same attributed lo him were correct.

The Miners' Relief Committee reported that they had sent a check for $500 to Secretary Wilson, and that the concert was a success. A rising vote of thanks was extended to all who aided in the Sunday night concert, and the committee was instructed to give name and address of said parties to the secretary, so that he might notify them.

The Drug Clerks reported the following having signed their contracts; J. D. Coblentz, 1542 North Capitol street; S. Rakusin, 626 Twenty-second street northwest; J. C. Haley, 1101 East Capitol street, and C. J. Fuhrman, 724 East Capitol street.

The San Francisco Labor Council communicated relative to the Tanners' strike there and requested this body to boycott the products of Kuhlman, Salz & Co., Wagner Leather Co, S. H. Frank & Co., A. B. Patrick & Co., and the Santa Rosa Tanning Co. Matter referred to Leather Workers on Horse Goods.

The appeal for the assistance of the miners, issued by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, was read and a copy ordered sent to each affiliated local of this body.

Paper Boxmakers' Union, of Batavia, N. Y., composed of young ladies, communicated the outrageous treatment of the E. N. Rowell Company, of that place, and their subsequent strike, and requested financial aid and assistance in boycotting the product of said firm. Referred to Registered Drug Clerks' Union.

The United Cloth Hat and Cap Makers requested that members of this body use their influence to demand their label when purchasing above goods. Referred to Retail Clerks' Union.

Gas Workers' Union, of this city, requested the assistance of the Executive Committee of this body as they had been locked out of the gas works. Request granted.

The Miners' Glee Club, who are at present in this city, were admitted and entertained the body with vocal music.

Congressman GEORGE W. SMITH, of Illinois.

Hon. GEORGE W. SMITH, Congressman from Illinois, has a record as a friend of organized labor which is hard to beat. He has been a Member of Congress for fourteen years, and during all that time has been most active as the Union man's friend. His constituency is largely composed of Union men, and the fact that he is returned each time speaks for itself.

Mr. SMITH has never known defeat in any undertaking, and he certainly is entitled to the unqualified and loyal support of every Union man in his district. Union men should never go back on a loyal friend—one who has been tried and found sincere—and in Representative SMITH, of Illinois, they have such a friend. Stick to him. Not in years has the need of having Members of Congress who are friends of organized labor been so manifest as at this time. The Eight-Hour bill is in danger. and here is an exact copy of one paragraph of a letter from Congressman SMITH, which speaks volumes, and shows the character of the man:

"For years I have, in public speech and otherwise, favored an Eight-Hour law in the interest of the laboring man. No one is a stronger friend of same than myself, and at any time I can be of service in legislation favoring same I can be fully counted on to do my part"

Among labor bills of recent date that Mr. SMITH has taken an active part in are the following:

Eight-Hour bill.—Loyal supporter.

Against prison labor.

Letter Carriers.—Loyal supporter

Increase of Salaries for Government Printing Office Employes.—Supported the bill.

Seamen's bill.—Favorable.

Census bill.—This is a bill, had it become a law, which would undoubtedly have taken over $2,000,000 of printing and binding away from the Government Printing Office, as it provided that the Director of Census should have the right to let out by contract to the lowest bidder the Census printing, if he found any probable delay in the delivery of the work. Mr. SMITH, of Illinois, proved his friendship to organized labor and opposed the bill, because the work would undoubtedly have been given to non-union offices.

On government by injunction Mr. SMITH has stated:

"I am, and have always been, opposed to the abuse of the writ. I have always been in favor of the right of trial by jury when an individual is arrested for a contempt that took place outside of the personal presence of the court. Further than that, it is my belief that should a man be found guilty of such contempt, even by a jury of his peers, he should have the right of appeal to a higher court."

Mr. SMITH is very pronounced in his views regarding the high-handed one-man power which is frequently employed in Illinois during labor disputes. Union men appreciate what is meant by "abuse of the writ" of injunction.

Definition of Conspiracy of Labor.—This was a bill drawn by attorneys of the labor organizations of the country and introduced in the Fifty-sixth Congress. It was referred to the Judiciary Committee, which, after consideration, reported it back to the House with two amendments. The chairman of this committee stated that he had letters from over fifty labor organizations throughout the country, stating that they wanted the bill passed without the amendments if possible, but that they preferred to have it pass with the amendments rather than have it defeated. Mr. SMITH did not oppose this bill.

The most recent labor measure before Congress, and one in which the country and its citizenship, native born and foreign alike, were vitally interested, was the Chinese Exclusion bill. Below will be found Mr. SMITH'S opinion of this bill:

"It is with especial pride that we point to the fact that our labor is better paid than the laborer of any other country. Our effort has been to maintain a high wage scale, upon the generally accepted theory and belief that well-paid labor means better citizens and a better country than we could possibly enjoy if wages were forced to a low standard; a low wage market is most undesirable. It is not in the interest of either capital or labor, and we shall fail in our duties if we shall open the way to the free admission of Oriental cheap labor, which will inevitably result in lower wages to our laborers and correspondingly decreased prices for all foreign products. We exclude contract laborers from all countries. No contract labor, whether from the United Kingdom or any other country in Continental Europe or elsewhere, is permitted to enter the gates at any of our ports of entry. The exclusion of Chinese laborers, whether under contract or not, is dictated solely by the same motives and in the interests of American laborers and American civilization."

Mr. SMITH is a staunch Republican, has represented his district in Congress for the past fourteen years, and his straightforward manner, his strict and prompt personal attention to the onerous duties of his position, together with his affability and honesty, have endeared him to his large constituency.

Union men of all parties should support him to a man. Return Mr. SMITH to the halls of Congress, for he is needed, and let his majority be larger than ever before. Stand by our friend. The union men of Southern Illinois are to be congratulated upon the representative they have in GEORGE W. SMITH, the friend and champion of organized labor.

DID NOT KISS BLARNEY STONE

Landlords and Lack of Industries the Cause of Ireland's Poverty.

AN IRISH FAIR AT KENMARE

The Irish Jaunting Car—A "Drap of the Crater"—Renowned Phœnix Park—Killarney and Its People—Landlordism a Curse—Pretty Irish Lassies in Homespun. Old Irish Kings—Muckross Abbey.

CORK, IRELAND, October 1, 1902.

No person who is fond of natural scenery and who visits this side of the Atlantic should fail to spend a few days in Ireland. Here is a country beautiful and picturesque, and still it is left almost untouched by the great stream of American tourists who spend their time and money on the Continent. Ireland possesses beautiful valleys, wondrous mountains, rushing rivers, numerous bays and inlets, towering hills, good roads, and farm lands, and an open-hearted, hospitable people, who endeavor to make your visit among them pleasant and agreeable. I have been eight days traveling though the south of Ireland visiting the notable places of interest. I arrived in Dublin on September 23, sailing from Holyhead on the royal mail steamer to Kingstown. Dublin is a thorough modern city, lighted by electricity, and it has a good system of electric street cars or trams, as they call them here. There are many very fine buildings and places of great historical interest to the traveler. Trinity College and its beautiful park, Dublin Castle, the custom-house, the four courts, and the magnificent cathedrals are all notable places of interest. I desired very much to visit Phœnix Park, which, I believe, is one of the largest parks in Europe. I engaged an Irish jaunting car for a three-hour trip through the park, and from the rough riding received I believe an appropriate name for that vehicle would be the "Irish jolting car." The jaunting car takes the place of the cab of London and the coupe of Paris, seating four persons, and it is necessary to hold on for dear life if the road is rough. It is anything but a comfortable ride, and I would never advocate their use in the United States. Phœnix Park is without doubt a very large and beautiful place, being over seven miles in circumference. It is deeply wooded and stocked with deer, possesses several fine statues, and the walks and flower beds are neatly kept. Several years ago it became famous as the scene of the murder of Lord Cavendish and Secretary Burke, and the spot where both men fell, on the main road, is marked by a cross, and is pointed out to visitors. Dublin has a very fine statue of Daniel O'Connell, the great and eloquent barrister, and there is also a bridge called O'Connell Bridge.

My stay in Dublin was short, arriving at 6 o'clock in the morning and leaving at 5 o'clock in the evening for Killarney, where I arrived after a four hours' ride. The next morning I joined a party of tourists for a tour of the lakes. The beauties of Killarney Lakes and Falls have been written and sung times innumerable, and they have become famous in song and story. I can say nothing original of a spot that has been so often described by talented writers, and will simply give a description of my two-days' trip by coach, horseback, and boat.

From the town of Killarney to the lakes is several miles, along a beautiful country road. Our coach, or brake, as it is called, drawn by four horses, contained nineteen persons, including a guide, who described the historic spots along the road. After a drive of eight miles we came to the famous Kate Kearney Cottage, where we alighted to partake of refreshments and also to select a pony for the horseback ride through the Gap of Dunloe. The ride through the gap is about ten miles along the edge of the mountain. The ponies, all sure-footed animals, climb up narrow, steep mountain paths and down again into the valley. Along the road barefooted peasant women are met, who endeavor to sell to travelers "a drap of the crater," stilled from the mountain dew. Some have souvenirs for sale, and others can be found singing Irish songs, so as to bring forth the echoes from the mountains, generally receiving pennies and silver coins from the tourists. The ride on the ponies takes about two hours, and when Lord Brandon's cottage, at the head of the upper lake, was reached we dismounted and took boats for a nine-mile trip of the three lakes, which are connected by a rushing stream. The first glimpse of the lakes, lying like broad mirrors beneath the mountains, is something beautiful to behold. The mountains, woods, valleys, wild flowers, and rushing waters present a scene that makes a deep and lasting impression on the visitor, and I do not believe we have anything in America that can surpass in natural scenery and beauty the Lakes of Killarney. As we journey through the lakes our guide plays on the cornet the tune "Killarney," and the echo from the mountains is remarkable, it being repeated upwards of a dozen times.

At the end of the boat ride we arrived at Ross Castle ivy-clad ruins, formerly the stronghold of the O'Donoghues in the sixteenth century. Muckross Abbey is another historic structure, built by the Franciscans in 1440. The vaults of the McCarthys, O'Sullivans, and other Irish kings and chiefs can be seen, which are marked by rudely sculptured monuments. The ride back to our hotel was by coach and the trip consumed a whole day. The next day we went another route to the lakes and viewed the waterfall and the estate of the Earl of Kenmare inclosed by a stone fence seven miles around.

The town of Killarney has a population of 5,000. It is not as clean as it should be, especially the streets. The people live on what is received from the tourists, as there is not a factory in the town. From Killarney to Glengarriff, over the mountains, is 40 miles. I left on a coach at 9 o'clock in the morning and arrived at Glengarriff at 6 o'clock in the evening. The drive is a beautiful one, but very tiresome. Glengarriff is situated on Bontry Bay and is a very pretty place and a great resort for invalids. The next morning I left on coach for Bontry, 18 miles, and from there I took train for the city of Cork, which I reached that evening. It is an enterprising city, with a population of about 80,000, and is situated on the banks of the river Lee, which is spanned by six bridges. Patrick street is the principal business street, and it contains several fine stores. An international exhibition is now in progress here, and the industries of England and the few that Ireland can boast of are exhibited. Thousands of men are idle in Cork, and the same can be said of Dublin.

Ireland lacks industries. She needs capital and manufacturing establishments to keep her people employed who live in the towns and cities. I found in my travels in the country districts a great deal of poverty. In the low-thatched roofed houses or huts can be found the farmer and his wife and children living in misery, some of them having but a few acres of land, and it being impossible to raise enough produce to pay the high rent and support their family. Landlordism is the curse of the country, and England undoubtedly has neglected the inhabitants of the most beautiful isle she possesses. Barefooted and bareheaded women and half-naked children are found in large numbers in County Kerry. In the vicinity of the town of Kenmare raising children seems to be the principal industry of the country districts, and the little tots will follow you for a mile begging for a penny.

I rode about 20 miles on a bicycle to attend the county fair in the town of Kenmare. It was my first experience at an Irish fair, and I enjoyed it very much. A large supply of pigs, cows, poultry, and donkeys were on hand. There were a large number of pretty, rosy-cheeked Irish lassies, clad in home-made dresses, present, and also some of the most comely old women I ever laid eyes on. The women appeared to do all the trading. The men go in for a good time, as the saloons in the town were uncomfortably crowded at all times. A country fair generally lasts three days.

I spent one day at Blarney and visited the renowned Blarney Castle. The town of Blarney is about 8 miles from Cork. The castle was erected in the fourteenth century by Cormac McCarthy, who, I believe, was the king of Munster. The towers are 120 feet high and the walls 14 feet thick. It was built as a residence and fortress, as the many kings in Ireland in those days were continually at war. I regret to say I failed to kiss the famous Blarney stone, it being necessary in order to do so to hang by your heels. I had to be content with looking at it, which is imbedded in the wall almost at the top of the castle. There is an old tradition that if one kisses the Blarney stone they will thereafter be gifted with eloquence or, to use the Irish phrase, "the gift of the gab." Several tourists risked their lives in order to touch their lips to the stone. I was pleased to see in the town of Blarney a large factory where Irish tweed and lace is woven. There are several hundred employes, mostly women, and an old Irish women informed me that they come from all over the world to work there.

Ireland is to-day as poor as she was fifty years ago, and unless some law is passed compelling the rich landlords to sell the land at a moderate value she will continue to be poor. She is very rich in fertile land, rivers, valleys, and beautiful mountain scenery, but, aside from the few landlords who own the island, that is all the riches it contains.

I believe they have a law, recently passed, allowing the tenants to purchase land, but very few landlords will sell. The country people are mere slaves, and evictions for non-payment of rent often occur.

In my travels in England, France, and Ireland I have come in contact with a large number of tourists from all over the world, and they all admitted that American citizens have more rights and privileges than any other people on the face of the earth. I sail in a few days from Queenstown and hope soon to be at the old stand in Washington, D. C.

Ex-Delegates.

EDITORS THE TRADES UNIONIST:

There is every reason to suppose that the ex-delegates who are now members of Columbia Union, No. 101, desire to take an active part in the way of entertaining the delegates and visitors in attendance to the I. T. U. convention next August. In other cities ex-delegates have always been conspicuous and active during convention week. Where they have been strong enough and desired to have an exclusive day's outing they have been granted it. It is extremely likely that this Union will willingly set aside one day to ex-delegates if the request is made.

All those interested in this matter are requested to at once take steps to perfect an organization so that prompt and decisive action can be had. And with this end in view, it has been arranged for a preliminary meeting to be held on Sunday, October 26, at 2:30 p. m., in the Temple. Officers can then be chosen and committees appointed and details can be discussed. It is hoped that all ex-delegates of this and other unions, now members of No. 101, will attend or at least signify their willingness to be a party to making the ex-delegates' day of 1903 one that will never be forgotten.

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL WASHINGTON. 2

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1902.

THE great strike in the anthracite coal fields which has been on for the past six months is finally at an end. There will now be no coal famine; and even the terms which have been made could have been brought about sooner had the coal operators been more the respecter of the rights of others. To belong to a union is the right of every workingman and is his only hope of securing what justly belongs to him and the means of bettering his condition morally, socially, and financially.

The ultimate happy ending of this dire calamity should be a lesson to all employers of labor and teach them that organized labor must be recognized.

The following is the commission appointed by the President to pass upon all questions at issue:

Brig. Gen. JOHN M. WILSON, U. S. A., retired, of Washington, D. C., as an officer of the Engineer Corps.

Hon. E. W. PARKER, of Washington, D. C., as an expert mining engineer.

Hon. GEORGE GRAY, of Wilmington, Del., as a judge of a United States court.

Mr. E. E. CLARK, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Railway Conductors, as a sociologist.

Mr. THOMAS H. WATKINS, of Scranton, Pa., as a man practically acquainted with the mining and selling of coal.

Bishop JOHN L. SPALDING, of Peoria, Ill.

Hon. CARROLL D. WRIGHT has been appointed recorder of the commission.

THE first number of Norwich Trades Unionist, published at Norwich, N. Y., came to our sanctum Saturday. It is a neatly printed four-page, six column paper and claims the distinction of being the "official organ of the Trades Assembly, Norwich Branch, American Federation of Labor." Its mission is to defend the rights of and ameliorate the condition of the wage earner. Its editors, HAIGHT and FRINK, are both enterprising and hustling printers. May it grow, carry out its sacred mission, and succeed.

Reward for Economy.

The following speech delivered by STEPHEN MCDONALD, a Troop County miner, at a recent meeting in Scranton, Pennsylvania, will no doubt make clearer to the public the actual conditions under which a miner lives, and also assist to quicken a ready response in the breasts of those more fortunate in life, and demonstrates we should each give of money, clothes, or provisions to bring about the end of this worse than serfdom state of affairs:

Men, you all know me around here. You know the truth of what I say. I repeat to you to remind you of the common lot of our misery and suffering which has made us combine to cry out for a better order of things.

When I was 6 years and 4 months old I went to work in the breakers of the Pancoast Coal Company. I have worked 19 years, every day that I could get in. I have never been on an excursion in my life. I have never been to a theater but twice in my life. I have not drank a drop of beer or liquor, and for two years I have not smoked. I have practiced the closest economy in food, yet I have never been been able to accumulate $100 in my life.

Men, I have lived here in this place of my birth all my life. You and I know this has always been a company-store town. We know in our hearts what that means, whatever the operators may say.

Eleven years I worked for the Pancoast Coal Company, and during those eleven years I swear here before the Omnipotent I never handled one cent of earnings in money.

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

Seeretary Moody, of the Navy, is reported as having said, in a speech at Madison, Wis., last week, among other things, that "its printing costs the Government twice or thrice what private concerns would pay for it, and the 17,000 men in the navy-yards get 70 per cent more per hour than those in the Cramp yards, this being due to numerous holidays, short hours, etc." Of course, some allowance must be made for the human fault of exaggeration incident to making a point by illustration; for the public printing does not cost thrice, nor twice, nor probably any more than would the same class of printing done by private firms. It is true that what would be contractors' profits now go to the employes in the shape of wages, but I have too much faith in the high-mindedness of Massachusetts men in general to believe that Secretary Moody begrudges the finest body of skilled mechanics in the world the wage that has been given them by law. If he were so constituted he would probably make reductions of salary among the civil employes of his own Department, for surely Navy Department clerks receive higher pay than similar occupations in private life. Cheapness has never been the rule of the Government, either in civil or military departments, but the best service that money can procure. If the navy-yard employes receive more pay (not 70 per cent, however) than those in private yards, it is because it is the quality of the work and not the price that is looked to. A skilled machinist in the navy-yards receives from about $2.36 to $3.20 per day, according to rating—not an extravagant wage in these times. I do not believe that there is any kind of work done for itself by the Government that is not, on the whole, done more cheaply and immensely more satisfactorily than would be done by contractors.

Several copies of the Frostburg (Md.) Forum have reached me, by the kindness of its editor, James Lacoste Rodier, who gives his personality free rein in his editorials and "Men and Events." Mr. Rodier is a virile, caustic writer and does not mince matters in giving his views. As a speaker he is perhaps better known in this community than as a writer, and in either method of giving expression to his thoughts he has the faculty of setting forth his views (whatever we may think of those views) in terse, telling English. On labor matters I have heard him make some of the happiest efforts that I have ever heard from any man.

Grand Army incidents are still in order, of course. At the outbreak of the war, J. H. Malees, lately a "temporary" on the Night Bill Force, then but a boy, enlisted as a drummer, and as such served his term. During the recent encampment he was a visitor to the city (he has been in New Jersey since his temporary service ended), and he met his old drum major on the street.

"Glad to see you," said the Major. "You are just the man I want. You must join my drum corps in the parade."

"Oh, I can't drum any more," said Malees, diffidently. "Besides, I want to march with my post."

"Yes, you can drum and must," said the Major. "Come on! I have the same drum for you that you beat during the war, forty years ago. I'll see that you parade with your post."

This brought Malees to terms; so he buckled the drum on, took his place in line, and beat the forty-year old drum as though he had never had the sticks out of his hands for five minutes. After the drum corps, which was pretty early in the parade, had passed the reviewing stand, the drum major put Malees in a carriage and sent him down the line to rejoin his post of the G. A. R., so that he had two parades in one day.

For a short time after the war the late Capt. O. F. Dunlap acted as agent for a Cleveland (Ohio) bridge company, and in that capacity bid on a bridge that was to be built over a small Kansas river. The Captain always did write an uncertain hand, and when the county commissioners had opened the bids they called him in.

"Captain," said one, "we find that you are the lowest bidder in any event, but we are in doubt whether a certain figure is a 2 or a 7, and whether your bid is $3,250 or $3,750."

"Let me see," said the Captain. "Oh, that is a 7, of course. I couldn't think of $3,250."

That illegibility saved his company $500 and incidently added to his own commission. I've always thought that figure was shot to miss if it was a calf and to hit if it was a bear.

* * * *

Captain Dunlap had a remarkably slender hand—so slender, in fact, that no handcuff was ever devised that he could not slip off. He was once with a party visiting a naval vessel at the navy-yard, and while being shown over the ship the officer who was acting as guide exhibited a pair of handcuffs that he said they occasionally had to put on an unruly sailor.

"Let me show you how they work," said he, turning to the Captain and clicking them on his wrists.

Then he pretended to have his attention called to something else and walked off, leaving the Captain in limbo, as he thought. While showing off the vessel the officer actually did forget the handcuff incident, and as the party were leaving the vessel Captain Dunlap drew the handcuffs from his pocket.

"Here's your jewelry," said he. "I might have forgotten and carried them off with me."

"How in the world did you get them off?" asked the astonished officer.

"Oh, by a simple twist of the wrist," answered the Captain.

Ellis G. Darnell, postmaster at Lebanon, Ind., erstwhile proofreader in the G. P. O., visited the city and old friends during the encampment. Serving his second term in his present position, he has grown fat and sassy in it. While here he was always called Dar*nell*, but he admitted to me once that among the Hoosiers he was never known as anything else than *Dar*nell. The same rule applied to a copyholder we had from the same State a dozen years or so ago named Bunnell, but when I tried to work that style of pronunciation on Grinnell (A. E., formerly hereof, now of the Syracuse Post-Standard) he kicked.

It would seem like righteous retribution if, by the new appliances for burning kerosene, the coal operators were to lose their market permanently, as the result of their bull-headedness. But, alas! the coal miners would lose the market for their labor as well.

I hear that Shelby Smith is reading proof in Philadelphia. I have no criticism to make on anyone, but I would rather set type for $28 80 per week than to read proof anywhere for a less sum, and the situations are remarkably scarce that pay as much as that. I wish Mr. Smith the greatest of good fortune in seeking to better himself.

Under the capable attention of Dr. Chadwick "Jakey" Dwight speedily recovered at Sibley Hospital from his recent illness. Sibley Hospital is beginning to be recognized as a boon to G. P. O. people, as it is conveniently located and within the means of working people, while the care that an invalid gets there is all that the medical and nursing sciences can give him.

From the way the Evening Star pours the hot shot into the recalcitrant and rebellious coal operators, I am impressed that she is short of coal. I never knew the Star to take the side of the workingman before, but welcome her to the fold of the true believers all the same. Pentecostal repentance is better than none at all, especially when when it is accompanied by works meet for repentance. Bully for the Star!

The gentlemanly and efficient officers and committeemen of the Union who expect to figure in the Yearbook in pictures and sketches must recollect that such things should not be put off until the last minute. Mr. Bynum, the chairman of the Printing Committee, tells me that he intends to issue the work December 1, and I know personally that he is too modest to ask for pictures and sketches more than half a dozen times. He would prefer to go to press without them.

Quite a number of my professional friends have expressed an interest in the Indian Territory, the advantages and opportunities of which I endeavored a few weeks ago to conservatively set forth, and have asked me many questions on the subject, but——

Have you shaken the moth balls out of it yet?

* * * *

The action of the laundries in adding 25 per cent to certain items (and perhaps all items, for aught I know) of their schedules of prices, on the plea of the advanced price of coal, is not the best way to seduce workingmen from patronizing the Chinaman. The toiler has no one to pass the increased cost to, except by a demand for increased wages, and in his case the coal plea would be regarded as ridiculous. It is scarcely to be believed that the increased cost of coal has added 25 per cent to the expense of the laundry, and as a consequence of the advance the laundryman will absolutely make money out of the coal famine. Why not stand your share of the general misfortune, gentlemen, instead of throwing it all on those whose custom you are so anxious to divert from the slant-eyed heathen?

A. F. BLOOMER.

MINERS' BENEFIT AT CHASE'S.

A Crowded House Attests to Worthiness of Cause.

Sunday night at Chase's Opera House nearly 3,000 people gathered to enjoy the benefit concert, the proceeds of which were to be given the striking anthracite miners.

The audience contained many children and ladies, all of whom were anxious to see the fearless and able leader of the miners, John Mitchell, who was advertised to speak, but his duties elsewhere would not permit, and while the concert was in every way a great success, there was shown a feeling of disappointment in the failure of the man of the hour, John Mitchell, to put in an appearance. His place, however, was taken by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Bandmaster Haley donated the services of a full quota of musicians to the cause of labor, and three numbers from the last week's vaudeville company at Chase's sang. Mr. Chase donated the use of the opera house, leaving the printing and advertising as the only expenses. The entertainment was given under the auspices of the Central Labor Union of this city.

The feature of the evening was the presence and participation of the Miners's Glee Club, composed of eight workers from the anthracite region, who are touring the country, giving entertainments for the benefit of their striking brothers. They appeared in miner's costume, their rough, worn caps ornamented with the little lamps used underground. They sang "Annie Laurie," and for an encore gave the "Star Spangled Banner," after removing their caps and placing them on the floor in front of them. By special request they sang a Welsh hymn.

The boxes were occupied by men prominent in labor circles, and their families.

The entertainment opened with an overture, "William Tell," Rossini, by Haley's Band. The musicians then proceeded to complete their portion of the program as many of them had other engagements. After an encore, Mr. Haley gave selections from "Carmen," which were followed by a series of national airs, ending with "Yankee Doodle."

Miss Sophie Burnham, a clear voiced soprano, sang "The Owl and the Moon," and "Dreamland," after which a musical comedy was given by Banks and Winona Winter. George Yeoman amused the audience with German dialogue and songs.

Mr Gompers, who was introduced by Mr. Sprague, of the committee, said in part:

I have a very pleasant duty, mingled with a rather unpleasant duty, to perform this evening. The pleasant duty is that of thanking you for the demonstration you have manifested in the interest of the striking miners in the anthracite coal regions of Pennsylvania. I thank you for your sympathy for the men, women, and children of the mining region.

The unpleasant part of my duty is to tell you that owing to circumstances over which he had no control that gallant leader of the miners in Pennsylvania, John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America [applause], is unable to be here this evening. His duty to-night is with the miners in the mining region, whose interests have been committed to his care. I believe that you would not want him to leave his duties there to talk to you to-night. I think you realize that he is needed there to-night more than he is here.

In his stead I have been asked to act as a rather poor substitute.

All people regard the action of the President of our country as a move to solve the question of the coal strike. He invited representatives of both factions to a conference—a sort of middleway by which this great contest could be brought to a close. The president of the Mine Workers made overtures for peace, but he met with a rebuke from the mine owners who attended the conference.

And yet hundreds of thousands of people are made to suffer because of the strike and because the mine owners will not listen to the terms of the miners, but want an unconditional return of the miners to the mines. One thing is sure, the suffering will rest upon the heads of those who are responsible and who refuse to meet the overtures of the miners.

I want to say that it is not a good thing to starve people to win a result. History demonstrates that and our country and civilization does not think it a good thing. [Applause.]

Now, what do the miners want? The miners want their pay in cash. [Applause.] They want, also, at the end of every day, week, or two weeks, or some other time, to receive their pay in Uncle Sam's money, so that they may buy what they want and pay what they want for it, and not have to buy the articles they absolutely need from the company's stores and have to pay from 50 to 75 per cent more than they would outside.

The miners have to stay under the ground all day and work in solitary confinement, except once or twice a day when they see a mule, drawing a cart of coal, pass by on its way to the shaft.

The companies have check weighmen, who check off the amount of coal sent up. The miners want a weighman for them. They can not tell, while working below ground, if the company's weighman is weighing properly. They do not want to mine 3,500 pounds of coal to the ton. The miners are willing and ready to pay the salary of these check weighmen.

All that the miners are asking would not amount to more than 15 or 20 cents increase on a ton of coal.

The executive council of the American Federation of Labor has ordered that every Monday morning, between the hours of 10 and 11 o'clock during the continuance of the strike, shall be designated as "miners' hour" throughout the country. During this time donations will be received by all labor organizations for the benefit of the miners.

Handy Andy's Aphorisms.

J hn Dunlap is the proud father of a bouncing baby girl.

John Moran is ill at his home on North Capitol street, and from last reports it was found he was suffering with typhoid fever.

Roberts is on his way home from the Philippines, and it is rumored that Fred Anderson will eat Christmas dinner with his mother.

The tenors in the Miners' Glee Club that sang outside the office at noon on Monday night find more lucrative employment on the stage. I've heard many inferior voices touted by the newspaper critics.

During the G. A. R. encampment John Meyers turned his home into a hotel and housed veterans at regular Raleigh prices, thereby filling his boy's toy bank with coin to keep the bookies warm this fall. As an inducement, John gave each of his guests a free pass to the White Lot and an invitation to inspect the G. P. O. during their stay.

The sad ending of two lives through murder and suicide adds another inglorious page to the history of the G. P. O., and poor little "Spikey," despondent and irresponsible, came dangerously near cashing in his chips and ingloriously retiring from life's game of draw. Strange how these folks forget that they'll be a long time dead.

The chaffuer of the aqua pura autocart has been off on leave during the past week, and his substitute managed to keep the reservoirs full without running from one to the other at breakneck speed. It must have been the hand of Providence that caused him to take his leave at this time, otherwise some of the old veterans, who survived a four years' war, would have been killed by a water cart.

A visitor who brought a card of introduction to Harry Christy asked him, in the course of conversation, what particular line of work was assigned to him.

"I have charge of the illustrations," said Harry, as the buttons on his waistcoat bent sideways with the strain.

"Do you have charge of all these old men?" continued the stranger, as he shied a glance at Ferris and a couple of helpers.

What Harry said in reply was sotto voce.

The New York Telegraph, an authority on the form and behavior of the ponies, is responsible for the statement that Marie Wilson (Mrs. Harry Wimsatt) and Marie Walker have lost the millions (?) they made in the stock market when Southern Pacific took such a leap about two years ago, and are now in the chorus of the "Crystal Slipper." Harry quit running presses when his wife got next to wealth, but if Marie has gone broke and returned to the stage, it is a foregone conclusion that Harry will be looking for a job before long.

There's a good story going the rounds about the wife of one of the division foremen who, finding herself on the sixth floor of the annex with a bunch of G. A. R. friends last week, sought to ride down on the lift, when the operator informed the lady that it was against the rules. She rushed to the telephone and called up the front office. From that quarter she elicited no dispensation to fracture the rules, and then she called up her husband and told him of her predicament.

"I guess ye'll have to walk down," said he, "an' if I go up to console ye I'll have to walk up and down."

The coterie of guides pressed into service during the rush of visitors was a pleasant, affable, and gentlemanly bunch of young men, but the information they gave to the unsuspecting horde of innocent victims would furnish material for a comic opera. I did not hear all they told the open-mouthed and eager listeners, but the little I did catch was indeed entertaining and wondrously fanciful. Here is a sample:

"Yes, madam, the presses are made of iron and brass. They never wear out."

"The automatic feeder feeds itself."

"What kind of a press is this?" asked one old man of a new guide, pointing at one of the machines. "That's a printing press, sir," replied the young man without cracking a smile.

AROUND THE PRINTERIES.

Down Town.

Union meeting Sunday.

Wat Warren, editor of The Pathfinder, at Glenville, W. Va., dropped in on us last week.

James Dwyer, of New York, a pressman by calling, made his brother, John L. Dwyer, of the Government bindery, a pleasant call this week.

Frank Holzer, who runs a Mergenthaler on the Buffalo News, accompanied by Frank Hughes, of the Times of this city, dropped in to look us over, Monday.

Dr. J. M. Ramsey, until recently working on the machines at Hayworth's, has returned to the practice of medicine. Dr. Ramsey graduated from the Georgetown University a year ago.

Friday last, the Steam and Hot Water Fitters and Helpers, No. 28, appropriated $25 for the striking miners. This organization is in a flourishing condition in every way the word implies.

W. L. Hall, who manipulates a mill on the Chattanooga Times, at Chattanooga, Tenn., and formerly proprietor of the Industrial Advocate, at Denver, Colo., made this office a pleasant call, Saturday.

A well-known printer in the G. P. O. wrote the following on a postal to his wife while he was out of the city. The brevity is what counts:

Friday, 2:20.

MRS. K.:

O. K.

A. K.

W. E. Kennedy, general organizer of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, who has been spending some time in this city, left Wednesday for Milwaukee, Wis., to enter upon his duties in that section. Here's success and may it be as fruitful as his mission on the coast.

First Division.

Claude McDonald has gone off on a short vacation.

F. W. Gist has gone on leave and will be absent until November 17.

Judge Mabrey, our popular chairman, has been off sick for a few days.

Our guides are up to snuff. They lead off the procession invariably with the prettiest girl in sight.

Ed. McCormick, it is reported, is slowly but surely getting better from his severe attack of chills and fever.

L. B. Clark and C. W. Radley will soon leave us for a trip home to use their American prerogative as a voter.

Between the "Sym absconder" and the "big baby tattler," it looks as if the Second Division is ulcerous in spots.

The reason the coal operators don't want some of the politicians to interfere is because they have sons that are "minors."

It is rumored that Herm Klima will soon become a benedict. The cigars were passed around last Monday in anticipation.

It is generally conceded that the First Division's G. A. R. decorations were the prettiest, with the Fourth a good second.

In a letter from Ed. Jones, chief clerk of the Manila Printing Office, he says he in enjoying the best of health, and sends his regards to all.

Too much praise can not be given to J. Ligon King for the hard work he did in decorating this room He was ably assisted by Capt. Jack Robinson.

By the time this paper goes to press the bright and happy smile of our popular postmaster, Harry B Major, will have returned to his desk after a vacation spent in the wilds of Hyattsville. Mr. Major is chief lamplighter, having been elected at the last election, and his term of office runs for another year.

The following conversation was over heard between a compositor of alley 19 and a party of friends whom he was conducting through the office: "This is the largest composing room in the world. It is composed of 156 printers, the pick of the office, and nothing but the most intricate work is done in this room. I work right over there on slug III."

CLOTILDE.

Be a Landlord

And a voter, by buying one of Donath's Hyattsville lots.

Bindery Notes.

Have Charlie Nelson tell you the story of Colonel Plant in the baggage coach ahead.

Jack Quinlan is nursing a bruised finger. Jack injured it while a number of visitors were looking at him backing books.

Meyer Cohen is a man that looks ahead. He has several tons of coal in his bin, which he bought before the strike.

There is trouble ahead for John Thorton, of Hyattsville. John has a terrible appetite and cleans up all the bread in sight at Curtin's lunch room.

It has been decided by a referendum vote that J. L. Feeney, bookbinder and tourist, will be editor of the international paper for the next two years.

The Bookbinders' Union at their last meeting appropriated $500 to the striking miners, and $236 was contributed by individual members, making a total of $736.

President E. W. Tatum and Vice-President William Glockling attended the last meeting of the union and made interesting addresses, after which a social session followed.

Tommy Kelly, of the blank room, had the opportunity of his life several weeks ago to make a trade for a fine overcoat. Tommy shivers these cold mornings and says he was a chump.

D. J. KAUFMAN, 1005-7 Pa. Ave.

Specification Scintillations.

Miss Clara L. Bennett has returned from her vacation.

Frank McDermott is back again from his annual vacation.

Walter T. Roche returned to work last Thursday, and looks invigorated and rejuvenated.

Austin D. DuGanne saw the parade, last Wednesday, without stretching his neck. He stands six feet in his sox.

William A. Ball, of alley 8, is both a good all-around compositor and artist. Some of his productions would grace a Paris salon.

E. J. Handly is one of our foremost chapel orators. He is logical, convincing, and earnest, and the boys all swear by "Uncle Ned."

Quite a number of visitors passed through this room last week, and they were highly elated over the brilliant display of patriotism and love of country and flag.

D. W. Hopkins, our veteran doorkeeper, was kept quite busy encampment week waiting upon visitors. He is a veteran of the civil war and can tell some "hair raising" yarns about the gory fields of 1861-65.

During encampment week the flag that hung in front of the Union Building, from alley 5, was at half-mast. Samuel J. Gompers and Capt. E. D. Smoot declare that it was so hung in deference to the coal strike.

We take pleasure in correcting the statement made in last week's issue that the resolutions offered by Mr. F. C. Roberts were laid upon the table. A committee of three was appointed to wait upon "the powers that be," and will submit their report shortly.

Many of our employes, including the ladies, wore glittering badges and heroic medallions during encampment week, but Frank R. Trimble's badge "took the cake." Last Thursday he was bedecked in two huge strips of white paper, pinned upon the lapel of his coat, which was possibly emblematic of "Peace" or "Don't Shoot." Mr. Trimble is still trying to explain that angelic badge.

Chairman J. F. Hauer, of the committee on decorations, returns many thanks to the following ladies and gentlemen for their valuable assistance: Mrs. Nellie G. Stagge, Misses Anna Wilson, Laura B. Gordon, Irma D. Palmer, Minnie A. Aylward, Katharine Spencer, Iowa Hampson, and Nellie Theaker, and Messrs, H. J. Redfield, Harry Billings, H. E. Giles, O. L. Carter, Charles Koehl, F. A. Brashears, W. L. Gutelius, A. McGarraghy, C. J. Duffy, J. W. Carter, F. W. Henke, W. L. Auchmoody, and George Gerberich.

The kaleidoscopic conditions of human life and events often bring into view characters, while unassuming and unostentatious, that have contributed much toward making this "vale of tears" a pleasant place to dwell upon. In the Specification Division is to be found one of such characters, well-beloved by all his associates and colleagues, and of incalculable value to the public service and our employes generally. The young man upon whom this glittering glare of limelight is turned has been employed in this room for many years as confidential messenger and has ably and faithfully filled the position. When Yuletide approaches he is always remembered by our force and there is nothing too good to bestow upon the brow of the subject of this sketch—Charles C. Koehl.

W. A. Roberts, of this division, is the "hero of the hour." Recently, he met his three brothers—Samuel, Edward, and Albert—for the first time in thirty-seven years, and only a vivid and active imagination can picture what happened when these four veterans of the civil war met. The Washington Post displayed portraits of the four brothers, with biographies, and spoke of our own Roberts in this pyrotechnic and eulogistic manner: "Mr. W. A. Roberts, of Langdon, D. C., is the other brother. He has been employed in the Government Printing Office for the past ten years as a compositor. He served over three years during the war as a member of Company K, Forty-fifth Regiment of Pennsylvania, and was in nearly all of the engagements in which the regiment fought, from the battle of South Mountain, September 14, 1862, up to the battle of the Wilderness, May 6, 1864, when he was wounded. This includes South Mountain, Antietam, siege of Fredericksburg, Jamestown, Ky., siege of Vicksburg, Jackson, Big Black River, Halls Cross Roads, Miss., Blue Springs, Lenoir Station, Loudenville, Campbell's Station, Kingston, and Defense of Knoxville Tenn., and other engagements in East Tennessee, including Blue Springs, October 10, 1863, Blains Cross Roads, Clinch Church, Bean's Station, and Jamestown, Ky."

A Pathetic Incident.

One of the most interested observers of the splendid parade of the Grand Army of the Republic, on Wednesday last, was Comrade Joseph S. Clark (of the Day Proof Room), who, unable to march by reason of wounds and disabilities, sat watching the magnificent column of old veterans as they passed in review. As his own post, U. S. Grant of Philadelphia, wheeled into line at the corner of Pennsylvania avenue and 15th street he recognized those who participated with him in many campaigns and whom he had not seen for many years. Moved by an impulse he could not control, he sprang from his seat and was in a moment trying to grasp the hands of the commander and others, and in doing so one of his crutches fell. Realizing his danger, his comrades broke from the ranks to save him, and when he was safe one comrade threw his arms around his neck and kissed him. He wanted to march with them to the end of the line, but could not. Returning to the point from which he had started he was much excited and extremely nervous, but a member of the Red Cross administered quieting remedies and remained with him until he was sufficiently recovered to go to his home. It was one of the most pathetic incidents of the parade.—Saturday's Star.

The controversy between the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and the Plumbers and Gas Fitters, regarding the conduit question, has been decided by the Executive Board of the American Federation of Labor in favor of the Electrical Workers. And Kennedy wins the dinners on Messrs. Merrick and Spencer.

Day of Reckoning At Hand.

Mr. Baer, spokesman of the coal trust, says he "won't answer Mitchell." That has been the attitude of the self-appointed "trustees of Providence" from the beginning. "We won't make concessions," "we won't arbitrate," "we won't discuss the issues," "we won't allow outsiders to question our right to do as we please with railroads and mines;" nothing but "we won't" from the first. The coal trust may take that position if it chooses, but it will have to take the consequences also. Presently the people will have something to say.—Philadelphia North American.

The turn-over of 2,000 co operative societies in Europe last year was $400,000,000 In 1893 it amounted to only $250,000,000. Co-operative stores are in successful operation in thirty-eight cities in California.

There are 3,900 window glass pots in the country, but owing to the limited number of skilled workmen it is only possible to operate 2,300 pots. The skilled men are divided into two organizations. Owing to the scarcity of men the three combinations are unable to operate their plants to the full capacity.

THE CENTRAL LABOR UNION

Communication from Retail Clerks Asking Moral Support.

TROUBLE WITH GASLIGHT CO.

Delegates Get Down to Business and Break Record on Farly Adjournment—Number of Complaints Referred to Grievance Committee—An Earnest Appeal from Headquarters Anent Striking Miners.

The Central Labor Union met in its regular weekly session on Monday night, with President Hamerstrom in the chair, and transacted routine business. The minutes of last meeting was read and approved.

Credentials were received from R. A. Lanis Association of Steam Fitters, certifying Michael Caton as delegate in place of H. T. Rogers, who has left the city; Geo. Neal, B. O. Leary, and W. F. Turners from Electrical Workers' Union, No. 26, and Harry Severn from Columbia Lodge, No. 174, International Association of Machinists, to fill the unexpired term of A. Whitacre. After a favorable report from the Committee on Credentials they were seated.

A communication was received from the Retail Clerks asking the moral support of organized labor in an effort to have the merchants of the city sign an international contract agreeing to employ only members of their organization or who will agree to become such; also agreeing to close their stores at 6 o'clock on all days but Saturday, on which day 9 o'clock shall be the hour, and to close all day on Sunday and the following legal holidays: Christmas, Fourth of July, Thanksgiving, and half a day on New Year's Day, Labor Day, and 30th of May. The Clerks were assured of the support of organized labor as represented by the Central Labor Union of this city.

The Grievance Committee had referred to it the following cases: Chas. Rauscher, corner Connecticut avenue and L streets, who persists in having his electrical work done by a non-union firm; Henry Achterkirchen, who keeps a saloon at 205 Seventh street northwest, who refuses to recognize the Tile Layers' Union on work he is having done in his place of business; Gas Workers' Union, who complain against the Washington Gaslight Company as having locked out some of their members because they belonged to the union.

The Bakers and Confectioners' Union contributed the sum of $75 to the striking miners.

A communication was received from headquarters of the American Federation of Labor and put on file, making an earnest appeal for the striking miners in their supreme effort to uphold the fundamental principles of trade unionism.

Strikes of Long Ago.

The following record of early strikes makes interesting reading:

1495—Strike among the tailors and turban makers of Constantinople.

The Sultan was appealed to, and 26 of the strikers were hanged, the rest drafted into the army.

1583—Workmen employed to pull down one of the suppressed monasteries in England revolted for better pay. Several were put to death and the others were imprisoned.

1593—Masons employed on the Escurial Palace, Spain, refused to work unless better paid. Several were put to the galleys, and the rest were exiled to America.

1625—Strike among the tea pickers of the Central Chinese Province for higher pay. They were hanged by men in charge of the trust.

1705—The shipbuilders and sailmakers employed by Peter the Great at St. Petersburg struck for shorter hours. Seven were hanged, 127 sent to Siberia and 952 were drafted into the army.—Minnesota Union Advocate.

Congressman ABRAHAM LINCOLN BRICK, of Indiana.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN BRICK, of South Bend, St. Joseph County, was born in that county May 27, 1860; was educated in the common schools; was graduated from the South Bend High School, and later attended Cornell, Yale, and Michigan Universities; after being graduated from the law department of the Michigan University in 1883, immediately took up the practice of the law in South Bend, at which he has continued since; in 1886 was elected prosecutor for the counties of St. Joseph and Laporte; was elected to the Fifty-sixth Congress and re-elected to the Fifty-seventh Congress.

Mr. BRICK has supported all measures relating to organized labor. He was a staunch supporter of the Plate Printers' amendment relating to the power presses in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, thereby protecting the people of the country against counterfeiting and fraud. He also advocated the passage of the Chinese exclusion act and made a speech in its behalf. He is at all times ready and willing to give his support and influence to all matters relating to the interest of labor.

Meeting of Ex-Delegates.

There will be a meeting of the ex-delegates of the International Typographical Union at Typographical Temple, Sunday, October 26, at 2 o'clock p. m., to discuss means and measures pertaining to the entertainment of ex-delegates attending the coming convention of the I. T. U. in this city. All ex-delegates residing in the city are urged to be present.

Incorporation of Labor Unions.

That the increasing power and influence of labor unions should be accompanied by a growing appreciation of the responsibility which the possession of such power entails seems a logical and natural development. The enormous strides which have been taken by union labor recently make it appear probable that its leaders will recognize soon the expediency of accepting full responsibility as a necessary consequence of labor's honorable status in the industrial world.

Carroll D. Wright, United States Commissioner of Labor, in accounting for the peremptory refusal of the anthracite mine operators to come to a settlement with their striking miners ascribes their action to an alleged belief that such a settlement would lack binding force. The operators, he says, argue that just as there were strikes in 1900 and 1902, when political pressure could be expected to force a settlement, there would be a strike again in 1904, when a presidential election might lead to political intervention. This plea, of course, does not in any way justify the operators in their present refusal to listen to the grievances urged by President Mitchell and the United Mine Workers in good faith and on the grounds of common humanity. However, the lack of a means of binding the men to their bargains gives the operators an excuse for evading a settlement. The incorporation of a union must have the effect of making its agreements binding. But such incorporation would also give it a stronger position and an additional argument with which to confute the employer who presumed to deny its right to demand the making of an equitable bargain.

The action of the Wholesale Grocers Employes' Union, of this city, in deciding to become incorporated is of timely interest as pointing to advantages which labor may expect to gain in this way. Evidently the members of that union feel that it is worth while to become incorporated, since by so doing they can effect a satisfactory agreement which shall be binding on both sides. There are numerable strong and honorable labor unions which now live up to their agreements carefully and faithfully. Such unions have everything to gain and nothing to lose by taking the one additional step of becoming incorporated and therefore responsible in law as well as in fact.—Chicago News.

THANKS TO BEAR.

From Washington Post.]

That thou hast loosed thy fateful grip at last,
And in thy store of coal dost let us share,
So that we fear no more the wintry blast;
That thou dost grant us peace and plenty where
A week ago stalked grim despair,
We thank thee, Baer.

Our thanks arise because the Almighty placed
The Pennsylvania coal mines in thy care.
And if we could, for gifts to the not traced—
For drinks we drink, for what we eat and wear,
Likewise for sunlight and for air—
We'd thank thee, Bear.

By glowing fires which soon shall warm them through,
Husband and wife, and children everywhere,
The baby on the hearth-rug warm—oo-goo—
The housemaid and the fond and loving pair,
And grandpa in his old armchair,
All thank thee, Bear.

MEETING OF COLUMBIA UNION

Committee of Arrangements to Prepare for Convention Appointed.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON'S REPORT

Adoption of Resolution Commending President of the United States and President Mitchell for Their Successful Efforts to End Coal Strike—Vote on I. T. U. Propositions—Reports of Several Committees.

The stated monthly meeting of Columbia Union, No. 101, was called to order at 2:30 p. m. Sunday, President Johnson presiding.

Traveling cards deposited since last meeting were read and received.

Communications were read from B. W. Taylor, chief clerk of the Postoffice Department, in answer to a communication from the officers of the Union in reference to awarding of contract for printing of Postal Guide; from Central Labor Union of Canton, Ohio, in reference to McKinley National Memorial Association; from Mrs. Frank A. Kennedy, president of the Woman's International Auxiliary, and from Chicago Typographical Union in reference to resolutions passed by this Union at the September meeting.

The Business Committee submitted their report, which was concurred in, sustaining the contention of two compositors employed at the office of the Knights of Labor Journal that they were not getting the scale in receiving single price for straight matter which, after being made up and page proofs sent out, was ordered to be inclosed in border, claiming that they were entitled to double price for same; also that Mr. Richard Powers, employed as linotype operator by National Publishing Company, was unjustly discharged by the foreman of said company and was in violation of law of the local and International Unions.

The Committee on Nominations reported favorably on the applications for membership of Michael J. Meany, Jos. W. Gerhardt and B. E. McKinley, and the Secretary directed to cast a favorable ballot for said candidates.

In regard to the request of Mr. Geo. E. Boos to be placed on the honorary list, supplemented with a request from Missoula Typographical Union, No. 277, that the request be granted, the committee recommended that the Secretary communicate with said union, notifying them that under the custom of Columbia Union it would be impossible to grant the request.

The special committee on the application of James E. Fitzgerald for admission to the Home reported favorably, and on motion same was adopted.

The special committee appointed to consider the communication received from Atlanta Typographical Union, No. 48, in reference to certain applications pending before that Union, recommended that the Secretary notify Atlanta Union that this Uuion objects to the admission of certain candidates and favorably recommends others.

President Johnson made the following report:

Three deaths have occured since the last meeting—John T. Goodwin, Joseph Hammacher, and O. F. Dunlap.

Pursuant to instructions Secretary Garrett and myself called at the Post-Office Department and had a consultation with Third Assistant Postmaster-General Madden relative to the printing of the Postal Guide by a non-union firm, and he advised that Columbia Union address a letter to Postmaster-General protesting against giving this work to non-union firms, and asssured us that he believed there would not be a repetition of it. A letter was accordingly sent to the Postmaster General to that effect. Philadelphia Union and Secretary of I. T. U. were also asked to write letters of the same purport.

In order to defray the expenses of the forthcoming I. T. U. Convention, he recommended that the sum of $1,000 be taken from the general fund and set aside as a nucleus for an entertainment fund, and that the sum of $400 per month be added to that fund up to and including August, 1903.

President Johnson appointed the following committee of arrangements:

F. F. Whitehead, chairman; E. E. Calhoon, D. W. Fleming, J. R. Berg, J. A. Huston, E. W. Patton, H. B. Goodrell, T. M. Ring, Titus F. Ellis, J. F. Rowe, J. B. Dickman, Charles C. Thompson, H. F. Sauter, E. E. Wear, and George G. Seibold.

He also stated that the chairman of Entertainment Committee requested him to announce that that committee would give an entertainment January 22, 1903, and all participating therein were to be members of the Union.

He also reported the following result of the recent referendum vote on the I. T. U. propositions:

	For.	Against.
First	1,128	115
Second	702	534
Third	706	527
Fourth	472	776

On motion the report was received and adopted and the recommendations concurred in.

On motion of Mr. Babcock the communication of Mrs. Frank A. Kennedy in reference to formation of Auxiliary was referred to the lady members of the Union.

Mr. Kreiter submitted the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted by a rising vote:

WHEREAS, Through the unselfish and indefatigable efforts of President Roosevelt and the unalterable devotion to the miners' cause of President John Mitchell the great coal strike of 1902 is about at an end and the resumption of work is only a few days off; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, commends the laudable and successful efforts of the President of the United States in bringing about the appointment of a committee of arbitration, thereby averting a fuel famine, and that we recognize in the personnel of the commission the fairness and impartiality of President Roosevelt.

Resolved, That we most heartily commend the course pursued by President Mitchell and firmly believe that by his steadfast and straightforward adherence to the principles of trades unionism in the long and courageous struggle the great army of organized wage-earners has won a signal and decisive victory from the oppressive and malicious influences of avaricious capitalists

On motion of Mr. Kreiter the Secretary was directed to furnish a copy of the resolution to President Roosevelt, President Mitchell, and the public press.

Upon motion of Mr. Rhodes $100 was appropriated for the McKinley National Memorial Monument to be erected at Canton, Ohio.

The Laws Committee submitted the following amendment, which was laid over to be printed on the call:

SEC. 22. Any member of the Union employed in offices under this jurisdiction who takes casual or regular employment and leaves the same where the full scale of prices has been paid and all Union rules strictly observed is guilty of a violation of trade custom and should be disciplined if, in the opinion of the executive officers of the Union, the occason demands it.

The Auditors reported that they had examined books of the Board of Trustees and found them correct.

Miners' Meetings.

The open-air meetings in behalf of the striking miners, held at Seventh street and Market Space on October 8, 9, and 10, under the auspices of Central Labor Union, were largely attended, and the audience responded liberally when contributions were solicited.

The following speakers presented the question in an able and forceful manner:

October 8—Samuel Gompers, president American Federation of Labor; John B. Lennon, treasurer American Federation of Labor; D. A. Hayes, member American Federation of Labor Executive Board and president Glass Bottle Blowers of America, and Thos. I. Kdd, member American Federation of Labor Executive Board.

October 9—John H. Brinkman, secretary Carriage Workers' Union; Frank Kidd, Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, and Mrs. Edwards, widow of a miner, of Wilkesbarre, Pa.

October 10—August Donath, Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101; Milford Spohn, ex-president of Bricklayers' Union, No. 1, and J. B. Jaques, of Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101.

On Sunday evening, October 12, a concert was given at Chase's Grand Opera House for the benefit of the striking miners, which netted a large sum.

President Mitchell, of the United Mine Workers, not being able to be present as advertised, owing to very urgent business at the miners' headquarters in Wilkesbarre, Pa., Mr. Samuel Gompers, president of American Federation of Labor, was substituted and made a stirring address in behalf of the miners' cause.

The Miners' Glee Club were present at all the open-air meetings and also at the concert, receiving an ovation.

Boston's electrical strike was settled by the board of arbitration.

Leaves of Absence.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 17, 1902.

EDITORS THE TRADES UNIONIST:

In interviews with employes of the Government Printing Office, which are of daily occurrence, so much is said that indicates an erroneous idea of many features of the claims for unused leaves of absence earned by temporary and emergency employes, that an explanatory statement would no doubt be of general interest and value to those having such claims.

In some quarters we find the impression prevails that the movement to secure this back pay is based upon future legislation and that an effort is being made to lobby a bill through Congress which will provide for the payment of all the claims without further effort. This is not the case at all. Careful investigation convinced us, when these cases were first taken up, that Congressional action was very uncertain and quite improbable of success, and it was then determined that direct action in the Court of Claims offered the best chance of an early adjustment.

Action in that Court was thereupon commenced and for each case placed in our hands a separate suit was filed. The cases were won in the Court of Claims under the case of Arthur B. Barringer, that being the first claim filed, and the title of case, No. 21940, under which nearly three hundred separate cases are filed and if the United States had not appealed from the decision of the Court of Claims to the Supreme Court, all of the claims filed under this number would now have been paid.

After the decision of the Supreme Court, which we have every reason to believe will be favorable, a separate judgment will, after certain steps have been taken by counsel, be rendered by the Court of Claims in each case filed in that Court. Congress at each session appropriates money to pay such individual judgments but never anticipates in that appropriation for future judgments, nor does it pay for similar claims not placed in judgment.

This payment will therefore be attained only as the result of success in having present laws construed in favor of the employes, and so far as back pay is concerned, it will cover only the cases filed in the Court of Claims. There will be no general appropriation as an incident to this proceeding since present laws are sufficient to enable a judgment to be secured in cases properly filed, but not sufficient to authorize payment by the Public Printer of pay accrued prior to the date of the decision, although it is probable that after the Supreme Court lays down the rule, it will be followed to the extent of paying for leave earned in the future without the necessity of filing a claim. The benefit of payment for future leaves of absence comes to the employes as an incident to these decisions but they are under no further obligations to their attorneys after the case for back pay is settled.

The immense amount of work involved in these cases should insure the co-operation and support of every claimant, and it is believed that a true understanding of the situation will entirely allay the disposition found in a very few to endeavor to profit out of the cases without sharing with their fellow-employes in the expense. As a matter of fact there will be no profit in following that course since the older claims are being gradually barred by the statute of limitations from which even the Court of Claims can not save them.

Another error is in supposing that filing a claim will prejudice the chance of future employment. The facts show that it does not. One-third of those who have filed claims are at present employed in the Government Printing Office, many of them on the permanent roll, and many have been so appointed since filing their claims.

These cases are in no way connected with the movement to secure pay for holidays occurring in the vacation period. Yours respectfully,

GEO. A. AND WM. B. KING.

There is a clash on between the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and the Amalgamated Woodworkers' Union in Indianapolis, over jurisdiction of stairbuilders. Both claim it as their work.

George III and George Baer.

There is a striking similarity between the language of King GEORGE III, of England, in speaking of his American colonists, and that of President GEORGE F. BAER, of the Reading Railroad, while discussing the coal miners' strike. In 1775 King GEORGE said:

The rights and interests of the American colonists will be looked after and cared for, not by the agitators and rebels, but by the kind Christian gentlemen whom I, as the direct representative of GOD, have appointed to look after my lands in the Western world."

Replying to the proposition that the differences between the miners and operators be submitted to arbitration, Mr. BAER said:

The rights and interests of the laboring man will be looked after and cared for, not by the agitators, but by Christian men to whom GOD, in His infinite wisdom, has given the control of the property interests of the country.

GOD in His infinite wisdom seems to have selected the two Georges as a means to an end.

Work and Its Reward.

There must always appear to be an excuse for opposing trades unionism. Perhaps the one most frequently advanced is that the man who can not do as much in a given time as his fellow, or possibly shows less skill, should not be paid as much as the man who is able to do more. This at first glance may seem plausible, but if we were to accept this proposition of adjustment and give it general application the thing objected to would be as conspicuous in other fields as in the service and wage of the mechanic or artisan or the common laborer. No one of fair mind will contend that a rule so good should apply only to the skilled or unskilled workmen. The salary of the President and all the officials of the Government are fixed by Congress, and Congress, with accustomed liberality, fixes its own salary. Will any one contend that the pay of public officials is invariably regulated or adjusted by the test of superior service—that each, according to his sphere, renders the exact service required or contemplated by the salary fixed for such service? Is not the discrepancy as pronounced in the service of these, compared with the salary received, as in the service and wage of the skilled or unskilled workman? Trades unionists do not attempt to bring the wage of the official down to a low level, but rather do they seek to show that work of whatever calling is honorable and ennobling and worthy of that consideration or reward which honest effort everywhere merits.

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

One of the anomalies that to me are totally inexplicable is to occasionally find among the membership of Columbia Union a man whose sympathies in the late coal strike were entirely with the operators and against the miners. Every exaggerated and mendacious charge against the miners of violence and intimidation was firmly believed; every assertion of extortion and oppression on the part of the operators was denied or defended as right. Every slur that could be thrown at President Mitchell was indulged in, notwithstanding he has won the admiration of the entire nation, always excepting the coal barons. It is but fair, however, to say that I know of but few such.

* * * *

I very much fear that the proposition to increase the I. T. U. per capita tax 5 cents a month and send the Typographical Journal to all the membership has been defeated. The typographical unions have been complimented as being the most intelligent labor bodies in the country, and as a general proposition I believe that to be true, but the ignorance and indifference that exists as to I. T. U. matters among the membership is indefensible. The referendum is a rank failure for the reason that a majority of the members neither know nor care anything about the questions at issue, and the ignorance comes from a refusal to inform themselves when the means of obtaining information is so cheap. The machinists (I. A. M.) send their monthly journal to every member, and so do other national or international bodies, and there is no good reason why our I. T. U. should not do the same.

* * * *

The last number of the National Union, the monthly organ of the fraternal insurance association of that name (which is sent to all the membership free, gratis, for nothing, and without costing the individual a cent), contained a fine half-tone cut of our Charlie Leeds, who has been financial secretary of Government Printing Office Council for over a dozen years. A more faithful, capable, accommodating officer than Mr. Leeds could not be found, nor one who is more devoted in every way to the interests of the organization. Its large membership is due in great measure to his efforts.

* * * *

No employer of rat or scab labor ever had any respect for his employes. He knows they are curs and treats them accordingly. Nowhere is this better exemplified than in the office of the Los Angeles Times, which showed its mental caliber in a half column of sewer washings thrown at President Lynch on the occasion of his recent visit to that city. The Times will yet make its peace with the union or give up the ghost.

* * * *

The farmers, as a class, are the victims of the organized greed of the capital of this country to no less extent than are the mechanics, and yet, through the misrepresentation of the press, no class is more opposed to trades unions. They have been led to believe that all unionists are thugs and cutthroats. A farmer old soldier said to me, during the recent encampment:

"Isn't it terrible that Mitchell won't let the miners go to work and let the people have coal?"

"Mr. ——," said I, "you are too intelligent a man to believe that one man can keep 147,000 from going to work if they want to."

"But that's what the papers say," he answered, "and the coal operators say so, too."

That is but a specimen. Would it not be well for organized labor to take some measures to inform the agricultural portion of the community of the true state of affairs and to show the farmers that it is the workingmen, and not the capitalists, who furnish them a market for their products, and the amounts they purchase are regulated by their ability to buy?

The late Captain Dunlap had a peculiarly forcible way of expressing himself when aroused, and an instance comes to my recollection. During Cleveland's first term he was reading proof with a great admirer of the President, and they had just read a Presidential message vetoing a pension bill for a woman on the ground of bad moral character."

"Ah," said the reader, "they can't fool old Grover! He knows that kind of cattle."

"Yes," said the Captain, "if there is anything that Cleveland is thoroughly familiar with, it is women of bad moral character."

"Please go on reading, Captain," said his deskmate.

W. B. Thorpe, a proofreader here fifteen years ago, is still reading proof in the State office at Sacramento, Cal.

"J. M. K.," in the last issue of this great luminary, suggested the organization of the ex-delegates of this union and of other unions now domiciled here, looking to the entertainment of the I. T. U. at the convention next August. I hope there will not be such an antagonism between the "exes" and the convention managers as there was at Boston in 1891. The managers had "ruled out" the "exes" on everything, whereupon the latter started in to give a little entertainment of their own to the visiting "exes," barring out everybody but the "exes." They began by panhandling the newspaper proprietors—a field the managers had overlooked, raising about $500 in this way, with which and their own contributions they contrived to give the swellest entertainment of the whole convention. The managers were sore, but they had brought it on themselves by their policy of exclusion. I believe an ex-delegates' association should be formed and made a permanent institution, with a banquet once a year, for purely social purposes. Shelby Smith says such an organization would surely degenerate into a Wahneta society, but Shelby was always pessimistic. We have enough "exes" here to make a very successful society if somebody will start the ball.

One persistent, sorrowful thought
Comes into my soul's communion:
The dirtiest, scabbiest, rattiest rat
Is the rat within the union.

Some weeks ago I received a letter from F. S. Cassellman, whom those familiar with the Record twenty or twenty-five years ago will remember as "Stiffy" or "Stiff back" from the painfully erect manner in which he carried himself. He is located in Chicago, but I lost his letter, and so his address, before I found opportunity to answer it. He was a short, slight, red-headed chap, and he always kept himself dressed in the latest style. For some infraction of office rules he was dismissed and left the city. In a few days a postal card came from him worded somewhat like this:

HELM: You have discharged me, but I can get along without the Record. Heretofore I have been known as "Stiffy the Dandy;" hereafter I'll be known as

STIFFY THE BUM.

That was in 1882, and from then till the receipt of this letter I had never heard of him. He was quite young in those days, a fault I have no doubt he has in part corrected.

The Cincinnati Enquirer has invited me to subscribe for that paper for a month, at 50 cents, and incidentally give in my estimate of the total vote to be cast in Ohio for Secretary of State in November, the rewards for close estimates ranging from $5 to $44,000, with a total outlay of $107,000 in this benevolent enterprise. I have so much worry with the small amount of money I now handle that I do not care to burden myself with the responsibility for thousands, so I guess I'll stay out of it. But I recommend the scheme to those who value money merely for its own sake. Besides, the Enquirer is a very readable paper and well worth the price of admission without the gamble feature.

* * * *

I wonder if President Feeney found as much change in Ireland as that great but down trodden country found in Feeney in renewing acquaintance.

* * * *

President Mitchell has won the good opinion of everybody for the able, conservative manner in which he conducted the great coal strike, and men who are in the habit of sneering at labor leaders have expressed to me their admiration for him. With such leaders as he and Samuel Gompers, organized labor is bound to win the respect of all fair-minded men. Mr. Gompers has on several occasions refused to have his salary increased, and once declared such a motion lost in convention when it was clear to everyone's mind that it had carried. There is too great a disposition on the part of many workingmen to take the estimates of their enemies as the proper one of our labor leaders, when all who think must know it is to the interest of the opponents of labor organizations to belittle their leaders through their newspaper mouthpieces.

It is nearly always safe to take the attacks of the enemies of a man or an institution as the opposite of the truth, and never was this fact more clearly established than in the cases of Eugene Debs and Martin Irons; but they lost their strikes, and inimical newspapers have succeeded in making unfavorable impressions regarding them among workingmen themselves, though two more honest men never walked, and the fortunes of both were wrecked by their failure.

Bindery Notes.

Bill Lang, the dim lamp grafter, is a star performer on the stump in Maryland.

The next union meeting has been postponed one week owing to the fact that it falls on election day.

"Shad" Burns is moving and in the future will not be the tenant of a colored landlord. John moves in his own house.

Robert T. Frailey has been appointed delegate to the Central Labor Union. The other delegates are Feeney, Connor, and Whitelaw.

Joseph Day is making speeches every night in Paradise Park, New York, and assisting his district leader in giving out Kosher beef sandwiches.

William C. Connor has returned from New York. He says no interest is shown there in the coming election and that business is good and everybody hustling.

Ben Spellbring, the "King of the West," is brushing up his butternut suit for his visit to Cincinnati, where he will address several gatherings of Germans over the Rhine.

George Berkeley recently went to Laurel, Md., shooting squirrels. After missing several times and not being able to hit the tree he started for home disgusted with his luck. Seeing two tame rabbits by the roadside he fired at them and missed. He explained to the bops that he had forgotten his eye glasses.

Cow Boy.

AFTER-DINNER DILATIONS.

A vote of thanks to you, Mr. President.

***

The coal strike ended with a ten strike.

***

Now, Messrs. Baer, Markle et al., will you be good?

***

There was a man whose name was Baer, but who afterward was known as "Dennis."

***

Each victory achieved should inspire the workers to greater zeal for victories yet to be won.

***

An impatient public would remind President Baer of a pledge yet unredeemed. He said he would resign.

***

Jonn Mitchell is more honored with the millions of people than any of those who boast of their millions with the dollar-mark attachment.

***

The controversy just closed has demonstrated what may be expected of the "great dailies" of Washington and what may not be expected.

***

We have some choice newspaper clippings bearing on the subject of arbitration which Messrs. Baer & Co. may read when the rush is over.

***

It was a long siege, a stubborn fight, and a victory with results as far reaching as any that have come through purchase by treasure or blood.

***

Mr. Baer overestimated the power of troops and underestimated the power of real unionism; but why enumerate? Mr. Baer erred on several points.

***

Oh, when, oh, when, will the workingmen
Cast off their binding chains,
And take a place in the driver's seat
And proudly hold the reins?

—T. H. WEST.

***

The individual who seeks only his own advancement by pretended regard for others may be depended on to grow lukewarm when his personal ambition is gratified.

***

Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan is quoted as a friend of organized labor. We hope the reporter has made no mistake, for Morganized labor might mean another thing entirely.

***

They tell us that politics had nothing to do with ending the strike, and probably that is so; but the evidence is not so overpowering as to make it an inducement for the friends of fair play to surrender their right of franchise.

***

Labor is a collective force, and under the various classifications conscientious effort is required. Collectively the workers demand, through organization, only such rights and conditions as the real wealth producers may reasonably expect, with no apologies for the asking.

***

There has been some criticism of Mr. Mitchell's letter by those who were prepared with an "I-told you-so" if they had lost the strike. Mr. Mitchell very wisely allowed the operators the rope necessary to hang themselves and performed well his part when came the time for obsequies.

***

The disbursements of Typographical Union No. 101 in aid of the striking coal miners were both prompt and generous. Each individual member in real sympathy with true unionism will remember with pride that he was a contributor to the enormous fund required and which enabled the miners to proclaim to the world the greatest industrial victory ever recorded in this country. Other locals also contributed liberally, and to them the result is alike satisfactory.

***

The farmers have made several ineffectual attempts to organize for mutual protection; but the farmer is slow to recognize the fact that organization through trades unionism helps to raise the scale of wages and secures to the farmer a better market price for the produce he has to sell. If ever this fact takes possession and the farmers realize that it is to their individual interests to indorse trades unionism, the stampede will eclipse the rush for free homesteads on a Government reservation.

***

The above illustration is intended to convey to dull minds the blissful complacency which rural communities may experience while the city folk are bordering on frenzy as the price of anthracite soars beyond the reach of ordinary mortals. The illustration is also a withering rebuke to those who contend with great obstinacy that woman's sphere of usefulness is best shown within circumscribed limits. Observe with what strenuosity the lady goes about her task—the striking attitude, the carrienation determination and zeal with which she clutches the chosen instrument, and observe, also, the expression of worry on that good husband's face, while, with troubled suspense, he looks on and fears a possible accident to his beloved. Poor man!

Treasury Branch.

Miss Annie F. Leonard, of the press room, was absent several days last week.

Ira Taylor was off sick last week and Bruce Austin took his place at the copy desk.

John T. Heck is back of the presses subbing for H. J. Gaylor, who is on leave.

Miss F. R. Harkness, a temporary in the press room, was dropped from the rolls Monday.

H. D. Langdon is spending his leave with relatives and friends in Albany and Schenectady, N. Y.

A. B. Proctor, of the proof room, is on leave. Charlie Evans is holding copy during his absence.

Ed. L. Winne, our veteran pressman, has charge of the presses during the absence of Frank Frazer, who is on leave.

Mrs. A. E. I. Andrews, of the folding room, and William M. Holeman are on the sick list. Their many friends wish them a speedy recovery.

The following named went on leave this week: Misses Isabel M. Long, M. E Bowie, Messrs. T. McMahon, Bruce Austin, and Theophilis McClure.

The following gentlemen have been transferred to this division: Sidney J. Marshall, J. C. Chilson, Guy W. McCord, George F. Halsey, H. W. Templar, William H. Beringer, E. N. Bunker, L. H. Burton, Arthur G. Brown and C. P. Boss.

The employes of this division displayed their patriotism by contributing generously toward having our office decorated for the G. A. R. The result was that a decorator was engaged for the work and the room looked splendid, and was pronounced by many to be the handsomest room in the building. One of the employes also had on exhibition a photograph of Libby prison as it appeared in 1863, together with one of the six original keys to that memorable structure.

SUBSCRIBER.

Every coal mine in the Bevier, Ky., district is running full blast.

Farmers about Kirkville, Mo., are organizing to protect themselves from all sorts of schemes by speculators.

Wages in Pontiac, Ill., have increased 15 per cent since organization began.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., is experiencing a big increase in unions. Six new ones born in September and five organizing.

Carpenters in Hartford, Conn, secured the eight-hour day after prolonged lay-off, and their wages were also increased.

AROUND THE PRINTERIES.

Down Town.

"He don't shovel any coal."

Quite a number of probationary appointments this week.

A good trade: A $10 Panama hat for a bushel of anthracite.

Martin Sweeney can hear something to his advantage if he will communicate with this office.

W. O. Crosby, of Centerville, Iowa, Daily Citizen, paid this office a very pleasant visit last Saturday.

C. E. ("Turkey") Miller, of New York, was in town last week. Mr. Miller is representing the Langston Machine Co.

John J. Brennan, of Norwich, N. Y., a delegate to the United Textile Workers' convention now in session in this city, called on us Monday.

We desire to call attention to the advertisement of Clark & Davenport, furniture and carpets, in another column. This is strictly a union firm.

M. Levitan, formerly in partnership with Robbin Bros., has severed his connection with that firm and will start in business for himself at a number to be announced in our next issue. Mr. Levitan thanks his friends for past favors and assures them of the best material and workmanship for all future favors.

James H. Irwin, a member of Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, is the agent for a Washington Souvenir Calendar that for artictic beauty beats anything of the kind ever issued. It contains fine reproductions of all the public buildings, besides nearby points of interest around the city, and will certainly add greatly to the adornment of the parlor of your home folk. On exhibition at this office.

Harry F. McArdle, a well-known down-town printer, died suddenly of apoplexy October 21, 1902, aged 47 years. He was well known among the older printers of Washington, having been born here and spent his life working among the local printeries. His funeral will take place Friday at 2:30 p. m., at St. Matthew's Church, Rhode Island avenue, near Connecticut avenue. Interment at Mt. Olivet.

First Division.

Louis C. Vogt won the gun that was raffled off by Captain Robinson.

C. B. McCann, I. M. Ingalls, B. L. Fowler, and James A. West went on leave last week.

Charles E. Groome and T. B. Hoagland have been transferred to the Specification Division.

George W. Schaffer went to his home at Albany, N. Y., last week, to be in time to vote at the coming election.

The Surgeon-General's Catalogue copy is in hand and the "galley slaves" are waiting for the crack of the whip.

The beautiful G. A. R. badge, which hung over the steps in this division, was presented to Comrade Garrette by the chapel.

It is said that another South Carolinian besides Mr. Drayton has the matrimonial bee buzzing in his bonnet. I refer to him of the happy disposition, John Miller.

Tony Garner has once again become a grandpa. This time it is a grandson. Tony feels quite proud and says the boy is a chip of the old block.

Harry Gunn, our very efficient and obliging bank man, went on leave last week, and his place is being ably filled by Murray Hackett. O. B. Bellinger is subbing for Hackett as chairman of the ring alley.

To show their appreciation for the hard work and efficient manner in which Messrs. King and Robinson performed their task of decorating this room, the chapel presented each of them with a handsome American flag.

The First Division Symposium was reorganized last week with the election of the following officers: E.W.Morcock, president; J. M. Weaver, vice-president; J. F. Luitich, C. B. McDonald, and Louis Vogt, directors; W. R. Love, secretary-treasurer.

William Henry Drayton, one of the most gentle and refined characters of this room, will soon hie himself to far away Charleston town, where he expects to wed one of the fairest rosebuds of femininity of which the old "City by the Sea" can boast. Bill deserves all the happiness and good luck that is bound to fall to his lot in this case, and he will leave us in November with his division's entire good will and best wishes.

This division's decorations were so pretty that when all were taken down a great many people wanted a souvenir, while others desired all they could get away with. About 50 people had passes for "personal property" when the whistle blew, and the sight of so many bundles interested a few disgruntles who had failed to "land." These latter people were mean enough to whistle the "Rogue's March" as the men began to file out. One printer in particular became so confused that he carried his "booty" back to his frame and left it, where McDonough secured the same and put it away for future use. There were others.

Second Division.

J. M. A. Spottswood and wife returned from a pleasant trip to New York and vicinity.

J. E. Goodkey is assisting Frank Kemon on the bank during the absence of J. Dillman, who is on leave.

Frank Kemon has returned from his leave. He is one of the best makers-up in the office and is very popular.

The following compositors returned from their annual outing last week: G. F. Weidman, F. L. McUmber, and F. R. McFadyen.

Col. Drake has gone on his annual leave. During his absence he will visit the coal fields where the recent strike has been going on since last May.

Parshall is again acting bank man during the absence of E. C. Saltzman, who has gone to his home in St. Louis to vote, etc. He will be absent 30 days.

Quite a number of New Yorkers went up to register last week in order to prevent it from being any Coler during the next two years in the Empire State.

Among those who went on leave the past week were: Arthur Coykendall, E. C. Saltzman, H. F. J. Drake, T. A. McAloon, T. Frank Hall, and J. W. L. Dillman.

President Roosevelt deserves the thanks of organized labor for his efforts in settling the coal strike. He was the first occupant of the White House to put the employes of this office on an equal footing with regard to the short Saturday closing.

As a party of tourists were passing through the main building, one of the members was heard to remark as he passed alley 4, this division, and saw one of the Hebrew children handling the cold lead, "Surely, God's people are everywhere."

The many friends and admirers of William Tipton Talbott, better known to the literary world of this office as "Adam Bugg" (a very inappropriate name for so brilliant a writer and composer of poetry), has launched out into "green fields and pastures new," as it were. He is doing literary work for the Washington Post, and we think we express the sentiments of all who know him when we say "May success attend his efforts."

Al J. Gompers expects the quality and merit of his 10 cent El Sublima and 5 cent La Federacion cigars to sell them. The Union label is not used to palm off inferior cigars. The cleanest and neatest factory in Washington, 209 Penn. Avenue N. W.

Handy Andy's Aphorisms.

Karnes donned his working toga on Monday.

Martin, Piggott, and White, of Hyattsville, are back in harness again.

Sprightly backed out of the round house a few days ago and is running on schedule time again.

"Old Hoss" Cunningham is back in harness again, looking much better for his visit to Cambridge, Mass.

Another watch is to be raffled and all the boys take chances just as if they never had been swindled before.

Feeney is a great observer, one of the few men who are really deserving the classification of sociologist. In speaking of the social conditions of the old world, he said: "In Ireland I found poverty and morality, in Paris luxury and immorality, and in London anything I went out to look for."

I hear Frank Clarkson has his eye on one of the delegate jobs. Frank would make an excellent man for the place. In my humble opinion there is no man in the union better fitted to represent us in convention. I have heard also that our own Frank Ferris aspires to delegate honors. There's a good team.

Dan Beckwith passed his wife on the street the other day and chided the men who were with him for lifting their hats in cold weather. A few minutes later some one told Dan it was his better half to whom they gave the usual salutation. "My God," said Dan, "I didn't see her. I can square it all right with her, but I don't know how I can fix it up with mother."

The success of the New York feeders in having gained the advance in wages from $12 to $14 has caused some of our feeders to "masticate the tatters" and feel very much like asking for more. Remember, ladies, the New York feeders wash rollers and "fill in" for the pressman. I would like to see the feeders get all they could conveniently carry home every fortnight, but to cite the case of the New York feeders is poor argument for an advance of wages here.

Black, of Pennsylvania, a new man in the press room, was marking out a sheet the other day just as the guide was escorting through the building a left-over party of Keystone sightseers, who had been celebrating G. A. R. week. One old lady stopped awhile to watch Black's hieroglyphics, and, while she was gazing intently at his deft swing and beautiful inshoots, he suddenly cut out a strip on which were some tail ends of blue marks. With the eagerness of a souvenir fiend she picked up the scrap and asked the artist if she might have it. He blushed and said she might, and, as she passed on with the rest of the bunch, she said, "Thank you, sir. I've got a neice in Chambersburg, only 3 years old, who can knock the tar out of your drawing."

A Grand Entertainment.

Government Printing Office Council, No. 211, National Union, will give a concert, euchre, and dance at Convention Hall, Wednesday evening, November 19. The concert (instrumental) will begin at 7:30 sharp, euchre playing to commence at 8:30, followed by dancing, during which more than one hundred people will receive valuable presents from the Council. Participants will receive diamond rings and many other articles of value, useful and ornamental. Tickets, admitting the holder to all entertainments, 50 cents. This promises to be the largest attended event of the season and will be a record breaker.

Whether an onlooker or a participant all visitors will enjoy it, and at the same time aid the funds of the Council. The following compose the committee in charge of the affair: D. V. Chisholm, Joseph Dierken, Fred Hall, Jesse Grant and Titus F. Ellis. Do not miss the first of the season.

Specification Scintillations.

Charles P. Peake has been transferred to the main office.

Miss Lizzie Higgins, of the press-room, is on leave.

F. H. Melick has returned to work after a pleasant vacation. He has our "sym."

The smiling face of Mr. Thomas Billings is again in our midst. "Spess" work is his "long suite."

Scott K. Young and Samuel H. Bell are two "Spess" veterans. As authorities on "style" they stand pre-eminent.

Walter L. Evans, E. A. Hutchison, D. W. Beach, M. P. Connelly, J. R. McBride, and D. J. McCarty returned to work last Friday.

Despite the aggressiveness of his name, E. E. Shott is a man of peace, patience, and perseverance and his record as a workman is A No. 1.

John G. Jameson is enjoying his annual vacation. He leaves for his home at Lyons, N. Y., where he will participate in the November election.

The work of taking down our decorations took place last Friday. The committee in charge of this work were under the leadership of F. W. Henke.

E. L. Scott, in charge of Official Gazette work, is another of our highly respected officials and is well and favorably known to the membership of Columbia Union.

The jovial and rotund W. E. Grimes, of the proof room, continues in a happy frame of mind. He is the personification of contentment and is ever ready to cheer up the dyspeptic and melancholy.

In the absence of J. R. McBride, our efficient clerk, his desk has been temporarily occupied by E. P. Murray, who has proved himself equal to the task and dispatched business with the dexterity of a veteran clerk.

Through an unavoidable mistake the name of two very efficient members of committee on decoration were omitted in last week's issue, namely, Miss Josepha Lange and James M. Montgomery, our poet laureate.

Mord Hyams, custodian of the galley bank and proof press, was a very busy man last Monday and Tuesday, when we worked twelve hours. He was master of the situation, however, and was found in line when the gong sounded.

H. F. Wilson, C. E. Smalley, and Charles F. Fletcher, of the proof room, are three gentlemen who have risen from the ranks by reason of close application to "Spess" work and general proficiency. May their shadows never grow less.

The following gentlemen reported for active duty in this division last Friday: E. F. G. Hazle, Charles E. Groome, Thomas Doonan, W. S. McKean, D. T. Lloyd, Bert V. Wolfe, T. B. Hoagland, L. M. Divine, Charles A. Stretch, and James T. Ray.

To facilitate the work of this division, it is necessary to intrust the important task of preparing copy to men of exceptional ability and accuracy. These men have been found in the person of the erudite and analytical J. S. Ziegler and Charles Garrels.

"There is glory enough for all," said Commodore Schley at Santiago, and this sentiment is acquiesced in by his cousin, George J. Schley, of the proof room. He is one of our popular employes and, like his distinguished relative, is held in high esteem.

The following employes went on leave last Thursday: F. B. Cowden, M. W. Barr, R. C. Wilson, George E. Pittman, Warren C. Wood, A. Force Engel, J. C. Gaulden, R. E. Thomas, Miss Bertha E. Tellyr, F. M. Lewis, E. J. Handly, L. M. Bumpus, and James Woods.

Alley 5 is the banner reservation for lightning changes in its personnel. It is a veritable asylum for new recruits and psychologists. Within the radius of a year alley 5 contained atheists, spiritualists, socialists, Christians, and pessimists, but, notwithstanding this diversity of thought, its inhabitants seem to get along amicably.

The chapel meeting held last Wednesday marked the close of all attempts to regulate or amend existing conditions affecting the "average." Chairman Hauer called the assemblage to order, after which Secretary Miller read the minutes of the last meeting. The committee appointed to consult with the authorities concerning certain "phat" made their report, Messrs. E. J. Handly, W. L. Gutelius, and Andrew McGarraghy constituting said committee. The report disclosed the fact that the committee did not deem it necessary to consult with the authorities and, in the language of a certain distinguished statesmen, concluded to "stand pat." On motion the report was adopted and committee discharged. At this juncture Mr. John B. Jaques obtained the floor and began to address the chapel, but when he was nearing a climax the cruel gong sounded and his oratory was lost in the shuffle. The chairman then declared the chapel adjourned, and the profound and interesting meeting passed into history.

A SINGER'S WOOING.

A singer in the village choir
Once loved a girl named Nance.
One morning as he churchward strolled,
Clad in his Sunday pants,
He met her coming down the road,
Demure and sweetly shy,
And mused, "Ah, were her hand but mine!
To win it I will try.
I'll ask her if she'll help complete
My matrimonial plans;
I guess my chances are as good
As any other man's."

He lingered all the sermon out,
The final prayer was said;
Yet little recked that singer how
The golden moments sped.
Nay, not one whit did he regret,
Bathed in erotic bliss,
His having dared to miss the chants
That he might chance the miss.

—ADAM BUGG.

There are no unorganized workers in Pittsburg, Kans.

Labor Notes.

Annapolis, Md., carpenters want an eight-hour day.

Sydney, Australia, street car men have inaugurated the eight-hour day.

The number of laborers required to cultivate the tea crop in India is 666,000.

Chicago team owners may appoint a labor commissioner to hear complaints.

The American Federation of Labor would add a building trades section to the organization.

Alabama miners alone are now contributing $44,000 a month to the anthracite miners.

Havana, Cuba, butchers, bakers, and coachmen won their demands for nine hours at $2 per day.

Pineville, Ky., coal miners have signed satisfactory contracts. The 800 men returned to work.

The plumbing supply men, Cleveland, Ohio, have been granted a nine-hour workday without a strike.

New Orleans has in recent years become a well organized city, having more than 40,000 trade unionists.

Los Angeles, Cal., unions have voted to go into politics with a full labor ticket in next fall's election.

The Denver Wholesale Producers' Association has just been organized and will begin business December 1.

Kingston, Canada, labor men talk of establishing a national headquarters there independent of American control.

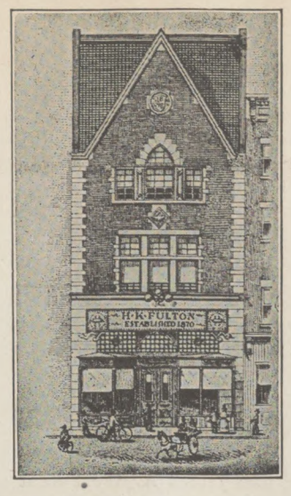
Agitation for an old-age pension system has been renewed, and the subject will come before the American Federation of Labor at its annual convention, to be held in New Orleans, November 6.

All work done in Elgin, Ill., is by union employes.

Soap makers in all the large Chicago factories are organizing.

Plumbers, Gas, and Steam Fitters now have 339 local in the international.

Since organizing Electrical Workers of Clinton, Iowa, gained the nine-hour workday and an increase of 25 cents to 50 cents per day in wages.



Don't pay 10 per cent

THE TRADES UNIONIST.

OFFICIAL ORGAN CENTRAL LABOR UNION, WASHINGTON BRANCH, AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR.

Vol. VII. No. 21. WASHINGTON, D. C., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1902. Price, 3 Cents.

THE CENTRAL LABOR UNION

An Interesting and Enthusiastic Meeting Monday Night.

IN SESSION HALF THE NIGHT

Secretary of the Navy William H. Moody's Public Address Declared to Be Unjust to Organized Labor—Credentials Received—Plumbers and Gasfitters' Union Out—Federal Labor Union, No. 8193, Indorsed.

The Central Labor Union was called to order at 8 o'clock p. m. by Vice-President Silver.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Credentials were received from Beer Drivers' and Stablemen's Union No. 234, certifying R. F. West and Lawrence Burke, vice George Schnebel and James Brown, resigned; from International Association of Marble Workers, certifying D. Hartnett, A. T. Preston, J. H. Windsor, J. Heath and Thomas Dooley; from Laundry Drivers' Local Union No. 467, T. D. I. U., certifying H. L. Tribbs, W. B. Hoff, G. G. Burrows, J. W. Dalton, and W. W. Foster. They were referred to the Committee on Credentials and on favorable report delegates were obligated and seated.

Communications were received from Ceramic, Mosaic, and Encaustic Tile Layers and Helpers' International Union No. 2, and referred to the Contract Committee; from Coopers' International Union to the Bartenders' League; from International Association of Allied Metal Mechanics, Hod Carriers' Brick and Mortar Wheelers' Union No. 9468, and Secretary Frank Morrison to the Building Trades Section; from the Retail Clerks' International Protective Association, Local Union No. 262 and Internatipnal Union of Steam Engineers, Local Union No. 99, to the Grievance Committee; from Shingle Weavers' Union No. 8891, Tacoma, Wash., to the Carpenters' District Council.

The Grievance Committee reported that they had visited Messrs. Corby Bros. bakery and had been assured that in the future all their work would be done in union shops when practicable.

They also reported that they had visited Mr. J. R. McLean in the interests of the Gas Workers' Union, and had been informed by Mr. McLean that he had no objections to the employees of the Gas House maintaining an organization and that the men would be reinstated as fast as they applied for work and could be placed by the company.

Under the call of unions the Brewery Workmen requested that the C. L U. instruct its delegate to the A. F. of L. convention to use his good offices to have their union label so changed as to avoid conflict with International Union Steam Engineers. Granted.

Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen thanked the Grievance Committee for their aid in adjusting the difficulty between their organization and the Washington Cold Storage and Slaughtering Co.

Retail Clerks' stated that Mr. Joseph Auerbach had entered into an agreement with them and requested that he be taken from the unfair list. The request was granted.

A communication was read from Machinist Protective Lodge No. 215, of Rutland, Vt., in relation to the Emerson Steam Vacuum Pump Co., having their pumps manufactured by the F. R. Patch Manufacturing Co. The letter was received and a committee consisting of Delegates Litchfield, Sprague, Lynch, Ratigan, and Pfau were empowered to call on the Emerson Co. in relation to the firm of Patch Manufacturing Co., whose employees have been on strike since May 5 last.

The committee appointed to draft suitable resolutions in reply to certain alleged statements of the Hon. William H. Moody, Secretary of the Navy, submitted the following:

WHEREAS, The published reports of a speech delivered by the Hon. William H. Moody, at Madison, Wis., of recent date, credit him with the statement that the cost of work when done by the government in its own workshops, exceeds by twice or thrice the amount that of the same class of work when done under contract with private parties: and

WHEREAS, In support of his statements Mr. Moody cited the Government Printing Office and the Navy Yard at Washington, D. C., as illustration, and stated incidentally that the cost of work in the Government Navy Yard was due to the fact that the employees are paid 70 per cent more per hour than those of the Cramp's shipyard in Philadelphia, Pa.; and

WHEREAS, An opportunity has been given Mr. Moody through a communication from this body to affirm or deny the statements so publicly credited to him, of which opportunity he has failed to avail himself; and

WHEREAS, Investigation and comparison will prove that in the different branches of the Government Printing Office, the quality of materials used and the workmanship being considered, the work done does not exceed in cost that of the same class of work when done by reputable private concerns, but on the contrary is in many instances much cheaper: and

WHEREAS, While Mr. Moody in a spirit of unfairness, has selected for comparison with the Washington Navy Yard, the shipyards of the Cramps Company of Philadelphia, Pa.. where the employees are required to work 10 hours per day, and where they are notoriously underpaid, and has totally ignored the fact that a large percentage of the work done in the Washington Navy Yard, and the other navy yards of the country could not possibly be done by any private concern in the country at a reasonable cost; still he has grossly exaggerated the difference in the wages paid, unless he charges to the Navy-yard account the salaries of those naval officers who are detailed by the Department to superintend naval constructions, whether by private contract or otherwise, free of cost to the contractors: be it

Resolved, That the Central Labor Union, representing the workingmen of the District of Columbia, and therefore the employees of the branches of the Government service so stigmatized in Mr. Moody's public statement does hereby declare the statements above referred to to be unjust, inaccurate, and misleading, and without foundation in fact; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be placed in the hands of the President of the United States, that a copy be forwarded to the Hon. Wm. H. Moody, Secretary of the Navy, and that they be given to the press for publication.

Report accepted and recommendation concurred in.

The Plumbers requested that a committee of three be appointed to investigate the difficulty between their organization and the Steam Fitters' Union No. 10, on the building corner Seventeenth street and Pennsylvania avenue. Request was granted, and Delegates Winslow, Spohn, and Cowan were appointed.

Tho request of the Allied Council of Building Trades, that "the delegates from the Journeymen Plumbers and Gasfitters' Union, No. 5, be denied representation in the Central Labor Union until such time as they might reaffiliate with the Allied Council of Building Trades," was granted. The application of the Plumbers and Gasfitters wns denied after a long and bitterly contested session. The Plumbers immediately noted an appeal to the American Federation of Labor, and the question will be brought up by that body at an early date.

The following resolutions are self-explanatory.

WHEREAS, Federal Labor Union, No. 8193, of Washington, D. C., composed entirely of the female employees of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, having taken an active part in all matters pertaining to organized labor: and

WHEREAS, Said Federal Labor Union, No. 8193, has by its earnest efforts increased their membership some 250 members within the past year; and

WHEREAS, There is employed in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing something like 2,000 women, one-fifth of whom are now members of said Federal Labor Union, No. 8193, and it being the desire to have all of these employees banded together in one union for their mutual protection; and

WHEREAS, The said Federal Labor Union, No. 8193, through its officers, having exhausted all the honorable means at their command to bring about the desired result and having failed; therefore be it

Resolvsd, That the American Federation of Labor in convention assembled in the city of New Orleans, La., hereby instructs its Executive Council and officers to confer with the executive officers of Federal Labor Union No. 8193, at the earliest moment for the purpose of devising ways and choosing the best method of bringing the rest of the women employes into the folds of the union, and thereby unionizing the Bureau of Engraving and Printing; and be it further

Resolved, That upon the adoption of these resolutions the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor are instructed to communicate with the officers of the Federal Labor Union, No. 8193, and appoint time and place of meeting.

Respectfully submitted,

FEDERAL LABOR UNION, NO. 8193,
Washington, D. C.

The request that the delegate to the American Federation of Labor convention from Central Labor Union of Washington, D. C., be instructed to extend all aid in his power to secure the passage of the above resolutions. Request granted.

At 12:20 the meeting adjourned.

First Division.

Chairman R. L. Mabrey has been quite ill for a week.

That Crawford-Radley-Butler prize piano still remains a doubtful remunerative proposition.

Charley Durno, the half-savage who wields the tomahawk in Indian ally (18), left Saturday for Chicago to vote.

A great many printers, other than those mentioned, have gone home to vote, but failed to register a cigar with the undersigned before going.

"Adam Bug" Talbott, the sweet singer and philosopher, is receiving well merited recognition at the hands of intelligently and progressive editors. There is no doubt about Bro. Talbott's success in the literary field.

Lawyer Foote, one of the Pennsylvania Republican Committeemen, told me the other night tnat he was considerably amused at the earnestness displayed by a printer of the G. P. O., who wanted to go home and vote, and was hung up somewhat by his foreman. Colonel Foote says the printer forgot to apply for leave of absence until the last minute, then rushing over to his boss, said: "I'd like to get leave to go home to vote, sir."

"Why didn't you apply at the right time?" he was asked. And just to kid the employee, continued, "I am afraid I can't spare you now."

"But, Mr. Foreman, I've got to go," said the Philadelphian.

"Why? Is your vote necessary in Philadelphia?" he was asked.

"My vote? Why, sir, not vote but votes. I'm registered in six different wards. And the reason I forgot to apply for leave before is because my mind has been entirely occupied of late trying to figue out all the names I'm down under." He was excused.

F. M. Richardson, one of the Indian chiefs in the Indian alley, left us Saturday, after a goodly luncheon of baked chestnuts, for his home in Cleveland, where he desires to vote. Old "Stomach Sticking-to-His-Back" is a good-natured critter, and besides being well-liked, is a hardy man in any community. "Rich" has a well-stocked drawer in his frame, which he keeps locked usually, but he left it open in his haste Saturday, and the boys, being decidedly curious, explored this drawer. The following were some of the things found: Fourteen rusty sticks, all sizes; 1 box of assorted rules; 1 box 6 point leaders; 1 box 6-point quads; 1 box 6-point nut scabbard; 1 box carpet tacks; 1 bottle liver pills (never been used); 1 bottle castor oil, ditto; 1 bottle vermifuge, one-half used; 1 bottle mouth wash for infants; 1 cake of office soap; 6 bottles of assorted medicines; 5 letters, all prospectus schemes to get rich; 1 copy of When Christ Came to Congress; 3 photos of Indian women posing in the altogether; 1 average book; 6 complete average slip pads; 1 whole piece of chalk; 3 fish hooks; 1 spool of thread; some nonp. pi; several little packages of various Indian sorts—just then the whistle blew.

Speaking of Clotilde, I might say that (in endeavoring to do the right thing) while a little excitable at times, he is true to his friends, and a jolly good fellow day in and day out. He has considerable talent, too, being a musician of some note and very little discord. Clotilde poses as a lightweight comedian, too; and I have seen worse. But he evidently got the frosty hand in the make-up of the Burnt Cork Club, recently organized among the printer boys. He told me confidentially, one morning, the following story, and employed his saddest expressions and his acutest and most accented words in rounding it out. Said he:

"Well, they raised h—— last night!"

"Who do you mean by 'they,' old man," I asked, "rubbering" to see where the boss was.

"Why, the minstrel company I was telling you about yesterday. The boys met at my house, mind you, last night, to organize. There was Tommy Jones, of the Third; Johnny Purvis, of the Record; Harry Templar, of the Night Force; Nelson Moyer, of this division, and a few other fellows present, none of them knowing a dam-ting about a minstrel show. Well, you know I am a member of the Entertainment Committee, and have been end man in several minstrel shows, and know somepin, and, as I said, the meeting was in my house, and as my wife had made sandwiches and I had 'rushed the can,' of course I expected, out of respect, that the 'Indians' would say: 'What do you want, Clotilde?' Did they. Naw! Just as soon as Moyer had eaten all the sandwiches, Purvis had drained the can, and Templar had waked my baby up singing 'Je-ru-sa-lem'—now ain't that a fine song to sing on the end?—Jones jumps up, after talking my wife nearly cross-eyed and says: 'I'll be chairman of this thing, and therefore appoint myself leader of the orchestra.' Moyer nominated himself Jones' assistant; Purvis says: 'I'll be the interlocutor,' and just as I got up, Templar says, 'I'll play end man.' I turned to spit, and as I did so, some slob winds up the business by saying: 'I'll be the other end man! And where was I? Nothing 'doin'!"

"Why, Cloty, old boy," says I, commencing to set type (for the boss had stepped out and commenced to look (,) see(?)ward), "you appear to have gotten left."

"Well, not 'zactly. Jones, after banging my pianer for about an hour, suggested that I ought to get something, and says to Moyer: 'Lets put Clotilde on the door? Purvis, the jealous devil, said 'he was sorry, but he didn't think the committee could put the doorkeeper's picture in the Year Book!' So I got mad and told them I'd break the whole thing up by refusin to have anything to do with it. So——"

Just then Clotilde broke ground so fast that I looked up and saw the boss coming our way.

And yet Menard says we are "parasites."

"Clotilde" left Washington Saturday night for New York, where he expects to vote early and often on Tuesday. Before separating himself entirely from us, he paid his respects to the "Indian" alley, and requested the undersigned to "write his stuff for the TRADES UNIONIST this week." "Do the right thing," said he, with a meaning gleam in his "expressive" eyes. "And, by the way, give the Specification and Second Division correspondents my compliments and tell them to go to Texas."

"What for?" I asked.

"What for?" quoth he, in astonishment. "What for? Why haven't you read what the editor of the Second Division B. U. G. journal said about my throwing bouquets at the First Division's decorating committee? What possible concern is it of his if I say something complimentary about the boys of the First? If the decorating committee of the First adopt certain designs of decoration, one of them being Sergeant Oliver Cromwell Terry, and they pay him $3 for putting it up, without loss of pay at that, it seems to me the gallant Oliver Cromwell has at least received all of the renumerative end of it."

That's all right, Clotilde. Give Col. Terry plenty of credit. He's a good fellow. Besides "S. M. G." just naturally makes mountains out of mole hills, and like the First Division milk man episode, demonstrates him as a little weak on his trigger. But Simp. is all right at heart. Let him off.

"Well, what are you going to say to this," excitedly continued gentle Clotilde, pointing to an item under the signature of "Dranem." "That fellow's name isn't Dranem. Its Menard! You know that Cuban or colored extraction who used to work down here in the First and on the Record, too? That's him. Well, about a week or two ago I got off a joke on Tony Garner, in which I made him say something to a stranger about this being the largest division in the Printing Office. As I said before," continued he, stopping to bat his eyes a few times, "that statement was made in a joking way, but when I think of it, what I said was so. The First Division is the largest in the Government Printing Office building. That's right. But my thick-skinned friend, with the ear-marks of a guilerina, branded A. A. I. fine, butts in this week and tries to work in a branch office on me. However, that portion of his untiring appeal for flue recognition doesn't concern me much. Its what he says about the Specification room being the only self-supporting division in the Government Printing Office. That remark is not only a reflection on the men composing every other division under the Public Printer, but a sort of criticism of the kind of men employed by the office itself. Menard continues by saying: 'All other divisions being parasites and tolerations of the General Government.'

"Are you going to let that go by without calling him?" queried Clotilde, excitedly, at the same time handing the paper to a friend who "would'nt think of subscribing for the dang thing."

"That will be allright, Cloty. Just you wait until he is sent back to the main office. I'll bet a good cigar, if he is properly placed, he'll think his foreman stands in a watch tower, uses a field glass and a search light all for his special benefit, and I haven't any particular foreman in view either. 'Parasites,' are we? Well, the boys will be all on, and I bet he is sorry now he let his quill run away with his fine discretion. Captain Ramsey and the Specification workmen, all of them, are honest workmen, no doubt; but when a member of that branch office, who poses as a union man, so far begets himself as to cast directly false reflections upon his fellow workmen, as it seems, merely for the purpose of self-glorification at the hands of his immediate bosses, he deserves every bit of the utter contempt heard expressed on every hand in the main building today. So let it go at that, Clotilde."

That seemed to pacify Clotilde, all right. So handing me a box of cigars, broke away.

Handy Andy's Aphorisms.

The "Sym" closed up last month and each member was $11 to the good by the six month's investment. Shades of Shylock! rise from thy grave and howl.

The rediculous modesty reflected by the District Commissioners in directing the bill posters to paste chunks of white paper over the nether extremities of fence displays of female lovliness might find broader fields at the library building where mud turtles, snakes, and playful strong men are blowing water on two ladies in negligee. Paper might not do in this instance, but pink pajamas for the nymphs and a mother hubbard for neptune would conform to the demands of the straight laced citizens whom the Commissioners are endeavoring to please.

Our erstwhile compatriot Myron Ferron has blindly leaped into the turbulent sea of matrimony, foresworn the oil stove and fuzzy white dog of his bachelor days and plunged headlong into the whirlpool of grocery bills, new bonnets, home-made biscuits, and two car fares instead of one. Miss Sally Price, an estimable lady from Kentucky, drew the lucky number, and whatever may have been said of Myron's financial condition heretofore, you may safely wager that hereafter Myron has the price.

The "all printers" minstrel aggregation are making great strides towards perfecting their melodious first part under the able direction of Herr Thomas L. Jones, B. A. (baton aggitator). Likewise is Sig. Weston, of the bindery constellation, whipping his vocalists and commedians into line. The minstrel fever breaks out now and then with renewed vigor, but this year it seems to be an epidemic. The latest and most virulent case I have heard of is that the feeders propose to eclipse all former efforts by putting on a female minstrel outfit that will be pleasing and attractive.

Martin Curtin sold his pet monkey to an Italian organ grinder for $15. That's $15 more than he paid for it. Two days later the Dago came back and laying the monk on the bar demanded a return of the $15. "Vera bada monk," said the son of Italy. "Runa in saloon, pulla de chain from my han. Jumpa ona de count. Taka de whisk—drinka de whisk, getta vera drunk raisa hell—I no want him." Martin said he didn't care to take him back and advised the Dago to take him to the Keeley cure. Sad and dejected the Dago picked up the monkey and started out. As he reached the door he turned and muttered: "Vera bada place for de monk. Vera near print office."

Permit me to add my little amen to the suggestion offered in your last issue as to the rightousness of a united effort on the part of the trades unions represented in this office, in reciprocating the favors we have all received at the hands of the Public Printer. He is the poorest paid officer in charge of an important branch of the government service, and his yearly stipend rediculously inadequate compared with the responsibility that rests upon his shoulders. He never failed to champion our cause when an advance was asked and now let us, unsolicited, make a united effort to have more financial consideration shown to him when the next annual budget is made up. There is no doubt but that if the proper course is pursued a deserving increase will be asked for and readily obtained. Now don't talk too long about it. Get together and do something.

HANDY ANDY.

Bennings Meeting.

The fall meeting at this track which for the past six years has given the greatest pleasure to its patrons and has been rightfully growing in popular favor, commences Monday, November 10, 1902.

The appreciation of the public for this meeting is traceable to the good sport provided and the masterly manner in which law and order is maintained.

The Washington Jockey Club consists of men occupying positions in every phase of financial, professional, and commercial life in the District of Columbia, who are providing high class racing so dear to all lovers of all true sport.

Those who have seen the racing at Chantilly and Bois de Boulogne, France, the long distance hurdle and steeplechasing of Australia, Epsom, Kemston or Sandown parks, England, have seen the best jockeys and finest thoroughbreads those countries could produce, will watch with interest this meeting.

The finest blooded stock in the United States is slated to be here and with fine weather the best racing ever seen near the National Capital is insured.

Every accommodation for the convenience of the public has been made.

The course is easily reached by the electric cars and Pennsylvania Railroad.

London Belles.

At the Lyceum Theater next week Rose Sydell's Londoa Belles will perform in their own lively fashion. The leaders in the cast are Rose Sydell, W. S. Campbell and John Weber, John F. Clark, Washburn and Grant, Anderson and Wallace, James LaClair, Billy Hart, Belle Austin, Leslie Mayo, Ruth Denver, and Tony Devere.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1902.

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

Meeting a friend the other day, he asked:

"Why don't you write reminiscences of old-time printers, as you used to? I always liked to read them."

"But a whole lot of fellows don't, and I am trying to please them," said I.

"I wouldn't bother to please such d——d fools," said he. "Give us some good old time stories."

I hated to tell him that I had about written myself out, which was the real reason for the let-down. but there are those who will rejoice to learn the fact. But I do know one more.

Dick Toler was one of the most remarkable men, mentally and physically, that I have ever known. He was robust after the manner of "Maude S.," and trousers the waistband of which was anywhere near his size always lacked about 4 inches of reaching his shoe tops. Again like "Maude S.," he was particularly bright, well read, and could write as interesting an article as anyone would want to read. He was somewhat lacking in habits of industry and never cared to undertake the responsibility of a regular situation, an occasional day's work filling the measure of his ambition. He originated somewhere in Illinois, but "starred" through the greater number of States. He was a particularly slow traveler and I never knew him to patronize railroads or steamboats. He would stay in a town as long as he and the town could stand it, and them by easy stages he would reach the next one. The Missouri River knew him thirty years ago, and I met him in St. Louis, Nashville, Atlanta, Savannah, Washington, and New York. He finally got back to Illinois and died there some years ago—about a quarter of a century, I think.

At Nashville the picking was particularly poor, and Dick was reduced to the extremity of stealing a lunch in the U. and A. office one night. The bloated regular to whom it belonged found his lunch box filled with quoins, but minus the turkey sandwiches and other delicacies with which he regaled himself.

"Some thieving sub stole my lunch last night," said the regular next day, looking fiercely at Dick.

"Are you making any allusions at me?" asked Toler.

"Well, I wouldn't put it past you," said the regular, "though you don't look like you'd ever had that much to eat."

"I eat pretty regular," said Dick, "and I put up the coin for it, too."

"Guess you don't put up wooden ones everywhere," said the reg., who didn't feel absolutely sure of his case.

"I'll not stay here to be insulted," said Dick, and with a pair of old shoes that he swiped from under the same regular's frame he dug out for Atlanta the next morning.

He was not particularly choice as to raiment in general, and I remember a case where he brought the landlady's daughter a box of candy during one one of the rare intervals when he had a boarding house.

"It's very nice, Mr. Toler," said she, "and very good of you, but I believe I'd rather you had taken the money and bought yourself some socks."

* * * *

I have been asked to "give the Ladies' Auxiliary of Columbia Union a send off," and I'd be delighted to do it if I knew anything about it. At Cincinnati last year the Ladies' Auxiliary rendered valuable assistance in entertaining the ladies accompanying delegates and ex-delegates, and I have no doubt could render the same valuable service here, but whether anything has been done looking to an organization I don't know. If these few lines will fetch those out of their shells who do know, then I will feel that I have done one of my characteristic charitable and beneficial acts. Now, ladies and gentlemen, it's up to you—the first to organize and the latter to find the ways and means—i. e., the "stuff."

* * * *

I received a letter from "Chief" Matt Hayes the other day, extracts from which may prove interesting. While I am afraid that I am referred to in the following paragraph, still I give it:

Now, I want to ask you a question. How is it that a Union like 101 is blind to the fact that it possesses men of marked ability and great intellectual attainments and never recognizes them by promoting them to office, while a cheap selling plater can gallop in with the spoils? The mixed character of a Union like that of Washington is the only way that I can account for it. Every "roundhead" capable of passing that counterfeit civil service hies himself there, and that possibly explains it.

If the following shall sufficiently call attention to the gentleman referred to and shall set the bee buzzing in his bonnet, I will feel amply rewarded for quoting it:

You have one man in your Union, a member from his boyhood, and with no stain upon his eusutcheon, who is without doubt the best educated, most scholarly and cultured man in your Union, and I have yet to learn of his name ever being mentioned for office. This, no doubt, is due to his diffidence. I refer to Ambrose O'Keefe.

Matt ought to know, and Ambrose also, that men nominate themselves to office in this Union, notwithstanding the form we go through. If you want anything, Ambrose, I'll nominate you with pen and voice.

As I am unable to make use of the information given in the next paragraph, not having the simoleons, I will prove than I am not a dog in the manger by giving it to the world:

I want to put you next to a good thing In the benighted State of Pennsylvania there is a town named Sharon, and adjoining it South Sharon. It is composed of hard-fisted sons of toil and union to the core. A man with a small capital, say $1,500, could start a paper there and quadruple his capital in a year, and this is no pill dream.

About himself and other things:

Tom Crowley, of Cincinnati, I hear, is quite sick.

I am reading proof, making up, and general factotum on a herd book here and the work is strenuous. Among the pedigrees I found the following: "Terry McGovern; bull; red; sire, John L. Sullivan; out of Maggie Cline." Wouldn't that jar you?

That ought to be a very fine animal.

Matt sends regards to all his friends.

Along in 1885 I read proof on Specifications for a few months. Picking up a proof about to be sent out (some one else had read it), I noticed that the word "mesne" was divided and called the attention of one of the old readers (not now connected with Spess) to it.

"Oh, yes," he said, "we divide mes-ne" (pronouncing it so) "right along here. Why not?"

"Only because the dictionary calls it mean," said I.

"I don't believe it," said he, and he proceeded to look. "Well, I'll be d——d!" he commented.

"Dictionary Brown" was one of the most precise men on pronunciation we every had and many a time he called me down for mispronouncing a word—correctly called me down, too. Happening to discover that Worcester pronounced "accessory" with the accent on the ac and so, instead of the cess, as Webster does, I "laid for him," firing the word at him with the Worcesterian pronunciation. As usual, he repeated the word as I had pronounced it and laughed.

"I thought you were a friend of Worcester," said I.

"I am," said he, "but he doesn't use any such a fool pronunciation as that."

"Look!" said I.

He did, and the disgust depicted on his face was ample reward for my labor.

These two little anecdotes go to show how smart I am and how little other people really know.

In 1822 William W. Seaton was Grand Master of Masons of the District of Columbia, and in 1902—eighty years later—his son, Malcolm Seaton, fills that great office. The present Grand Master was born eight years after his father was elected to that position, and as he is himself quite an elderly gentleman, the great lapse of years is accounted for. Mr. Seaton, the elder, who was Grand Master in 1822, 1823, and 1824, was a member of the firm of Gales & Seaton, printers for the Government for many years, and was at one time mayor of the city. The present Mr. Seaton is chief of a division in the Patent Office, and is a very affable, dignified gentleman of the old school.

The Yearbook is now under way, and the officials and committeemen who have not handed in their sketches and photos will have to hustle to catch the last train. It promises to be the most interesting and artistic Yearbook yet issued. Tom Bynum is making the effort of his life.

The Times is making a feature of publishing miscellaneous matter lately, though why it should devote so great a portion of the editorial page of the evening edition to authors and actors—books and the stage—is beyond me. Every daily paper ought to publish a page of miscellaneous matter every day. It would be the most thoroughly read page in the paper. Serials are a nuisance anywhere, and especially in a daily paper. Give us plenty of matter that will interest and amuse. We get tired of the alleged daily news and the routine matter to which most of the pages are devoted.

It will be something of a shock to the older members to learn that Adrian M. Jones, formerly well known in this city and corresponding and recording secretary of Columbia Union in 1880-82, is now an inmate of the Union Printers' Home. It is hoped that his disability is but temporary, as he is yet too young a man to be permanently retired.

Charles Estep, here last winter, is holding down a regular machine for the job side of the Inter Mountain, Butte, Mont.

A Ladies' Auxiliary has been organized at Omaha, Nebr., of which Mrs. Frank A. Kennedy (wife of Mr. Sadie Maguire) is a prominent member. Other auxiliaries are organized or organizing at Norfolk, Brooklyn, St. Joe, Mo., and Columbus, Ohio. Is Washington to have one?

We are very soon to vote on the proposition to levy an assessment of 5 cents a month on the membership, for the purpose of carrying on the fight against the Los Angeles Times. It is to be hoped that it will be carried by a large majority, for the Times is a menace to unionism everywhere, by supplying "rats" to order. The enmity of the managers of that paper to labor is such that it is now a fight to a finish, and it is our duty to stand by our brethren in their battles, thanking the Lord that we are not embroiled. The amount involved is too small for any one to vote against the proposition because of the expense.

The Philadelphia correspondent of the Typographical Journal says Shelby Smith is reading proof at Buchanan's, a book office of that city.

Specification Scintillations.

Charles J. Duffy is "on leave."

Charles C. Koehl is enjoying a brief vacation.

Ira T. Boyant and W. H. Kent are "on leave."

E. J. Handley, the Ajax of Alley 7, is with us once more.

J. M. Rissler has returned from a pleasant 30-day vacation.

J. H. Edsall is spending his vacation in New York City. He is accompanied by his family.

Ivins Davis was absent from his frame several days last week on account of illness.

Mrs. Nannie McMichael and Miss Minnie L. Aylward received probationary appointments last Friday.

Cornelius A. Conner has been called "from labor to refreshment." He is reading proof temporarily.

In the absence of Chas. Garrells, the important duties of copy editor have devolved upon Frank J. Ward.

W. A. Marschalk is all smiles. He received a regular appointment recently and has been assigned to this division.

Will L. Mattocks, of Mexico, has received a probationary appointment and was assigned to this division last Thursday.

Jason Waterman, although a proof-reader, is very popular with the "men behind the cases," having received a large vote electing him a teller at an I. T. U. election a short while ago.

John R. Morrison, of the proof-room, is among the few employees here who are slowly but surely ascending the ladder of merit, with patient eyes fixed upon the topmost rung. His friends are legion.

John W. Childress and Miss Ella M. Wallace made their maiden appearance in the proof-room as copy-holders last week. They performed their duties so well that an encore awaits them at no distant day.

B. F. Mann, the able lieutenant of Major Dodge, of the proof-room, is sometimes called upon to act as chief proof-reader. He is both methodical and good-natured, and his physiognomy betrays the earnest student. He is evidently "the right man in the right place."

The following "temporary" men were given cases in this division last Thursday: C. T. Hutchinson, John H. Hooper, George Healey, Lippincott, Richard Power, Clarence Miller, John J. Sullivan, Joseph Gibson, Edwin W. Edmonston, Will P. Doing, John M. Castel, and John F. Lane.

W. L. Auchmoody, of this division, is spending his vacation at his home in Liberty, New York. Recently he sent two magnificent gray squirrels, victims to his trusty rifle, to Mr. Theodore Hodes, our assistant foreman. Mr. Hodes himself is a sportsman of no mean ability and took especial pride in exhibiting the game to a number of our employees.

The habit of trading "sorts" is a provocation for many amusing sounds. From Alley 8 emerges the most fascinating voice. It reminds one of the dulcet tones of a siren or a whippoorwill sighing for its mate. Its stirs the innermost depths of the soul and causes the heart to palpitate like that of a hunted gazelle. Rising with a soft tremor it steals upon you even as the diurnal luminary brightens the eastern horizon. This voice must be heard to be appreaciated. The possessor of this soul-stirring, heart imploring voice is H. F. Tompkins.

Last Tuesday evening the ladies of this division met in the proof-room and organized a Women's Auxiliary, under the auspices of the International Typographical Union. Miss Laura Gordon was chosen temporary chairman, and Miss Abbie Boutwell temporary secretary. The following were appointed committee on constitution and by-laws: Misses Laura Gordon, Abbie Boutwell, Carrie Whitehead, Nellie Theaker, and Josepha Lange. This movement should receive the hearty support of every member of Columbia Union, as there is a large field of usefulness for such a worthy organization as the Women's Auxiliary. A flattering attendance of the ladies of Columbia Union was present.

Last Wednesday representatives of local branch of the Grand United Order of Knockers held a meeting in the lavatory to "cuss" and discuss the coal situation. Among other things they complimented President Roosevelt upon the selection of his board of arbitration, but thought the addition of two representatives of the "plain" people—themselves, for instance—would have been ideal. The local coal dealers were roasted for having advanced the price of coal during the strike and a boycott ordered upon certain dealers. The committee on decoration of this chapel was censured for removing the bunting and flags, and the Armenian question was about to be brought up, when someone inquired "Hows yer avrige?" Then the session closed abruptly.

The life of a correspondent is not altogether "one grand sweet song." The mere omission of a name may bring about a cataclysm or cause one to do penance for a month. Some years ago we operated a job printing plant in the tropics and were engaged in the important task of turning out hand bills, containing names of members of the "committee on arrangements, etc." The name of "John Jackson" failed to appear in print, and next day the aforesaid Jackson entered our shop with blood in his eyes and destruction in his walk and demanded an explanation. The copy was produced and the glorious name of Jackson was still missing. A reprint was ordered, which read thus: "Committee on Arrangements—John Jackson and and others." He paid for the job out of his private purse.

J. M. Eggleston is visiting relatives in Rhode Island.

H. C. Town has been unanimously chosen chairman of this division.

R. E. Youart left Sunday for Dayton, Ohio, on his annual vacation. He expects to be gone about three weeks.

Miss Fannie Roseman returned last week from a visit to relatives in Columbus, Ga., having accompanied thither a brother and sister from Iowa.

Ambrose O'Keefe, who represents the interests of THE TRADES UNIONIST in this chapel, and whose friends are as numerous as subscribers to your publication, spent several days in Albany last week.

W. Kingsley Miller, of this division, left Saturday for Utica, a town located up in York State, there to soften up any lump in the political crucible, after which he goes to Syracuse to join his friend I. Rosenthal for a bear hunt in the Great North Woods. LATER—Miller has killed a bear weighing 450 pounds, the hide of which he intends having built into an overcoat to be presented to the Governor of Missouri.

J. Nat Steed, author of the "Beautiful Snow," and for several years connected with the job department of this division, resigned last week and with his wife left on Monday for North Carolina where he will in future reside. We regret exceedingly to give him up, but it is gratifying to his friends that he resumes his residence in the Old North State to enjoy a season of repose after a hitherto active life. Mr. Steed will spend several weeks at Asheville, after which he will seek a quiet retreat in the mountains, followed by the best wishes of a host of friends.

R. BUCKLE.

Labor Notes.

In the past twenty years in only one-fifth of the coal strikes have the men secured their demands.

California has made eight hours the legal work day. The Supreme Court has declared the law valid.

Kansas City's trouble between the striking journeymen and master plumbers will be submitted to arbitration, and the men will go back to work in the meantime.

The cloth spongers of Greater New York are making efforts to organize a national union of that particular industry, and are appealing to their fellow-workers in other cities to assist in the attempt.

THE BLUE AND THE GRAY.

The Blue and the Gray
Are fading fast away,
They are falling from the ranks year by year;
Brighter will their valor shine
As the future years decline,
To their memory we drop a silent tear.

The Blue and the Gray
Remember well the day,
When clouds of war enveloped our land;
True to the manner born
They enlisted in the morn
Of the conflict and made a gallant stand.

The Blue and the Gray
With us will ever stay,
A reminder of the stormy days long past;
Each battled for the right
According to their light
'Mid cannon's roar and bugle's thrilling blast.

The Blue and the Gray
Have shown their sons the way
To glory on many bloody fields;
All honor to them be
In this land of the free,
Since sacrifice is blazoned on their shields.

The Blue and the Gray
Are marching every day
To join loving comrades gone before
On the bright elysian fields,
Where no foeman ever wields
The implements of carnage as of yore.

The Blue and the Gray,
We will honor them alway,
Their spirit and their fame will never die;
From Maine's eternal hills
To California's rills
Old Glory will be lifted upon high.

The Blue and the Gray
Will battle any day
For the honor of this banner of the free;
For wave it ever must
In the cause that's ever just,
It will "stay put" on land and on the sea.

Adieu, brave Blue and Gray!
Now we will ever pray
That charity may rule the hearts of all,
Through the swift declining years
Of this fleeting vale of tears,
As morning dew and evening shadows fall.

AROUND THE PRINTERIES.

Meeting of Ex-Delegates.

There will be a meeting of the Ex-Delegates' Association of Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, at Typographical Temple, on Sunday, November 9, 1902, at 2 o'clock p. m. All ex-delegates are cordially invited to be present.

W. R. RAMSEY, President.
J. T. HERBERT, Secretary.

Down Town.

Cheer up.

Bennings Monday.

Jake Atz was the "head liner" at the oyster roast last Sunday.

John P. McDowell, of Chicago, Ill., who worked on N. B. F. last winter reported for duty at the G. P. O. today.

Don't forget the meeting of the ex-delegates Sunday. If you are an "ex" you are invited.

Frank Hambright went to Lancaster, Pa., and exercised his right as a citizen of the United States.

John R. Berg, assistant foreman of the Record, who has been visiting in Nebraska for the past four weeks, returned to town this afternoon.

Editor Hearst, of New York Journal, and Editor Livernash, of the San Francisco Examiner, were elected to Congress at the recent election. Us editors.

James Bowman, ex President of the International Printing Pressmen Union, was elected clerk of the criminal court of Chicago, Cook county, Ill., at the recent election.

John B. Dickman, delegate-elect to the American Federation of Labor from the Central Labor Union, will leave Monday night for New Orleans to attend the A. F. of L. convention.

Frank Morrison, Secretary of the American Federation of Labor, and William M. Garrett, Secretary of Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, both delegates-elect from the I. T. U. to the A. F. of L. convention which meets in New Orleans, La., Wednesday next, will leave Monday night for the South.

ROOMS FOR RENT—Choice of two large rooms on second floor, rear, or two smaller rooms, front, with storage room, on third floor; heat and gas; for $15 furnished, or $13 per month unfurnished; bath on second floor. Call at 812 First street northwest. *

Fourth Division.

Chas. O. Doten left for his York State home Monday in order to save the State to his party.

Grant Barnhart left for Altoona, where he will assist in the piling up of "that brutal majority."

John Winchester was among those who heard the voice of their country calling them to the ballot box.

Philip (H. P.) Armstrong has once more packed his goods and chattels and removed them to another beanery. It was not the desire to defraud the matron that prompted his action, but the desire to elude the fair sex.

Dud Fleming departed for his home in Indiana Saturday to exercise his constitutional rights. Dame Rumor remarks that ere he again arrives in the shadow of the Great White Dome, he will have taken unto himself a wife.

Treasury Branch.

Martin Flynn and T. F. McKeon are on leave.

Dr. W. J. Manning and Chas. Willis were on the sick list several days last week.

About twenty of the employes of this division went home to cast their ballots this week.

Miss Mary B. O'Toole and Laura V. Boss, of the press room, returned from leave last week.

John T. Williams, probationary pressman, received his absolute appointment last week.

A great curiosity was on exhibition here recently. It was a bird's-eye view of Oneonta, N. Y., the home of Elmer Coates.

Dr. J. P. Devlin is acting as chairman during the absence of Mr. Irwin on leave. He is a dignified and impartial officer.

During the absence of Proofreaders Price and Gery, Edmund Shaw and C. M. Evans are reading and Edwin Collar and J. P. Devlin are holding copy.

Joe Cornish is spending a month's leave in Louisiana. A letter from him a few days ago says among other things that he is well and having a good time.

The following temporaries were assigned to this division recently: Geo. B. Wood, Henry T. McConvey, T. H. McGill, R. F. Simms, J. H. Williams, and Chas. N. Nace.

At a chapel meeting held recently James H. Irwin was elected chairman by acclamation to succeed himself. Shortly after the meeting adjourned Jim passed the cigars around.

The work of removing old presses and establishing new ones in their places was begun last week. Three have been taken out so far, and two handsome and modern ones have been erected.

T. F. McKeon, of this division, was married to Miss Sadina E. Herbert at Freund's, Thursday evening, the 30th of October, by the Rev. Dr. Stafford, in the presence of about one hundred invited guests. After the ceremony they left for a trip through New York State. Tom has many friends here, all of whom wish him and his bride much happiness and prosperity. As an evidence of their esteem they presented him with a dozen handsome sterling spoons.

Night Bill Force.

William S. Padgett, a temporary, was put on last week.

Charles Burnett is subbing on the copy-desk this week.

George Tuttle is acting timekeeper during Jonny Green's absence.

John Green left Friday for Lowell, Mass., where he deposited a vote election day.

Arthur McMillin is in Michigan where he helped to roll up the large Republican majority there last Tuesday.

No mention was made of Broadnax last week. I do not know how I overlooked it. It shall not occur again.

Percy Wallace is on leave. We miss his cheerful "Captain I stuck up for you," every half hour during the night.

This division was foremanless Monday and Tuesday nights, Jimmie Ross having absented himself in order to vote.

Johnnie Smith, a regular temporary, received his usual appointment last Thursday, and was added to the night force.

John Kernan, the angelicized Irishman, has gone to Boston to visit his family. While there he will vote a straight.

Henry Taylor, who was mentioned last week as having been operated on at Garfield Hospital for an intestinal trouble, has so far recovered as to be able to return to work. He was cordially greeted by his large circle of friends, who were delighted to see Henry make such a rapid recovery.

I understand that Johnny Kinneard has purchased a barrel of red apples. This accounts, no doubt, for his recent elevation to a trustyship. While on the apple subject I might mention that Shorty Huss has also ordered a "bar'l." Since Shorty is already a trusty, it is hard to surmise what he intends to gain by the purchase.

The vanguard of the hot sports appeared last Thursday evening in the person of the only Julius L. Johnson. Julius had a hair-raising experience the other day while pursuing his usual avocation that cost him such a palpitation in the region of his heart that he forgot to gather in $10 change due him. He will explain in detail if you ask him.

Your correspondent unintentionally did Jonny Hogan an injustice in last weeks' items. He stated that "John does not care for night work, but appreciates Mr. Young's perspicacity in demanding his services while there are so many willing volunteers to select from." It seems that some of the boys who had to hustle to beat the band in order to get on night work got jealous of Johnnie's popularity, and proceeded to knock. As a matter of fact Mr. Young did not demand John's services. John came up the pipe like the rest of us. Hence the apology.

Bindery Notes.

A number of patriots from the Bindery went to their respective homes to assist in saving the country.

"Fatty" Fitz was foreman of the casers-in for two consecutive hours the other night. Let us hope the green-eyed monster has not been aroused.

Bill Nevins, Capt. White, Len Myers, and Berger were seen in a group the other day discussing the affairs of the Nation. Where can a bunch be found to duplicate this one?

Charlie Benker was mistaken for an Irishman on the train the other night. Whether it was because of his Bostonese accent or his heavily-laden breath is shrouded in mystery, as the reporters say.

Several letters have been received in this city from Bill Barth, of the Union Building Bindery, and they were written on the stationery of the Buffalo Charity Organization Society. Can it be that "Diamond Bill" has gone broke?

Candidates for the various offices in the Union are being talked about. The nominations take place at the November meeting. As the regular date of meeting falls on election day it will be deferred one week under the Constitution.

Patsy Finnegan paid a visit to the Library the other evening and got somewhat twisted. He made his exit through the east door and did not find his mistake until he was well on his way to the Navy Yard. This does not speak well for cultured Boston.

Col. Bill Kennedy met a few ladies the other day and in order to make an impression told them that he was a foreman in the bindery of the G. P. O., when one of them remarked that inasmuch as he was foreman, it would not hurt his financial condition any to buy them a nice box of candy. It was up to Bill and he bought the candy.

Organized Labor, Attention!

You are hereby notified that the differences which existed between the firm of Joseph Auerbach, 621 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, and our organization have been amicably adjusted and this firm is again on the fair list.

Under the articles of agreement this store will close at 6 o'clock p. m. through the week, Saturdays excepted, at 9 o'clock Saturday night and all day Sunday.

Further, this is now a strictly Union house, all of the employes eligible being members of our organization, and we therefore recommend this firm to the patronage of organized labor.

THE TRADES UNIONIST.

OFFICIAL ORGAN CENTRAL LABOR UNION, WASHINGTON BRANCH, AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR.

Vol. VII. No. 22. WASHINGTON, D. C., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1902. Price, 3 Cents.

The Only Eight-Hour Union Label Office in Town.

THE CENTRAL LABOR UNION

John Coleman Horseshoer, Declared Unfair to Organized Labor.

"TRADES UNIONIST" IN DEMAND

Delegate Spohn Presides—Slate and Tile Roofers, Telephone Operators, and Ice Wagon Drivers' Credentials—Delegate Dickman's Credentials Acknowledged—Communications from Machine Printers and Color Mixers and Akron Central Labor Union Read.

The Central Labor Union met in weekly session Monday night at Typographical Temple, Delegate Milford Spohn presiding in the absence of President Hamerstrom and Vice-President Silver.

Owing to the limited amount of business on hand the meeting was of short duration.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Secretary Winslow and approved by the body.

Credentials were received from the Slate and Tile Roofers' Union, No. 10421, American Federation of Labor, certifying Messrs. David Brand, Edward Whalley, J. C. Huddleston, Geo. Phillips, and Patrick Loftus; from Telephone Operators' Union, No. 9914, certifying Miss Ethel Miller, vice Miss Anna Smith; from Ice Wagon Drivers' and Helpers, Local No. 430, certifying William Klug.

Upon motion by a delegate from the Brewery Workmen and same being duly seconded, it was ordered that this body subscribe for fifty additional copies of THE TRADES UNIONIST for use of this body.

Delegate from Barbers' Union, No. 239, complained of laxity of members of organized labor in not looking more to the display of the barbers' union card in different shops.

The motion to purchase a number of tickets for a benefit smoker of Engineers' Local, No. 77, was lost by a narrow vote, it requiring nine-tenths vote for such purpose.

Delegate Trittipoe, of Milk Drivers' Union, made remarks bearing upon lack of support of organized labor in their efforts to strengthen their organization.

The Grievance Committee reported their action upon the case of John Coleman, horseshoer, doing business at 1300 Thirty-sixth street northwest, and recommended he be placed upon the unfair list. The report was concurred in and it was so ordered.

A commuuicatien from Frank Morrison, secretary of American Federation of Labor, acknowledging the receipt of the credentials of Delegate-elect John B. Dickman from this body to the convention of the American Federation of Labor at New Orleans, was read and ordered placed on file.

A communication from Local Union, No. 5, of National Association of Machine Printers and Color Mixers, of New Brunswick, N. J,, stating their grievances against Janeway & Carpenter and Janeway & Co., and asking the moral support of this body was read. This communication was referred to the Paper Hangers' Union.

A communication from the Akron Central Labor Union setting forth the unfair attitude of the B. F. Goodrich Company and Diamond Rubber Company, manufacturers of bicycle tires and other rubber goods, who had discharged members of the Hose and Rubber Tire Makers' Union because they were union men and requested this body to use their efforts to give these firms a wide berth when purchasing goods of their line. This communication was referred to the Label Committee.

JUST EVERY-DAY LIFE.

It was gratifying to note an attendance of 47 at the initial roll call of the ex-delegates; which goes to show what can be accomplished after some one starts the ball rolling. Among suggestions made are a number to the effect that a permanent organization be formed, with fraternal and beneficial features and an annual supper on Thanksgiving eve.

No. 2 of "The Government, an illustrated epitome of affairs at the National Capital," has been handed me. On the general lines the latest addition to Washington literature is in many respects superior to the Mirror or the Capitol, and is sold at the low rate of 2 cents per copy.

Dr. F. H. Minor, tired of chasing commas, resigns and starts a pretentious sanitarium on Capitol Hill. Climbing a little higher up on the ladder, he contributes a series of articles on surgery to the medical publications so widely read that they will soon be issued in book form and used as a text book in the colleges.

Savants have demonstrated that "bad blood" is capable of transmission. If the bad, why not the good? The talented J. L. Rodier—he of the flow of adjectives and boundless vocabularly—has a son displaying rare qualities in the field of illustration, specimens at hand taking rank with the contributions to Puck and Life.

Dr. W. A. Croffut, one of those who via the pen holds the mirror up to nature, has just completed a historical novel dealing with the time of Peter the Great.

"Chief Croker" McKean has issued calls for a reorganization this winter of the famous Knights of Momus, better known as the "Knockers." Participants vividly recall last season's events at Barton's and the Regent; which goes to show that an acceptable performance demands an encore.

Columbia Union needs a "watch dog." A number of appropriations, I am told, might have been materially reduced and the same result attained. At the same time I congratulate Mr. Rhodes—the irrepressible Percy—on securing the passage of a paragraph appropriating $100 to the McKinley Memorial at Canton, Ohio. When a national monument is erected to those who have attained distinction in statecraft Washington, I take it, should be the place for its location.

I had a lady caller the other day. She wanted to do some typewriting; be a literary understudy, as it were. You will note nothing out of the ordinary about this until I tell you she was a modest colored girl; which goes to show the progress the Afro-American is making under the tutelage of Booker Washington et al.

The Speakership contest, a year in advance heated to the boiling point, from this viewpoint looks like Cannon against the field, with Cannon a winner; which reminds me of a story. Having on one occasion piloted a paragraph for increased compensation of the night workers of the G. P. O. over the thin ice of legislation, it had reached the stage of the game where an objection to its consideration meant its defeat. To prevent this, I called upon nearly every member of the Lower House, among others "Pres." Taulbee, shortly thereafter shot on the Capitol steps by Correspondent Kincaid. "The only difficulty," he said, "with my objection is, I can not make it stick. Now, Judge Holman and some of these old fellows get up, say 'I object' and it goes!" The only difference between Mr. Cannon's objection and that of the other fellow, "Uncle Joe," through equipment and experience, is able to make his "stick."

One of the novelties presented at the All-Printers' Entertainment at the National Rifles' Armory on January 2 next, will be lady ushers in white costumes, with Miss Nellie Theaker as chief usher. Professor Purvis will occupy the interlocuter's chair, with Messrs. Frank Smith, Charles Slentz, R. H. Miller, and Jesse Grant as end men.

Oft there flits through memory's halls a pleasing recollection of the biking days of '98, now near a lustrum agone. I made a call one afternoon a few weeks ago. Ushered into the semi-darkened parlor, I wondered "if the kid would remember me?" In a moment enter "the kid," 5 feet 8, the personification of regality, en train for the matinee. If by any process the lady could have come in possession of my appellation the moment before I would have been tempted to have crawled under the sofa; which goes to show that the woman makes a flying leap from girlhood to muliebrity, while man—well, he stays stationary for a couple of decades.

Night Bill Force.

"Sarah" Carter is again with us.

Joe Zimmerman returned from leave Friday.

Dick Kendall arrived from the Third Tuesday evening.

J. J. O'Hearn was transferred to the night force Monday.

The Night Bill Force is now completed, "Sis" Hopkins having arrived.

M. G. Howe, recently of the Third, has been assigned to slug 48, this division.

Frank Gist, recently employed in the Census printing office, is now domiciled in this division.

Tom Hoagland, an old timer, has been transferred to this division from the Specification.

Z. T. Jenkins returned from a short leave of absence Friday and is again doing buiness at the old stand.

George D. Ellis, late of the proof-room, was transferred from the Fifth Division Friday to the Bill Force.

Chas. E. Holmes, an ex-foreman of the Bill Force, was transferred to night work from the First Division Tuesday.

Nearly all of those who went home to vote have returned to their work, and the force has begun to look like business.

Voler V. Viles, imposer, who has been spending the past thirty days at his home in Missouri, has reported for duty.

J. Fred. Orth, a temporary on last winter's bill force, has received a probationary appointment and been assigned to slug 39, this division.

J. R. Alford, ex-proofreader, is again with us. He will no doubt be transferred to the proofroom as soon as the usual increase in that force is made.

Gradually the old reliables make their appearance, James T. Ray and Charles Stretch being among the number transferred to night work during the past week.

Jim McDaniel, tar heel, of yellow leg chicken fame, was recently released from the rock pile and assigned to this force. Mac says he feels like he was on his leave now, as 4,800 per has no further terrors for him.

Big Chief Durno, late foreman of the Indian alley, First Division, has been transferred to the Bill Force and assigned to slug 13, ring alley. Let us hope that his unlucky slug assignment will bring no disastrious consequences.

The legislative appropriation bill was rushed through Monday night. This is our first taste of Congressional work for the winter, and from now on there will be no danger of a condition of faineance prevailing, even for the trusties.

Dennis Sheehan, helper and general factotum, has returned from his leave, which was spent at the home of his father in New York State. Denny reports an excellent time while away, and his ruddy appearance does not belie the statement.

Popular Joe Gibson, one of last winter's temporaries, was assigned to this division Thursday, having been transferred from the Specification. No one on this force has more friends than Joe, as was evidenced by the glad hand tendered him upon his appearance.

Chris. Schertzer, of the Fourth, has been assigned to slug 50, situated in that portion of the division known as the bill ring alley. As only those who are well-known hustlers are assigned to that locality, we presume Chris appreciates the distinction conferred upon him.

The following temporaries have been certified by the civil service commission and assigned to this division: John P. McDowell (good thing to-day), J. H. Adams, John F. Lane, Richard Powers, Edgar N. Tranham, Joseph Gibson, William P. Doing, C. T. Hutchinson, and J. F. Wassell.

"Isaac Walton" Sharp, champion piscatorial artist of the big printery, has returned from a fishing trip among the lakes of Indiana. Mr. Sharp was accompanied by his better half, who is no less an enthusiastic seeker after the finny tribe than Walter. He reports a very successful and pleasant trip.

Thomas E. Doty, artistic photographer, ex-proofreader, grizzly bear slayer, and with one exception the best single-handed purveyor of fiction on the force, is "working" on slug 47. (Modesty prevents my naming the exception.) Now, everybody knock.

I would suggest to Timekeeper Green that he start the hook each evening at alternate alleys, as was the custom last winter. Starting the hook at alley 1 each night, as in the case at present, gives the majority of phat to the first 10 or 12 alleys, leaving the solid for those who work so far away from the timekeeper's desk.

The following compositors were transferred to Bill Force Tuesday: F. W. Gist, Chas. E. Homes, and J. A. Onyun, First Division; Clyde G. Hopkins, Second Division; A. M. Willingham, Benj. B. F. Graves, and R. W. Kendall, Third Division; Wm. I. Bateman, E. H. Andrews, Will E. Burchfield, T. B. Hoagland, and Owen L. Carter, Specification Division; Wm. A. Mitchell, Fourth Division.

Charles Tompkins of the firm of Gibson & Tompkins, arrived from New York, Sunday last, and was placed on the night force Monday evening. "Tomp," as he is familiarly known, was assigned to the same frame he occupied last winter, and his only regret is that his inseperable companion, Joe Gibson, has been promoted to a frame nearer the throne. However, Joe will use his influence with Johnnie Green in an endeavor to be placed on an adjoining frame to his old side partner.

His sentence having expired, less commutation for good behavior, the irrepressible and irresponsible "Funny" Roberts was sent down to us from the Specification last Thursday and assigned to duty on slug 27, where he expects to stay until March, unless the foreman gets next to him before then. Last winter "Funny" was transferred from the corner of North Capitol and H streets to a frame under the gun, as it were, which was a source of much discomfort and woe, inasmuch as he was not sure whether it was done as a penalty for some misdeed or because the foreman was stuck on his motion. Anyhow, he kept up the motion very consistently until transferred to day work.

Whoever turned in that alarm and made it appear that the Republican majority in Pennsylvania was about to be wiped out by a Democratic devourment is the man most available as boss fool fooler and deserves to hold over until all the fools are disposed of. Jurisdiction should be extended so as to take in other "doubtful" States, including Ohio and other points east and west of the Alleghenies. The newspapers will not let us forget all that happened in Pennsylvania, and especially the part performed by Mr. Quay, who is accused of great activity in the direction of missionary work as chair-of the Republican State Committee. Those who complain of Mr. Quay seem to forget that he is a comparatively poor man and that it takes money to pay printing bills, hire halls, brass bands, and tote to the polling places the aged and decrepit. To expect that an expense of such magnitude should rest upon the shoulders of one man or a few would be a proposition most unfair. Had chairman McDuff (or Guffy) suggested a pair on terms calculated to do away with the use of money and had not that some one turned in that false alarm we might have witnessed a genuine Quaker campaign with possibly a majority reduced to 150,000, yet sufficient for all practical purposes.

By the way, the printing business for several moons has been pretty good in Pennsylvania, a fact largely due to the efforts of those people who are engaged in the unprofitable task of trying to "down" Quay.

CYCLE.

Ex-Delegates' Committees.

The committees authorized by the Ex-Delegates' Association of Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, at its last meeting, have been appointed by Capt. Wm. R. Ramsey, President of the Association. These committees will serve until the adjournment of the International Typographical Union at its next meeting in this city and as much longer as may be necessary, unless otherwise ordered by the Association:

Board of Trustees—Z. T. Jenkins, chairman; C. M. Robinson, and T. M. Ring.

Committee on Membership—A. F. Bloomer, chairman; W. H. Bailey, J. F. Connolly, Don L. Murray, and Frank M. Hatley.

Committee on Finance—G.G.Seibold, chairman; James H. Ross, L.C.Hover, A. M. Butler, John McCormick, A. L. Randall, Philip S. Steele, Ed. H. Thomas, and A. W. Bowen.

Committee on Entertainment—James H. Platt, chairman; Oliver Shaw, L. C. Hay, August Donath, R. W. Kerr, F. N. Whitehead, C. C. Thompson, G. H. Stone, D. W. Beach, H. V. Bisbee, E. W. Patton, J. M. Kreiter, J. A. Hennessey, Geo. F. Halsey, and Chas. A. Shelden.

A Novel Entertainment.

On Friday night, January 2, 1903, during the Christmas holidays, Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, will give a big minstrel and ball that will eclipse anything of the kind heretofore attempted by that organization. The entire performance will be given by printers holding cards in No. 101. In the first part "circle" there will be a chorus of about twenty-five splendid singers and the soloists will be some of the best in the city. Their orchestra of twelve good musicians are already rehearsing regularly and their music is a pleasant surprise to all concerned. One of the main objects of this entertainment is to get together a big company to assist in entertaing the delegates to the I. T. U. which meets here next August, and the boys promise them something that no other union has ever put forth—a complete minstrel, band, and orchestra of their own members.

J. M. Winchester was busy Monday receiving congratulations and well wishes for the future health and happiness of himself and wife. John passed the cigars in honor of the event.

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL WASHINGTON. 2

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1902.

IN conformity with a plan to take little children from the Southern textile mills, Charlotte (N. C.) Typographical Union, No. 338, has adopted Sadie Cash, a nine-year-old girl, who has been working in a mill since she was seven years of age. The Union will educate her, and have her on its regular pay roll.—New York Unionist.

WE rise to remark that the following gentlemen were elected to Congress from their respective districts at the recent tilt at the polls and THE TRADES UNIONIST contained their biography and labor record and we feel a sense of pride in thinking we helped to do the trick. One way to win is to "be on the level" with organized labor. Here is the roll of honor:

ABRAHAM LINCOLN BRICK, Republican, Thirteenth district of Indiana.

VINCENT BOREING, Republican, Eleventh district of Kentucky.

B. B. DOVENER, Republican, First district of West Virginia.

E. STEVENS HENRY, Republican, First district of Connecticut.

JAMES A. HEMENWAY, Republican, First district of Indiana.

WM. H. RYAN, Democrat, Thirty-second district of New York.

G. W. SMITH, Republican, Twentieth district of Illinois.

FRANK C. WACHTER, Republican, Third district of Maryland.

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

In the old days—of course nothing of the sort is done now—it was not infrequent for bottles of different brands of the red invigorator to be taken into the office, especially when the stress of work made long hours necessary. I remember a night on the Record, a quarter of a century ago, when I could locate twenty different bottles, and none of them belonged to me either. It was about this time that a sissy boy reported to the foreman:

"Mr. Helm, somebody has been drinking whiskey out of our drinking cup."

"Out of the cup at the water cooler?" asked Mr. Helm.

"Yes, sir."

"Sure of that, are you?"

"Yes, sir; I'm sure of it. I could taste it."

"Well, you find out who it is and I'll fire him. No man can work on the Record who can't drink his whiskey out of a bottle," said the foreman.

Jonny Burnside, while an apprentice, was haled before the foreman one day.

"Burnside," said the boss, "I hear you've got a bottle of whiskey in the office?"

"No, sir."

"You haven't?"

"No, sir. I've got a bottle, but it ain't whiskey."

"What is it?"

"It's medicine, but it ain't whiskey."

"All right, but don't let it happen again."

One ingenious chap put a druggist's label on his bottle—"two tablespoonfuls every half hour"—set it on his cap case, walked over to the cooler on time, and drank his whiskey openly and like a gentleman all day, and nobody thought of disturbing him.

Occasionally an unusually secretive youth on the night side has been known to hide his flask in the water cooler of one of the day divisions. An insecure stopper and a cooler full of very weak toddy gave away the snap in one instance.

A long time ago, when a new dress had been put on the Record, the foreman happened to be looking around the frames to see what he might find—a formula gone through once in a while in the interest of discipline and for the good of the service—and found in a drawer a pint of suspicious-looking liquid.

"What's this?" he asked the frame-holder.

"That—that—oh, that's some stuff I got to keep the new type from sticking so," said Slug Steenty.

"To keep the type from sticking, eh?" smelling it. "It smells like it might be good. I'll take it and look into it."

Of course all these things happened long ago, and they illustrate the depravity of that age. The better morals of the present day would not tolerate such things, and experience has demonstrated the fallacy of the old negro's reasoning in a "chestnut" that is so old that maybe most people have forgotten it. With that hope in my mind, I'll spring it any way.

A gentleman was fishing, with very indifferent success, and occasionally taking a nip out of his bait bottle, when his old colored attendant made a suggestion.

"Soak some braid crumbs in dat whiskey, boss, and trow 'em in de water, and you kin ketch fish."

"How's that, Uncle Manuel?" asked the fisherman.

"Dey'll eat de crumbs and git drunk, and den dey float on de water and you kin pick 'em right up. All but mullet, boss. You kaint ketch no mullet dat way."

"Why not?"

"Because de mullet ain't got no brains. Nuffin kaint git drunk dat ain't got no brains, but mos' eberyting gets drunk dat's got brains. Sure you kaint ketch no mullet dat way, boss, but you kin ketch all de odder fish."

That was a very well written account of his trip around the world, incidentally anchoring at Manila, given us two weeks ago by R. A. Nelgner. I believe he went ashore on the Philippine Islands, but he has little to say of the delights of his life there or his employment in the Philippine Government Office, and I notice that Dr. Harry Schildroth maintains the same reticence. I'm afraid its professional jealousy. They don't want to arouse our ambition to emulate their voyages to our new possessions. I hear that George Tracy is on the way home—on a brief visit, I suppose. It must be a continuous delight to live where the coal trust can be laughed at and where you never have to wade through snow-drifts to and from work. I have not heard either Nelgner or Schildroth say when he expects to return to the Philippines.

For some inscrutable reason the Times, in its history of the murder of Mrs. Dennis, persists in associating the name of the late Samuel C. Presley with the tragedy, apparently for no other reason than that the poor fellow committed suicide four days after the murderous assault was made. No one who knew Presley ever for a moment thought of him as the guilty party, though at the time some investigation was made in regard to his death, the police being anxious to find some one, dead or alive, to charge with the crime. Poor Presley is dead and nothing can hurt him, but he has living relatives who must be pained immeasurably by these cruel and entirely groundless references.

The second meeting of the ex Delegates' Association was held last Sunday at Typographical Temple, Capt. W. R. Ramsey in the chair and Maj. J. T. Herbert, secretary. The Committee on Organization, by Chairman Z. T. Jenkins, reported by-laws. All were declared eligible to membership who have "represented Columbia Union at a convention of the International Typographical Union, and any ex-delegate residing in the city of Washington." The dues was fixed at $1 per month, payable semimonthly, to begin with the month of November for all members, whether joining now or hereafter. A board of trustees was elected, consisting of Z. T. Jenkins, T. M. Ring, and C. M. Robinson. H. S. Sutton was elected sergeant-at-arms by acclamation. A Committee on Entertainment, to consist of fifteen, was provided for, but the members are not yet appointed.

The following additional names were given to the secretary to be enrolled as members: A. L. Randall, Don Murray, E. A. M. Lawson, E. E. Wear, T. M. Ring, H. A. Nothnagel, H. V. Bisbee, G. G. Seibold, D. W. Beach, Albert Cottle, C. M. Robinson, A. W. Bowen, William Briggs, W. M. Leavitt, and J. J. Higgins, who have represented Columbia Union, and D. J. Quinn, George Stoll, James Healy, G. Harry Stone, J. A. Hennesy, Daniel McFadden, J. S. Atkinson, J. M. English, J. S. Atkinson, J. W. Halford, William M. Holeman, and J. R. Lamson, who have been delegates from other unions. There are now 73 members enrolled, 41 of whom are ex-delegates of Columbia Union and 32 of other jurisdictions. There are yet 29 domestic ex-delegates to hear from, and probably quite a number from other unions, all of whom, it is to be hoped will give in their names.

The dues were made $1 a month in order to carry out the purpose of organization, and the sum is not thought to be heavy enough to be a burden to any one. It is about the only way the ex-delegates will have of showing their appreciation of the honors that have been given them in the past.

From occasional remarks which have fallen from the lips of my friend W. N. Brockwell, I am led to believe that he collaborates with James M. Montgomery in the writing of the beautiful patriotic poems, signed by Mr. Montgomery, which appear in THE TRADES UNIONIST. He predicts the appearance of the poems with great regularity; he is one of Mr. Montgomery's warmest and closest friends, and the poems are in keeping with the deep religious and patriotic sentiments for which Mr. Brockwell is noted. I feel sure that but for his modesty and diffidence the poems would be signed "W. N. Brockwell and J. M. Montgomery."

* * * *

The dog ran swifter than the wind
And never once looked he behind;
He was extremely full of fear;
His trouble was too much to bear.
He'd much prefer to be alone
Than to have what to him was done.
He looked around, below, above,
And flew as fast as he could move.
He gazed to find the crowds among
One friend to right his cruel wrong.
He stopped a moment just beneath
A bridge, in hopes to catch his breath.
In his sad eye one could but read
A hopeless longing to be dead.
Of him till then it ne'er was said
That he had ever been afraid.
His joy was gone, his bones did creak;
His honest heart appeared to break.
He then resumed his normal tone—
The tin can from his tail was gone.

The above may look like poetry, but it isn't. It's not even rhyme.

I heard the other day that Arthur E. Grinnell, an employee of the G. P. O. up to about eight years ago, at one time proofreader, who has been working on the Syracuse Post-Standard since leaving here, died recently in one of the Rocky Mountain States, where he had gone in search of health. Mr. Grinnell was a very pleasant, agreeable, inoffensive little chap, and had many friends who will regret to hear of his decease.

A. F. BLOOMER.

Specification Scintillations.

F. M. Lewis and W. J. C. O'Brien have returned to work.

M. K. Huntsberry and Harry Miller have returned from the political battlefields.

Arthur Armstrong visited Kentucky recently to attend the funeral of his brother.

S. C. Hinwood, late of THE TRADES UNIONIST, has been assigned "cases" in this division.

Ivins Davis is accused of bringing about the transfer of Charles A. Stretch for obvious reasons.

Frank B. Cowden, of the proofroom, unlimbered his lead-pencil last Friday after a brief vacation.

N. M. Light and Thos. H. Collins, two members of our staff of floor-hands, are back to work again.

Samuel Gompers went to New York City last Tuesday where he found the weather cool and growing Coler.

A. Force Engel has returned from New York State where he went to "save the country" on the 4th inst.

The classic features of R. L. S. Halpenny remained with us all day last Tuesday, and as a result Alexandria, Va., was one vote "shy."

R. W. Burgess and Uriel C. Hays are both famous for wit and repartee. Their jokes are both incisive and caustic, and they never fail to score a point.

Our patriots have returned from their several States where they voted at least once for the party of their choice. As a rule, they all claim to have elected their man.

William Welsh, otherwise known as Cupid, our expert paper-cutter, is the personification of industry, and while his task is an onerous one, he seems to bear up wonderfully under the strain.

Our Capt. E. D. Smoot emphatically denies the existence of any ties of sympathy or consanguinity between himself and Reed Smooth, the Utah Mormon, who has designs upon the United States Senate.

The following compositors have been transferred to the main office: J. C. McDaniel, Charles A. Stretch, James T. Ray, F. C. Roberts, C. T. Hutchinson, Wm. P. Doing, Richard Powers, Joseph Gibson, John F. Lane, James H. Adams, and J. R. Alford.

Daniel Eccles returned to work last Friday after an absence of six weeks. Early Friday morning Mr. McBride brought him an armful of mail that included private letters, invitations to invest in mining companies, and quite a number of periodicals appertaining to psychological subjects.

The recent election drew heavily upon our working force, and as a result the following were assigned to expert "trusty" duty: Levi Brown, Cornelius A. Connor, Joseph W. McCann, Frank McDermot, B. E. Harrison, R. H. Harstin, C. M. Cyphers, Wm. Howlin, D. J. McCarty, E. J. Handly, Paul S. Gable, James Greenwood, E. A. Hutchison, Frank Overman, and W. L. Gutelius.

We deeply sympathize with the asinine qualities and utter unfamiliarity with the etymology of the Queen's English as displayed by "Clotilde" and "Old Prog" in the last issue of THE TRADES UNIONIST. In defiance we reiterate that other divisions of the Government Printing Office are "parasites and tolerations of the general Government." In making this statement we do not reflect upon the compositors of the several divisions of the Government Printing Office. We shall endeavor to enlighten our obtuse quondam friends. For many years the General Post-Office system was a parasite upon the general government, because its revenues did not cover the appropriation for its existence, notwithstanding the fact that its employees were poorly paid and worked overtime. The Specification room returns to the general Government ample restitution for money appropriated for its maintenance. There are no returns to the general Government from the divisions of the G. P. O. where such "Foxy Quillers" as "Clotilde" and "Old Prog" are employed, despite the fact that the compositors all earn their money. The reason is plain to any sane man. These divisions do not handle work of profit to the Government. The "Record" room reimburses the Government to some extent on account of the sales of its publications. We do not retract one single statement. We have been misrepresented by the mediocrity and utter ignorance of synonyms and etymology of the English language as displayed by our friends "Old Prog" and "Clotilde." We did not criticize the personnel of the several divisions of the Government Printing Office. We simply accorded the Specification room credit for "giving the Government a run for its money." It would be of profit to the Government under any foreman, by reason of the character of the work. This fact is obvious to any altruistic mind. While necessities, other divisions of the G. P. O. are non-supporting. The U. S. Customs and Internal Revenue Services are self-supporting; the many scientific bureaus, etc., of the government are not. All first-class governments must carry "luxuries" of some kind. The compositors of all branches of the G. P. O. are compelled to work longer and possibly harder than other employees of the Government. It is not their fault that some divisions of the G. P. O. are non-supporting. Unless "Clotilde" and "Old Prog" display a closer intimacy with the Queen's English, the "Cuban, etc.," will declare the incident closed. Adios, lunaticos!

Bindery Notes.

Harry Fish gained ten pounds on his leave eating Philadelphia scrapple.

Pan Roast Al done some clever campaign work for J. L. Miles, who was elected sheriff of Philadelphia.

James L. Feeney is to retire as president of the Bookbinders' Union and Robert Barrett will accept the place. John L. Dwyer and Wm. B. Hyde are candidates for financial secretary.

Charlie Ecker must have eaten some very salty fish in Philadelphia on his recent trip. He pretty nearly emptied the water-cooler on the train. Were you using the water as a chaser, Chas.?

Sam Childs has the appearance of a literary man as he emerges from the Pennsylvania station every morning. The bundle of newspapers he carries have been collected from the seats in the train.

"Fatty" Fitz is so pleased with the appearance of his name in this column that he has started a scrap book and will place the two items in it that have recently been printed and later will add this one.

"Skyrocket" brought a jug of 20-year-old whisky from Kansas City for a friend in this city. He now finds that his friend drinks gin only, and "Skyrocket" is wondering whether he will be violating the excise law by selling the whisky.

Henry Bassler, the tall Sycamore of the folding room, is evidently preparing to give his son and heir a good show at Christmas. He was seen recently pricing the miniature engines and incandescent lamps at a leading toy store in Baltimore.

The following is told on Ed Ryan: He visited the race track recently and was told to play Magic Light "both ways." When the horses reached the post all efforts to get her started were unavailing until finally she run around the wrong way. When Ed was informed of this he said, "I win anyhow; didn't I play her 'both ways?'"

Do not forget the annual entertainment and dance of the Bookbinders, to be held New Year's eve. Tickets are now on sale and can be obtained at the principal hotels and music stores, also from members of the local union. Manager Charles F. Weston is now rehearsing fifty beautiful young ladies, who will appear on this occasion. It is expected the stage door will be besieged by Johnnies. Professor McCarthy, formerly of the Boston Orchestra, is arranging the music and a grand treat is promised.

WHEN OUR BRIGHT PERENNIAL BLOOMER FLINGS BOUQUETS.

Oh, it makes the poet's verse-mill with exceeding smoothness grind,
And it thrills his tuneful heart-strings, and it oils his rhythmic mind,
And to soar on wings of fancy he is blissfully inclined,
And he lives in dreams prophetic of life's coming brighter days—
When our Bright Perennial Bloomer flings bouquets.

Oh, this life is not all gladness and its prizes are not free,
And it's hard to knock persimmons from fame's sparsely fruited tree;
But it wouldn't be so blasted bad if brothers we would be,
And the Knocker would grow weary of his hard unchristian ways—
When our Bright Perennial Bloomer flings bouquets.

AROUND THE PRINTERIES

Down Town.

Union meeting Sunday.

Pat Raedy fought and lost.

George P. Nichols, of the Sun, Baltimore, was in the city this week.

Charles T. Graff, of the Day Proof Room, G. P. O., is suffering with a cold caught in Pennsylvania.

The number of printers employed in this city in 1871 was 548; 250 have since died, and 42 are now employed.

Thomas K. McNeir, of Annapolis, Md., for a number of years employed in the big printery, was in town calling on friends this week.

Miss Teresa McDonald, for several years a proofreader on the Post, resigned to accept a probationary appointment in the Specification division of the G. P. O.

Powell Hughes Curtis, second vice-president Virginia State Federation of Labor, of Newport News, Va., made this office a call Thursday. He reports labor matters in a fair condition.

Benjamin Hanford, of New York, formerly of and well known in the printing fraternity in this city, took another throw at the Governorship of New York last week on the Socialist-Democratic ticket.

John J. Ottinger, of the Night Proof Room, was called to Buffalo, N. Y., last Saturday night to the deathbed of his mother, who died on Sunday, aged 72 years. The funeral was on Wednesday. Mr. Ottinger has the sincere sympathy of all in this his second great bereavement, his wife having died last August.

Harvey E. Garman, formerly President of Denver Typographical Union, No. 49, and also President of the Colorado State Federation of Labor, and well known to many printers of this city, enjoys the distinction of having lead the Arapahoe County legislative ticket in that State at the recent election, he having run about 1,000 ahead of any one else on the ticket. He was a candidate on the Democratic ticket and shortly will be a full fledged legislative solon, and no doubt will remember the workingmen as they likewise remembered him. He has been for the past five years employed as proofreader on the Denver Post

DO YOU THINK OF GOING TO CALIFORNIA? For sale, cheap—A 2½-acre tract of fertile land; 180 olive trees nearly 3 years old on 2 acres; ½ acre reserved for house, garden, etc.; in a progressive, healthful colony in Sacramento Valley, where there is no lack of work in orchards, cannery, etc. Olives bear when 5 years old and are profitable. A great chance for some intending settler, as you get a start of three years in growth of trees. Good reason for wanting to sell. If interested, address OLIVES, care THE TRADES UNIONIST.

First Division.

Who is next?

Three weddings during the past week.

Chas. W. Henry has returned from a month's leave at his home in Ohio.

Samuel Musick has been transferred to the day proofroom, and is preparing copy.

J. A. Onyun, Chas. E. Holmes, and T. W. Gist have been transferred to the Night Bill Force.

Will Mr. W. W. Ingram please inform us when he will conclude the story he started to tell Babcock? The "Spec" has all the men she wants, so let her go.

Wm. H. Drayton and Miss Gertrude Jones were married yesterday at Charleston, S. C. After a trip to New York and Portsmouth, Va., they will reside in this city.

In a letter received from Hermanogild Klima, late of this division, he says: "I'm having a fine time. Yesterday I attended a funeral, saw a runaway, and helped kill two boys." Mr. Klima is from Kentucky. Nuf Ced.

The following gentlemen were transferred from the "Spec" to this division Tuesday: W. H. Bates, Louis Carroll, Frank D. Lippincott, H. B. Billings, and John M. Loughran. Messes Bates, Lippincott, and Loughran are temporary men.

A largely attended wedding took place on Oct. 23, at New Orleans, La., the contracting parties being Mr. Jos. E. Donellan, of this division, and Miss Mamie Heines, by the Rev. Father Lambert. Mr. and Mrs. Donellan were the recipients of many beautiful presents. Mr. Donellan was formerly an operator on the New Orleans Evening States.

A very quite wedding took place on October 30, the contracting parties being Mr. M. De W. Siewers and Mrs. Mary E. Earnest, of Denver, Colo., by the Rev. W. S. Hammond, of the M. E. Church, in the presence of a few intimate friends. Mr. and Mrs. Siewers will reside at No. 731 F street, S. E., where they will be pleased to see their many friends.

Its an even bet the G. P. O. Minstrels will attempt a hit with the popular song "Come Home, Bill Bailey." The idea seems to be that while some gentleman of moderate voice and monstrous intentions is endeavoring to render "Bill Bailey" by note, Bill Bailey in the flesh (properly clothed) is to cakewalk across the stage. Then, as an encore, "Come into the Garden, Maud," will be massacred just for the opportunity of seeing Sutton, the famous author of "Rhoda Roland," come on the stage and bow his acknowledgments to a patient and long-suffering bunch of delinquent subscribers. There are bets being made now that "Maud" will sell a book before he gets off the "boards." Anyhow, reserve me a box nearest the stage. Its going to be a hot show.

CLOTILDE.

This overcoat will give the fullest gratification to your desire to be well and stylishly dressed. It is made from elegant quality black and gray friezes, moulaise, meltons, and cheviots, and is tailored and finished as if it were meant to sell for $20.00 instead of only $12.85

The Man's Store.

D. J. KAUFMAN, 1005-7 Pa. Ave.

Second Division.

Wood is on the sick list again.

Alley 1 is beginning to assume its normal condition.

Hoyt Holton is getting quite gay for a chaplain they say.

Halleck (Daniel) has returned after having voted his convictions.

Theodore Gerber is working on the proof press during the absene of Saltzman.

Most all of the boys have returned and the frames are gradually being filled up.

W. B. Johnson has returned from a very pleasant trip to his old home in Georgia.

G. Sparks is working on the bank during the absence in Detroit of Mr. Parshall.

John Murray is doing business at his old stand again after helping to carry New Jersey.

Sis Hopkins was transferred to the Night Bill Force, and we have no "Sissy" now.

Max Noble had another attack of Arkansas "chills." We advise him to take Mandrake pills.

Godkey has returned. They say he received a very interesting note from our departed "Fully."

J. D. Garland is looking wise and saying nothing these days. Jeff has something up his sleeve.

H. F. J. Drake, who has been visiting the "black diamond" mines in Pennsylvania, has not yet returned.

Now that Coler has gone down, we suppose the philanthropic coal barons will proceed to put up the price of coal.

The many friends of J. C. Sowers were glad to see him back again after an absence of about 60 days. He looks very much improved in health.

J. D. Williams, slug 20, has removed his belongings to slug 58, window frame. We are sorry, as he was a nice old gentleman and an industrious workman.

Barrister Sault is time-keeper and pink-slip artist during the absence of Lenhart. Sault is quite popular and thoroughly competent to fill most any position.

For pure unadulterated gaul and brazen audacity we think the former secretary of the Second sym takes the bakery by his latest action in regard to certain notes.

Wm. H. Bright says he is glad he does not live in a doubtful State. He also says that the statement that he belongs to the North Carolina "Red Shirts" is untrue.

There has been considerable correspondence in the daily papers recently in regard to government employees going home to vote. The employees of this office did their duty in this respect.

Now that the excitement incident to the elections is over, the races have commenced and excitement of another kind will commence. It seems strange how readily some people give in their hard-earned cash to the bookmakers.

Our office was well represented at the Vaughn Class Concert last Friday night and we feel confident that all who went felt that they received their money's worth. Mr. Connelly's rendition of the comic song entitled, "Old Bill Bailey Do Come Home," was worth the price of admission alone.

Apropos the movement on foot to raise the Public Printer's salary. We think he can depend upon the hearty cooperation of all the employees of this office in any effort he may make in that direction, as he has done everything in his power to further their interest, given them the benefit of every doubt in regard to increase of salary or half-day holidays, etc.

S. M. S.

For $20 a Month.

Mr. Donath will sell homes on just those terms. Call or write.

Oyster pan roast, 10c. R. A. Driscoll's, N. Cap. and G sts. Overholt whisky, 10c.

Treasury Branch.

Judge Holeman, who has been on the sick list for over a month, returned to work Monday.

Miss Isabel Long, of the folding room, returned to work Tuesday, after an absence of several weeks on leave.

The following returned from leave the early part of the week: Bruce Austin, John Gaylor, Eddie Moores, Clint Price, Raymond Gery. Col. Wm. A. Whitney, and A. B. Proctor.

Can you sing, dance, or play a musical instrument? If so, you are hereby requested to become a member of the Columbia Union Minstrels.

Harry Hughes was called home about ten days ago on account of the illness of his mother. She died last week, being sick only a short time, at the advanced age of 77 years, and was buried from her home at Mt. Holly, N. J. Harry has the sympathy of all in his great loss.

Miss Sarah Martin, for many years forelady of the folding room, died Wednesday, November 5, at her late residence 1389 F street northeast, after a long illness. The funeral services were held Saturday morning, the 8th instant, at St. Joseph's Church. Miss Martin had been an employe of the Government Printing Office and its branches for a great many years, and had therefore made hosts of friends, who were pained to learn of her death.

P. A. Caton, until about three years ago an employe of this division, when he resigned on account of ill health, died Tuesday morning at his home, 70 K street northwest. He was buried Thursday morning, the funeral services being held at St. Aloysius Church. "Patsy," as he was familiarly known, was a native of Washington and had been an employe of the Government Printing Office for years. He was a good printer and well known to all the old members of Columbia Union.

THE TRADES UNIONIST.

OFFICIAL ORGAN CENTRAL LABOR UNION, WASHINGTON BRANCH, AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR.

Vol. VII. No. 23. WASHINGTON, D. C., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1902. Price, 3 Cents.

THE CENTRAL LABOR UNION

Hecht & Co. Declared Unfair to Organized Labor.

PLUMBERS NOT REINSTATED.

Miners' Relief Committee Report—Pipe Covers and Stationary Firemen's Unions No Longer Exist—Machinist to Secure Eight-Hour Day—Gas Workers and Mr. McLean—Carriage Workers and Corby Bros.' Matter—The Arlington Bottling Works—Drug Clerks.

Central Labor Union was called to order Monday night at Typographical Temple by President Hamerstrom. Secretary Winslow read the minutes of the previous meeting which were approved.

The Grievance Committee stated they had been unable to adjust the difference existing between the Retail Clerks Union and Hecht & Co., and recommended the request of the clerks that said firm be placed upon the unfair list of this body, and Secretary be directed to inform the Central bodies of New York and Baltimore cities of said action be granted. There was an amendment offered that the recommendation be concurred in, provided the Retail Clerks withdraw their members from said establishment. The amendment was lost and request granted on original motion.

Credentials were received from International Union Steam Engineers, No. 77, certifying James J. McCracken and W. Lucas; from Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen certifying Henry Beuchert, Martin Hellmuth, William Gaegler and Robert Kuhn; from Cigarmakers Union, No. 110, certifying Henry Collins and Walter Whitehead.

A communication from Secretary Electrical Contractors Association stating that the Electrical Construction Company was doing the work of Charles Rauscher, was referred to Grievance Committee.

The Musicians' Union communicated acknowledging the receipt of thanks of this body for music furnished at the miners' benefit concert at Chase's Opera House.

A communication from International Union of Steam Engineers stating they had taking the Arlington Brewing Company from their unfair list and requested their grievance against said firm now pending in this body be withdrawn; the communication also stated the action was taken upon the request of Brewery Workers, No. 118, who assured both this body and the Engineers that should the New Orleans convention indorse President Gompers decision on said matter they would turn Mr. Baur over to Engineers No. 99. Request complied with.

Drug Clerks commuicated stating Harry T. Smith, 601 Eight street northeast and W. S. Richardson, 316 Four-and-a-half street southwest had signed contracts with their union.

Carriage and Wagon Workers called attention to their grievance against Corby Bros., and the report of the committee. The Contract Committee was directed to secure a contract with said firm.

The Gas Workers stated Mr. McLean had failed to keep faith with the Grievance Committee, and that only seven of the forty-two members of their union had returned to work, while vacancies had been filled with new men. The secretary was directed to call Mr. McLean's attention to the matter and request a meeting with the Grievance Committee.

Machinists, No. 174, reported that Emerson Pump Company had taken their work away from the F. R. Patch Manufacturing Company, and asked that the committee having the matter in hand be discharged. Request granted.

Washington Lodge, No. 193, Machinists stated that in the near future they would endeavor to secure an eight-hour day in contract shops, now working nine hours, in this city, and requested that President Hamerstrom act in conjunction with said committee to secure desired results.

Chairman Sprague, of Miners Relief Committee, stated $1,000 in cash had been forwarded to the miners and that full returns have not yet been made.

Attention was called to the fact that Stationary Firemens' Union No. 12, and Pipe Covers' Union were no longer in existence and the secretary was directed to strike said unions from the roll.

Delegate Brinkman introduced the following resolution which was tabled:

WHEREAS, The Local Union of Plumbers having been expelled from representation in the Central Labor Union of the District of Columbia for refusing to affiliate with the Building Trades Section of the said organization, and

WHEREAS, There are two or more organizations now represented in the Central Labor Union that are not in affiliation with the Building Trades Section of the said organization, and

WHEREAS, It is the opinion of the Central Labor Union that the best interest of the building trades will be best subserved by affiliation with the Section named herein, and will redound to the interests of all labor bodies by presenting a solid front to the common enemy, who in convention boast of the labor forces being divided among themselves, affording them relief and a clear field in which to operate to the detriment of the wealth producers of our city and country, and

WHEREAS, The Central Labor union should by every conceivable means endeavor to create a sentiment in favor of affiliating with the Building Trades Section in a kindly spirit before resorting to force which is only productive of internecine strife in the majority of instances, and when the exigency of the case deserves such drastic action, it is the opinion of this body that all organizations here represented should receive exactly the same treatment without distinction, as all should be equal before the law, therefore be it

Resolved, That the representatives of the Local Plumbers Union be and they are hereby admitted as delegates to this body.

That a committee of three members be appointed to call upon those organizations not in affiliation with the Building Trades Section of this body, and endeavor to prevail upon them to affiliate with the same, two of the members of the committee to be members of organizations in affiliation with the Building Trades Section, and the third to be from one of the miscellaneous organizations here represented.

Any expense arising from the endeavors of the committee as indicated in these resolutions shall be paid by the Central Labor Union.

Bindery Notes.

□ The orators were out in full force at the last union meeting.

James Kearney went a hunting last week and shot a tame turkey.

"Blokie" Beyler is at last happy. Will Adams is making paste to suit him.

Bill Reese, better known as "Barbara Frietchie," was greatly pleased this week with his present from Robert Stack.

Leonard Meyers is an expert when it comes to picking grafters, but Gus Bauer says he can't include him in that class.

Joseph Day has joined a gym. He says there will be something doing in a short time, and he is going to defend himself in the near future.

It was rumored around that Pat Finnegan would bring back a bride with him from Boston, but the best he could do was to bring a bull terrier for his friend Tim McKenna.

The cowboys have three candidates among those contesting for office this year. Fredericks, Gallagher, and Dwyer. The former has a cinch, as he has Tim Shea working for him.

Some of Tim McKenna's friends were inquiring of the Washington contingent why Tim failed to come up to vote this year. The only explanation they could give was that since the arrival of "Litttle Tim," "Big Tim" must take a back seat.

The following were nominated for office: For president, Robt. D. Barrett; vice president, John Fredericks, Geo. F. Kirch; recording secretary, John L. Dwyer, W. E. Gallagher, Robt. T. Fraily; treasurer, J. A. B. Espey; statistician, J. A. Weidman; guide, Jno. W. Pyemont; inspector, Charles Cassidy; finance committee, Joseph T. Mitchell, P. R. Flanagan, Harry Flicker.

Cow Boy.

Death of Wilbur G. Brower.

On Tuesday afternoon, November 18, occurred the death of Wilbur Goodman Brower, of typhoid fever.

Mr. Brower, familiarly known as Judge, for a number of years previous and up to the time of his death was employed in the Fourth Division of the Government Printing Office. He was highly esteemed by his fellow workmen, who found him every ready to accommodate, good-natured, and jovial.

His age was 56 years.

Funeral takes place from his late residence, 424 H street northwest, today at 11 o'clock a. m.

Notice.

We were in error in stating in a communication to THE TRADES UNIONIST that the cases for pay for leaves of absence to temporary employes of the Government Printing Office were set for trial on January 5, 1904. These cases have been specially set for hearing on January 5, 1903, and we hope for a favorable decision in time to secure an adjustment by March, 1903, of cases filed in the Court of Claims.

A. F. OF L. IN CONVENTION

Twenty-second Annual Session Now in Progress at New Orleans.

MANY PROPOSITIONS FILED

Salary of President $3,000 and Secretary $2,500 Per Year Hereafter—Resolutions to Abolish Injunction, Fine System, Child Labor, to Organize Bureau of Engraving and Printing—Demanding Government Make Porto Ricans Citizens, Favor Position of Ticket Scalpers.

The Twenty-second Annual Convention of the American Federation of Labor was called to order by President Gompers at Odd Fellows' Hall, New Orleans, La., on Thursday, November 12, 1902. President Robert E. Lee, of the Trades and Labor Assembly of that city, extended to the convention, in a very appropriate speech, the greetings of New Orleans laborers and tradesmen.

There were about 300 delegates present.

The Committee on Credentials reported; there were several organizations not eligible, and also a number of credentials protested.

The chair then announced the committees.

President Gompers read his report, which was enthusiastically received by the convention and referred to Committee on President's Report. The reports of Secretary Morrison and Treasurer Lennon were read and referred to their respective committees. Vice-President Duncan read the report of the Executive Council, which was referred to the Committee on Executive Council's Report.

Porto Rico's first delegates to this convention are Santiago Iglesias, general organizer of that country; Yulis Aybar, Eugenio Sanches Lopez, of Ponce; Richardo Vasquez, of San Juan, and Hipolito Bair, of Mayaguez.

Washington, D. C., is represented on the following committees: Grievance, W. M. Garrett; Central Bodies, John B. Dickman; Rules and Order of Business, Miss E. Marchalk.

Many resolutions were introduced, the following being the most important:

By Treasurer John B. Lennon—To secure a large United States flag and make it the official property of the American Federation of Labor, with appropriate inscriptions.

A resolution asking President Roosevelt to pardon E. W. Clark, confined in prison at Thomaston, Me.

Resolution amending the Constitution of the Federation so that no charter will be granted to any body without a thorough investigation of the trades lines. Object to adjust the trouble over trade autonomy.

Delegate Rosenberg, of California, wants a fraternal delegate sent to Germany.

By Delegate E. Kaufman, revoking the charter of United Brewery Workers.

The Porto Rican delegates offered several resolutions. One was directed against the importation of native Porto Ricans into Hawaii, and the Government at Washington is invoked to stop the iraffic because of its misleading features, and to punish the offenders.

Inglesias, the Porto Rican organizer, offered a resolution asking for a union label for Porto Rican coffee.

Another was offered by Inglesias asking that President Roosevelt investigate the outrageous treatment of himself in Porto Rico, when he attempted to form labor unions. He was imprisoned six times. The State Department is asked to take the matter up.

Resolution by the Marine Cooks and Stewards asking to come under the jurisdiction of the International Seamen's Union of America.

A resolution from Musicians Union that only union musicians be employed at the St. Louis Fair.

The most amusing resolution of the day was submitted by Charles H. Dubois, of Fort Worth, Tex., representing the Central Trades of that place. His paper read:

WHEREAS, With the "wind jammers" of Colorado on the one side and the pauper labor of Mexico on the other, Texas is between the devil and the deep blue sea.

Resolved, That the interests of unionism in Texas and "contagious" territory require the presence for two months or longer, of an eloquent and effective paid organizer of the American Federation of Labor.

Mr. Dubois introduced another resolution providing for a Central Trades Council in every city of over 15,000 inhabitants.

A resolution by Delegate E. Kaufman against the revoking of the charter of the Amalgamated Wood Workers and Amalgamated Carpenters, by the Brotherhood.

Resolution of John B. Dickman, of Washington, looking to the organization of all the workers in the Bureau of Printing and Engraving at Washington.

Resolution directing the support of the American Federation of Labor to the National Letter Carriers' Association for better wages and shorter hours.

A resolution supporting the position of ticket scalpers and opposing all anti-scalping legislation. The resolution is especially aimed at the effort of passenger associations over the country to unite and down the scalping at the St. Louis Fair.

A. Furnsith, of the International Seamen's Union, San Francisco, introduced a resolution opposing the building of the Nicaragua Canal. It is alleged that the construction of said canal would cause internal strife among the Latin States and would lead to wars and bloodshed; one opposing the ship subsity bill; one against extradition treaties

A resolution was offered placing the Western Union Telegraph Company upon the unfair list, owing to said company discharging operators at Pittsburg because they joined the union.

A resolution was introduced from the New Orleans Central Trades and Labor Council asking that the Gulf Bag Company and all its institutions over the country be placed on the unfair list.

A resolution was offered asking that President Gompers make a visit to Porto Rico, and that the proceedings of this convention be printed in Spanish for the benefit of the laboring people of the island.

A resolution against all injunction legislation.

A resolution for an old age pension.

A resolution that the salary of President Gompers be increased to $4,000, and that of Secretary Morrison to $2,400 per year.

Resolution that a committee of three be appointed from each of the Team Drivers' International Union and the National Team Drivers' Union of Chicago, the two rival organizations, with three members from the American Federation as referees, to settle the differences and to arrive at an amicable adjustment; both to agree that the plan settled upon shall be adopted.

A resolution that the Chicago Federation of Labor expel the Chicago Team Drivers' Union, on the ground that they are without lawful standing and do not have seats in the Federation convention.

A resolution that the American Federation of Labor demand that the Government recognize the people of Porto Rico as American citizens and guarantee them the same rights and privileges as to the citizens of all States and Tertories.

A resolution calling on the several bodies forming to Federation to cooperate in securing the establishment of the initiative and referendum in the National Government.

A resolution by the Granite Cutters' International Union stating that it was desirable, not only for the people living and working in the United States, but also for those who are to come here, that every adult immigrant (except wives and aged parents) be required to obtain before coming so much education as will enable him to read his own language, and the American Federation's officers are urged to aid in getting such a law adopted by Congress.

A resolution urging the Federation to continue its efforts and to instruct its officers to do all that they can to abolish child labor.

A resolution asking that the Federation urge the incoming Executive Council and all friends of labor to labor to procure the enactment of national laws to protect disabled workmen and provide a system of insurance for the assistance of laborers during enforced idleness.

A resolution which stated that, whereas, a system of money fines for lawbreakers is a relic of barbarism, and makes equality before the law a delusion, because the rich pay, and the poor go to jail for the same offense, the American Federation of Labor appeals to Congress to pass a resolution submitting to the Legislatures of the States asking for an amendment of the Federal Constitution prohibiting money fines and putting the administration of justice on an equality for all alike.

A resolution by the Coopers' International Union asking that on account of the prevalence of bogus labels, the labels approved by the Federation be printed in the Federationist.

A resolution offered declared in favor of the union of the American Federation and the American Labor Union, two antagonistic organizations. Another was for the use of union-made hats in the army.

A resolution that the American Federation of Labor place itself on record in favor of the collective ownership of the production and distribution, and urges upon all trades union men in America to make use of the ballot to accomplish this purpose,

A resolution that the incoming Executive Board be instructed to use every effort and all honorable and conciliatory means to unite the American Labor Union of the Western States with the American Federation of Labor.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA TRIP

Her Earthly Paradises Graphically Depicted by F. A. Roderick.

CROSSING THE MOJAVE DESERT

Cities, Towns, and Country—Santa Catalina Island—Mount Shasta—Old Time Spanish Wealth and Hospitality—Meccas for Invalids—One Continual Bower of Flowers—Helen Hunt Jackson's Moreno Ranch—The Cliffs—Oregon and Washington Very Progressive States.

Glad words of tongue and pen having filled the mind of the tourist with visions of a land that is fairer than the sunny vales of France, he approaches the region designated as Southern California with the thought and feeling of one who is about to be ushered into an earthly paradise. On entering he finds a mountain and ocean-fringed plain, filled with beautiful towns and charming country homes, encompassed by flower-beds and vast stretches of orange and lemon orchards. He also discovers, as elsewhere on the Pacific slope, waterless rivers, sage-brush deserts, roads laden with dust, a portion of which is carried hither and thither by every wind that blows and the remainder held down with an inferior grade of native oil. Southward, on the Coast Line, for 150 miles along the cliffs of the Pacific, a panorama of beautiful marine views is presented. San Luis Obespo and Paso Robles are passed on the way. The former, an old-time center of Spanish wealth and hospitality, handsomely situated on plain and mountain side; and the latter an invalid mecca, reports cures effected by its waters that would put the average Christian scientist to the blush. Cosmopolitan Santa Barbara, the old-time health and pleasure resort on the sounding sea, is delightfully shut in, and protected from the fogs that occasionally annoy other coast cities, by the lofty Santa Ynez range. The old Mission, which overlooks the town, with its solemn arches, well-kept vineyard, orchard and garden, and the tiled adobe houses are reminiscences of a historic and romantic past and add to the attractiveness of the handsome modern residences, surrounded by luxuriant gardens, wide paved-streets, fine business houses, churches, schools, and hotels of the present. Palm-lined ocean Boulevard and State street (3 miles long) are the principal thoroughfares. On the former a milion-dollar hotel is in course of erection. Of the 21 Old Missions in the State, that at Santa Barbara is the best preserved. Some of these monuments of a past century are in an advanced state of decay while others are still used as places of worship. The most noted of those located in the Southern section are found at San Buenaventura, San Diego, San Miguel, and San Gabriel, the last named, with its old bells, standing at an end of a pueblo of the same name that played an important part in the early history of California. Comulos was of interest to the lover of romance, for here is the location of Helen Hunt Jackson's Moreno ranch, the girlhood home of Ramona, whose name will not fade from memory so long as there is a hotel named or to be named in the golden State. Standing on one of Los Angeles heights and overlooking the miles of hill and valley from which rise the public and private buildings of a community numbering 110,000, it was difficult to realize that the Mexican adobe town of 30 years ago had become such a city of commercial palaces and palatial homes. The only remainders existing today of another civilization are the Plaza, Mission Church, remnant of Sonora town, and the quaint home of some old-time dignitary. In the Los Angeles of the present the pueblo plays no part, and the sound of the angelus is lost in the city roar. The business streets and the finely-paved boulevards are of unusually impressive appearance. Of the numerous well-kept pleasure-grounds the best improved are West Lake, East Lake, and Elysian parks. In these inclosures and lining the streets and drive ways are seen the palm, magnolia, pepper, eucalyptus, acacia, catalpa, and cypress tree, as well as the broad-leafed banana, mammoth century plant, tree geranuim, and housetop reaching rose. Some of the owners of the flower-begemmed abodes that fringe the boulevards have had riches thrust upon them by the discovery of oil on their premises. California, in the absence of coal, has oil to burn, and she is burning it to drive her railroad locomotives, electric street cars, elevators, and coastwise ships. Great quantities of the greasy fluid has been found in this section of the State, the output being enormous at Summerland, where the wells are bored in the ocean and oil pumped from the depths, a quarter of a mile from land, by wave power. The loveliest town on the coast, nature-and-art-made Pasadena, shadowed by towering mountain summits, is a place of gardens, vineyards, and groves; a residence city, with the residences set in miniature parks, and withal its business houses, church buildings, and hotels are of the finest and the best. Mt. Lowe's towering height, the seaside resorts of Long Beach and Santa Monica, and San Pedro, where the Government is investing millions in an up-to-date harbor, are all closely connected with Los Angeles by frequent car service. Steamers run regularly between the last-named place and Avalon (a tiny city of hotels, residences, cottages, and tents), on Santa Catalina Island. This 52-mile trip on the Pacific was rendered pleasant by exhibitions of the marvelous air-pierceing powers of the festive flying fish. A most wonderful feature of this island coast is the sea aquarium or marine garden, seen through glass bottomed boats, the water being so clear that the eye can penetrate it to a depth of 100 feet. There is a natural forest in evidence on the bottom of the sea—tall trees, beautiful shrubbery, flowers in color, and mossy lawns, the whole alive with every species of seething fish from the man sized tuna to the golden minnow. A complete tour of Southern California, includes a visit to the pretty fruit centers of Pomona, Ontario, Colton, and Orange, to the fountain city of San Bernardino, and to Carpinteria, the home of the largest grape vine in the world, being 8 feet in diameter at the base. The two most noted places in region, however, are Riverside and Redlands, where the results of irrigation are more noticeable than anywhere else on earth. A dozen years ago the last named was a barren hillside, with no green spot for the jack rabbit and coyote to sport upon; to-day it is a city of 5,000 people, with 1,300 acres of orange, lemon, olive, and other fruit trees, interspersed with magnificent flower-embowered homes and well-made driveways. The Yankee Smiley brothers have made "Smiley Heights" blossom with 200 acres of flower garden and a thousand varieties of trees and shrubs. The beauty of all this, with the views, the drives, and the lake beggars description. Riverside is chiefly distinguished for the great avenue—the "Magnolia"—connecting it with a neighboring town; it is a 7-mile stretch of double roadway, jeweled with the slender eucalyptus, the spreading palm, the drooping pepper, and the graceful magnolia, set off with a bewildering profusion of flowers and lined on the right and the left with great orange groves, in which were half hidden ideal, foliage-encompassed homes.

Crossing the Mojave desert (which, under the benign influences of irrigation, is rapidly losing the desert characteristics), and bidding farewell to Southern California at "the Loop" of Tehachapi Pass, we took our way northward through Fresno, the center of raisin culture and the seat of extensive canneries and wineries. From San Francisco to Portland the route is one of matchless grandeur—through the picturesque canon of the Sacramento, over mountain ranges, by the gigantic ledges of Castle Crags, and at intervals from the railroad for 200 miles towering, snow-covered, 14,000 foot Mt. Shasta is seen in all its magnificence and loftiness.

Pull and push characterizes Oregon's chief city, which is well built and finely situated on the Willamette. A sail on the river, which is here crossed by a number of fine drawbridges, and up the

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

The Inexpressibly Mean Man is to be found everywhere, in all aggregations of people, among all organizations, and quite as often in beneficial societies and churches as elsewhere. Inexpressible Meanness appears in many forms and the I. M. M. has many different phases of Meanness.

Take the backcapper, who never has anything but vituperation and abuse for those absent. While he soon becomes known and his denunciation hurts no one, he is Inexpressibly Mean all the same, for he intends to injure. No matter whose name comes up, his foul tongue spits out its venom. The victim is struck at in his personal character and in his actions.

Then there is the tale-bearing Mean Man. If he sees a weak brother staggering under a load of bug juice and trouble at a time when he ought to be otherwise employed, the I. M. M. makes it his business to see that those in authority over the weak brother are informed. He may not do it at first hand, or he may tell it as a good joke, or he may give the information by insinuation and suggestion, but he surely will give it. He thinks he is making himself "solid" by so doing, but he is only earning contempt.

There is the stingy Mean Man, to whom no case of distress appeals. If a fellow-toiler becomes sick and in need he turns the subscription paper down. "He has been here long enough to be provided for such things, so I won't give him a cent," says he. This same man kicks desperately at union dues, and a small sum extra in the way of an assessment sets him wild. He doesn't take a trade paper; he doesn't know anything about union matters; he doesn't want to, because he doesn't believe in unions, for he thinks he would have better opportunities to get the advantage of his fellow-workman if there were no unions. He is the same fellow who condemns all strikes and strikers, greedily swallowing all the misinformation given out in the newspapers as to strikers' outrages and repeating them wherever he can. But he never prospers, remaining to the end of his days a miserable, grasping, dishonest thing. If he reads this, it will be in a borrowed paper.

There is another I. M. M. in the chap who delights to call the attention of the authorities to others' mistakes and oversights. If he is a proofreader, he shows an unusually dirty proof to the foreman, overlooking the fact that the proof speaks for itself and it is the foreman's business to listen to it. If he is a reviser, he has a double whack. He can call the foreman's attention to the proofreader's oversight (if he sees it) and to the compositor's. If he is a compositor, he can "tell on" a fellow-workman who may be culpable and on a proofreader who hasn't done all that he should.

Another specimen of the I. M. M. is the chap who stands up at the bar and guzzles on every round, but who "never says turkey" once. This class is a variable sort. Some of them will "let out their turns" when they begin to feel pretty good, but never at any other time, kicking themselves soundly the next morning—not for getting drunk, but for paying for part of it. I heard of a case of this sort where the I. M. M. was drinking with a 15-cents-per-booze party, and when the round came up to him, or, rather, immediately after the last man bought he would say: "Now give us a cigar" at 5c. per, keeping that game up all evening. We all know the fellows described in this class, but it is rare that they are "called," as they should be.

A very common I. M. M. is the occasional boozer who has no charity for other boozers when he is not boozing. His contempt for a drinking man, during his attack of virtue, is almost beyond expression, but he ready to do his best at expressing it. Occasionally he is boiled out at one of the hospitals himself, but that entirely fades from his mind when he is denouncing others.

Not to be forgotten is the I. M. M. who disfigures posted notices with his drivel, though he belongs more often in the Gibbering Idiot class, and is only entitled to be rated an I. M. M. when his idiocy is dictated by malice. He destroys the value of the notice as an advertisement, usually when unobserved, and so is a scoundrel as well as a coward. His attempts at wit are of the weakest sort, and no posted notice, from lost tweezers to rooms for rent, is sacred from his bughouse scribbling. Let's all agree to kill him wherever we find him.

There is still another I. M. M. who, building nothing himself, devotes his time to sneering at the efforts of others. If a young fellow-workman strives to improve his circumstances by acquiring a profession, or undertakes to write for the press, or presumes to speak in public or at the union, or exercises his talent and knowledge in music or any other art, or is deeply religious and devoted to church work, he immediately becomes a target for the belittling of the I. M. M., who, knowing himself incapable of anything above what he is, never consents that another may be.

A diabolical concatenation and homogeneous combination into one essentially contemptible aggregation is the Inexpressibly and Irredeemably Mean Man who criticises those who (as I do) modestly describe them, set forth their malignity, and put people on their guard.

There are a few ex-delegates in our jurisdiction (elected elsewhere, of course) who never served their unions as such. Elected duly, for some reason they failed to attend the convention and get on the roll of members. In most instances, after their election, their union has been unable to raise the money to send them—usually because of a strike or other trouble. The quesis as to their eligibility as members of the Ex Delegates' Association. It is probable that the test of eligibility will be the presentation of their credentials at the convention—an act necessary to enrollment.

A party of gentlemen were discussing the merits of a certain brand of whisky the other day, and one, in the hope of strengthening his side of the question, impudently appealed to Mr. William F. Dorsey, who was standing by, to verify what he had said.

"I don't know, sir," said Mr. Dorsey, with severe dignity.

"Didn't you ever drink any Bughouse whisky?" asked the disputant. (That may not have been the name of the brand, but it will sufficiently describe it.)

"No, sir," said Mr. Dorsey, with dignified severity.

"What!" said another. "Never drank any Bughouse whisky?"

"No, sir; I never drank any Bughouse whisky—that is what I said," replied Mr. Dorsey, in repellant tones.

"Why, Mr. Dorsey——" began Charlie Ennis, who overheard the conversation.

"Mr. Ennis, kindly understand that I never drank any Bughouse whisky, nor any other kind of whisky. I do not even know the taste of whisky." And Mr. Dorsey strode away, expressing disgust in every movement.

The November number of the New England Printing Trades Journal (Boston: M. A. Murphy, 234 Congress street; $1 per annum; now is the time to subscribe) will contain a cut and an article on our Typographical Temple, by one of our ablest young writers. (I wrote the article myself.) Boston is ambitious to have a Typographical Temple, and as she has a larger membership than we had when we began ours, there is no reason why she should not succeed. There is no more worthy, capable, or enterprising body of workingmen and workingwomen anywhere than those who compose Boston Union, No. 13, and I shall be more than pleased if they undertake and carry out such a laudable enterprise. I think there is a growing sentiment to have a building devoted to organized labor in every large city. Ours is surely a success both as an investment and as a home for labor organizations.

I am told that W. N. Brockwell is at work on another patriotic poem, "The Soldier's Lament o'er his Empty Canteen," dealing not with lonely graves and tattered blue and gray uniforms, but with the miseries and griefs of the living soldiers during the greatest war ever known. Mr. Brockwell's previous efforts, the fame and glory of the authorship of which he has permitted another to enjoy, are a guaranty that the subject will not suffer at his hands. We have many poets—printers take to poetry like a young pup to warm milk—but we have only one truly patriotic poet.

MORE BOUQUETS.

["Imitation is the sincerest flattery." But a poor imitation does not flatter much.]

When the frost is on the chestnut and the sweet persimmon's ripe,
And the wind swirls through the alley and the steam is in the pipe,
Oh, 'tis then our soulful poet for his pen forsakes the type,
And the mournfulness of autumn becomes like summer days
When Adam Bugg (the poet of the Record) sings his lays.

As all our days are toilsome and our tired hearts are sore,
With joy we read his merry rhymes and, hungry, cry for more,
Nor heed the blasts of winter and the storm king's angry roar;
For in the murkiest weather we can feel the sun's bright rays
When Adam Bugg (the poet of the Record) sings his lays.

The official career of George Harry Stone, of the Official Gazette chapel, Specifications, is an honorable one. He was a delegate from St. Louis Union, No. 8, at Louisville, Ky., in 1864, and again at Atlanta, Ga., in 1890; served two terms as president of his union, and was an organizer of the I. T. U. It is needless to add that Mr. Stone has tendered his assistance in every way to the Ex-Delegates' Association and his name is enrolled as a member.

W. S. (or "Bill") Loomis, formerly of the Fourth Division, is a military officer over in the Philippines. John Bonini says he is a colonel, but I think probably he means corporal or sergeant. He sent Bonini a bunch of Manila paper recently, which accounts for his rapid promotion.

According to Typographical Journal correspondents:

Two young ladies from Washington, D. C., are subbing on machines in New Orleans—one on the Picayune and one in a job office. Names unknown.

Washington was unanimously selected by the International Stereotypers' and Electrotypers' Union as their next place of meeting.

W. S. Waudby, of the U. S. Labor Bureau, is now located in Cleveland.

W. E. ("Kid") Shields is now in charge of the proofroom of the Rocky Mountain News, Denver.

"Alex. Gordon, of Washington, D.C., has been shaking hands with former workmates in this city" (Saginaw, Mich.). "Alex. is holding a fat job in the Treasury Department." Can this refer to our linotype machinist of the Star? If so, what kind of a game is he playing on the Saginawsters?

Lee Riley was in Lincoln, Neb., recently.

The facts that J. J. Sullivan and Ed Lathan voted and visited at Buffalo; John G. Jamerson, at Lyons, N. Y.; John Onyun and Charles Garrells, at Peoria, Ill.; and James Monroe Kreiter and Richard B. Topham, at Philadelphia, are deemed worthy of noting. I did not know that "Toppy" was back in Washington. I used to work with him on bills a quarter of a hundred years ago. He was away from here about fifteen years. Now he is at Judd & Detweiler's, according to the item.

The entertainment of Columbia Union will be given on Friday evening, January 2, and Chairman T. L. Jones and his Entertainment Committee have provided a most attractive programme. All the musicians, vocal and instrumental, are printers, as are the other performers. The show will begin with an "olio" of six acts, with John R. Purvis as interlocutor and Frank D. Smith, Charles E. Slentz, W. K. Miller, and Jessie F. Grant as end men. Harvel, the magician, will give a novel act in the olio. Leo Rullman, an old professional, will juggle; Edward McCormack will do a song and dance; and the Schubert Quartette (Moyer, Bridwell, Love, and Linebach) will sing. The programme is not fully made up yet and the other features will be announced as decided upon. The talent in our union is of a high order and that a most enjoyable performance will be given is not to be doubted. Mr. Jones is indefatigable in his efforts and deserves the prestige that attend success.

The following members of this room were recently transferred to the Night Bill Force: R. B. Pruess, J. H. Swerdfiger, J. H. McCormick, and Ferd Harrison.

The office cat now has a card and is duly entitled to work in the big printery. Chairman need feel no hesitancy in collecting Tom's dues and ringing his matter.

The ponies have not been running to suit several of our sporting members, and as a consequence, pocketbooks and wallets are wearing a very depressed look.

Cincinnati Enquirer stock is quoted as being steady. Since McCormick's transfer to the Night Bill Force his health, etc., is being enquired after every morning with more than a friendly feeling.

John L. Clendennin, while at home exercising his constitutional rights as a citizen of the United States, decided that this life of single blessedness was not all "beer and skittles," and in accordance with that decision completed a romance begun in boyhood days, by marrying the girl who fanned love's spark into a blaze. Congratulations, John, and here's hoping that life's pathway will be strewn with roses and never a thorn.

AFTER-DINNER DILATIONS.

The coal operators have it in their power to make everyone thankful.

***

Already the good husband misses the dimes which may return to him in another form, about Christmas time.

***

There would be fewer ten-dollar banquet plates if those who indulge them had first to earn the ten dollars.

***

WHAT'S THE HODS?

It's just as well to be thankful—
Thankful for what we've got,
Thankful for coal in the cellar,
And thankful if coal we've not.

***

There are statesmen who go mad at the mention of paternalism, but vote regularly for appropriations to make navigable some stream yet undiscovered.

***

The President's luck failed him in the wilds of Tennessee. This is an argument in faver of Pennsylvania, where his Bear hunt was eminently successful.

***

It should surprise no one that President Eliot, of Harvard, characterizes "scab" workers as "heroes." That gentleman is on record as having sought to discredit the atonement.

***

It is reported that Mrs. Molineux is about to institute proceedings for divorce. This would seem to indicate that the verdict of the jury was a disappointment to one person, at least.

***

Cannon is about the biggest gun yet mentioned in connection with the Speakership. Others have been observed above the breastworks, but they are believed to be of the disappearing sort.

***

The favor of Providence in continuing fair weather conditions during the coal famine has been acknowledged by many people who make fault finding the rule and thankfulness the exception.

***

The man who claims to have conscientious scruples which will not allow him to become identified with organized labor for a betterment of conditions is of the same account as the soldier of boasted loyalty who deserts the flag at the first point of danger.

***

There is danger that the commission may conclude to reduce the pay of the miners instead of recommending an advance. The appalling discovery has been made that some of the miners are owners of cottage organs, others have carpeted floors, and a few have money in the bank.

***

When Captain Smoot decided several months ago to take up his abode at Vienna with the F. F. V.'s, many were the regrets expressed, yet his friends of the Specification Division (and they are legion) joined in the wish that he might find his new home a pleasant retreat under the welcoming shade of his own spreading maples, and where the carefully-trained vines clambered the lattice-work of the spacious veranda and the perfumes of sweet blossoms shed exotic fragrance throughout the long hours of the drear and stilly night, and where birds of song came each fresh morn at his rose-bowered cottage window to carol their tuneful lays and announce the glad tidings of a newborn day. These were among the inducements offered and which the Captain considered while hesitating between city and country life, and among his particular friends there were none to seriously protest, even though by the transaction an occasional ride was sacrificed. It will be remembered that something like a year ago the Captain purchased a horse, and that later he got a little buggy—a snug fit for two. The horse he named "Judge," because of a hesitancy or changeableness of purpose in reaching a certain point. The Captain was particularly well pleased when, later, the President gave his broncho or saddle horse the same name. Although somewhat removed from the gaieties of the city the Captain still cherishes a fondness for the "turf," and it is a proud satisfaction to be able to present herewith a snap shot of the outfit, which represents the Captain in good form on his way to the fall "meet" at Bennings.

***

The recent coal strike with its far-reaching effects has awakened an interest in labor matters never before manifest. Ministers of the Gospel and writers for the religious press are beginning to realize and acknowledge that economic conditions bear near relation to moral and religious conditions. The editor of the Epworth Herald has written from Wilkesbarre, Pa., to his paper giving some personal observations and concludes his letter with these words:

One of the big, burning questions thrust into the foreground by the coal miners' strike is the relation of the Christian churches to labor unions and federations. The churches and the unions are now far apart. The attitude of many of the men is one of indifference. With many others it is positive antagonism. They do not go to church. They do not support the church. They are hotly against it. How far is the church responsible for this? Has our patronizing attitude toward rich men, who give their money to support our educational and benevolent enterprises, gone too far? Have we failed to denounce the injustices suffered by the laboring men? How far should we go in our support of labor-union methods? What can we properly do to heal the breach between the churches and the unions?

In all these years of persistent effort by labor organizations for better conditions it has been impossible, except in rare instances, to enlist the support or sympathy of the church or clergy. As a result of this indifference the church-goers of liberal donations have secured the services of trained preachers, whose salaries and usefulness are measured by their ability as caterers in the interests of their employers and to whom the life and teachings of the lowly Nazarene are of no practical value. The workers invite the cooperation of the clergy everywhere in the universal recognition of the Fatherhood of GOD and the Brotherhood of Man.

AROUND THE PRINTERIES.

Down Town.

Next Thursday Turkey.

Bennings is well patronized.

Thomas Jefferson Fitzwilliam returned to town yesterday from Galveston, Texas, where he spent his leave and money.

Walter M. Aler, formerly employed at this office, and who has been for a long time confined at his home by sickness, is again at work at Gibson's.

Our next publication day occurring on Thanksgiving we request that our contributors and correspondents send in their matter not later than Tuesday noon, as THE TRADES UNIONIST wishes to go to press Wednesday.

This office is in receipt of a number of issues of The Manila Cablenews, a prosperous looking daily paper published at Manila, Philippines Islands. They were the gifts of W. S. Loomis, who formerly was employed in the Government Printing Office in this city, and who enjoyed the friendship and acquaintance of a large portion of the craft here. This is "Bill's" second trip to our faraway possessions.

Columbia Union will present to its membership on December 10 the proposition of levying a 5-cent per month assessment to be devoted in assisting the Los Angeles Union to unionize the rat Times-Mirror office in that city. This proposition should receive unanimous approval as the tax is deducted from the per capita tax as now levied. It is virtually only securing permission of the membership to so devote a portion of it for the above cause. Make it a good majority and thereby show Mr. Otis that his actions are not in accordance with trades unionism.

Messrs. John Sherman, of the "Y," and Frank N. Perkinson have just returned from a ten-days' hunting and fishing trip on Aquia Creek, where they have a houseboat that for neatness and comfort is equal to any that has ever been on the river. Will S. Schinnerer, of the Fifth Division, joined them for three days and returned delighted with his hunt, bringing home a good supply of game. The trio of pleasure seekers grew to a quartette by the appearance of Joe West, of Richmond, Va., advertising agent of the C. & O. R. R. Mr. West is one of the jolliest fellows ever found in a camp, always ready to tell a good joke and keep the boys wide awake with laughter. The party was increased, but for one night only, by the addition of Dr. Frank Waite, one of Washington's dead shots. He was so well pleased with his trip that he expects to repeat it at some future date. The kill for the ten days was 25 rabbits, 5 opossums, 11 ducks, 8 quails, 1 squirrel, and all the fish wanted. The boys contemplate another trip as soon as ducks are plentiful.

For $20 a Month.

Mr. Donath will sell homes on just those terms. Call or write.

Oyster pan roast, 10c. R. A. Driscoll's, N. Cap. and G sts. Overholt whisky, 10c.

Second Division.

J. Dillman has returned and is doing business at the old stand.

W. E. Soult is again on the proof press during the absence of Parshall.

Gentlemen will please be at their respective "bases" when the "game is called."

"Sis" Hopkins what is this rumor we hear about you? Show up, old boy, for we hope it's "not true."

Our popular bridegroom, Mr. C. P. Brown, looks as if he is real glad he is living. He looks like a 3-year old.

J. M. A. Spotswood, who has been on the sick list for sometime, has improved enough to be at his desk again.

"Old Prog" to the contrary, not withstanding, we are still of the opinion that our Terry did most of the decorating.

R. A. Julian has been full of business here of late, and from all we can learn, "there will be something doing" before a great while.

A. Coykendall has returned from a 30 days trip to his old home out in Nebraska. He was transferred to the War branch Saturday.

Now that all the "preferred trusties" have returned and the smoke of the battle, so to speak, has cleared away, "call downs" will be in order.

John Delahunty has returned from a two weeks vacation, most of which he spent in New York City, where he voted early and perhaps often.

Charles E. Davis, who has been assistant "black man" for sometime, has returned to his post again. Mr. Davis is an industries workman.

C. C. Hipkins is acting Secretary during the absence of Secretary Garrett, who is attending the meeting of the American Federation of Labor in New Orleans.

Branham says he is glad Dillman has returned as he (Branham) has been "on the run" for the past two weeks. Branny says the time alley is good enough for him.

Saltzman has returned and again assumed his old position as bankman. He wishes it distinctly understood that he never was and never hopes to be on the "proof press."

"Admiral" Dewey Drake has returned "from the mines" and the land of "mosquitos and lightning," and looks as fresh as a 3-year old, to use a "hossy" expression.

McAloon has returned from a visit to his old home in Kansas. He looks as if he enjoyed the trip. He feels confident that the large majority his State gave for the G. O. P. was owing to his presence.

Save your extra change for the "greatest minstrel show on earth," which is to be given in the near future by printers of this office. From all accounts it will be worth seeing, and we predict for the show a decided success.

E. C. Saltzman has returned from a 20 days trip to his home in St. Louis, where he voted early, if not often, and made every effort in his power to redeem that city from the wicked "boodlers," but all in vain. He succeeded in "landing" one Congressman.

The many friends of Major Clifford, our accommodating and deservedly popular paymaster, were very sorry to hear of the painful accident which befell him last Friday night as he was hurrying to catch a car. One of his fingers was broken, and he received a severe shock, but we are all glad the accident was no worse.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company did the correct thing when it decided to raise the wages of its employees 10 per cent, as it cost 10 per cent more to live now than it did 10 years ago. Had the Reading Railroad Company, which is said to own a controlling interest in the mines, adopted a similar plan last May, millions of dollars would have been saved and a score of lives also, not to speak of the worry and anxiety the scarcity and high price of coal has caused the country at large.

COLUMBIA UNION, NO. 101, MEETS.

An Interesting and Largely Attended Gathering Sunday.

The regular monthly meeting of Columbia Typographical Union was called to order last Sunday at 2:30 p. m., by President Johnson. Minutes of the last meeting were read, and after correction, approved. Traveling cards deposited since the last meeting were read and received.

The Committee on Nominations reported favorably upon the applications of the following for apprentice membership: F. W. Crown, W. S. O'Brien, and Henry T. Rodier. On motion the report was received and adopted, and the Secretary directed to cast a favorable ballot for the above applicants. The candidates in waiting were then obligated.

The following communications received since the last meeting were then read: From George B. Cortelyou, Secretary to the President, acknowledging receipt of letter of October 20, embodying resolutions adopted by this organization; from J. W. Bramwood, advising this body of the favorable action on the application of James E. Fitzgerald for admission to the Union Printers' Home; from John Mitchell acknowledging receipt of letter of October 20, containing a copy of the resolutions adopted by Columbia Typographical Union; from Hagerstown Typographical Union, No. 108, notifying this body that W. S. Griffith had made application to that union for membership; from Atlanta Typographical Union, No. 48, asking this union to withdraw its objections to admission by that union of certain applicants who had been rejected by this union; from J. W. Bramwood, notifying this union that an assessment of 5 cents per month per member for the assisiance of Los Angeles Union should be voted on by December 10; also that the first three sections of Art. IX, Constitution I. T. U., had been amended by the adoption of the four propositions which were submitted to the membership; from the Central Labor Union notifying this body that certain firms had been placed on the unfair list by that organization.

The Business Committee reported in answer to inquiry of C. F. Sudwarth that the committee held that all work done after 5:30 p. m. must be paid for at the rate of price and a-half, and based its decision on amendment to section 3, line 12, Book and Job Scale. On motion of Mr. Brockwell the report was referred back to the committee for further investigation.

Mr. Bynum, chairman of the Printing Committee, reported progress.

Mr. Stelle, of the Relief Committee, moved that $100 be appropriated for relief purposes. Adopted.

President Johnson reported three deaths since last meeting; also stated that the question of laying an assessment of 5 cents per month per member would be voted on by Columbia Union on Wednesday, December 10. He also stated that he had appointed George Seibold on the Committee of Arrangements in place of Mr. Hodes, who declined to serve.

Mr. Ennis called up the following amendment printed on the call:

Any member of the union employed in offices under this jurisdiction who takes casual or regular employment and leaves the same where the full scale of prices has been paid and all union rules strictly observed is guilty of a violation of trade custom, and should be disciplined, if in the opinion of the executive officers of the union the occasion demands it.

On motion of Mr. Kreiter the amendment was laid on the table.

The committee appointed to investigate the applications of Otho Doughty and James F. McGill for admission to the Union Printers' Home reported favorably. The sum of $5 for each member of this union at the Home for a holiday present was appropriated.

On motion the Secretary was directed to notify Hagerstown Union that this body still objects to the admission of W. S. Griffith. The matter in reference to admission by Atlanta Union of men rejected by this body was deferred until the Secretary correspond with the organizer and I. T. U. officers.

The circular of Los Angeles Union was referred to a special committee.

Columbia to The Dalles or Cascade Locks, is to enjoy, in the everchanging pictures made by snow-capped Hood, Rainier, Adams, and St. Helens, the grandest spectacle that American scenery has to afford. Multnomah Falls and the Cascades are the delight of of every beholder. To overcome the latter formidable obstacle to river navigation millions of dollars and more than 20 years of time was required to build the magnificent boatway known as "the locks." It is said that Uncle Samuel's soldiers are not averse to remaining amidst the attractions of the Columbia at Vancouver, the largest military post of the Northwest. The ride, by land and water, into and through our most northwestern State was a pleasing experience. Three straggling villages of a quarter of a century ago have here become the principal cities. Spokane, in the east, is rich and growing, making the most of her splendid water-power. Tacoma is substantially built and well laid out in broad streets on some of the sound hills. Hops, wheat, and flour go out from this port to all the world, and it leads all others in the distribution of lumber. Seattle, beautifully situated on a series of terraces rising from the waters of Puget Sound, is now the second city in size and has one of the best harbors on the coast. The recuperative power and progressiveness of the Seattleites is seen in the fact that the many solid business blocks and other stately buildings composing the present city have arisen from the ashes of the great fire of 1889. Their enterprise, however, went beyond the bounds of propriety when some of their number surreptitiously obtained a totem pole from one of the Alaskan tribes, sacrilegiously daubed it with paint, and boldly planted it in the city's most public place, where it remains to this day. The unwarranted proceeding resulted in a reduction of the treasury surplus. One of Seattle's proudest institutions is the Post-Intelligencer, a large and influential daily, on which the capable and gentlemanly Hamilton Pratt, a former member of 101, officiates as assistant foreman. "Ham," as he is familiarly called by his friends here and there, is possessed of a good wife, four interesting daughters, and a unique country home about half a dozen miles from the city, where he occasionally entertains a stray Eastern tenderfoot. William Pratt, a brother of the aforesaid, and also an ex-member of No. 101 and a former employee of the Government Printing Office, resides at the suburban town of Columbia City, in a recently purchased house elegantly situated on a bluff overlooking one of the lakes, where but for unfortunate bodily ailments he could feel that his lines were indeed cast in pleasant places.

Specification Scintillations.

The embamled beef hero and the clothing merchant still barketh.

Misses Cornelia M. Brown and Mary A. Connolly received appointments in this division last Monday.

James H. Alburtis, the Apollo of the proof room, continues to be one of our favorite sons. May his tribe increase.

Have you seen that new overcoat of Edward Nash, the "Berry Wall" of the Specification Division. "It is a thing of beauty and a joy forever."

Our efficient time-keeper, Daniel W. Beach, who bears a striking resemblance to the late General John A. Logan, returned to work Tuesday in excellent spirits.

Sometimes music hath charms to make the breast savage. Last week, Louis Carroll began a mild crusade against whistling and was seconded by many others. He was transferred, however, and the whistlers are holding high carnival.

Scott K. Young is the proud possessor of a photo displaying four generations, namely, his mother-in-law, his wife, his child, and his grandchild. The most remarkable thing about this interesting group is the extreme youthful appearance of the adults.

Joseph W. McCann, who enjoys the distinction of being one of the swiftest compositors in this country, is a prominent member of our force. In addition to his "fleetness," he is also very accurate and is often called upon to serve in the capacity of proofreader.

Harvey J. Southwick, one of our popular employes, resumed operations at the old stand last Tuesday, after an absence of over a year. He has been quite ill at his home in Albany, N. Y., but has recovered his health to the gratification of his many friends. His appearance last week was the signal for an ovation.

Last Wednesday morning Mrs. Clara L. Bennet brought down a tarantula and centipede in alcohol, sent to her by friends in the Lone Star State. Many of our employes availed themselves of the opportunity of seeing these dreaded insects, and a certain member of alley 4 was so affected that he resolved to sign the pledge.

The following compositors were released last Monday and reported to the main office: H. B. Billings, George C. Furbershaw, Louis Carroll, E. F. G. Hazle, W. H. Dedrick, William I. Bateman, T. B. Hoagland, E. H. Andrew, David Eccles, J. M. Loughran, F. P. Lippincott, J. J. Sullivan, William H. Bates, W. H. Brock, John Tuite, Owen L. Carter, and W. E. Burchfield.

To quote Shakespere, Capt. E. D. Smoot, of the ring alley, is "a looker-on here in Vienna." Recently, the valiant captain took up a residence in Vienna, Va., about eighteen miles distant from the G. P. O. pay-rolls. Last Monday he was four minutes late in reporting for duty, despite the fact that the local train was held up ten minutes to await the arrival of the breathless and dust-besprinkled Smoot. The ring alley would be a barren desert without Smoot.

An amusing incident occurred last Monday in alley 5 when transfers were made. Major J. R. McBride, chairman of the committee on notification, approached W. A. Lavalette and David Eccles and said: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, report to Captain Brian in the morning." Lavalette and Eccles both began distributing their surplus "sorts" among their friends. McBride returned later on and informed Lavalette, who was formerly a proofreader on this work, that the transfer did not include him. At the present writing Lavalette's friends have failed to return the "sorts."

Of course everybody knows Thomas Doonan, the jolly, cheerful, and globular son of the Buckeye State. Well, the following story is told at his expense and he pleads "guilty as indicted:" Some years ago Doonan was foreman of an office at Columbus, Ohio, that received a goodly portion of the State printing, the same being given out by contract at that time. He received the report of the Commissioner of Public Schools for publication. The job was "in type" and proofs sent to the school commissioner, who was out of town. Owing to rush of work Doonan grew impatient and read the proofs and corrected the same and sent the job to press. After the books were printed he received the original proofs from the school commissioner and they were filled with side notes. Doonan promptly consigned the same to the flames, preserved the original manuscript, and later on forwarded the job to the commissioner and received a check covering cost of printing. The following week the school commissioner was observed headed toward the office with a suspicious looking package under his arm. The proprietors of the office fled at once and as Doonan, the conscience-stricken wretch, was about to effect his escape through a friendly window, he was accosted by the school commissioner, who said: "Mr. Foreman, I must congratulate you upon the excellence of your work and the unusual promptness of delivery. Accept this box of cigars to be distributed among your force." Doonan nervously took the package and when the form of the school commissioner vanished in space, he feebly murmurred: "Well, I'll be d——d."

W. T. MENARD.

Al J. Gompers expects the quality and merit of his 10 cent El Sublima and 5 cent La Federacion cigars to sell them. The Union label is not used to palm off inferior cigars. The cleanest and neatest factory in Washington, 209 Penn. Avenue N. W.

M. Levitan, who for a number of years conducted a tailoring establishment on H street near the Government Printing Office, and later associated himself with Robbin Bros., tailors, announces that he is now established at 437 K street northwest, where he will be pleased to see all his former patrons and will also give attention to the wants of any new customers.

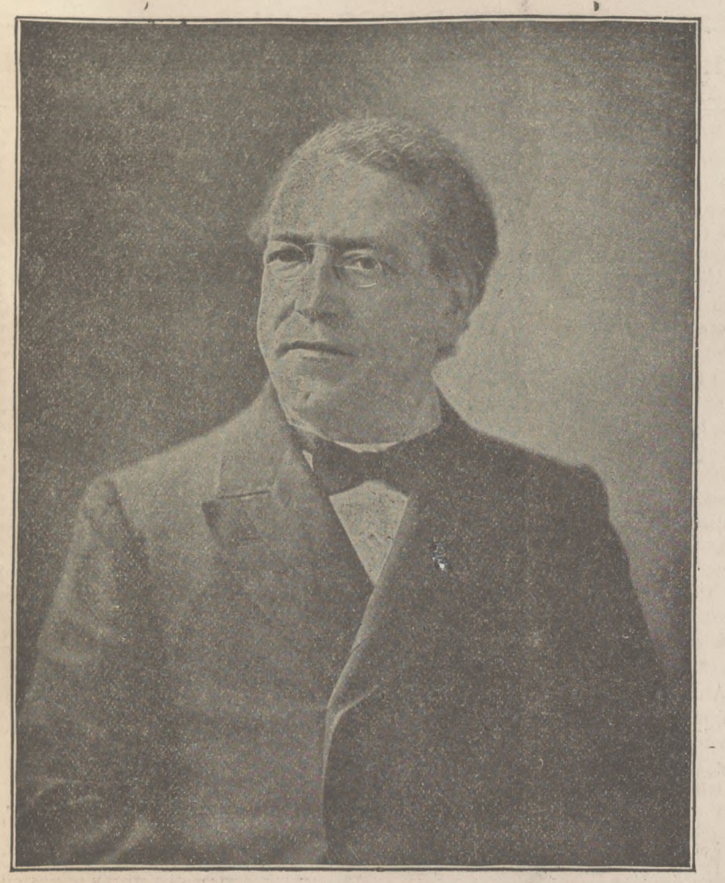
THE TRADES UNIONIST.

OFFICIAL ORGAN CENTRAL LABOR UNION, WASHINGTON BRANCH, AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR.

Vol. VII. No. 24. WASHINGTON, D. C., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1902. Price, 3 Cents.



SAMUEL GOMPERS, Unanimously Re-elected President A. F. of L.

GOMPERS IS AT THE HELM

Again Re-Elected President of the A. F. of L. by Solid Vote.

MORRISON REMAINS SECRETARY

The Entire List of Old Officers' Action Approved—Sensation Caused by Sentence in Resolution on Government by Injunction—A Successful and Beneficial Session—Boston Gets the Next Convention.

Saturday evening at a late hour at New Orleans, the American Federation of Labor closed the deliberations of its Twenty-second Annual Convention.

With the exception of fraternal delegates to Great Britain labor convention all the old officers were re-elected, as follows:

President, Samuel Gompers; first vice president, James Duncan; second vice president, John Mitchell; third vice-president, James O'Connell; fourth vice-president, Max Morris; fifth vice-president, Thomas I. Kidd; sixth vice president, Dennis A. Hayes; treasurer, John B. Lennon; secretary, Frank Morrison; fraternal delegates to the next labor convention of Great Britian, Max S. Hayes and Martin Lawter; fraternal delegate to Canada, John Coleman.

The only two contests were that for fifth vice-president in which Thomas I. Kidd, of the Woodworkes, defeated Frank Duffy, of the Carpenters, and John Coleman defeated Mack Taylor for the distinction of fraternal delegate to Canada.

The cities desiring the next convention and placing themselves as candidates were Boston, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Milwaukee, Lawrence and Lowell, Mass; Austin and Galveston, Texas; Cripple Creek, Colo., and Asheville, N. C. All but the first four were afterwards withdrawn, the first ballot resulting as follows: Boston, 5 312; Philadelphia, 1,183; San Francisco, 2,386; Milwaukee, 260.

The Committee on Executive Council's Report declared against "government by injunction," but contained the following sentence:

"We recognize the authority of the courts to issue injunctions to prevent the destruction of property and violations of laws."

This created a decided stir in the convention. Delegates Furuseth, Duncan, and Agard declared that the committee had declared in favor of the thing against which in the earlier portion of its report it had protested. The debate closed by the committee announcing that it would withdraw the objectionable sentence from the report. The report was then adopted.

The convention was in almost continuous session on Saturday from 9 o'clock in the morning until a late hour at night, and many matters of a routine nature were disposed of before final adjournment.

THE CENTRAL LABOR UNION.

Only Routine Business Tranacted. Short Session.

President John Hamerstrom, Monday night, at the Typographical Temple, called the regular weekly session of the Central Labor Union to order.

Secretary Winslow read the minutes of the previous meeting which were duly approved.

The following organizations presented delegates credentials: The Iron Moulders Union No. 215, certifying Messrs. James Williams, William Lusby, Noah Garner, James Ward, and Michael Riley; from Theatrical Stage Employees' Union No. 22, certifying Messrs. D. R. Allen and J. M. Patterson; from the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, Local No. 5, certifying James Kelly, vice William A. Morrison; from Wood, Wire, and Metal Lathers International Union, Local No. 9, certifying Messrs. C. A. Mattell, Harry Mace, William Mahoney, J. L. Ainsworth, and J. J. Keane; from the United Brotherhood of Carpenters of America, Local No. 1103, certifying Robert Reichard and J. C. Bell, vice E. Lowe and John Muckenhaupt, resigned; from International Union Steam Engineers, Local No. 99, certifying Peter Patterson, vice C. A. Holmes, resigned; from Grocery Clerks, Local No. 533, certifying Messrs. Boyle and Rogers, vice Messrs. Gill and Chauncey, resigned; from the International Association of Marble Workers, certifying Daniel W. Nicholson, vice T. Daly.

The Bartenders International League Local No. 75, communicated that their organization had exhausted all honorable means to unionize the establishment of J. McGrann, saloonist, 1704 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, and had placed him on their unfair list. The organization now requested that the Central Labor Union also place him upon its unfair list. Commuication referred to the Grievance Committee.

The Theatrical Stage Employees' Union, No. 22, communicated relative to their grievances with the National, Columbia, Lafayette, Academy, and Kernan's and their failure to arrive at a satisfactory settlement, and called attention of this body that the Managers' Association had placed upon a blacklist certain members of their organization. The organization requested that the Central Labor Union take such action as will most speedily adjust the difference. The matter was referred to a special committee appointed by the chair composed of Messrs. Sprague, Spohn, Crown, Freeman, and Pfau.

There being little business before the body an early adjournment was had.

Specification Scintillations.

J. H. Edsall and J. G. Jameson have returned from their trip to New York.

A. J. Wadsworth is looking the "pink of condition" after a vacation of fifteen days. He returned to work last Monday.

It is said that J. E. Payne is a devoted friend of dumb animals. Our office cat has won his sympathies and refuses to wander from Payne's frame.

The largest "pick up" in the history of the Specification Room ever issued to a compositor was received last week by W. A. Lavalette. It consisted of a galley of chemical diagrams and measured 3 500 ems.

This is the latest. One of our employes went to Bennings track last Tuesday and upon his return the boys were anxious to learn of his fate. He wore such a serious countenance that the sympathy of the crowd was "on tap." Later in the day he told us that he made a winning, but did not care to publish the fact as it might injure him a la "Secretary Shaw methodo."

Recently one of the editors of THE TRADES UNIONIST showed us a wooden composing-stick, received direct from Manila. This unique and clumsy relic of antiquity reminded us of an incident in Key West in 1883. In the fall of that year a party of Cuban generals and political exiles established a newspaper, El Obrero, and secured the services of your scribe as "foreman." The outfit consisted of a few cases of long primer, job type, a slab of marble, a small Washington hand-press, and one steel composing-stick. The job-sticks, like the Manila affair, were composed of wood, but only had one "ear," thus necessitating a good eyesight and robust faith in Providence to insure "justification" of lines. It was determined upon to remove the plant to Cuba and get out an "organ" in support of the insurgents, your scribe being promised a commission and a tin sword. A schooner was secured, and one evening, amid the "adios" of Cuban senoritas and wild cheers of boozy stay at home patriots, the outfit of generals, high privates, and the "foreman of printing," boarded the schooner and headed for the glory and immortal fame. We had barely gotten under way when a friendly pilot-boat captain informed us that two Spanish gunboats were lying out in neutral waters awaiting our coming. The generals held a hurried consultation and, as a result, the whole outfit backpedaled into Key West harbor and safety. The Spanish consul at Key West charged the local authorites with aiding and abetting the Cuban insurgents, and instantly our "generals" vamosed to Haiti and Jamaica. When the affair had "blown over," the remnants of the patriots got together and the office of El Obrero was thereafter engaged in the peaceful occupation of printing tickets for San Carlos lottery. Yes, indeed, we know something about wooden composing sticks and, incidentally, Cuban revolutionary expeditions.

Bindery Notes.

If you are in need of a good excuse to remain away from work call upon Wilson Clark.

Count Gustave Weigand would like to go gunning for wild duck. He says he has a fine pistol.

Anyone desirous of securing new ideas about red edge books should consult Al. McGurk.

Bill Haslett proved a "good thing" for his Baltimore friends whom he escorted to the depot the other evening.

Jack Walsh had a fine exhibition of canary birds at John Sheehan's during the week. It is rumored that he is exchanging the birds for liquids.

Tom McNerney, of the Union Building bindery, is attracting some attention lately while he entertains the lady on the front stoop of his boarding house.

We lead all the rest. The people know a good show, and the hall is not large enough to hold all our friends who attend. This year tickets will be fifty-cents each.

One of the most brilliant gatherings in the city of Washington this winter will be the Entertainment and Reception of the Bookbinders New Year's eve at National Rifles' Armory.

Two young ladies on the bindery floor went into a resturant for dinner, they pressed the button for the waiter and lit up the whole place, they were terribly frightened and made their escape.

Bill Lang met with a painful accident on the bindery floor. While cleaning one of the numbering machines, he had a finger mashed. The first thing Bill said: "O my, I will not be able to play the bones again."

Medlin feels very envious of the twelve clerks in the Agricultural Department who are to be used as tests for chemically prepared food. He says he has six in his family and would be glad to have them all perform this patriotic duty.

George Finch, the well-known case-maker, met with a serious accident in Baltimore Sunday. While attempting to remedy a defect in the rainspout of his house he fell to the pavement breaking an arm, several fingers, and other injuries. He has the sympathy of all his fellow-workman.

Tom Burns recently recommended a veterinary surgeon to Tim McKenna whose bull terrier's elongated ears needed trimming. The surgeon despite Tom's well-known knowledge of dogs and their treatment, proved to be unable to cope with the job. So Tim declares he will never accept Tom Burns' recommendation in the future.

FRANK MORRISON, Unanimously Re-elected Secretary A. F. of L.

ON BEHALF OF LOS ANGELES UNION, 147

FIVE CENTS A MONTH IS ASKED TO AID IN THE FIGHT TO UNIONIZE THE LOS ANGELES TIMES

STATEMENT OF THE WASHINGTON DELEGATION TO CINCINNATI

Read, Reflect and Vote to Send Five Cents a Month from the Treasury of Columbia Union

Your Rate of One Per Cent is Collected Every Month, and by Voting "Yes" You Say: "Send Five Cents of My Dues to Aid Los Angeles Union"

To the Officers and Members of Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: The delegates at the Cincinnati meeting of the International Typographical Union pledged themselves to work for the passage by the referendum of the proposition to aid Los Angeles Union, No. 147.

Columbia Union will vote, by the referendum, on this question, Wednesday, December 10.

Let us for a few moments have a heart-to-heart talk.

What does Los Angeles Union want?

She asks the membership of the International Typographical Union to pass by a referendum vote the proposition (carried by a unanimous vote at the Cincinnati convention) to send 5 cents a month for one year, through the officers of the International Typographical Union, to Los Angeles Union. Five cents for 12 months—60 cents.

This sum is asked from every member of the typographical unions to carry on the fight against the Times at Los Angeles, Cal., which contest has become more than local, for these reasons:

The statement of facts submitted by Mr. Arthur A. Hay, special representative of the International Typographical Union at Los Angeles, show the Los Angeles Times to be the last stronghold of the "Printers' Protective Fraternity;" that the Times conducts a school of linotype operators and turns out more "graduates" than any printing concern in the world, and MAKES A PRACTICE OF SUPPLYING MEN TO NON-UNION PUBLISHERS WHENEVER REQUESTED.

Many other conditions could be cited to show the importance of this contest, but these abovenamed appear to be sufficient to convince any member of our Union.

For more than a year each member of Los Angeles Typographical Union has paid an assessment of from $5 to $8 per month. Her appeal now to members throughout the jurisdiction should not be in vain.

It is a question of vital importance to every union printer—man and woman—in North America. The passage of this proposition will mean the waging of this contest to a successful end. It will be a fight to a finish, and unionism will triumph.

Ladies and gentlemen of Columbia Union, let us aid our sister union at Los Angeles. Let us send 5 cents a month. That is all she asks—60 cents in a year. Every member of Columbia Union can gladden the hearts of that noble little band who has been fighting the battle against the Times for twelve years, and now ask aid because the fight is national in scope and character.

Besides "in union there is strength."

Carry this proposition by such a sweeping vote that every ballot will mean a protest against the rodents in the stronghold of the "Printers' Protective Fraternity" and speed the wheels of justice and right as they turn the light of unionism on our most malicious enemy—the Los Angeles Times—and stop the practice of supplying non-union operators to publishers. So put these "strike breakers" out of business. This fund from our membership will do it.

Let it be said to the credit of Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, at the Nation's capital, where the first printers' union was formed on American soil, that she will send greetings to her union brothers on the Pacific Slope and carry the 5-cent assessment by practically a unanimous vote.

It is well for the members of our Union here at Washington to note that there will be no assessment upon the membership of this Union after the proposition carries. Our rates of 1 per cent on earnings will net a sufficient sum each month, President Joe M. Johnson informs us, to pay this sum monthly—5 cents per capita—and all the other expenses which our Union will incur from month to month.

So when you vote "Yes" on the Los Angeles proposition you simply vote to add 5 cents more of the Union's money to the per capita to be sent to the International headquarters. This 5 cents will be taken out of the 1 per cent on your earnings that you pay each month, and would continue to pay were this proposition not before you.

This seems clear, does it not? If not, ask your friend and co-worker. Let us all understand this proposition and give it the support it deserves, in all reason and fairness, from the standpoint of true unionism.

In thus addressing the membership the delegation at Cincinnati feel that they have carried our their pledge, and, more, we ask the united, earnest, and active co-operation of all to make the victory for fair conditions complete and overwhelming.

Respectfully and fraternally submitted.

THOMAS A. BYNUM,
D. W. FLEMING,
A. F. BLOOMER,
JOHN T. HERBERT.

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL WASHINGTON. 2

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1902.

IF the enterprise of the daily press keeps on at the present pace there will be very little of surprise attached to the President's annual message when the original document reaches Congress and the public—that is, if present guessing is of the high order it is supposed to be.

THE recent elections have caused no little comment by political wiseacres who have noted an unprecedented growth of socialistic sentiment in New England and throughout the Middle and Northwestern States. This will necessitate the repairing of several lengths of fence at points quite unexpected.

SOME people are expressing great solicitude lest JOHN MITCHELL shall lose his self poise and commit some blunder which will consign him to deep obscurity. The fear is so prevalent and strong with this certain class that if nothing of the kind should happen to Mr. MITCHELL the disappointment would likely drive many of them to drink.

PRESIDENT ELIOT, of Harvard, has revised his remarks concerning matters related to the recent coal strike, and, as is usual in such instances, the gentleman covers more ground in explaining and telling what he meant to say than in what he is reported to have originally said. The forms will be held open for a limited time to allow Mr. ELIOT the privilege of a second revise.

THE re-election of SAMUEL GOMPERS as President of the American Federation of Labor will meet with the hearty approval of organized labor everywhere. That his election was without a dissenting voice speaks volumes for the loyalty and earnestness of so representative a body. The assistance rendered by Mr. GOMPERS during the troublous hours of the coal miners' strike is perhaps best known and appreciated by Mr. MITCHELL and those immediately associated with him. The re-election of all the old staff, who have rendered substantial aid to Mr. GOMPERS, was also a merited recognition of valuable service.

THE astute WAYNE MACVEAGH evidently hoped to break the force of the complaints lodged against the mine operators by centering his fire on President MITCHELL, as witness and representative of the Mine Workers' Union. For days Mr. MITCHELL faced the merciless thrusts of the skillful corporation attorney, and to the astonishment and chargin of that gentleman, the power of his attacks had failed to confuse and lead the witness into statements contradictory or lacking in verification. At last, failing at every point, MACVEAGH was moved to remark: "Mr. MITCHELL, you are the best witness for yourself I have ever faced in all my practice."

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

A little chat I had with Oscar D. Hyler the other night concerning Rochester, N. Y., brings back "precious memories" of that city. Some time in June, 1870, Billy Wilkinson, of pious memory, formerly of Texas, now of St. Louis, and I arrived there from Buffalo. I hung out on the Chronicle and Billy on the Democrat—papers that were eventually consolidated. The first work I did was a Sunday night, and Sam Hoyt caught on too—his first night also. There was a little hunchback reading proof, and he had a fierce "style." Among other idiosyncracies, he did not capitalize religious denominations; baptist, methodist, episcopal, catholic, etc., looked better to him so. It chanced that Hoyt got a "take" that was full of these terms and after the little hunchback had sufficently ornamented the proof he brought it out himself.

"Say, young fellow," said he to Sam, "where did you learn your trade?"

"Go 'way, you little son of——

"Obituary notices!" yelled the foreman, drowning Sam's voice. "Who is setting obituary notices?"

"What did you say?" asked Hunchy.

"I say that if you don't go away from me I'll spit on you and drown you," said Sam, gazing down on the proof reader, who did not quite reach up to the "q" box.

The foreman must have been afraid Sam would do it, for he fired him.

Oscar says he thinks the little snoozer is now the editor of the Democrat Chronicle (or Chronicle Democrat).

I boarded at a little hotel near the printing offices and had paid a week in advance—a thing I didn't like to do. In those days most tourists didn't pay their board—in advance. Well, about three days of Rochester was enough for me and I wanted to get out. Besides, my landlord drank, and I didn't like that. I wanted to draw down the portion of my week's board that I did not intend to use, but the landlord would not have it.

"If I sell it, will you let the party board it out?" I asked.

"Oh, yes. Sell it if you can."

I went and hunted up the "crummiest" old bum I could find—and they were not scarce in those days—and asked him if he would like to board out my account and he jumped at it. The landlord looked a little dissatisfied when I introduced my "purchaser," but he stood by what he said.

Then "Billy Wilk" and I went to Syracuse.

The late Charlie Henry had come from Buffalo with us—it was in the evening—but he was back in "Buff" before 10 o'clock the next morning.

A friend of mine writes me: "As you always seem glad to get hold of stories of 'old times,' I will relate an experience that I recollect. I had met in several cities at different times an old-time printer named Charlie Hicks, and on this occasion I met him on Chatham street, New York. He was standing on the curb in front of a 'joint,' and as I was passing he recognized me. 'Hello, Pittsburg, where did you come from?' and so on. I told him the latest. After a while, when I was about to pass on, he came close to me and wanted to know if I would 'set 'em up.' Of course I would after being so glad to see him. When he saw that I was easy he mentioned the fact that he had a couple of friends and would like to bring them along. 'Bring them in,' said I. He turned to them and said, 'Gentlemen, this is my friend, and he would like you to step inside and have something with him.' It seemed as if everybody on the sidewalk headed for the saloon, and when I found that a little less than $2 would square it I was happy."

The same gentlemen tells me that he was present at the union meeting in Pittsburg at which Dick Toler, of whom I wrote a week or two ago, attempted to commit suicide. Taking a knife, he placed the point at his breast and fell against the wall, driving the knife in, but not inflicting a fatal wound. He was out of the hospital in a week.

It ought to be a source of pride to printers that Jackson H. Ralston, of the firm of Ralston & Siddons, a printer, was the counsel for the United States in the arbitration, before a special tribunal of the Hague Convention, of "the Pious Fund" case of the United States against Mexico, by the judgment of which the Catholic Church of California recovers a sum from Mexico running into the millions, and for which it is said Mr. Ralston receives a fee of $50,000. Mr. Ralston is well remembered as a G. P. O. compositor of twenty-five years ago, and he has always maintained his interest in Columbia Union. Within a year he addressed the body at a regular meeting, and in the Yearbook of 1901 he had an able article on "Printers in the Professions." He was a delegate from this union to the I. T. U. convention held at Philadelphia in 1876, and in 1879 he represented the I. T. U. at the World's Congress of Printers in Paris.

* * * *

There is something about Specifications that seems to make the correspondents there "see things"—not snakes, or mice, or monkeys, perhaps, but people who look like other people. Some time ago somebody discovered the remarkable resemblance that John R. Sturgis bears to President Roosevelt; then another discovers than Dan Beach is a "dead ringer" for Gen. John A. Logan; still another, that E. C. Grumley is a second edition of Baron Hirsh; that Charles N. Warren (not "Pie") looks like Captain Jack, the celebrated Modoc chief; that "Tommy" Tompkins could pass for Edward Payson Weston, the long-ago pedestrian; that A. J. Boyer bears a remarkable resemblance to old paintings of Ignatius Loyola, etc. If this condition of mind is brought about by the character of the work, perhaps we had better arrange for a bughouse annex to the Union Printers' Home.

It is alleged that political "pull," having lost its potency for securing appointments and promotions in the Government service because of the civil service laws, regulations, and proclamations, is now being used to enable one man to buy coal cheaper than another. A man told me that $6 had been demanded of him for half a ton of coal, and that the next day another man went to the same dealer and got a whole ton for $7.25 by the exercise of "floo." It is just possible that all will have to use 'fluence or kerosene this winter, though the failure of one of the agents of the new fangled oil burners to fill his orders makes the latter proposition a little discouraging. One man has learned not to pay for a thing until he gets it—except rent.

The Ex-Delegates' Association now has over 80 members, and the list is growing steadily. Very few of our own ex-delegates have declined to render their assistance in the work of the association, which will decrease the burden of expense on the union, and a large number of delegates from other unions have enrolled themselves. Ex-delegates in professional life and in departmental positions have been invited to join the association and are coming in. We will easily have over a hundred members.

"How big is a half a dollar, pa?
How much do people prize it?
I know it's fifty cents all right,
But don't know how to size it."

"It much depends upon the man
And how he's going to use it;
For dues, a thieving, robber sum—
Trash when he wants to booze it."

"Now, that I can't quite understand—
What diff'rence how you spend it;
Or if for it you work an hour,
Or borrow it, or lend it?"

"Oh, that I can't explain, my son,
But this I've seen and know it:
He'll scream if it's paid out for dues,
And smiles when he can blow it."

Tom Jones's aggregation of talent held a rehearsal at Typographical Temple last Sunday, and I dropped in and listened for a while. The members who were present did very well, both vocalist and instrumentalists, considering the little rehearsing they have done; for the finest body of musicians in the world would make a poor showing without preliminary work. The discouragement in the way of absenteeism that Mr. Jones has had to labor under would make a less persistent man throw up the job. Why a man should consent to take part in an entertainment of this kind and then neglect to prepare himself by attending rehearsals is beyond me. It is true that they give their services and talent gratis, but if they don't give it in a whole hearted way, with a determination to be useful, theirs is a cheap, useless gift. There is no way to make a showing by an amateur organization except by hard work, and a poor, half-done performance will reflect little credit on the musicians of our union. If the bookbinders fail to outdo us in this line it will not be because of a neglect of rehearsals, from what I am told.

The foregoing is a kick by a self-appointed kicker. A man should "either fish or cut bait." "Shuck oysters or get off the wharf." "Shoot, Bill, or give mam the gun!"

A previous chapter introduced "Joie" as a man of smiles and of shape rotound, the very picture of a "good thing," while by his side was the willowy form and meek-faced Samantha, who under the influence of an emotional spasm had said that her heart's first great wish was to have something to lean upon. A truthful story needs no embellishments, and it is to the point to say that the change which came with the transition from single to double blessedness was a sore disappointment to "Joie," who chafed under severe tongue lashings and gradually wrinkled and wasted away till hand me-down clothing fitted him all right and was substituted for tailor-made wear. To cut it off short, she is now the whole thing and he is, regretfully—"It."

THINGS TO BE THANKFUL FOR.

That the Temple is paid for and a good earner.

That labor's wrongs are being recognized and righted.

That one so just and honored is at the head of the G. P. O.

That all Presidents do not belong to the Baer and Eliot class.

That Departmental "fires" are fewer than under the spoils system.

That a deeper sense of obligation and real unionism is manifest.

That the Chief Magistrate of the nation places duty above precedent.

That public sentiment is with the workers in their protest against child labor.

That organizers in the field of labor are everywhere receiving a hearty welcome.

That a bond of sympathy and fraternalism between the toilers now encircles the globe.

That there is work for all and a tendency toward shorter hours and more reasonable reward.

That a spirit of charity is suggesting those acts of seasonable kindness toward the unfortunate which in the bestowal blesses both the giver and receiver.

That organized labor, representing the federated bodies of the District of Columbia, has, through its own efforts and by the enterprising liberality of the business community, firmly placed THE TRADES UNIONIST upon a substantial basis with increasing confidence of continued success and extended usefulness.

CYCLE.

Second Division.

We think it would be a good idea to reduce the salary of the walking delegate about one-half every time a strike is called.

Notwithstanding the fact that the cruel Boer war is over and the Boers have stopped running, some people still insist on telling "boarish" stories.

It is no doubt evident by this time to the least casual observer that President John Mitchell, of the miners' union, is "not" a union man "for revenue only," but that he is a union man throughout and on general principles.

Don't make any engagement for January 2, as that is the date set for the G. P. O. minstrel show, "the finest of its kind on earth." Bring your wife or best girl and "don't forget to curl your hair, for one Bill Bailey will be there." You can't afford to miss it.

The workingmen should get together and urge Congress to pass more stringent immigration laws. This country has become a sort of sewer, as it were, for the refuse of the Old World. It is said that over half a million ignorant workmen were set adrift on these shores during the past year—the kind of men who are always ready to rush in at the time of a strike and take the bread out of the mouths of honest American workmen—and the American workmen are the backbone and sinew of this great and glorious republic.

Although "Pard" Bloomer has been referred to as the "mortuary" writer his recent effusion on the "Inexpressibly Mean Man" doesn't sound very much as if it was written by a corpse, but on the contrary, was well written and very timely and to the point. It is a sad fact, but nevertheless true, that a great many of us never seem so happy as when we are trying to throw a fellow-workman down instead of lending a helping hand. Slander, said to be the "foulest whelp of sin," seems to be some people's stock in trade.

Treasury Branch.

Joseph H. Byrne, our Alexandria pressman, was on the sick list several days last week.

Theodore Reier, our pressman, is confined in the John Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, with blood poison.

W. A. DeGroot is quite sick at his home at Hunter's Mills, Va. His many friends wish for his speedy recovery.

The following returned from leave during the past week: Theo. McClure, T. McMahon, H. D. Langdon, and J. H. Irwin.

John T. Williams, one of our popular pressmen, returned last week from his Massachusetts home, where he has been spending his annual leave.

Misses Effie B. Nichols, Agnes J. Marcy, Eleanor G. Bagger, and Mary E. Lazenby, of the main office folding room, have been transferred to this division.

Miss Mary E. DeGroot, only daughter of W. A. DeGroot, of this division, died at the home of her parents at Hunter's Mills, Va., Wednesday, November 19, aged 22 years. Mr. and Mrs. DeGroot have the sympathy of all in their sad bereavement.

The following compositors were recently transferred to the main office: Sidney J. Marshall and T. H. McGill, First Division; John P. Devlin and Charles L. Nace, Third Division; William E. Beringer, H. W. Templar, and H. T. McConvey, Fourth Division; Guy W. McCord and George B. Wood, Night Bill Force.

SUBSCRIBER.

Death of F. T. Maloney.

Mr. F. T. Maloney, for a number of years employed as compositor in the Specification Division, Government Printing Office, died at his late residence in Southeast Washington on Saturday of last week. Mr. Maloney had passed through a lingering illness, and his death, though not wholly unexpected, came as unwelcome news to those who knew him intimately and well.

Engineers to Entertain.

AROUND THE PRINTERIES

Down Town.

Don't be a clam.

Turkey Thursday.

Saturday the last day for the ponies.

A proud turkey on Wednesday; how about Friday.

It is rumored that Willie McSween is in New York.

The Times after this week will be an evening paper with a Sunday morning edition.

Don Murray, of the Post, received a letter the other day from McSorley, an old G. P. O. print, now located at Wilmington, Del. Mac sends regard to all friends.

Wm. M. Garrett and John B. Dickman returned Tuesday morning from New Orleans, La., where they had been in attendance to the A. F. of L. convention.

Tom Jones' "all-printer minstrels" will be on the boards Friday, January 2, 1903, with the greatest show that every played in the city. Don't fail to see it. If you have already bought a ticket buy another one to make sure that you see the show.

Ex-president of I. T. U., S. B. Donnelly, accompanied by Mr. C. W. Bowerman, chief secretary of the London Compositors' Society, London, who is one of the twenty trades unionists, all of whom represent a different craft, are touring this country in search of facts and information relative to our trade and business condition and methods here, which will be published later in London, made this office a pleasant call on Tuesday.

For $20 a Month.

Mr. Donath will sell homes on just those terms. Call or write.

Night Bill Force.

F. M. Claflin was promoted from the Third Division last week to night work.

G. G. Wilson, after an absence of a week caused by sickness, is again at work.

B. R. Preuss has been transferred to the Night Bill Force from the Fourth Division.

John Wilson and Samuel H. Lenoir, temporaries, have been assigned to this divislon.

George B. Wood and Guy W. McCord arrived from the Treasury Branch on Friday last.

The Second Division Night Force was organized Monday night, with Mr. George A. Tuttle in charge.

Sam F. Elwood and Burr G. Williams were transferred to the Bill Force from the Third Division Monday.

Herbert Bishard and John Adams have received temporary appointments in the Second Division of this force.

Timekeeper Green now starts the hook at alternate alleys as was suggested in these notes recently. Thanks.

M. A. Bodenhamer, D. R. Lyons, and W. W. Ingram, recently of the First Division, are now domiciled in this division.

J. F. McCormick, head of the syndicate that won the $12,000 Cincinnati Enquirer election guessing contest, has been transferred from the Fourth Division to this force.

The usual ante-Congressional shake-up has taken place, and the Bill Force has been arranged by those in charge so as to produce the largest amount of work in the shortest space of time, consistent with good workmanship.

On last Thursday this force numbered 29 temporaries and 123 regular compositors, a total of 156. Since then the working force has been largely augmented, and before long will have the "self-supporting force" skinned to death in point of numbers.

Among the recent additions to this force are the following: John H. Saunders, J. D. Hayden, John V. Smithson, William D. Thornton, Samuel T. Esmay, Will H. Bayne, Herbert Winsey, George S. Kauffman, John T. Morsell, Jay W. Kail, and Charles H. Shutterly, all temporaries.

It is asserted that Bates street, compared with population, has more employes of the Government Printing Office among its tenants than any other street in the city. There are enough printers, pressmen, and stereotypers there at the present time to issue a first-class morning newspaper.

"Wee Willie" Thornton, he of the bay-window front, gladdened our hearts and flooded our souls with sunshine when he appeared last week upon the scene of our strenuous chase after the average. He has been loaned to us by the Specification Division upon the promise that we will return him safe and sound at the expiration of three months.

The following temporary compositors were placed on the force Monday night and were assigned to the Second Division night force: August Zimmerman, jr., W. L. Griffis, F. H. Long, John K. Bittenhender, F. H. Hopkins, jr., Michael F. Barrett, Edward P. Stanley, Otto W. Harke, W. J. White, James S. Perkins, W. E. Dennison, F. L. Fridley, and Robert Robinson, sr.

Julius Johnson has secured a rabbit foot, which from its size must have adorned the rear end of a California jack-rabbit. Julius is of the opinion that if the hind foot of a cottontail rabbit would enable him to pick one winner a day, his present possession ought to enable him to pick a six-horse combination. His fellow "horse-bugs" breathlessly await the result.

Chairman Frank Smith, who is an expert photographer, exhibits a picture taken by him last pay day of the members of the night force, who at the time of the exposure were waiting in front of the building for the paymaster to make his appearance. The picture is perfect in detail, and every face can be readily recognized. It reflects much credit on Mr. Smith's ability.

"Shorty" Huss, the popular ex-chairman of this division, has been called to Waynesburg, Pa., where his brother, a theological student, lies dangerously ill. Mr. Huss' many friends hope for the speedy recovery of his afflicted brother. [Since the above was written I learn that Mr. Huss' brother has died. Death was caused by a complete breaking down of the nervous system, due to a too close application to his studies. Mr. Huss has the sympathy of a large circle of friends in his bereavement.]

Considerable discussion has resulted from the use of a word in my last communication. I refer to "faineance." It seems that it does not appear in either Century or Webster's dictionaries or Chambers' encyclopædia, and hence it was presumed that it was a coined word. Such, however, is not the case. In the American dictionary, published by P. F. Collier & Son, the word appears as follows: "Faineance, n., the quality of doing nothing or of being idle; indolence; sloth." It is followed by a quotation from Kingsley, which says: "The mask of sneering faineance was gone; imploring tenderness and earnestness beamed from his whole countenance."

Dame Rumor circulates a story to the effect that Bill Tanner is contemplating the serious step of matrimony. With becoming modesty Bill declines to give the name of the fair recipient of his pure young affections, but the above-mentioned Dame Rumor persists in associating the name of a fair and buxom widow who conducts a transitory delicatessen and "friccadilly" emporium in the printing office as the blushing partner to-be of Bill's joys and sorrows. The fact that Mr. Tanner has been known to address the lady in question in such passionate terms of endearment as "sweetheart," "pet," etc., in the presence of his associates, lends color to the rumor. Bill's friends join in wishing him a long and peaceful existence on stew, boarding house hash and friccadilly, and hope that in the future he will not be compelled to worry over standing off the lunch lady.

In the previous communications from the Night Bill Force I have in personal items made use of the familiar psuedonyms borne by many of our co-laborers without any thought of arousing their ire. It seems, however, that Mr. Carter, one of the parties so favored, took offense at the appellation, "Sarah," which preceded his surname. Not knowing that he was sensitive on the subject and hearing him addressed daily in that way, I had no hesitancy in using the nick-name. I take this opportunity, therefore, to apologize to Mr. Carter and to assure him that I had no intention of making him appear ridiculous or of hurting his feelings. In this connection Mr. "Charles F." Purdy desires me to announce that he is not the author of the Night Bill Force items. He is tired, so he says, of ducking irate compositors who have assumed that the signature to this communication was his. I am very much surprised to learn that anyone who knows Purdy would ever be so foolish as to suppose for a moment that he was capable of producing articles of such literary excellence and merit as the Night Bill Force correspondence contains. Dismiss the thought. Mr. Purdy is not it. I am.

Last Thursday morning, while those members of the Bill Force who live out on North Capitol street were wending their weary way homeward, they were startled by the loud and continuous blowing of a police whistle. In a moment the valorous band was rushing pell-mell toward the direction from which the call for assistance proceeded, and upon their arrival found an excited female's head protruding from an upper window while peal after peal of the shrill whistle sounded on the crisp morning air. Upon investigation it was found that the lady, Mrs. Mark W. Moore, had heard, or thought she had, some one endeavoring to gain an entrance to her house. Having read of the numerous burglaries which have recently occurred, she immediately blew the police whistle. One lone bicycle cop responded in remarkably quick time for a policeman, and after learning the cause of the commotion, requested the printers to stand guard while he searched the house. No one was found, however, but John Hogan nearly scared the gang into convulsions by declaring that he saw the burglar crouching in the corner of the fence, at the same time making an intrepid dash in that direction. The burglar turned out to be an inoffensive flower box, the discovery of which caused a sigh of relief to ascend from the thirty or more valiant guards. Mrs. Moore afterwards concluded that she had been dreaming of burglars, as a careful investigation showed no marks of an attempt to force an entrance.

YELLOWSTONE'S GRANDEUR

The Most Marvelous Picture in Nature's Art Gallery.

"GATE OF THE MOUNTAINS"

Another Interesting Letter on the Many Beauties Nature Has Endowed America With—Terrace Mountain—Cinnabar and Mammoth Hot Springs—Natural Glass Cliff—Thumb Lunch Station.

Orators, painters, poets, and prose-writers have all portrayed in glowing colors and eloquent words the glories of the Yellowstone National Park. Hon. Wm. Sulzer recently said, on the floor of the House of Representatives, in advocating a liberal appropriation for its further adornment, that it was "the greatest, the grandest, the most picturesque, and the most marvelous picture in nature's art gallery." Descriptions of this sort having created a desire to see this wonderland, it was with no little satisfaction that an east-bound train of the Northern Pacific Railway was left at the Montana town of Livingston, where it was learned that there were two methods of taking the six days' tour of the Park, namely, by the $49.50-tickets of the Association, giving the advantages and comforts of the hotels, or the Wiley Camp (tent) entertainment for $35. Armed with the former cards of admission, the train was taken for a 51-mile southward ride to Cinnabar. Having passed through the "Gate of the Mountains," we were ushered into Paradise—Valley, a plain bounded by high mountains, a rushing river, and ragged, rock ribbed canyon Through the typical frontier of Gardiner, and along a river of the same name, we were carried by the old-time, six-horse stage-coach, over the 7 miles between Cinnabar and Mammoth Hot Springs. Here in addition to the large hotel and a few other buildings, were found the comfortable-looking and artistically-arranged houses and quarters of Uncle Sam's guards, and here, too, is the beginning of the phenomena for which the park is distinguished. On Terrace Mountain, in close proximity to the hotel, the stream is forever ascending from more than a few of the 4,000 springs and miniature lakes the mineral deposits of whose boiling, bubbling waters have, during the ages, built up hillocks and formed likenesses of castles, altars, beasts, and creeping things. The singular succession of pools or reservoirs called "The Terraces" are the most wonderful of these formations. The stalactitic fret work and carving on the fronts of the overflowing bowls, and the variety and play of colors, present an object as marvelous as it is pleasing. On the morning of the second day, winding up the mountain side, over the new U. S. engineer-build road, in a coach that was destined to bounce over the remaining 137 miles composing the Park tour, the first object of special interest that met the gaze was the rock-sentry guarded "Golden Gate," where the government has spent much "surplus" in bridge construction. Mountains and mountains, valley, stream, and lake now all appear on the sight, then the Bannock Indian trail of '78 is crossed, and then the first of the thousands of wild animals inhabiting the inclosure, with "none daring to molest or make afraid," was seen in a clever, comely-countenanced coyote in the act of cheerfully contemplating the coach and its contents. A fine spring of Appollinaris water, an Obsidian or natural glass cliff, 200 feet high, and the wild duck and goose frequented Beaver Lake, where the busy beavers had built a dam and a conical house, next claimed attention. The first 20 mile ride ended at the Norris Lunch Station, where with appetites sharpened by the cool, rarified air of the 8,000-foot elevation, ample justice was done to the meal in waiting, and then a tramp was taken over the stream-backed basin, in the vicinity, where we were greeted with seething, sputtering springs and pools of various colors and geysers galore, all more or less agitated—playing and dancing, groaning and growling, and ever and anon, in one grand uplift enormous masses of streaming water were tossed heavenward. The most wonderful collections of pools and lakes of Joseph's coat colors and geysers of the violent, convulsive sort were found in the Lower and Upper Gyser Basins and along the Firehole River. Fountain and Old Faithful are, at present, the greatest favorites and the most reliable of the geysers. The first named plays at intervals of from 3 to 4 hours for about 20 minutes, ejecting large volumes of water to a height of 50 feet. The eruption is a beautiful one, and has the appearance of a large fountain. Old Faithful breaks forth in ebullitions of indescribable grandeur about every hour, and its eruption lasts from 5 to 7 minutes, the thermal water, with much steam, being violently lifted to a height of from 100 to 150 feet. The descending waters form a network of rivulets—water ribbons of many colors—flowing into the river. Other most prominent objects of interest here are Firehole Lake, 300 feet long by 100 feet wide, with a geyser in the center, and the pretty, plopping Paint Pot, a large oblong reservoir of the finest-textured and variously-colored clay in a constant state of ebullition. A quantity of this pearl gray colored mixture has been taken from the cauldron and utilized by a knight of the brush in the adornment of the walls and ceilings of the Fountain Hotel.

Here, as elsewhere in the Park, with astonishing regularity, black bears are wont to bear down on the hotel garbage piles. Although well fed, being sleek and fat, love of adventure and a desire for delicacies other than those found among the offal lead them not infrequently to become housebreakers and larder despoilers and depleters. The landlord of the only tent hotel ("Larry"), who in true Hibernian style receives his guests, giving them all "the best room in the house," employs a man to "shoo" away these nocturnal visitors. The outer row of tenters, however, being compelled with patient forebearance to bear with the stealthy step and the guttural growl of the bears, and within themselves (they dare not sing) "We are tenting to-night on the old bear ground."

The fourth day's journey included the climbing of the Continental Divide, which is reached at a narrow spot in the mountains known as Craig's Pass, and is 8,240 feet above the sea. The three Teton peaks, of height, 13,700 feet, and Shoshone Lake also appear on the sight, and finally we arrive at Yellowstone Lake, a wonderful mountain sea, having an erea of 139 square miles, a short line of 100 miles, and an average depth of 30 feet. The peaceful, restful atmosphere, the beautiful views from the hotel of the shining steamer-stirred waters, the islands, and the encircling mountains, and, above all the fine fishing facilities and the splendid success of fishermen make this a most attractive summer resort A common tourist feat, at the Lake Thumb Lunch Station, is, with the line, to throw a fish from a cool fresh water into a hot spring immediately in the rear, where it is boiled and ready to be served in short order. Following the left bank of the Yellowstone River on the fifth day, stopping only to take a peep into the crater of the ever erupting Mud Volcano, the crowning glory of the Park—the Grand Canyon—was approached The river changes from a quite stream to one of turmoil and rapids, the waters take a jump of 130 feet over the Upper Fall, and gathering again make a second leap of 320 feet at the Lower Fall down into the deep abyss. The thunder of the falls and the wondrous sculpture and the rich color of the high walls form a combination that can not elsewhere be found. This great gorge, the beauty and grandeur of which thousands of columns have been written in vain attempts to properly describe, was seen and admired from many vantage points on its weather scarred battlements. On the morning of the sixth day places were reluctantly resumed in the swinging vehicle in waiting and we were carried away from this incomparable spot and rolled in the direction of Norris Basin. Browsing "bunches" of deer and elk were occasionally seen by the roadside. As an effective means of putting an end to the remorseless slaughter of these and other Park animals by barbarous pot hunters and semi civilized sportsmen lying in wait along the western boundary during certain seasons of the year the purchase of the Government of the Teton mountain region, including Jackson Lake, has been earnestly advocated both in and out of Congress. An afternoon ride from Norris to Mammoth Hot Springs, a final Park dinner, a down hill coach jaunt to Cinnabar, where a Pullman sleeper was in waiting to carry us northward and eastward, ended the most pleasing and instructive tour that it is possible to take in our uncle's domains.

THE CENTRAL LABOR UNION

Bartenders League's New Wage Scale Indorsed by This Body.

DELEGATE DICKMAN REPORTS

President Hamerstrom Presides—Charles Rauscher, Caterer, Placed Upon Unfair List—John R. McLean and Gas Workers' Union—Broom Makers, Watch Case Engravers, and Horseshoers Communicate.

President Hamerstrom called the Central Labor Union to order Monday night, at Typographical Temple, a large number of delegates being present.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Credentials were received from Electrical Workers, No. 148, certifying J. T. Folwell.

The Grievance Committee reported that Charles Rauscher, caterer, Connecticut avenue and L street northwest, had failed to appear before the committee to adjust the pending difficulty between himself and organized labor, and recommended that he be placed upon the unfair list. Recommendation concurred in.

This committee also reported that Mr. McLean had been called upon and had reinstated some of the members of the Gas Workers' Union in the works and some members had been given street work until such time as they could be placed in the works.

Delegate Spohn offered a resolution, which was lost, relative to this body appointing a special committee to draft a statement to be circulated throughout Ohio cities charging John R. McLean with discriminating against organized labor.

Upon motion of Delegate Spohn the matter was further referred to the Grievance Committee and that they report at the next meeting.

The International Broom Makers' Union communicated in behalf of their organization requesting this body, its members, and friends to give their blue label its generous, loyal, and unstinted support. This label is intended to distinguish the product of union men from that of inmates of workhouses, penitentiaries, prisons, and scab shops. There is no other trade that has as much prison competition as the broom makers as this product is made in nearly all state penal institutions. This communication was referred to Grocery Clerks' Union.

The Watch Case Engravers' International Association of America communicated calling attention to the unfair Keystone Watch Case Company, of Philadelphia, Pa., manufacturers of the James Boss case, the only sweatshop in their line of business at this date, and also relative to several other companies, members of the manufacturers' combination, who locked out union engravers in an attempt to disrupt their association. They asked this body's moral support. Communication filed.

Journeymen Horseshoers' Union, No. 17, communicated, stating their organization had exhausted all honorable means to adjust their differences with Somerset R. Waters, and had failed, and therefore requested this body to place him upon the unfair list. Communication referred to the Grievance Committee.

The Bartenders' League presented the following which was indorsed:

SECRETARY CENTRAL LABOR UNION:

The Bartenders' League, Local No. 75, after being organized for fifteen months and believing they have succeeded in obtaining recognition from 90 per cent of the proprietors engaged in the restaurant business, and wishing to establish a basis for the trade or calling in which they are engaged relative to the wages received and the hours employed, request the indorsement of all organized labor, through its representatives in the Central Labor Union, to the following resolution and amendment to their constitution, adopted at their regular meeting, Sunday, November 23, 1902:

"That on and after January 1, 1903 the minimum wage for bartenders of this organization shall be $10 per week, and the maximum hours of labor shall be 72 per week. Wherever conditions more favorable prevailed they shall be steadily maintained."

Delegate Dickman reported that the convention at New Orleans had adopted the resolution of the Federal Labor Union in organizing the employes of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing; that all national and international unions compel local unions to affiliate with central bodies; that the District suffrage resolution was indorsed.

The Retail Clerks called attention to the Hecht matter.

The special committee on Stage Alliance reported progress.

The draft of a joint resolution looking to proposed amendment to the Constitution exempting homesteads from taxation, attachment, execution, or sale for debt; also a bill "to provide homes and employment for the homeless poor and make them self sustaining home owners, independent of being hired," were read and referred to Legislative Committee.

LABOR'S TRIUMPHS.

President Gompers' Report an Extremely Interesting Trade Paper.

From the Boston Globe.]

The report of President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, presents several points touching the utilities of organization which afford much food for thought.

Nothing, however, is more striking than what he cites as "a splendid exhibition of soldarity," wherein he describes the magnificent returns that were made in response to the call for contributions to help the striking coal miners.

It used to be said flippantly by employers when their men went on strike that they would in time come back as humble suppliments as soon as hunger pressed sufficently hard upon them. So the coal operators complacently affirmed that the only manner in which the strike could be ended would be by the return of the men to work unconditionally.

The wind for the first time in history was taken completely out of their sails when they found each separate trade of the vast army of organized labor contributing so promptly and generously that when the strike was settled the miners had an ample fund to sustain them in idleness, if need be, all winter.

If such an organization of federated trades can be kept up the starvation argument of industrial oppressors is lost forever. The heroism of the "scab," so much lauded by President Elliot, will go for nothing, and compulsory arbitration will exist as an unwritten law rather than as a written compact, which might often be worked to the injury rather than the benefit of labor.

Mr. Gompers' observations on child labor in the South are very timely. He shows that in limiting the suffrage to an educational qualification and then keeping the rising white population ignorant in the mills, the South is simply burying itself in a mass of white ignorance—hoisting itself by its own petard.

Mr Gompers report is one of the most interesting public trade documents ever published and will well bear careful study.

Fortieth Anniversary.

George W. Driver announces that Thursday, December 11, 1902, will be the fortieth anniversary of his business career in Washington. He enjoys the distinction of being the oldest restaurateur in continuous business at the National Capital. He has completely refitted and refurnished his establishment at 605 Pennsylvania avenue and extends a cordial invitation to be present on that occasion. A collation will be served from 12 until 10 p. m.

A LITTLE OF ALL SORTS.

I see Mr. Needles has opened a tailor shop here. Over in New York is the firm of Thomas & Pickup, printers, while just across the bridge is the sign of Kick the Printer.

Frank Munsey now owns the Boston Journal, which with the New York Evening News and the Washington Times, puts him on a par with W. R. Hearst and Col. Ochs.

One of the pressmen who went to Manila about a year ago is back here; another is on the way, and a third is en route to Australia. As these three constituted the entire pressroom force, I am curious to learn what Johnny Leech is doing with his plant. It is also said that the bindery force are all on their way home

And now the local coal dealers are going to sell the coal they haven't got for $7 25 a ton, just because the Coal Exchange says so, although some of them claim to have paid as high as $10 for it If you were to ask one of these dealers to join a union he would get insulted; but an "exchange" is quite different, you know.

Tommy Kelly, the bookbinder, says he has a shopmate who is so particularly polite that he bends backward, especially when he has a little bit too much aboard, and who also prides himself on the correctness of his English. He called to see Tommy recently, and to the person answering his ring was heard to inquire: "Are they a man which his name is Mister Kelly, what lives here?"

Here is one on "Honest John" O'Neill. The first night he put in on a daily paper after landing he was among the early phalanx, and just as he was going out the foreman entered the room and sung out "Good night," to announce that copy was all in. "Good night, Maaster," replied "Honest John." "Awful polite country where the Maaster bids ye 'good night' when ye knock off work."

Speaking of boarding-houses, Billy Belt, assistant chief of the fire department, tells one on Dick Jones, pressman on the Post. Billy was keeping a boarding-house and had twelve boarders, among them Dick. They had only half an hour for dinner and the practice was to have everything on the table at exactly 12 o'clock. One day the other eleven boarders were detained for some reason or other, and Dick cleared the table.

That clerk that Commissioner Ware thinks is the real thing because he has not taken a day's leave in several years reminds me of a printer on a prominent Western daily who was a steady worker. The "subs" held a meeting and resolved not to work for him should he ever ask one, and when I landed there the boycott had been on for three years and no one had had the pleasure of refusing his request for a "sub."

A. Thomas Campbell, stereotyper on the Star, is to go to the San Francisco Chronicle to take charge of the stereotype room. Mr. Campbell is a thorough union man and has been secretary of the Allied Printing Trades Council for a number of years, where he has made friends with all who have come in contact with him. He is a good workman and a gentleman, and I hope he is making a good move, though his loss will be felt.

Another object lesson to the bona fide trades unions should be the strike of the coal heavers in the Washington Gas Works. They organized a union under the American Federation of Labor one day and struck the next. The Central Labor Union takes up their fight and next we will all boycott the Gas Company with the same result as in the case of the Metropolitan Railroad a year or so ago. These things make organized labor appear ridiculous and will eventually necessitate the cutting loose of the organized skilled trades from the A. F. of L.

"Circulation" must be the chief desideratum in the newspaper business when the good old Sunpaper of Baltimo' puts its price down to one cent. I don't believe it good policy. The newspapers are too much dominated by the advertisers as it is, but when the price per copy is less than the cost of white paper, they are completely at the mercy of the merchant, and the New York World style of paper will become more and more the thing, until people will have no respect for anything they see in the newspapers.

I see by the Journal that Sid Bennett is still in the land of the living. I did Sid an injury once when I was a youngster. Rushing to dinner one wet, nasty day in winter, when the streets of St. Louis were something fierce for those with proper foot covering, I met Sid, Tom Flood, and "Reddy" (Charley) Travis. Flood took me to one side and demanded 30 cents, saying Sid had $3 and was going to buy a pair of shoes, and Tom and "Reddy" were averse to seeing good money go for such a purpose and one drink would make Sid agree with them. I guess it did, for when next I met him his foot gear had not improved.

I hope William Randolph Hearst's ambition to come to Congress is not based simply on a desire to equal the record of Joe Pulitzer, of the World. Pulitzer did one good thing—his resigning gave Amos Cummings his first opportunity. At the next election for the full term Tammany demanded so much money that Amos could not run and was out of it until the death of "Sunset" Cox, when Amos had another chance and won. After that he was too strong for Tammany to bleed him, but they gave him a dirty shift in 1896, when they moved him out of a sure district into a doubtful one to make a cinch for the Tiger's pride, Georgie McClellan.

The regularity of the hours of employment of the newspaper compositors, especially in the days of handwork, when part of the day as well as the night was utilized in earning a livelihood, necessitated hours for meals, etc., that compelled men of this class to seek boarding houses and hotels that catered for their trade, and many of these habitations had reputations among the craft that made them desirable to the traveling comp whenever he struck a town. Many of them were run by printers or printers' wives or widows, and while some of them were counterparts of "Mrs. Todgers' Commercial Boarding House," most of them were really home-like and of good repute. Here in Washington, besides the many places in the "Swamp" who catered to printers, were Brigazzi's Hotel, a favorite place for men on the old Globe. Then there was Frank Darley's, a resort for men on the daily and Sunday papers. Later on came Robbie Hoy, who is still in the business. Then there was Mrs. Bruehl, whose house was filled with printers and plate printers. Another favorite of the newspaper men was Mrs. Tonnett, who housed and fed printers and variety actors. In Boston, was Keefe's, as well known as Hoy's of this city; also Lady Frances Hoyt's, the home of many of the trade. In New York, was the old Park House, where the World now stands; the Vandyke House, on the Bowery; the International Hotel, on Park Row; Mattie Bergen's, over on Hudson street; Mrs. O'Connell's and Mrs. Stout's, over on the West Side, and Mrs. Moynihan and a Miss Moore, on the lower East Side, who would take in a printer at any time. In Philadelphia, Dooner's Hotel (Dooner is an old pressman) was a resort, and Mrs. Edwards kept a house that was as well known as the Public Ledger. In Pittsburg, the Rush House was one of the places the printers resorted to in "the good old days," and a lady named O'Neill kept a boarding house where lots of type was set at meal time. In Wheeling, Mrs. Hegarty's always had the call among the tourists. In Cleveland, the New England Hotel and Mrs. Wade's were well known. Columbus had Mrs. Burbank's, Mrs. Miner's, Mrs. Frederick's, and the old Zetter House on the map as sure things for the hungry and tired wayfarer of the "art preservative." Cincinnati was equally well provided in the Hotel de Wald, Mrs. Neeley's, Mrs. Robinson's, and George Angel's, the latter making a specialty of lunches in the newspaper offices. The Thompson House in Chicago was well known far and wide as a caterer for printers and actors, and Joe Vance's restaurant was always open. Mrs Farrell, on Fifth avenue and afterwards on Wabash avenue, took a motherly interest in looking out for the boys who set type for a living, and Mrs. Hudson, over on Wells street, had many of the trade in her house. In Indianapolis, old Mrs. Yancey boarded printers and railroaders, and many a thousand ems were set at the table of Mrs. Montgomery at Fort Wayne, and also at Mrs. Mullen's in Toledo. St. Louis had many places where a printer's rule was an article well known and a traveling card an open sesame. Among them was Benny Warner's, who also furnished lunch in the offices. Jim Thurley's place was always full of printers Jim had been an old river steamboat cook, and on occasions got up some good feeds for the boys. The Denver House also catered for the typos, and Mrs. O'Connell, on Sixth street near Morgan, and Mrs. Stewart, down on Walnut street, were very friendly to printers. "Old Man" Farmer's place was also a noted resort in St. Louis. It never closed, and while he furnished food in connection with his wet goods his sleeping accommodations were composed of a number of arm chairs in the back part of his saloon, to which printers were always welcome and they were pretty constantly occupied. Printers contributed to help him start in business after a fire in which he lost everything, and it is said that he never refused one of the craft a reasonable request. Tom McNabb's, in Kansas City, was one place, and Johnny Carroll's another, while Mrs. Rhodes and Mrs. Walker took in printers with pleasure. In St. Joe, the Mountain House and Mrs. Walker's were popular. Memphis had Mrs. Davidson's, and in New Orleans, Mrs. Carter's was a printer's home, and a place kept by "French Charley" was another. Buffalo had the famous Mrs. Courtney's, and in Milwaukee, Fred Merchant's and Mrs. Beller's places were well known. In St. Paul, Mrs. Duffy kept a house principally devoted to boarding printers. Des Moines, Iowa, had Mrs. Burke's and Mrs. Moore's, and Providence, R. I., had Billy Carroll's hotel and also Mrs Manchester's. Many of these people have long since passed away but most of them were good friends to the printers, and I am glad to say that most of the printers acted honorably with them.

The Convention.

EDITORS THE TRADES UNIONIST:

Much has been said concerning the conventions of the American Federation of Labor—some of it has been true, and some far from correct—but let all bear in mind the fact that these annual gatherings are of great benefit to the cause of labor in general, in that there is an interchange of views among delegates from all parts of the United States, not forgetting to mention representatives from Canada and the Labor Congress of Great Britain, who send fraternal delegates.

An enormous amount of committee work is disposed of during hours when the convention is not in session, which greatly facilitates business, but with all that work performed by committees many hours of hard work are the portion of the officials of the convention and the chairmen of important committees.

The question of jurisdiction was the bone of contention, and many an argument was based upon that all-absorbing question. While matters of that kind were not invariably dealt with in as decisive a manner as they possibly should have been, still time is remedying many things that a few years ago a convention would not have dared to touch.

The resolutions in behalf of Federal Labor Union, No. 8193, given into my care with instructions to present to the convention, were indorsed unanimously.

The convention, without a dissenting vote, indorsed a resolution favoring suffrage in the District of Columbia.

As a convention city New Orleans is attractive only from an historical standpoint. The many inconveniences experienced by those coming from cities more favorably situated from a sanitary standpoint it would be hard to describe.

It is not my purpose to afflict your readers with a complete write up of the convention city, because they would be forced to conclude that little or no time had been devoted to the convention or else a cheap guide book had been foisted as original matter, and that my powers of observation and my capacity for the retention of statistical data were truly wonderful. Suffice it to say, New Orleans is very interesting from an historical standpoint, also from the point of insect life. Her mosquitos are brave and bold, free from indigestion, but long on business points.

The duties at the convention at times were arduous, for aside from regular attendance of the meetings of that body, President Gompers placed me on the Committee of Central Bodies, and while this committee was not overburdened with work, still it was after 1 o'clock Sunday morning before the final report for that committee was made.

The many pleasant meetings, the greetings and entertainment to all printer delegates, extended by No. 17, were duly appreciated, and a kind word for New Orleans printers will go from ocean to ocean.

The journey to New Orleans and return was thoroughly enjoyable and instructive, for what of agricultural products people here, West, and North are not familiar with—tobacco and cotton—especially the latter, was ever in evidence after passing Danville, Va. The great changes wrought in the past few years are recognized at a glance in the new brick structures, the cotton mills. What of wealth and prosperity it may bring the Southland, one not blind must ever behold the rows of little white frame dwellings of the operatives built by the mill syndicates but discloses to view the utter helplessness of those poor souls who slave in the mills from sun to sun without sufficient compensation to send their children to school and receive a common school education; on the other hand, those infants, too, must mount the tread mill and help eke out an existence. The typographical union of Charlotte, N. C., adopted a girl of seven, about two years ago, and is sending her charge to the public schools to be educated. This child, an orphan, was rescued from a cotton mill where labor was her lot from early morning until evening, receiving 12 cents a day, it is said.

The capitalists who always cry out that they are the real friends of the working class here have a chance to prove what they have been preaching.

"Pass laws in the State legislatures that will make child labor a crime against society, with an adequate penalty attachment."

Those good people who are ever denouncing anarchists—all advocates of the cause of those who labor belong to that class—are resisting to the last degree the passage of measures in State legislatures that call for a halt in this carnival of crime—child labor in the mills.

Quite a number of delegates accepted an invitation to visit the factory of the Peoples' Tobacco Company, Limited. They were delighted to find that the condition of the employes, in the main women, was all that could be desired, and the smiling faces and contented appearance of the operatives was ample evidence that their conclusions were correct. Mr. J. Oury, the genial manager, personally conducted the visitors through the factory and all had an opportunity to see the workings of the plant from the stripping of the leaf tobacco to the finished product.

The cigarette machine was of especial interest, and all were given souvenirs of a package of Kotton cigarettes. Also a package each of two kinds of tobacco—Kotton fine cut and a package of Kane smoking tobacco. The factory is thoroughly unionized and is operated in opposition to the trust, and should receive the united support of organized labor wherever their products are sold. Many of the delegates, including President Gompers, attended the dance given by the employes of this factory on Saturday evening of the first week of the convention.

The return trip was marred by a bad accident to the South bound train near Spartansburg, four and one-half hours being consumed in removing the wreckage, and instead of arriving here at 9 p. m. it was 1:30 a. m. However, I felt that congratulations were in order, bringing with me a clear conscience, a minature bale of cotton, and a live alligator. Fraternally,

JOHN B. DICKMAN.

A Timely Suggestion.

EDITORS THE TRADES UNIONIST:

The membership of the International Typographical Union has just approved a law submitted to them for ratification, which makes each and every member a recipient of the official paper published by the organization. A wise move, and one that will educate a lot of people who may need it, is the principles that underlie the organization of those whose sole capital is their brain or brass, or a mixture of both.

It occurs to me that what was wise for this organization to do, would be shrewd for the organized labor of Washington city to follow. Every cause can be largely aided through the press. Not through the half baked editorials which sometimes greet the eye in journals whose conductors could fill several large volumes with what they do not know of the aims and desires of organized labor, but through the columns of journals whose mission is to disseminate information fairly and lucidly. For instance, the associated labor of this city would often find itself wonderfully strengthened if it had here a strong and widely-circulated newspaper organ. Such an organ can be created, and it can be created by the workingmen themselves. Let me explain.

If every labor union in the District should order a copy of THE TRADES UNIONIST for each member, the result would be a circulation large enough to give general circulation to the presentment of Labor's side in any controversy that might arise. Such a circulation would give to the paper a power that would cause men in the very highest positions to court its good will. Unfair employers would hasten to make their peace with those no longer defenceless. Petty tyrants would shrink in terror before the calcium light of truth that exposed to all the community what contemptible animals on two legs some times encumber the earth. Members and Senators would respect an organ that would record their official action on questions of interest to labor, and right here at the Capital of the Nation would stand a tribune strong enough to reinforce with vigor every move that Labor's spokesmen might make in committee rooms or on the floor of the law-making bodies.

Were every working man or woman in the District a subscriber of your paper, you would be compelled to enlarge your journal. Advertisers would flock to your columns in a manner that recalls the Saturday Star or Sunday Post. In return for the land office business thus forced upon you, you could engage the best editorial talent in the market. You could and would engage sufficient reporters to glean all the news of importance to the different trades, so that the artisan of every kind would see something of nearest interest in every issue. In short, with the circulation you deserve, with the business that circulation would command, you would put into the field the bravest knight, equipped with armor the most invincible, who ever broke lance in the holy cause of labor.

Perhaps what I have written has convinced a reader or two that it would be a fortunate thing for the cause of organized labor if such a power was created. And the question may then be asked, "How shall we go to work to bring about the accomplishment of this desirable object?" Thus: Let the matter first be taken up by the Central Labor Union. I am not interested—except as a well wisher, subscriber, and advertiser—in THE TRADES UNIONIST, but I am warmly interested in the welfare of every union man and union woman. Hence I feel equal in presenting this matter to the Central Labor Union fairly well. I will do so, on invitation, any time that body may desire to hear me. That done, let them discuss the subject, and if they approve of the idea, let a competent committee be appointed to visit each organization represented in its council and lucidly explain the merits of the proposition, before such organization votes upon the proposition to order (at the expense of its treasury) a copy of THE TRADES UNIONIST for each member.

I believe I have said all that needs to be said. That the press is a power is telling no news. That Labor needs such power at times has been demonstrated times without number. Why not have it at our command?

AUGUST DONATH.

MR HENDERSON stills stands pat and will complete his inning.

THE time is coming when Mr. CANNON will be able to address himself as "Mr. Speaker."

THE north pole and Mr. DORSEY FOULTZ are still at large, with chances of discovery most favoring the n. p.

THE concensus of opinion among statesmen just fresh from the hustings is that little will be done at this session, except to pass appropriation bills and "stand pat."

OWING to a press of other and important matters we find it impossible to yield the space required for the President's annual message, but have no hesitancy in indorsing every good thing suggested.

No, "Constant Reader," THE TRADES UNIONIST has not arranged for clubbing rates with the Congressional Record. We do, however, extend to our esteemed neighbor and valued contemporary the courtesy of exchange.

THERE are some old vets up at the House who have faced the cannon's mouth on divers occasions and who will undoubtedly feel a sense of relief when the "enemy's" battery is weakened by the transfer of one of its heaviest guns to longer range, even though the position is a more commanding one.

WE place very little reliance on the statement that JOHN L. SULLIVAN had it in mind at one time to learn the trade of printer, though we do concede that JOHN has developed remarkable skill as ring man, imposer, and bankman; and as for punching, slugging out, and stowing away forms he has had few equals.

OPINIONS are so contradictory concerning tariff revision that there would seem to be no safety in accepting any of them as reliable, and, come to think about it, those who have troubles of their own may as well entrust these matters of minor importance to Congress, and so get as many good nights' rest as possible.

PHILADELPHIA is fast gaining ground as the first wickedest city in America, a distinction not the least appreciated by the better people of that community, who are just now alarmed at the increase of population by a fresh cargo of questionable characters from Germany, which shows an excess of imports over exports. Revision is called for.

THE President's message contains several thousand words, and he makes use of the personal pronoun I just seventeen times. GROVER CLEVELAND, while President, in a private letter containing 446 words (afteward made public) called attention to I-self fifteen times. At this rate a message of ordinary length from Mr. CLEVELAND would seriously threaten the I supply of any normally equipped printing-office.

THE President and family dined on a 32-pound chestnut-fed Thanksgiving turkey. We make the announcement because we want our files to show to posterity that the neighbors were good to Mr. ROOSEVELT; but in the meantime we confess a keen disappointment that our supposed close relations with His Excellency were not such as to allow us a "scoop" over those who disclaim any special interest in the President's private affairs.

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

An item by the "Spess" man a couple of weeks ago in this great moral engine, to the effect that a compositor in that division, on a false report of his transfer to the main office, had given away all his "sorts"—almost as precious as a woman's good name or a warrior's fame—reminds my friend Brockwell of a story of the time when he was a "Spess" man. Charlie Warren (not "Pie") had been taken very ill quite suddenly and was carried home. He had had a number of severe attacks, but this seemed to be the most dangerous of all.

"Poor Charlie!" said Gus Laing. "I am afraid we will not see him again Look what a big boxful of a's he has," and he swiped about a mule's ear full of them

"Charlie is a mighty good fellow," said Jimmy Montgomery, "and I hope he will pull through all right, but it looks dubious," and he transferred the contents of the sick man's n box to his own.

"This is about the worst attack Charlie ever had," said Brockwell, as he appropriated Warren's lower-case e's, "and I'm afraid he'll never pull through"

The day wore away and all hands went home, not expecting to see Warren for several weeks if at all again. But the next morning he was there when the whistle blew, surveying his wrecked case It took a whole day's distribution for Laing to make good, but the others scratched around and found enough "sorts" to make restitution—probably stole them somewhere else.

Where do people get their misinformation as to the powers of "walking delegates"? From newspapers that deliberately seek to deceive. Even a printer suggests that "it would be a good idea to reduce the salary of the walking delegate about one-half every time a strike is called." And printers have been alleged to be the most intelligent of trades unionists!

"Kelly?" said Judge Tallman. "Yes, I knew two Kellys in St. Louis—Big Kelly and Little Kelly—but I never knew any other names for them. Big Kelly was a pock-marked chap, and at one time he let himself get pretty well run down—seedy and not overcleanly. Then he disappeared for about three weeks, and when he showed up again, well dressed and smoothly shaved, some one asked him where he had been.

"'Over in Illinois,' he said.

"'Whereabouts in Illinois?'

"'Oh, up at Polo.'

"'What were you doing in Polo?'

"'Poling hogs.'

"'Poling hogs?'

"Yes. You fasten a hog onto the end of a long pole and hold him up to eat the acorns off of the trees. That's what they call poling hogs, and the town of Polo gets its name from the practice.'"

Judge Tallman is not always believed.

A TRIBUTE.

A gentle poet "Adam Bugg"—
He ne'er dips in the gall pot,
But sweetly sings of noble things—
Our William Tipton Talbott.

As smoothly run his flowing lines
As life on a canal boat;
No venomed word is ever heard
From William Tipton Talbott.

No slander e'er falls from his pen,
Nor what could be called foul blot,
Of peaceful times sing all his rhymes—
Our William Tipton Talbott.

Through all his poems sweetness runs—
A sweetness that will pall not;
He must have mines of graceful lines—
Our William Tipton Talbott.

Some poets' sonnets limping lag—
On even feet his all trot,
And set a pace that's full of grace—
Our William Tipton Talbott.

When all his weary sands are run,
And his life's page its "all" got,
In heaven we'll find that noble mind—
Our William Tipton Talbott.

The poet has taken advantage of high license to make use of rhymes that would be questioned in one less gifted.

What a contrast exists between the editorial page of the Washington Post and that of the real and imitation "yellows" on the one hand and the perfunctories on the other! The "yellow" editorial page consists of double and treble column inanities under block-type headings and between inches of rules, but containing not a word one would ever want to remember. The perfunctories have the merit of being brief—a column or two of flat platitudes and reiterations of undisputed things—the follower of public opinion instead of the leader. But every line on the editorial page of the Post is readable, forceful, and clear-cut. We may not agree with what it says—its tone indicates that it does not care whether we do or not—but no one who respects a man or a paper with opinions can fail to enjoy both its editorials and general matter. The Post as a News Paper has not its equal within or without the United States, and it is under no obligations of compliment from me either.

A friend of mine says my story a few weeks ago about the "sub" who stole the lunch reminds him of a circumstance that happened in Savannah, Ga., some years ago. There was a "sub" in the News office named Tony Denier, which I suspect was a stage name, for Tony Denier was a great pantomimist in my young days. Tony had the reputation of stealing lunches and hurling the lunch box or basket out of the window. My friend Byers, who tells the story, says that he had a string suspended from the ceiling to which he attached his lunch box, to keep out insects. One night, after they had gone to work, some one noticed that Byers' box was not there and sung out:

"Jimmy hasn't got any lunch; somebody stole Jimmy Byers' lunch."

Jimmy saw his box was gone and he walked out into the middle of the floor and declared himself:

"What sneaking horse thief stole my lunch?"

Tony came up and said:

"What did you call me? I don't like that!"

"Maybe you like this better," said Jimmy, as he smashed him in the jaw, knocking him against a galley rack, and piing six galleys of live type.

Middleton, the foreman, came rushing to the scene, and Byers told his story, offering to pay for the type. Tony was "barred" and that was the only action taken.

A few days after, as Byers was riding to work in a street car, the conductor asked him:

"Didn't you use to carry a wicker-work lunch box, with a napkin in it marked 'J. J. B.'?"

"Yes," said Jim, wonderingly.

"Well, I found it in the car last week. I ate the lunch, because I knew you wouldn't care about that, but the box and napkin are up at the car office."

So poor Tony got thumped and "barred" for the lunch he never stole.

"Prof. J. H. B. Smallwood, plastering, kalsomining, and jobbing in brick work. Whitewashing a specialty. 1615 Fourth street N. W." is the way a card reads that I picked up the other day. That is our old Jim Smallwood, for so many years a laborer in the G. P. O. I didn't know what had become of him, but had an idea he had become a professional cakewalker.

I wonder if the laundries added 25 per cent to the wages of their employes when they raised prices to customers that much? I am waiting for an affirmative answer before I send my stuff to the yellow pagan.

It is to be hoped that the rumor is true that Mr. Hearst will establish a morning paper here about January 1, to take the place of the defunct morning edition of the Times. A great city like this has need of two morning as well as two evening papers and will well support them. Mr. Hearst is a good friend of the workingman and I would like to see him have a newspaper in every large city.

A number of Stonewall Jackson Triplett's Industrial Journal, published at Charlotte, N. C., reached me the other day. "Trip" devoted a large portion of the paper to the session of the American Federation of Labor at New Orleans.

The Committee on Entertainment have decided to abandon the minstrel feature of their show, on account of the failure of the alleged participants to attend rehearsals, and will give a concert, for which purpose they have sufficient talent willing to give attention to it.

It is to be hoped that there will be no opposition to the appropriation from our treasury of 5 cents per capita to be voted to aid Los Angeles Union on Wednesday next. It is no individual expense to us, as our treasury is ample to furnish the funds, and it is our duty to assist our brethren in the fight they are so manfully maintaining. The members of Los Angeles Union have been paying vast sums to continue the battle and now they need help. In helping them we help ourselves and the cause of unionism everywhere, for the rat Times is a menace to the integrity of our union by furnishing rats wherever wanted. It is called the Los Angeles assessment, but it is not an individual assessment and dues will be no less if it is defeated. Let us vote to stand by unionists everywhere as they have stood by us when we needed their support.

A. F. BLOOMER.

BILL BILLFORCE.

[A Ragtime Ballad wherein Itt is recited how an ambitious and patriotic Nightmanne was dragged into ye Daylight bye ye Golden Chains of Love.]

Bill Billforce loved a maiden fair,
Ye sweetest in ye Swamp;
At least Bill often so averred.
He was her only comp.

And yet Bill found himself, alas,
In most unhappy plight;
Ye maiden would not marry him
Because he toiled at night.

"Oh, dear one," Bill would often say,
"My efforts please them so
That, when ye night force is made up,
They will not let me go.

"For bills and speeches must not wait
On comps whose record is Below ye mark when winter comes
And work begins to whiz.

"So I must roll my shirtsleeves up
When darkness hits ye earth,
And set ye types nocturnally
For all that I am worth.

"In haste I strive to leave behind
My fellow printer lads,
Achieving glory and a name,
As well as extra scads.

"And since my forefathers of old
Ye Sword of Freedom drew
And slugged ye English, why should I
Not slug ye English, too?"

His words were music to her ears;
But well ye maiden saw
How wicked nightmen from her side
That wavering comp did draw.

"I can not tell," she often sighed,
Her tender eyes aglow,
"How I admire and love you, Bill.
But wed a nightman? No!"

Bill struggled hard, but growing weak,
By tender glances won,
At last he flung night's mantle off
And toiled beneath ye sun.

Then, when he said, "Dear girl, be mine;
I yield unto your will,"
Ye maiden answered with a kiss,
"I'll be daylighted, Bill."

AROUND THE PRINTERIES

Meeting of Ex-Delegates.

There will be a meeting of the Ex-Delegates' Association of Columbia Union, No. 101, at Typographical Temple, on Sunday, December 7, 1902, at 2 o'clock p. m. All ex delegates are cordially invited to be present.

W. R. RAMSEY,
J. T. HERBERT, President.
Secretary.

Down Town.

William Dix, late of Times, is working on the Star.

T. C. Parsons is again chairman of the Evening Times.

"Gum Honey" was a hot one—someone said. □ Were you on?

John B. Swift, of Minneapolis, Minn., made this office a call Tuesday. He was on his way from the convention at New Orleans.

About ten men were let out by the consolidation of the morning and evening Times. New York is the gainer by our loss—of good fellows and good printers.

Alexander H. Dunlap, of Chattanooga, Tenn., called upon friends in the city this week. Mr. Dunlap is looking after the interests of a large advertising concern.

W. R. Boyer, secretary-treasurer of the International Broom Maker's Union, of Galesburg, Illinois, made us a pleasant call Saturday. He was in the city in the interest of encouraging the patronage of their label goods in the broom line. A worthy cause.

James Sauls, who, for the past four years has been holding down a sit in Charleston, S. C., has returned to the G. P. O. and is working on the Record. While in Charleston he was instrumental in organizing that city and was offered the nomination for legislative honors on the labor ticket.

Day Record.

Arbuckle is still Lem Miller's favorite tipple.

J. J. Sullivan, a well known printer, has been assigned to this division

There is not much doing in this neck of the woods until after the holidays.

Chairman Clements doesn't have much chance in this division to exercise his fine Italian judgment in the settlement of "ring" contentions.

After an exciting campaign L. J. Clements was elected chairman, defeating Frank Burnside. W. T. Talbott was unanimously elected secretary.

The following is the Day Record force so far as constituted: L. P. Kenney, acting foreman; John P. Allen, Frank Ayres, E Burkholder, Frank Burnside, L. J. Clements, Edwin L. Davis, A F. Drake, P. H. Gallagher, D. J Hegarty, James E. Hoes, T. W. Howard, J. E Irwin, Kane Mahoney, Lemuel E. Miller, Samuel E Mullan, C B Nelson, W. G O'Connell, E. H. Ryan, W. D. Skeen, William B Svphax, W. T. Talbott, J. N Thompson, John Tuite, James L. Welty; Thomas Burns, John P. Davis, Claude L. Williams, helpers; H. H. Byrne, messenger.

Al J. Gompers expects the quality and merit of his 10 cent El Sublima and 5 cent La Federacion cigars to sell them. The Union label is not used to palm off inferior cigars. The cleanest and neatest factory in Washington, 209 Penn. Avenue N. W.

Oyster pan roast. 10c. R. A. Driscoll's, N. Cap. and G sts. Overholt whisky, 10c.

Fourth Division.

Messrs. Galvin, Young, Breen, and Beringer have been transferred to the Record.

They came right for Sam Kennedy on Monday, and as a consequence his roll looked as big as a canvassed ham.

For once Duke Kirby got on the right thing. It was Douro in the Maximum. It is impossible to state at present if the Duke carried it out the gate.

The ponies having departed, the sporty boys had just turned their eyes toward the Washington base ball team when the defection of Delehanty, Orth, and Townsend knocked them speechless. "Wait until next year."

Benedict Kirsh is now a benedict by nature as well as by name, having joined the ranks of that great organization on Wednesday, November 27. Congratulations, Benny, and here's hoping you meet with no storms on the matrimonial sea.

Talk about hard luck. Doc. Slater had his hat and coat on Saturday preparing to move on to Bennings with a red-hot tip on Himself and Flintlock. "Hurry" came in, Doc. could not leave, and Himself and Flintlock were winners at long odds. Cheer up, Doc!

The editor of the column under the caption of "Flotsam and Jetsam" would confer a great favor upon a large number of the readers of this journal if he would confine his reminiscences to a higher plane of thought and morals, and eliminate therefrom the collection of low bar room anecdotes and whisky stories which invariably abound therein.

For $20 a Month

Mr. Donath will sell homes on just those terms. Call or write.

Oyster pan roast, 10c. R. A. Driscoll's, N. Cap. and G sts. Overholt whisky, 10c.

Have you tried an El Sublima? The best 10 cent cigar anywhere. Full Havana. Hand made. Union made. Al J. Gompers, manufacturer, 209 Penn. Avenue N. W.

Try Al J. Gompers' La Federacion 5 cent hand made, Uinon made, excellent cigars. Half Havana. Factory open for inspection, 209 Penn. Avenue N. W.

FOR RENT—Furnished rooms on second floor; hot and cold bath; two squares from Govt. Print. Office. No. 11 K street northwest.

Oyster pan roast, 10c. R. A. Driscoll's, N. Cap. and G sts. Overholt whisky, 10c.

Night Bill Force.

Louis Carroll has been transferred to this force from the First Division.

Thanks are due to Johnny Green for many little courtesies extended to me in the way of items.

George H. Healey, recently of the "self supporting" division, is domiciled in the night Second.

W. T. Richard, Thomas J. Travis, and Isaac G. Ervin, temporaries, are holding down situations in the Night Second.

I. Walter Sharp (no Jay), C. A. Morgan, and James Alford, of this force, have been transferred to the Night Proof Room.

Edward Jackson, helper, and John T. Howe, laborer, both from the First Division, were assigned to this force Monday night.

J. W. Martin and Edward Coleman, of the First Division, and Charles A. Morgan, of the Fourth Division, have been transferred to this force.

E. S. Baker, recently of the now defunct Census Printing Office, has received a temporary appointment in this office. Mr. Baker is an A1 printer, and will have no trouble in making good.

George G. Klinknett, who has been transferred from the Specification Room to night work, is still confined to his home by illness. He has been sick for some time, but is reported to be slowly recovering.

W. J. Fuhrman, who is the possessor of the most luxuriant hirsute adornment in the printery, made connections Tuesday, and was assigned to the Second Division. Mr. Fuhrman is one of the regular night workers.

C. J. Unger, champion checker player of the office until he hit the Specification Room, has been transferred to night work. He now dallies with the little leaden messengers in the Second Division of this force.

V. M. Boyd, probationer, is serving an apprenticeship in the night Second Division. Mr. Boyd, who is quite well known as an old employe of this office, has recently been engaged in outside work. He was transferred from the First Division.

One of Louie Carroll's friends informs me that Louie will soon make application for a card in the shoemakers' union. He has on exhibition (or on his feet, rather) a pair of shoes that reflect much credit upon his workmanship. Take a look at them.

G. A. ("Yorkey") Rinehart, late of the Specification Division, has been assigned cases in the Second Division, night. "Yorkey" is looking fit enough to pound out 6400 short doc., which will no doubt be easy for him after the vicissitudes encountered in the Specification.

Menard's reference in last week's issue to the office cat, reminds me of the feline attaches of the main office. One, a half-grown kitten, refuses to associate with anyone who is not above the rank of private, confining his list of acquaintances almost exclusively to foremen, revisers, and makers-up Another, a magnificent full grown specimen of coal-black hue, is more liberal in his friendships, and will occasionally condescend to accept a choice piece of chicken from one of the humbler class of workers, but even he prefers to spend the major part of his time in the company of floor hands, etc. It is said that George Wilson shows an overpowering state of jealousy every time he sees the foreman petting and playing with the cats.

I am informed on good authority that the Night Bill Force came near having a first-class sensation developed in its midst recently. It seems that two temporary men who are inseperable companions—to such an extent that they are known among their friends as Damon and Pythias—came to grief in an unexpected and startling manner while on the way to their respective domiciles last Thursday morning. Their actions had attracted the attention of one of Major Sylvester's sleuths, and when, after following them for several squares, they darted into a dark alley in the rear of a private residence and he saw one of them fumbling at the latch on a rear gate, he at once concluded that he had bagged a couple of burglars in the act of plying their nefarious occupation. Approaching them carefully he was enabled to get a good look at their countenances, and priding himself upon his abilities as a physiogomist, he had no hesitancy in arresting them on suspicion. Protestations of innocence had no effect upon the sleuth and they were marched before the desk sergeant at a nearby police station, where, after a long and searching examination—principally searching—they succeeded in establishing their identity and securing their release. I understand that hereafter, Sunday mornings excepted, they will refuse to leave the "Swamp" until the cars begin to run.

"Pard" Bloomer's recent allusion to the inexpressibly mean man who refuses to lend his financial support to his trades paper, yet always manages to borrow one long enough to see "what's in the rag," is all right as far as it goes but it does not go far enough. I venture to say that in every division in the office there are one or more of these people. The only way to get rid of this class of miserly grafters is for every one who takes the local trades paper to refuse to loan it under any consideration, unless to a fellow subscriber who has failed to receive his own. THE TRADES UNIONIST is certainly deserving of the support not only of every employe of the Government Printing Office, but of every man or woman who is in any way affiliated with organized labor. The paper not only stands for unionism first, last, and all the time, but unlike any other trades paper in the country of which I have cognizance, it practices what it preaches. THE TRADES UNIONIST office is the only one in the city that runs on an eight-hour basis, although there is no reason from a union standpoint why it should not demand nine hours' labor from its employes. But it is consistent with its teachings. When a holiday happens around (as they have a very persistent way of doing in Washington, owing to numerous executive orders) you will always find THE TRADES UNIONIST employes off enjoying the occasion, while they know that their pay envelope will contain the same amount as if they had been compelled to work. And yet there are a lot of pusillanimous excrescences, alleging themselves to be union men and women, who refuse to pay the paltry sum of 10 cents a month toward the support of the best trades-union paper in the United States, but who are mean enough to purloin or borrow one from their neighbor. I would like to see Columbia Union, No. 101, assess each member 10 cents a month and order THE TRADES UNIONIST sent to every one holding a card in the organization. If the International had the right to make a compulsory assessment upon its members for the support of the Journal, surely Columbia Union has the same prerogative in regard to THE TRADES UNIONIST, which is to the local union what the Journal is to the International.

CHARLES F.

Bindery Notes.

Will some one kindly inform John Dwyer where his dog "was at"?

Charley Holbrook was a little late getting his Thanksgiving dinner, having partaken of the trimmings in advance.

Pete Whitelaw was laid up several days with an attack of grip. He is now doing business at the old stand, thanks to "peruna."

Holbrook, Nevins, and Neal took to Carbuncle, in the Cup race, to show. He "showed," but the "bookie" took to the woods.

There is a great demand for accurate timepieces in Baltimore. Any person having such useful article should apply to Bauer and Childs.

Shad Burns did not go to the banquet, though it is understood that he offered to blacken his face and act as waiter. The offer was, however, declined.

The bulletins received every half-hour after the vote was collected were very favorable to the Major. It was the greatest day of his life. He was terribly swelled up.

After the election Tuesday night the members enjoyed themselves at the smoker given by the newly elected officers William C. Connor was in charge of the arrangements, and Robert E Frailey, of the Union Building, acted as chairman.

The annual banquet of the bookbinders will be held on some date between January 20 and February 20. It is promised that this will be the best banquet that has yet been given. The committee of arrangements will be announced later.

Let us dance the glowing hours away with flying feet. Dance the old year out and the new year in. Do not forget our annual entertainment and reception on December 31, at National Rifles' Armory, G street northwest, between Ninth and Tenth.

Willie Casey, of the "roof garden," visited Rockville, Md., November 14, and joined the benedicts. Yes, he is married, and what is more, he was not seen at Bennings this season. His fellow-workmen presented him with a wedding present and extended to him their best wishes.

The following officers were elected for 1903: President, Robert D. Barrett: vice president, George F. Kirch; recording secretary, James A. Stockman; financial secretary, William E Gallagher; treasurer, John Pyemont; statistician, John A. Wiedman; inspector, Charles J. Cassidy; finance committee, Peter J. Flanagan, Harry Flicker, and Joseph D. Mitchell.

Specification Scintillations.

Both saint and sinner put in eight hours last Sunday without a murmur.

Some of the boys are thankful that the racing season is over. Horses are very fickle and have brought sorrow to many homes.

Five members of alley 5 were pleasantly surprised last Friday with pick-up pages measuring 3,coo ems each. This was truly a manna from heaven.

Austin DuGanne is on leave. It is rumored that a few "bookies" were compelled to borrow money to leave town, by reason of his visits to Bennings.

Frank R. Trimble brought a lantern down with him last Wednesday, when we worked until 9 p. m., and the spectacle strongly suggested old Diogenes in his historical search for an honest man.

Oscar W. Humphreys and W. M. Wood were assigned cases in this division last Saturday. Humphreys resigned his "sit" about seven months ago, but finally decided to return and help us out.

Thanksgiving Day, Bennings track, the natural corollary, and a plethoric purse brought into prominence "our uncle" F. H. Melick, custodian of the funds of our "Sym." The boys made "touchdowns" and "goals," but Melick withstood the shock, however.

Bounding along Seventh street like a huge wave on life's tempestuous sea, William G. Clarke, late of this division, dawned upon us one day last week "Bill" has been allotted cases on the Night Bill Force, but his soul longs for the "Spess," with its jovial men and charming women.

Last Wednesday night, a few minutes before adjournment, our glee club indulged in the time honored custom of favoring the chapel with a few choice selections. The disturbing element was on hand with cat-calls, etc, but the melody of the singers soon placed a quietus upon the distasteful noise.

Arthur B. Barringer is with us once more, and the appearance of the "professor" was the signal for applause. "Prof." Barringer is a manipulator of the ivories—not chips, but piano-keys—and can hold his own both in front of a Knabe and a case of "Spess" primer. Barringer's magnificent blonde mustache, which was formerly the joy of the ladies and the envy of the men, has entirely disappeared from his face. Possibly he dispensed with his hirsute adornment in order to prevent a wanton waste of foam. It is rumored that Mr. Barringer will soon be presented with a handsome gold watch and chain, because of his initiatory and untiring efforts to bring before the Court of Claims the protests of temporary compositors against denial of pay for unused leaves of absence.

Military Service vs. Labor Unions.

A recent cartoon in the Evening Star represents a member of a labor union debating whether he shall perform military service or obey the mandates of the organization which upholds his rights as a workman.

Man is by nature a fighting animal. The old savage instinct is still inherent in his composition, and likely will be for generations to come. But the structure of society is to-day not such that it is required of men to organize themselves into an armed force and go forth full panoplied for slaughter. Military service in the Old World has done more to crush down the rights of the producing masses than any other factor unless it be the superstition of religious bigotry. No tool is so capable of holding the half thinking laborer pliant as the military arm of society. The greatest masters of war have described the evils of war. Napoleon sententiously declared that "when men shall learn to war no more, then the crashing cannon ball shall no longer crush and mangle the helpless babe upon its couch." General Grant, the greatest genius of war, in his book, laid bare in their most revolting details the great dread casualties incident to carnage. Sherman's famous apothegm "War is hell," meant more than the non-participant can grasp. General Hancock uttered a similar terse statement. The head of a great religious institution uttered a mild protest on the score of humanity in a recent bitter struggle between two great nations. One of New York's greatest surgeons, commenting on the going forth of America's sons to battle, said: "God help the young man who is wounded and consigned to lie for weary days in the hospital between life and death," and an army chaplain, who volunteered to go to the Philippines on the merciful errand of identfying the bodies of buried soldiers, declared that no amount of compensation would induce him to again perform the task. In fact, war is a revolting monstrosity.

The young workingman who seeks glory at the cannon's mouth should listen to the tales of regular army men who have served in European armies. He would soon become disenchanted by dismal recitals of hardships unnamable; of dreary pictures drawn of camp life in the field, where but one word adequately paints the scene—misery. The regular army man feels that he would be better engaged in civic employment, and but for a false state of society that would be his lot. War never has, nor never will best serve the interests of the laboring masses. Its glittering cruelties will eventually be swept aside by the oncoming humane sentiments of the world, and no factor can be more potent in achieving that result than the unity of labor in one common bond.

THE CENTRAL LABOR UNION

E. L. Harrison, Saloonist, Removed from Unfair List.

THE PROTEST OF CARPENTERS

The Iron Moulders and Robert Portner—The Barbers Complain of one Brown—Stage Alliance Matter—Master House Painters and Decorators' Association Communicates—Minor Matters Disposed of.

The Central Labor Union was called to order Monday night, at Typographical Temple, by President Hamerstrom.

Minutes of previous meeting read by Secretary Winslow and approved by the body.

Master House Painters and Decorators' Association communicated relative to the visit of the committee of the Central Labor Union, stating they would further consider the possibility of the Brotherhood of Painters becoming a party to the Building Trades Section, and at the same time observe strictly the provisions of contract existing between this body and themselves, and that they concurred in the action of the Arbitration Committee and reaffirmed all correspondence passing between their arbitrators and those of the Brotherhood of Painters relative to the interpretation placed on the fourth clause of the contract existing between their association and the Brotherhood of Painters.

The association maintains that the contract between them and the Brotherhood of Painters, having received the sanction of the national officers of the Brotherhood of Painters and the indorsement of the Central Labor Union, must be regarded as taking precedence to and superior to any law or ruling pertaining to the relation between the master painter and his employe. The section referred to is as follows: "SEC. 4 The Master Painters' Association and the Brotherhood of Painters shall appoint three members of each organization, which shall be known as the Arbitration Committee, to which all differences shall be referred. But if the two committees can not agree they shall call in a disinterested person, who must be connected with the building trades, and the findings of this committee will be final on both organizations; provided further, that the working force of shop or shops shall not be disturbed during the action of said committee."

Referred to special committee.

Local No 123, of Coopers' International Union, of New Orleans, La., communicated relative to the unfair firm of Henderson Sugar and Refining Co., and asked organized labor to avoid using their product until the same was shipped in union-labeled barrels. Referred to Grocery Clerks' Union.

The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, No. 1103, communicated their objections to the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters being allowed to affiliate with the Central Labor Union. Placed on file.

Barbers' Union, No. 239, communicated, giving in full the reputation and standing of one George Brown, who conducts a barber shop at the Astoria, Third and G streets northwest, and purports to conduct a union shop, displaying a card to that effect. They requested that the Central Labor Union impose a fine of $2 on any union man patronizing said Brown, and that said action be published in THE TRADES UNIONIST. Communication placed on file.

The Iron Moulders inquired if Secretary Winslow had received a reply to communication sent Robert Portner. The secretary stated that he had not but had heard from same through Mr. Portner, stating that none but union-made goods were used and only union men were employed on his building.

The name of E. L. Harrison, saloon keeper, was taken from the unfair list.

The special committee on Stage Employes Alliance matters reported progress.

THAT CHICAGO HOTEL FIRE.

Two Former Washington Printers Among the Victims.

On Thursday morning, December 4, at Chicago, the Lincoln Hotel, a veritable fire trap located at 176 Madison street, was consumed by fire, and fourteen human beings perished therein, among the number being Edward T. Toner, aged about 40, a printer well known in this city, having for a number of years been employed on the Congressional Record at the Government Printing Office and representing this union as delegate to Louisville in 1894, and George B. Graves, aged about 35, also formerly employed in the same institution, having left this city a few years ago for Colorado for his health. He was a Spanish War veteran, having served with the District regiment all during the Santiago campaign.

The remains of both of the unfortunates were brought to this city, where their families reside, and George B. Graves was buried at Arlington Cemetery, with military honors, Monday. Edward T. Toner was buried Tuesday afternoon at Congressional Cemetery. He leaves a wife and three children to mourn his loss.

Star and Garter Club Banquet

The Star and Garter Club of the Government Printing Office held its annual banquet Thanksgiving eve., at Curtin's Cafe, corner of North Capitol and H streets. The members of the club, to the number of forty, representing all the different trades of the office, were present. The hall was tastefully decorated with cut flowers and potted plants, while the table was loaded down with good things. Charles Connor acted as toastmaster, and speeches were made by several persons present. The musical end of the affair was ably supported by Tom McNulty, of Baltimore, Charles Weston, Findlay Hayes, C. McEanany, John Purvis, Ben Spellbring and W. Whittaker, all stars. Old Hoss, the lobster, entertained the company for a whilh. Those present were: Messrs. William Slater, Robert Slater, Lorenzo B. Collins, Shultie J. Shannon, Ross Finnigan, D. J. Mnrray, Durkin, Riley, Fowler, Gale, Cunningham, Maloney, Elliott, Willis, Stack, J. Collins Brown, Connor, Mullin, Dowell, Callahan, Baskhl, Connell, Horby, Cassidy, D Shannon, Godman, McCormick, McCarthy, Bauer, Hart, Mulligan, Lloid, Harmon, and Webster.

Columbia Lodge, I. A. M., Election.

At a regular meeting of Columbia Lodge, No. 174, I. A. M., held Sunday, December 7, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, M. A. Bowen, (re elected); vice-president, G.W. Price, (re-elected); financial secretary, R. H. Cowan (re-elected); recording secretary, E. L. Adams; treasurer, E. S. Stokes (re-elected); conductor, G. E. Smouse; sentinel, J. E. Severn; auditing committee, Edwin Hiller, R. G. Dick, and Andrew Johnson, jr.; delegates to Central Labor Union, R. H. Cowan, E L. Tucker, W. H. Henze, Harry Severn, and Jno. Davis.

The meeting was a very interesting and enthusiastic one, there being over 400 members present.

Columbia Lodge has just passed a year of great prosperity and the members are determined that the coming year will be more prosperous, and will not stop in their efforts until every eligible machinist in the Washington Navy Yard is enrolled in Columbia Lodge, No. 174.

Bricklayers, No. 1, Election.

The Bricklayers will hold their annual election for delegates to the Thirty-seventh annual convention on Thursday, December 11, 1902, at Typographical Temple.

The following candidates for delegate, from which three are to be chosen, are in the race: William Crouin, James French, Peter Horrigan, William H. Maghan, Robert H. McMackin, Edward F. McCulom, and Charles E. Stewart. For I. U. Deputy, James F. Murtaugh; for alternate, Daniel J. McMahon.

FOR RENT—To gentlemen; two large communicating rooms, newly furnished, closets, near bath, steam heat, $10. Apt. 37, The Montgomery, North Capitol and M streets.

Specification Scintillations.

George H. Stull has returned from an extended visit to the Buckeye State.

A familiar wail from the east end of the room: "Pull down that curtain, please!"

The following were assigned cases here last Tuesday: Thomas Monahan, James Rodgers, Charles Rockwell, Joseph R Lehmann, and William Williams.

As a slight evidence of the esteem in which Ed. R. French is held, the Union Relief Association has doubled his salary as secretary-treasurer for the ensuing year.

Thomas H. Collins and W. J. C. O'Brien evince a deep interest in the comfort and welfare of the ladies of this division, but they need a Light (N. M.) to guide them.

The many friends of Fred L. Davis, of the proof room, who has been seriously ill for several weeks with typhoid fever, are pleased to know of his convalescence.

The following compositors reported for duty last Monday: Miss May D. White, Messrs. Joseph Cohn, Dale C. Sheriff, Joseph W. Becker, Joseph I Keefer, Eugene W. Leach, Dresden A. Smith, and William Jaques.

Capt. E. D. Smoot, of the ring alley, was deprived of his "yellow jacket and peacock feather" one day last week, and plugged away on long primer for several consecutive hours. The sacred ornamentations have been restored to him, however.

The presswork of this division is executed by three pressmen; two who run one press each, while the other superintends two presses. As the number of forms printed average about 100 per day, the pressmen have no sinecure. The trouble with electricity on short work is very trying to the feeders at this time of the year.

Thirty-one members of this division made application for night work and twenty of these succeeded. Of the eleven patriots who were "left at the post" may be mentioned Andrew McGarraghy, J. H. Edsall, J. G. Jameson, T. E Billings, Edward Nash, W. S. Sill, and others. But, of course, we can not spare all our best men.

A. J. Arnold, of this division, the popular and efficient treasurer of the G. P. O Mutual Relief Association (now filling his fourth term, besides having served three years as president and one year as recording secretary of the association) is a candidate for re-election. His friends hope to see his services appreciated at the coming election.

At a recent meeting of the Union Mutual Relief Association the following were elected officers: George M. Ramsey, president; G. W. Hall, vice president; E. R. French, secretary-treasurer; George M. Ramsey, G. W. Hall, E. R. French, S. A. Wakefield, Jos. Stecker, Miss Laura B. Gordon, James W. Carter, Miss Fanny E. Levy, and Mrs. Irma D. Palmer, directors.

Among our new recruits the name of Joseph I. Keefer stands pre-eminent. He is reputed to be the first white man to hoist the American flag in Alaska, and carries upon his person documents establishing his status as a lineal descendent of the immortal George Washington. Keefer's prestige looms above the horizon like an aurora borealis, and he will probably prove "a cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night" to the laggards and faint hearted of this force. Here's to Keefer, our salvation and hope!

Besides maintaining two very prosperous relief associations of their own, the Union Bindery and the Specification Division have a large membership in both the G. P. O. and Columbia Relief Associations. Believing that it is good for the prosperity and welfare of these associations that the offices should not all be held by employes of the main office, the "Spess" has put up a candidate for financial secretary of Columbia Association in the person of R. L. S. Halpenny, a gentleman of unboubted integrity and ability.

On a certain occasion ex-President Grover Cleveland declared married life to be "one grand sweet song." Mr. Aug. M Laing, of this division, heartily concurs in this declaration. Recently, he deemed it advisable to celebrate his "silver wedding" anniversary, and he ordered several hundred invitations that were up to date conceits of the printer's art. It appears that his daughter made a requisition upon his healthy bank account for a new dress for the occasion, and while the noble pater familias proceeded to execute the order she discovered the startling fact that her illustrious parent had been married only twenty-four years. The young lady, however, kept her secret until after she had received the new gown, when she disclosed it to her astonished father. Fortunately, the invitations were not issued and next year the numerous friends of our popular Mr. Laing must not give vent to any great surprise should they receive invitations to a silver wedding with certain dates, etc., written in red ink.

Bindery Notes.

It has just been reported that "Chip" Gardner is in town. His many friends are invited to call on him.

The cowboys are very anxious to know what sort of a Christmas present Shad Burns wants this time.

Do not fail to see Barrett and Kirby in their sketch called "Black Magic," at the entertainment, New Year's Eve.

Jack Quinlan is happy that his favorite bird, the turkey, is in season. Jack can eat ten turkey sandwiches at one sitting.

Johnny Burns has a list of the days that corn beef and cabbage is served by the various lunch rooms in the Swamp for dinner, and there you will find him enjoying his favorite dish.

It has been discovered that the gentleman on the Post who wrote that abusive article on New Yorkers, some time ago, visited the Empire State to buy some green goods and returned with a brick.

Oscar Nelson was in the glue room the other day looking for his glue pot, which some one had evidently stolen. Becoming indignant, he ejaculated: "Vell, I've done many bad tings in my life, but I nefer took a man's glue pot."

It was somewhat of a surprise to Sam Childs, alias "Chinchy," to find that the Baltimore police are "next" to his alias. In a recent raid on Chinese gamblers the name of Sam Chin appeared and the police had no difficulty in recognizing our friend.

Dan McCarty formed a coffee club. He showed up with his bowl three times one dinner hour and squeezed the grounds in the afternoon for a drink. The membership of the club is fast decreasing, and if Mac don't let up he will be the only member.

"Fatty" Fitz tells a lurid tale of the way in which he was "held up" by some of the Baltimore contingent in Judiciary Square. He declares that Gus Burns choked him into promising to set 'em up and the only way to effect his release was to buy, which he did. He and Bill Haslett now shake every time they meet.

The recent campaign for vice-president of the union was the most unique in its history. The contestants were Major Fredericks and George Kirch. Early in the morning "fake" telegrams were posted in the wash room, all bearing upon the contest. Many of them were exceedingly witty and should have been preserved for publication. Two of them read thus:

Latest returns indicate that the Major has polled a solid vote among the cowboys, carrying everything but the standpresses and the cutting machines. His election is assured, being only a question of refreshments.

ST ELIZABETH'S ASYLUM.

MAJOR: We are with you to a man. We feel that you are one of us.

AN INMATE.

The ladies on the perforating machines were very much interested in the success of the Major and even went so far as to upbraid one of the tellers for not counting him in.

The Bookbinders' Entertainment.

The annual entertainment of Local No. 4, International Brotherhood of Bookbinders, will be held on New Years eve at National Rifle's Armory. Chas. F. Weston, chairman of the committee and director of the Book binders' Tuxedo Minstrels, has prepared an unique musical extravaganza entitled "A Night on the Lawn" with Washington's "Smart Set." The entertainment will undoubtedly eclipse the one given last year as the Women's Bindery Union have been called on and 15 of their young talented vocalists will be in the grand chorus. There will be over 30 people on the stage in the first part and every one has an excellent voice and will be heard to advantage in the many popular up to-date songs that will be rendered during the entertainment We do not exaggerate when we state that no burlesque or comic opera show has appeared in Washington this season with a stronger chorus, and no amateur performance will surpass, in any way, the Bookbinders' entertainment, on New Year's eve. Mr. Weston is working very hard drilling and rehearsing his chorus. Every Sunday afternoon the full cast rehearse for two hours and by New Year's eve it is expected that the many voices will blend in harmony. There will be introduced at the entertainment a new song written for the occasion by J. L. Feeney entitled "I'll Wed for Love Alone" Free copies, words and music complete, will be presented to everyone on entering the hall. It is regretted by the committee that a larger hall than National Rifles' Armory could not be obtained and it is expected it will be like last year, standing room only after 8 o'clock.

Facts vs. Fiction.

"The editor of the column under the caption of 'Flotsam and Jetsam' would confer a great favor upon a large number of the readers of this journal if he would confine his reminiscences to a higher plane of thought and morals and eliminate therefrom the collection of low bar room anecdotes and whisky stories which invariably abound therein."

The above suggestion concludes the deliverance of Division 4, in last week's issue of THE TRADES UNIONIST; but, upon reflection, it is discovered that Bloomer is in famous company when he describes a generation prone to vice, or human weakness, just as you will it. For one, the writer has been handsomely entertained by his reminiscences, and it is of additional value that they have been true to life; sad, perhaps, tho' tempered by Bloomer's able pen. If it be an offense, however, to narrate the conditions complained of—facts that are substantiated—what of those authors who regale us with like characters and charge them up to fiction? Who can forget dear old Bill Sykes, of happy memory, and his devoted companion, Nancy? Bill was not a printer, he was a proof reader and, afterwards, a burglar Dickens devotes considerable space to him as a counter irritant to Fagan, the Jew, in "Oliver Twist." We also have a striking exhibition of man's perfidy when David Copperfield witnessed the brutal assault on the road to Betsy Trotwoods. Does Washington Irving point a moral or adorn a tale in the tragedy that Joe Jefferson has made famous—the region where Miller slew the bear? Jean Valjean piked through the Parisian sewers to escape a constabulary ignorant of his dormant virtues. Edgar Allen Poe hands us in "The Raven" an apostrophe to his own sad life. Literature effervesces with mournful situations that wrench the heart and fill the cup of rational sympathy. But I knew there would be trouble as soon as Nat Steed put in the first corn crop for Sir Walter Raleigh. Go ahead, Bloomer, there must be some excuse for the noble jails and penitentiaries that buss the skies, so prolong the story by all means. You have the sanction of a vast clientele. Your letters are read with greater interest than those of any other correspondent, with the possible exception of the undersigned. And while, mayhap, your theme take on the memory of an unfortunate wanderer of the long ago, the evil described is condoned, to a great extent, by the graces of your mind and pen. Cromwell sat for a picture, and when the artist inquired if he should include in the same the wart upon his nose, that great Tammany leader replied: "Paint me as I am." R. BUCKLE.

Labor Notes.

St. Louis mill workers will be organized.

Connecticut metal spinners are organizing.

Paris waiters have revolted against the tip system, and have made a union demand for regular wages.

Syracuse labor unions, representing about 6,000 men, intend placing a labor candidate in the field for mayor.

Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes has passed the 60,000 mark in membership. Five years ago it had less than 5,000.

The State convict board of Alabama has announced that after January 1 no State convicts will be leased to coal mines of Alabama.

Australia has gone farther than any other country in the restriction of immigration. Its new law shuts out yellow labor, Kanakas, and East Indians.

Chicago has 800,000 working people. The 525 trade unions claim 40 per cent. are members of unions. About 85 per cent of the crafts of the city are organized.

Glass Cutters' Union of America is calling the attention of manufacturers to the employment of women in this work, and asks that it be dicontinued by January 1.

The French government has made a provisional order for the partial adoption of an eight-hour day in certain state industries. If successful the order is to be general.

The directors of Cincinnati's Labor Exchange are preparing a constitution and by-laws for the association whereby its sphere of usefulness will be extended on the co-operative plan.

Thirty-seven labor papers have been started in the last twelve months. There are at present 217 strictly union labor papers in the United States. This indicates the growth of unionism.

A chauffeurs' union has been organized by the men who drive the automobiles of the Inerstate Transit Company, of St. Louis, Mo. This is said to be the first of its kind in the United States.

Some of the bills which labor unions of New Hampshire want passed by the next legislature are the fifty-eight hour, mechanics' lien, employers' liability, and factory inspection, and prohibiting discrimination against members of trade unions.

An increase of 17 per cent. in wages of engine, train, aud yardmen on the Mexico International road decided on by the arbitrators selected to adjust the differences between the employes and management over the question of wages.

Nearly 1,200 employes of the American Cigar Company in Cincinnati, mostly girls, will receive an increase of about 20 per cent. in wages commencing January 1. The raise, it is stated, will extend to all factories of the company throughout the country.

Referendum ballot by the United Association of Journeymen Plumbers, Gas and Steam Fitters of the United States and Canada has decided that after January 1 the dues shall be increased to 30 cents a week. The project of equalizing the matter of sick, death, strike, and superannuated benefits was adopted. There had been no uniformity in this matter, and some locals paid no benefits.

THE dollar may be honest, but how about the law which allows the creditor to discharge his obligations at the rate of fifty cents on the hundred?

JOHN L. SULLIVAN is suffering from a second and acute stroke of bankruptcy. This time the trouble proceeds from his purse. The man who is a bankrupt both in character and purse has about reached the limit.

THE new Government Printing Office will be completed by the first of the year, but will not be occupied until after Congress adjourns in March. This announcement is vouchsafed in order to avert any undue rush in the direction of the elevators and that the stampede for window frames may be avoided.

THE House Judiciary Committee has secured the contract for curbing the trusts. Washingtonians have come to look upon "curbing" as a premonitory symptom of opening up new avenues of real estate ventures along unoccupied territory; but it is far from our purpose to discourage or forestall the work of the Judiciary.

THE opening of the Carnegie Library at Mt. Vernon Square on January 7 has been arranged for and it is to be a "pink" affair, admission being gained by card. The event recalls an unpleasant recollection of a "Pink" (erton) affair which took place at Homestead, Pa.: but this was before the building of libraries was thought of as an atoning sacrifice for a murderous wrong.

HON. WILLIAM CONNELL, Representative from Scranton, Pa., was one of the largest individual operators in the anthracite coal fields. When he sold out his interest it was stipulated that he should receive a check of $1,000 each day for ten years, a plan decided upon because, at the time of sale, Mr. CONNELL knew of no good place to invest the money and preferred a certain and permanent investment. Mr. CONNELL is now 78 years of age.

THOMAS NAST, late Consul General at Guayquit, Equador, died at that place of yellow fever on Saturday last. Mr. NAST will be especially remembered as the pioneer illustrator of public prints and who attained conspicuous note as cartoonist of Harper's Weekly during and for several years following the Civil War. It was Mr. NAST who brought forth the tiger as the symbol of Tammany Hall and the elephant as an emblem of the Republican party. When he began to make pictures there were no more than a dozen to keep him company, whereas the number now employed could scarce be named with any degree of accuracy, and of the many thus engaged none have yet developed the master genius which is everywhere ascribed to HOMER DAVENPORT, though a local pride common with us all accords to Mr. BERRYMAN, of the Washington Post, the honor of second place in the galaxy of stars of the first magnitude.

THOMAS BRACKETT REED died at the Arlington Hotel, this city, at midnight on Sunday last, of uræmia, after a week's illness, aged 63 years. It was as Speaker of the House of Representatives that Mr. REED, by his many arbitrary rulings, won the uncoveted and un American title of "Czar" Finding himself at odds with some of the p evailing policies of his party, at the end of three successive terms in the Speaker's chair, he retired to private life and took up the practice of law in New York city. Mr. REED aspired to the Presidency in 1896, but lost the coveted prize by failing to secure the Southern delegates. Here, for once, he felt the power of a minority as an essential factor when turned to good account. At the end of twenty two years of public service Mr. REED retired as poor in purse as when he began, and when the opportunities for avoiding such a catastrophe are considered a generous public will be willing to accord to Mr REED the proud distinction of all that is implied when it is said that he was an honest man.

THE miners and operators are both in honor bound to abide by the decision of the commission appointed to investigate the causes which led to the recent coal strike. At no time during the investigation have witnesses or those representing the miners' interests avoided the scrutiny of counsel for the operators. On the other hand, the operators, through their attorneys, have employed every disreputable means known in seeking to discredit the statements of the miners, and especially has the effort been made to entangle Mr. MITCHELL in a web of inaccuracies in the hope of showing that the President of the United Mine Workers is possessed of an ill-conceived notion as to the rights of the miners and that the abuses complained of are more imaginary than real; but, as the trial progresses Mr. MITCHELL is receiving much praise from quarters least expected. It was at a point in the investigation in which counsel for the corporation attempted to discredit the responsibility of the miners, when Mr. MITCHELL, fired by the injustice which the occasion called forth, made reply in these words:

"It was the United Mine Workers of America that conferred with the President of the United States in relation to the submission of the issues involved in the coal strike; it was the United Mine Workers of America that was requested by the President to end the strike; it was the United Mine Workers of America that declared the strike at an end; it was the United Mine Workers of America that sent the men back to work; and it is the United Mine Workers of America that is pledged to accept the award of this commission."

Fortunate indeed is the cause which may claim JOHN MITCHELL as its advocate and friend.

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

The following letter was not indorsed "Private" or "Personal," and it contains entirely too much news and interesting chat to be treated as such:

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 27, 1902.

FRIEND BLOOMER: I am sick, and that is the reason I find time to afflict you.

While recovering from a touch of pneumonia I read in the Typographical Journal the death at San Francisco of Jim Houston, from the same disease. In gone days Jim and I were chums, and I took him there and introduced him to the Friscans. Those were days when we cared not for one's politics or religion; we knew they were born that way and couldn't help it. Nor of Kickapoos or Juanitas; nor nursed the suggestion that one joined the Catholic Knights or the Masons through ulterior motives. Some months ago I got a letter from Harry White, of Frisco (secretary), to which Jim Houston and Will Copeland (president) added lines of "old-time regard" and proffering the glad hand should I wander to their bailiwick.

In a recent issue of THE TRADES UNIONIST R. A. Julian is mentioned as in Washington. If it is Bob Julian, of the North Pacific, give him welcome; you'll find him all right.

While president of Seattle Union, in '86, a retiring youth named Frank Morrison blew in from the Canada woods. This came to memory in looking over some old papers. I wonder if the secretary of the American Federation knows him?

Jim Kirwin has for two years been reading proof on the Daily Argus. Ned DeCaindry, I believe, is subbing in that proof room. R. K Youngblood (Yb) will resign or has resigned to go to the Far West or the Pacific. These are the only people in these diggings I know who have read in the G. P O

Dave Shaw, an old-time G. P. O. print, is a Mergenthalerist here. Several years ago he passed an examination and was given a G P. O. appointment, but declined it Dave is an indefatigable politician. Upon his arrival his party was in the minority; now the city and county are as strongly Republican as Philadelphia.

Last night was the ball of the Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias Wife had worked hard to finish for the occasion a pale blue silk, all furbelowed, and I was to swell the grand march in a uniform and trappings worn for the first time. But we didn't; we stayed home and listened to the rattle of hacks that were not to call for us. And thus does time and occasion come and pass and treat us as though we weren't in it.

So with this brief preliminary, I'll touch the subject I sat down to write on—proofreaders and printer politics. Going back forty-five or fifty years—only a short distance for you—and a proofreader would get as many votes for office as would a base ball umpire at a fair of the fans for "the most popular man." This has largely changed, and I can name a score of proofreaders as presidents or International delegates. Several causes may be assigned for this With the introduction of machines and the aimost general abolition of the piece system the matter of rings has ceased to be an ever present contention; then the tendency to seclude the proof room has been in favor of the reader, who can wash away the worry from his countenance and don his canvassing smile before meeting the voter in the open. There may be another cause, and I will cite an incident as an illustration. In '89 or '90 Tom Hickey, of the 'Frisco Examiner proof room, was running for International delegate, and one of his friends was pleading for the vote of a new sub. The new sub had grown an antipathy for proofreaders, and looked upon the request unfavorably "Well, Tom is a real good fellow," said the vote solicitor, persistently, "and he isn't much of a proofreader, anyway." Tom was elected, quit reading, and practiced medicine successfully, whether or not it was true that his medical knowledge was acquired through reading patent medicine ads.

For which, let us ever pray,
HERB STEELE.

The Fourth Division Editorial Syndicate—I believe the Fourth Division items are the production of a syndicate—complains about the "low bar-room anecdotes and whisky stories" in my stuff, and justifiably, too, I am afraid; but it is a matter beyond my control. My literary tastes run along about the same lines as those of the syndicate. I dote on such items as: "Dud Fleming has a new story; get him to tell it to you;" "They came right for Sam Kennedy on Monday;" "For once Duke Kirby got on the right thing," and like "sporty" news I could write by the hour on Jess Grant's purple socks, Charlie Doten's red necktie, and Grant Barnhart's violet and green suspenders, and get some pleasure out of my work. But my constituency won't have it; they don't want the "higher plane of thought and morals;" they insist on having rummy hobo stories, "tourist" adventures, and such experiences of the "tough" side of life as I am able to gather from those who have undergone them. It is not my fault, gentlemen, that I do not wander along the gentler paths of literature.

But in relating booze stories I am only following the teachings given me in temperance societies in my youthful days. I have belonged to several, but I believe I was never a member of one where the features of the evening were not the experiences of alleged reformed old topers, related under the head "Good of the Order." I have heard old fellows, "snatched as a brand from the burning" for the time being, and undergoing physical and financial repairs to enable them to again become victims of the demon Rum, stand up and deliver stories of drinking bouts with smacking lips the effect of which could never be counteracted by the words of deprecation with which they were told, until I, who then had no personal knowledge of the seductiveness of drink, could not believe that the Rum Devil was as black as he was painted. I remember one old fellow who told of a Christmas Day's experiences—how he had drank so much at this place, so much at that, and so on, until, by his statement, he guzzled over three quarts of whisky, when he went home to dinner, to be greeted by his wife:

"Well, did you come home sober one Christmas?"

Callow as I was, I knew the old scalawag was lying; that he did not drink one third of what he bragged about; that he didn't "go home sober one Christmas;" and that he was only thinking of the time when he could resume his bibulation. But such was the pabulum dealt out to us "in those days" to show the horror of drink, and if whisky stories are good reform measures in temperance societies, they must also be in my column.

Go to, Fourth Division; go there yourself.

James Monroe Kreiter had a very newsy, chatty letter in the December 1 Typographical Journal, but he handles names, nearly all susceptible of easy verification by the Yearbook, with a recklessness that is appalling. Charles "Sleutz," "James" Purvis, "Mose Heilbruner," and "William" McLean (foreman of the Star) are a few fierce specimens. There is nothing that stirs up a man's wrath worse than to have his name misprinted.

There is a very pretty contest on in the G. P. O. Sick Relief Association (I never can remember its exact title) between E F. Geyer and R. D. Barrett, for recording secretary, and between R. J. Hale and A. J. Arnold, for treasurer, the election to be held at Typographical Temple next Sunday afternoon. Mr. Geyer is the present incumbent; his opponent, Mr. Barrett, was recently elected president of the Bookbinders' Sick Relief. Mr. Arnold is also the present incumbent, while Bob Hale's friends say they are going to give him a run for his money. Come out and let's get into the fun. It will be good practice for those who contemplate running for a Union office next spring

Wm. J. Zeh, coal dealer, in a letter in the Star a few days ago, waxed sarcastical about "the gentlemen miners" seeing "fit to take a holiday of six months this summer," and begs the public to be patient. As "the gentlemen miners," under the system of making them mine three tons for the wage of two, receive less than one-third as much for mining a ton of coal as Mr. Zeh takes in profit for handling it, patience seems easy to him. If he has read of the outrages and hardships put upon the miners as brought out in sworn testimony before the Coal Strike Commission, and is still full of admiration for the "liberality" of Mr. Baer, as stated in his letter, he is scarcely the one for whose opinion a self-respecting workingman would have any regard.

The Ex-Delegates' Association met last Sunday, at Typographical Temple, President W. R. Ramsey in the chair; J. T. Herbert, secretary. The several committees made oral reports. The manner in which the association proposes to entertain the convention next August was discussed informally, but no definite conclusion was arrived at. Secretary Herbert announced the membership as 98.

From proof sheets which I have seen of the Yearbook I feel certain that it will be the best executed work the Union has yet issued, and the literary features will equal the mechanical excellence.

On behalf of the Gashington Was Light Company, I desire to thank my constituents in advance for the increased amount of gas they will burn in December, over that in November, as will be evidenced by gas bills. By reason of the increased length of darkness and colder weather we might expect them to burn 10 or 15 per cent more, but in their generosity they will probably consume from 75 to 100 per cent more, all of which will come in handy in paying the January dividend.

Did it ever occur to you that to take a laborer's services for no recompense, as in the days of slavery, and to take them for insufficient recompense, as often done in the present day, are crimes differing only in degree?

The Ladies' Auxiliary will complete its organization about the first of the year, until which time it will be under the control of the temporary officers—Miss Laura B. Gordon, chairman; Miss Abbie Boutwell, secretary; Misses Nellie Theaker, Carrie Whitehead, and Josepha Lange, law committee. The object of the organization is to popularize union-label goods, to discourage patronage of establishments unfair in their treatment of union labor, to cultivate union sentiments among women, and to assist in the entertainment of the I. T. U. convention next August. It is composed of union lady compositors and the wives, mothers, daughters, and sisters of union printers. The address of the officers is Union Building, Specification Division. The officers are in correspondence with similar organizations in other cities to learn their objects and mode of procedure.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 5, 1902.

EDITORS THE TRADES UNIONIST:

I append the first paragraph of my article, printed in your last issue, in order to make clear an error that lays in my mouth words that are either a slur or arrant nonsense. You will see by consulting my manuscript, which is typewritten, that instead of speaking of "brains or brass," I referred to "brains or brawn."

Very truly yours,
AUGUST DONATH.

The paragraph referred to was as follows:

"The membership of the International Typographical Union has just approved a law submitted to them for ratification, which makes each and every member a recipient of the official paper published by the organization. A wise move, and one that will educate a lot of people who may need it, is the principles that underlie the organization of those whose sole capital is their brain or brass, or a mixture of both."

A system of superannuation for its employes is about to be put into effect by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. The sum of $250,000 has been designated a pension fund.

THE SONG OF FREEDOM.

I was born in the brain of the poet
In the days when the earth was young;
In the days ere men with the silent pen
Supplanted the minstrel's tongue.

In the days when the earth was noisy
With the discord her children wrought;
When her youthful pulse beat out results
Unchecked by the touch of thought.

Seek, but you can not find it,
Seek, but you seek in vain,
For the far-off time when in throes of rhyme
I sprang from the poet's brain.

My pinions have been bedraggled
In the red dew of war's night,
And many a crown has been trampled down
Since I began my flight.

Sowing the seeds of progress
I have crouched in the shadow of thrones;
And I fain would change into warlike strains
The music of slavish groans.

I have cried o'er the house of bondage
To the people, "Awake, awake!"
And amidst his power in that fateful hour
I have seen the tyrant quake.

Ever I sweetly whisper
To the heroes within my fold,
And ever I frown on the shifty clown
Who seeks the oppressor's gold.

Ever I stand and beckon
And point to the land of rest,
Where never the throb of a slavish sob
Shall rise in the human breast.

Ah, many a laggard æon
Shall creep o'er the path of Time,
Ere my toil shall end and all heart throbs blend
Like the flow of a matchless rhyme.

—WILLIAM TIPTON TALBOTT.

AROUND THE PRINTERIES

Notice to Chairmen.

The raffle for the watch for the benefit of B. F. Cullen will take place at Dobbert's cigar store on Saturday, December 13, at 4:30 p. m.

Down Town.

And Charles Yeakle, of Baltimo', is with us.

The demand for printers in the Government Printing Office has brought many new arrivals to our city.

The library of the late Hon. Amos J. Cummings has been donated to the Printers' Home, at Colorado Springs, Colo., by Mrs. Cummings as per request of her late husband.

The proposition to devote 5 cents per capita per month to assist Los Angeles Union in her struggle with the Otis rat fostering Times, of that city, was favorably passed upon by Columbia Union, No. 101, yesterday, by a vote (exclusive of Bill Force and Record chapels whose returns are not yet in) of 1037 for and 191 against the aiding in a worthy cause. We did not think we had even that many against us in our fold.

Night Bill Force.

C. K. Dow, temporary, has been assigned to the Third Night Division.

M. W. Kent has been appointed a temporary laborer on the Bill Force.

A. S. Jones and W. A. Beasley are recent additions to Foreman Tuttle's force.

George G. Klinknett has returned to work after an absence of several weeks caused by typhoid fever.

Frank D. Smith recently conducted a raffle for a sofa pillow. Mr. Frank D. Smith held the lucky number.

J. T. Hanrahan, H. E. Bartle and W. S. Carpenter, temporaries, occupy cases in the Third Night Division.

Ticket No. 7, held by Mr. B. R. Preuss, of the Bill Force, won the gold watch recently raffled by H. P. McKevitt.

J. W. H. Dix, T. C. Shandley, T. C. Boyd and F. V. Shipley, all temporaries, were assigned to the force Monday night.

There are only 7 regular compositors employed in the Night Third Division. Of the balance, 68 are temporary and probationary.

J. A. Scannell, an ex employe of this office, has received a probationary appointment. Mr. Scannell is credited to the New York quota.

The Night Bill Force Knockers' Club holds sessions each morning at 3:30 in Reilly's cigar store. Tommy Dougherty occupies the chair.

T. P. Neal, E. H. Tabler, W. H. Mules and H. E. Haliday hold temporary appointments, having been assigned to the force last week.

The mutual benefit associations will make their annual dividend next week. It is said the pro rata disbursement will be in the neighborhood of $9.

E. E. Wear, who worked last winter on the Bill Force, has returned to his first love, the Record. No more "easy nights on the Bill Force" for "Ikey."

Numerous compositors are being detailed to the proof room, as copyholders, due to large legacies left Mr. Wheat's division by the Day Proof Room.

J. B Skelly, formerly of THE TRADES UNIONIST force, has accepted a temporary appointment in the big shop, and is now situated in the Third Night Division.

The Night Bill Force now consists of 1 foreman, 2 revisers, 8 makers up, 7 imposers, 216 compositors, 3 helpers and 7 laborers, a total of 244. Of the compositors 127 are permanent, 84 temporary and 5 probationary.

All the compositors who were formerly in the Second Night Division are now situated in the Third Division, with Mr. Tuttle in charge. The change was made on account of the insufficiency of frames in the Second to accommodate the increasing force of night workers.

Second Division

Let us be thankful that the races are over.

"Pard" Bloomer has developed into quite a poet.

W. E. Soult has resumed operations in the time alley.

Parshall has returned and is doing business at the old "sit."

Cheer up, boys, there's another "pick-up" in sight this month, and next month, also.

Oliver Cromwell Terry has been transferred to the Night Bill Force, and we have no Terry now.

By the death of Thomas B. Reed the country lost an honest, fearless, upright man, and organized labor a staunch friend.

David Loyd, who has been enjoying the Rocky Mountain air of the "Spess," has been assigned to frame 13, in this division.

Charles E. Young, who was acting in J. M. A. Spottsword's place during his recent illness, has returned to the Night Bill Force.

The "average" strenuous life seems to be telling on the members of our craft, as the death-roll numbered over 32 during the past year.

C. C. Hipkins, who has been acting secretary during Mr. Garrett's absence at New Orleans, has returned and is doing business at the old stand.

Joseph E Goodkey, who was called home last week by the sudden death of his father, has the sympathy of his many friends in his bereavement.

"Billy" Garrett paid us a visit last week. He looks as if he enjoyed his trip to New Orleans. "Billy" is "hot stuff," to use a vulgar expression.

Captain Brock, who has been working in the "Side Show" at the "Spess" for the past eight or ten years, was transferred to the main office, recently.

Messrs. Reed and Weidman were transfered to the Record on Saturday. They are both good fellows and first-class printers and will be missed by this division.

The "indescribably mean men"—the kind that read a borrowed paper and take delight in cursing some of the writers of said paper—are still visible to the naked eye.

The annual election of the G. P. O. Mutual Relief Association will be held at Typographical Temple on Sunday, December 14, at 2:30 p. m. All members are requested to be present.

William H. Bright, who has been confined to his home on account of sickness, is again at work. Mr. Bright is connected with an amateur dramatic company of this city, which is going to give an entertainment and dance at National Rifles' Armory to-night.

W. R. Branham has developed into a poet here of late. He has been poetizing his friend Wood at a lively gait, as will be seen by the following:

"What well dressed man goes yonder, son?"
Asked the parson, grand and good.
The boy looked up amazed, and said:
"Why, pa, that's farmer Wood."

If we are to judge from the advanced sheets of our Yearbook, it is going to be the brightest and best that we have had, and will prove beyond a peradventure that President Johnson made no mistake when he put T. A Bynum in charge of this work. Mr. Bynum is without doubt one of our ablest and most competent members.

While it is a well known fact that there is considerable printing done in this office that could be dispensed with, nevertheless the money spent gives employment to many honest, industrious workmen who might otherwise be idle, and thus the money is put into circulation again and the government and city are indirectly benefitted by the money thus expended. "Let the good work go on" seems to be the sentiment out here.

Joint Debate.

There will be a joint debate Friday night at 8 p. m. in Y. M. C. A. parlors, 1732 G street N. W., between the Bellamy and Capitol Hill Literary Societies upon the question:

"Resolved, That the fair share of labor in any industrial enterprise is the total proceeds of the enterprise."

Both societies hold high rank in the debating and literary line and, we note, two of the speakers are known to many of our readers.

The affirmative side of the question for the Bellamy Society will be defended by J. H. Swerdfiger, of the Night Bill Force, and Joseph H. Babcock, of the First Division, G. P. O., will protect the interests of the Capital Hill Literary Society on the negative side. Any one wishing to hear something good and instructive should attend.

Woodmen Open Meeting.

Alpha Camp, Woodmen of the World, will hold an open meeting next Sunday, December 14, 714 Ninth street N. W., 7:30 p. m. The beauties of Woodcraft will be ably presented by that brilliant young orator, Congressman Morris Sheppard, Sovereign Banker of the order, with other distinguished statesmen members. The public are cordially invited to be present at this meeting, that they may familiarize themselves with the teachings of this most progressive of all fraternal societies. Its present membership of over 300,000 speaks volumes for its strong hold upon the confidence of the American people, while its increasing reserve fund of $1,000,000 is an index to its great strength and permanency. The record of the Woodmen of the World is without a parallel in history. Members of trades unions and all others will be welcomed. Admission free.

Two labor candidates have been elected to Congress from California.
